Minor Loops Would "Parley"

DOWN BUT NOT OUT

For some time now British Columbia has kept the Canadian colors flying in fistiana. Billy Townsend was decisively beaten by King Tut in Detroit and Jimmy McLarnin was on the receiving end with Billy Petrolle. Already Billy Townsend has shown he isn't out of the game yet and has boxed a head-liner in Detroit and signed up to go in again as the big event on January 9th. In looking over the results of the McLarnin-Petrolle battle apparently the left-hook that put the skids under so many champions and near champions, played havoc with Jimmy. The left-hook is a developed punch rather than a natural havoc with Jimmy. The left-hook is a developed punch rather than a natural one, the exception being in the case of boxers who belong to the southpaw division of which Ray Millar is the perfect example. The orthodox boxer needs a great deal of time to develop a really good left-hook. These same left-hooks have played a prominent part in recent bouts in Madison Square Garden. Fidel La Barba used his left-hook to wear down the famous "Kid" Chocolate, Tony Canzoneri knocked out Al. Singer with a left-hook and Billy Petrolle developed the same weapon to good advantage in winning from Jimmy McLarnin, who a couple of years before was beaten by Ray Millar, the left-hook artist. Digging up a little history, Jack Dempsey, if you remember, his left-hook to the body did almost as much damage as his right did to the jaw. It seems reasonable that this punch is the Waterloo for leather pushers and the only thing that had any effect on Jimmy McLarnin.

BELANGER BEATEN BY FRISCO GRANDE

Canadian Champion Loses Close Bout—Bodkin and Stroppos Victors.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 3. (CP)—Frisco Grande, Buffalo Phillipine, outpointed "Frenchy" Belanger, Canadian flyweight champion, in a hard fought six round bout which headlined the Shamrock Athletic Club's boxing show here last night.

The program consisted of six bouts at six rounds with six Torontonians pitted against a like number of boys from Buffalo, constituting a sort of inter-city championship. The result, however, ended in a tie, each city getting three victories.

In the other bouts, Ossie Bodkin, Toronto, 127½, knocked out Joe Boler, 126¼, Buffalo, in the first round; Billy Ayrton, Toronto, 121¼, outpointed Johnny Moran, Buffalo, 118, while Malcolm Mathieson, Buffalo, 115, won an unpopular decision over Tommy McBeigh, 116, formerly of Vancouver.

LONDON REGAINS SECOND POSITION

Trounce Windsor Bulldogs 2-1 While Olympics Defeat Indians 3-2.

TORONTO, Ont., December 3 (C.P.). — Coming from behind to snatch victory from their opponents by a two to one score, London regained undisputed possession of second place in the International Hockey League last night. The defeat shovde Windsor into third place, just one point in the van of Detroit Olympics, who caused a surprise by trouncing the Indians right in Cleveland by a score of three to two, after ten minutes' overtime.

Unlimited class—Isadore Black, 213; Allan Holmes, 172; Donald Welch, 121.

The events were: Standing broad jump, running high jump, short and long potato races, fence vault, and the shot put.

FIVE NON-DRAFT BALL LEAGUE ISSUE ULTIMATUM OF THEIR OWN

TO SEVER RELATIONS.

MONTREAL, December 3 (C.P.).—Bounced around like a much-battered football, the trouble-making draft question was tossed back into the arms of the major leagues at yesterday's sessions of the minor league convention.

The ive non-draft leagues—International, Pacific Coast, American Association, Western, and Three I. — announced after a lengthy conference that they were prepared to reopen the whol draft qustion with the majors if the latter, within 15 days, withdraw their threat to sever business relations with the minor leagues involved in the fight.

The non-draft leagues made no guarantees that they would accept the majors' demand that they submit to the universal draft, but they did offer to re-open negotiations with a view toward arriving at an amicable agreement if possible.

2-0 WIN FOR CANADIENS.

PHILADELPHIA, December 3. — The Philadelphia Quakers last night stayed off the famed world champion Caandiens for more than two periods, but the Flying FFrenchmen eventually got going and carried off the decision by 2 to 0 in a hard-fought National Hockey League match before the largest crowd of the season. Aurel Joliat and Howie Morenz did the scoring, both on solo efforts. The former counted first on a disputed shot. Goalkeeper Miller claiming interference. Fifty-three seconds before the end of the game Morenz got loose and drove in a sensational tally.

Joliat and Barton, who staged a qstic encounter at the Quakers' goal in the second period, were given major penalties. There were clashes that bordered on battles throughout the struggle. The Quakers tried hard to tie the score, but their rushes were repulsed.

Marlboros Defeated By Nationals 5 To 3

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 3.—(C.P.)—The Nationals and Marlboros, local rivals in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series, clashed here last night in a Sportsmen's Patriotic Association fixture. The Nationals won, 5 to 3, after a clever exhibition of hockey, which showed Toronto will have strong contenders this season for the Allan Cup and the right to represent Canada at the Olympics.

MAROONS STOP CHICAGO HAWKS BY 2-1 COUNT TO CREDIT THIRD CONSECUTIVE WIN FOR MUNROMEN

Johnny Gallagher, Recruit Defenceman, Scores Winning Goal For Montreal.

PLAY FAST GAME.

"Hooley" Smith is the Other Marksman on Pass From Stewart.

FORUM, Montreal, Dec. 3.— The Chicago Black Hawks' undefeated National Hockey League streak was abruptly halted here last night when Montreal Maroon sharpshooters netted two goals to Chicago's one. Although the Hawks, with Gardiner at his best, put up an almost impregnable defense, Maroons sifted through it in the second and third periods, "Hooley" Smith getting the first goal on a pass from Stewart, and Johnny Gallagher, defenseman, netting the second on a blazing solo rush and shot from right wing. The Hawks went ahead in the first period when, although a man short, Ty Arbour and "Mush" March cleverly split the Maroon defense and March scored.

Chicago had previously won four games and tied one. The victory last night was Maroons' third straight and completely re-established them in the esteem of their fellows after the disastrous start of their season when they dropped four games in a row.

Last night's game was amasingly fast, Chicago had eleven forwards dressed and Maroons ten. Juggling their players with constant changes, both coaches kept the speed at full pitch. The Maroons withdrew the Conacher-Wilcox defense in the second period old "Buck" Boucher teaming up with Bill Phillips as one rearguard and Gallagher and McVicar making up the other.

Miss Valetta Drain will remain in Toronto until Christmas.

Sherwood Payne, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Payne, has gone to Ottawa with Mr. Nelson, district agricultural representative, where he will act as judge.

Mrs. David Miller returned home on Monday.

A fair number attended the play, "As A Woman Thinketh", given by the Dramatic Club of Knox church, under the auspices and were delighted with the entertainment. About thirty people came with and including the club.

The oyster supper given by the Baptist church on Friday evening was fairly well attended. After the supper Murray Street Baptist choir was expected to put on the program, but they failed to appear, and after telephoning, the ladies received word the choir was not coming. However Dr. Munro and Mr. Wilkinson worked up a good program and the people had a jolly evening. Mr. Wilkinson was chairman. The Baptist minister, Mr. Simpson, could not be present until it was nearly over.

The United Church Woman's Association annual meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Digweed on Thursday afternoon. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson presided during the election of officers. The election results are: Hon. President, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson; president, Mrs. Arthur Edwards; pice-president, Mrs. Uriah Payne; secretary, Mrs. Hilliard Edwards; treasurer, Mrs. George Weller; pianist, Mrs. Roland Payne; flower treasurer, Mrs. R. McCauley; auditors, Mrs. T. Cooper, and Mrs. Allan U. Payne.

During the remainder of the meeting Mrs. David Taylor was chairman. Mrs. Wallace Anderson read a paper on the parable of the good samaritan.

The United church W.M.S. will be held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Sargent, when Mrs. Sargent will give her report on the temperance work. Preparations will be made for the Christmas meeting.

HOWIE MORENZ RETAINS LEAD IN SCORE LIST

Charlie Conacher Just One Point Behind Leading Canadien Marksman.

JOE PRIMEAU UP.

(Canadian Press).

Howie Morenz, speedster of the Montreal Canadiens, retained the leadership of the Canadian section, National Hockey League, so far as scoring was concerned last night, but his position has become a trifle precarious. Morenz scored one goal last night, which gives him a total of nine points, but Charlie Conacher, Maple Leafs, scored two goals, and is now just one point behind Morenz. In the American section, Dit Clapper of Boston is still leading, with seven points. Clapper failed to score last night, but is still well ahead of any competitor in the group.

Joe Primeau, of the Leafs, scored another assist last night, and is now tied with Joliat, Canadiens, and Jackson, also of the Leafs, as leading "assisters" of the game. All three players have figured four times in goals scored by their team-mates. Oliver, Boston, and Shore, of the same team, are leading the American group in this branch, and they, too, have four assists to their credit.

There was a decided change in the penalty ranking as a result of last night's games. Previously, Harvey Rockburn, Detroit, and Alex. Smith, Ottawa, led their respective sections with 25 minutes on the bench. However, Joliat, of Canadiens, now leads the Canadian section with 26 minutes, and Shields, of Canadiens, now leads the Canadian section with 26 minutes and Shields, of Philadelphia, has 29 minutes recorded against him.

The leaders are as follows:

Canadian Section.

Team: Maple Leafs, won 4, lost 2, tied 2. Points 10.

Most points (goals and assists): Morenz, Canadiens, 8 goals, 1 assist —9 points.

Most goals: Morenz 8.

Most penalties: Joliat, Canadiens, 26 minutes.

Least penalties: Gagnon, Canadiens, none.

American Section.

Most goals: Clapper, 5.

Most assists: Oliver, Boston; Shore, Boston (4).

Most shutouts: Gardner, Chicago, 4.

Most penalties: Shields, Philadelphia, 29 minutes.

SEVERAL BEACHERS VETERANS ON DOUBT LIST AS STARTERS IN SATURDAY'S TROPHY FINAL

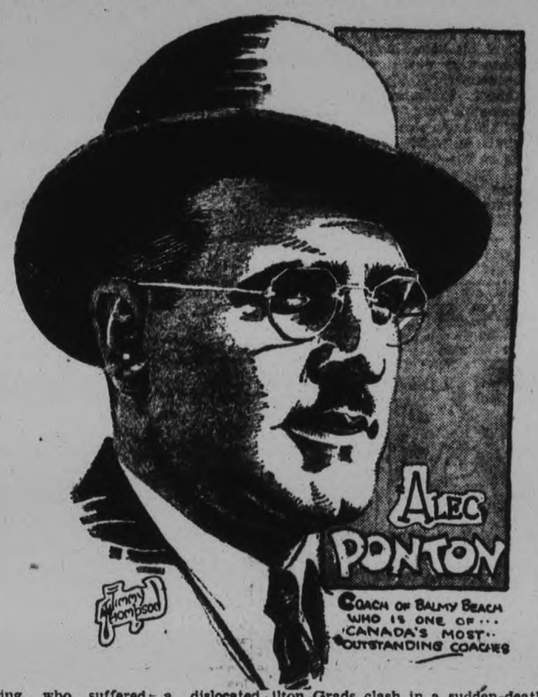
Coach Penton's Squad Not Taking Western Threat Any Too Lightly, Planning Three Heavy Drills—Roughriders Will Arrive in Toronto on Friday.

TEDDY REEVES AND CLAUDE HARRIS LISTED AMONG INJURED LUMINARIES OF EASTERNERS

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 3 (C.P.) — Each day nearer Saturday, when the Dominion football final will be played here, brings home the somewhat startling truth that Regina Roughriders, monarchs of the far Western Prairies, have practically an even money chance of winning the Grey Cup, Canadian championship emblem, for the first time in history.

The Eastern defenders of the cup, Balmy Beach, representatives of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, who toppled Hamilton Tigers from the top of the football world, paid dearly for their victory, according to reports leaking from the Beach camp.

Teddy Reeves, brilliant middle wing, who suffered a dislocated shoulder against the Jungle Kings, may not start against the Western challengers. In addition, Claude Harris and several other old Gold and Blue luminaries are on the hospital list and are doubtful starters.



Beaches have resumed training for the final game of the season, but will not indulge in any strenuous work until this afternoon. Coach Penton's squad are not taking the Regina threat lightly, and two stiff workouts later in the week will round the team into shape.

The Roughriders were given a hearty send-off as they started their annual pilgrimage east in quest of the vainly sought title. A large crowd gathered at the station to wish the Rough Riders good luck. The team, 21 strong, will spend to-day in Winnipeg, where they will work out on the training grounds of Native Sons. Western Canada Junior champions, who are also coming east after Dominion honors. The Rough Riders will arrive here in company with the Winnipeg Juniors on Friday.

Final To-day

Eastern Canada Junior titleholders and O.R.F.U. champions will be decided at Varsity Stadium here to-day when Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Grads clash in a sudden-death game.

With milder weather promised these two clever teams are expected to show some clever football before the double championship is decided.

Both teams are confident of continuing in the hunt for the Canadian crown, won last season by St. Thomas. The rival squads have speedy, sure-catching backfielders with Argos having perhaps, a slight advantage on the line.

Should Hamilton win, the Dominion final will be played in that city on Saturday, but if the locals are successful they will likely meet Winnipeg here on Monday, as the Senior final is slated for Saturday.

PEDEN GAINS LAP IN SIX-DAY RACE

MADISON SQUARE GARDENS, New York, Dec. 3.—Bill Peden of Toronto and his partner, Al Crossley of Boston, hung on like grim death to their position one lap behind the leading team of Peter Linari and Alfred Binda during the fiftieth hour of the forty-ninth international six-day bicycle race here last night.

It was after the official standings at the end of a series of wild sprints and jamming had been announced as marking the forty-ninth hour ranking that Peden and Crossley ran wild on a surprised and tired field. By sensational pedalling and wonderful stamina the Canadian and his New England partner stole a precious lap that put them alone in second place. Linari and Binda moved into lead in last night's wild riding, causing a general shake-up in the official standings.

MUCH BUSINESS FORMS AGENDA AT 1ST SESSION

MINORS ISSUE ULTIMATUM.

MONTREAL, Dec. 3. (CP)— The draft question tossed back into the laps of the majors, minor league club owners turned their attention to-day to the first session of the 29th annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Election of officers, appointment of committees, the secretary's report and election of new national board of arbitration formed the agenda for the first day. It seemed possible that the draft, sole topic among the delegaes Monday and Tuesday, might not even be mentioned in the association's sessions.

Elsewhere, however, baseball men tried to guess just where the heated dispute between the majors and the five non-draft leagues would lead. The next move in the complex controversy must come from the majors as a result of a resolution adopted by the non-draft leagues affected The International, Pacific Coast, American Association, Western League and Three Eye League—offered to enter into new negotiations with the majors provided the latter withdrew within 15 days their threat to discontinue all business relations with the affected minors.

In brief, the non-draft circuits are ready to confer with the majors on the big leagues' demand that they become subject to the draft but only if the figurative axe is removed from over their heads. If the majors withdraw their ultimatum, then the minors will appoint a committee to discuss with a similar major league group the whole draft problem and, if possible, reach an agreement.

It seemed probable the next chapter in the story would be written at New York next week at the joint major league meeting. Few observers here, however, were willing to hazard a guess on what form the majors' reply would take. Club owners of the five non-draft leagues themselves were about evenly divided on the question. Some took the position that the majors would not recede from their position, and that the rival groups would have to get along without each other.

Others were equally confident that a compromise would be reached in the near future.

If the draft dispute did nothing else, it managed to keep trades down to a minimum. Major league representatives now can do no business with the International and Pacific Coast Leagues and the American Association, and it is from these organizations that most major league rookies have come in the past.

ANGUS McINTOSH SETS RINK FLOORS FOR ICE

Curlers Expect to Open Season About Third Week in December.

REDECORATE GALLERY.

Favored by zero weather Angus McIntosh, whose name is so closely allied with the ancient game of curling in this district, was observed yesterday afternoon diligently preparing the sandy floor of the curling rink in readiness for flooding. He does not expect to have ice this week, even if the low temperature does prevail. He recalled the fact that at about this time last year there were substantial sheets of ice, and it looked as if the game was destined to get away to an unusually early start. Hopes were dashed to the ground by a thaw, and curling did not actually take place until about December 20. Even so the season did open in record time, and may possibly do so again this season.

Redecorate Gallery

Meanwhile James Walton, painting contractor, is busy renovating the players' gallery on the ground floor, while the rink committee is drawing up the schedules in anticipation of an exceptionally busy season.

On Monday evening next, the annual fall meeting of Peterborough Curling Club will be held, in the Club rooms, at 8 p.m., under the chairmanship of J. J. Howden. There is a great deal of important business to discuss, and a large attendance of curlers and others interested in the sport, are urged to be on hand.

18-Karat Gold Cup For "Gamest" Loser

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The trophy which Sir Thomas Lipton, as "the world's best loser," will receive on Thursday from the American people was displayed publicly for the first time yesterday. It is an 18-karat gold cup, standing on a sterling silver base, the whole trophy 18 inches high. The gold is finished in a dull burnished color, and the silver, sent from Utah, is darkly oxidized.

The cup is of simple lines, with two handles and a cover. On its front, beneath a rope border, is an escutcheon in bold relief, bearing in delicate detail a model of the America's Cup, which Sir Thomas tried for 30 years to take back to the British Isles. The model is superimposed upon the enameled shield of the United States, and at the left and right are shields bearing the devices of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club and the private insignia of Sir Thomas.

Around the edge of the cover, which is decorated with shamrock leaves, is the inscription: "This symbol of a voluntary outpouring of love, admiration and esteem is presented to the 'gamest' loser in the world of sport."

GOOD MATERIAL BOXING CLASSES

IN Y.M.C.A. GYM.

Many leather pushing enthusiasts have been attracted to the Y.M.C.A. boxing classes, which commenced recently under the instructorship of Gord. Garwood, and it is indicated that a successful season is ahead.

The instructor hopes to turn out a number of good boxers in the next few months, as he has some likely looking material on hand.

At the beginning of each class the instructor has been giving some stiff muscle-building exercises to help beginners and other familiar physical training drill, is alternated by shadow boxing and sparring, all of which is designed to give complete co-ordination of eyes and muscles and to induce greater endurance or staying power one of the requisites of the successful boxer.

GERMAN OPERAS IN DUBLIN

WHOOPEE CONTEST DRAWS BIG ENTRY

Winners Are Announced in Limerick Contest on Whooppee Page.

The Examiner limerick contest in connection with the Whoopee page of last Friday, brought a large number of creditable attempts to combine a reference to classified ads. and have the line end with a word to rhyme with whoopee. Evidently this was found to be a difficult task, many of the attempts using a coined word with a touch of Chinese patois, such as proofee, gettee, fruitee, gravee, advicee, etc.

However, the five winners did not find it necessary to use their poetical license, to that extent, and their double passes to see Whoopee are being mailed to them this morning.

The winners are:

J. Earle Chase, 819 George street—his line being: "At the classified ads take a look, see."

Mrs. G. Copping, 316 Margaret avenue—her line being: "Use classified ads and go in free."

B. H. Pammett, 300 Rogers street—who sent: "Examiner want ads will sell that coupe."

Mrs. J. Collis, 519 Wolfe street—her line: "Read classified ads as a duty."

Mrs. C. Goodley, 139 Stewart street—her line: "Is as good as a bargain ad you see."

For good measure a sixth pass for two was sent to Mrs. Wm. McKinley Rose avenue, Crawfords Grove, who very nicely combined a want ad idea and a coined word, as follows: "When a job through the want ads you gettee."

CANADA OPPOSES AIRCRAFT CLAUSE

Geneva Body Would Prohibit Using of Military Aviation Personnell For Civil Purposes.

BRITAIN BACKS DOMINION.

GENEVA, Dec. 3 (C.P.)—Canada's dependence upon aircraft to patrol her vast forest areas and to maintain communication with remote parts of the Dominion were set forth Tuesday before the Preparatory Commission on Disarmament by Walter Riddell, Canadian delegate.

He objected to incorporation in the draft convention which the Commission is drawing up a provision prohibiting employment of military aviation personnell or craft for civil purposes, and he proposed that material and personnel used in civil matters be counted in the agreed military quotas.

Ambassador Gibson, United States representative; Lord Cecil of England, and Count von Bernstorff of Germany supported the Canadian amendment, but France and others feared that it would establish an intimate link between civil and military aviation which would result in increased war potentialities of civil craft and personnel.

M. Westman of Sweden suggested that the Canadian proposal would encourage militarization of civil aeronautics. The question was referred to a sub-committee.

Ambassador Gibson to-day again was given opportunity to enter the United States objection to the principle of budgetary limitation of war materials and armament. Lord Cecil of Great Britain proposed the budgetary method of limiting air armaments, complementing previous agreements for budgetary limitation of land war material and for total expenditures for war material.

N. Sato of Japan and Rene Massigli of France joined with Ambassador Gibson in opposition to the move

Attained Leadership Through Personality

NEW YORK December 3 (C.P.)—Mahatma Gandhi attained leadership in India through personality, said Sir Rabindranath Tagore, white-haired poet and philosopher in an address at Carnegie Hall on Monday. He declared the East, unlike the West, cannot be governed by impersonal machinery.

Although the East is fast acquiring technical qualities from the West, it still is ruled through the soul the heart, and personality, said the venerable scholar who is nearing his 70th year.

The West is ruled mainly through politics, mathematics, rules or laws which are punishable by severe penalities and materialistic impulses, said Tagore.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FIRST SLIDE.

One night there was rain in Woodland, where Uncle Wiggily lived in his hollow stump bungalow. But before morning the weather turned very cold, the rain stopped and puddles of water froze into ice all over the country.

"Oh, hurray!" cried Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, as she hopped out of bed and ran to the window to look out. "Hurray! Hurray!"

"Isn't there any school to-day? Is that why you are so happy?" asked Jangle, who was Jingle's twin sister.

"I'm saying 'Hurray' because the puddles of water froze into ice last night," Baby Bunty answered. "And there'll be slides on our way to school this morning! Hurray! Hurray! Hurray!"

Then Jingle and Jangle jumped out of bed, and, seeing the frozen places which would make jolly slides, they, too, began to feel happy.

As all the other forty-sixteen twenty-six bunny children awakened and came down to breakfast in the bungalow, and as they heard about the slides, they, too, began to shout for joy until Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy had to hold her paws over her ears because of the noise. And when she held her paws over her ears she couldn't bring in the pancakes with clover sauce maple sugar sprinkled on them.

"You must be quiet, my dears," said Uncle Wiggily, "or you will get no breakfast. Nurse Jane needs her paws to bring in the pancakes, but if she must hold them over her ears——"

Uncle Wiggily did not need to say any more. The little rabbits were hungry. So they stopped cheering and hurraying about the ice slides until they had eaten all the cakes.

Then they ran out to have fun on the slides and Uncle Wiggily called to them:

"Don't be late for school, my dears!"

"No, we won't, Unkie Wig!" promised Baby Bunty.

"We can go to school faster when we slide than when we don't, because the ice is very slippery," said Jingle.

So the rabbit children partly ran and partly slid on their way to school and Uncle Wiggily put on his fur coat and started out.

"Where are you going?" asked his wife.

But the truth of it was he was going to look for a slide. The old rabbit gentleman was like a child in many ways, and one way was that he loved to slide on the ice.

"It will be my first slide this winter," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "Of course I had slides last winter, and once I fell down. But this winter I haven't yet had a slide."

So he hopped along, looking for one, and he found it in the woods under the trees where a spring of water had overflowed because of the rain. The spring made a little brook, which had frozen in the cold night, and now the water was one, long, winding ribbon of white, slippery ice.

"Oh, what a fine slide!" cried Uncle Wiggily. He took a little run to get up speed and started to slide.

"Careful of what?" asked the rabbit.

"At the end of the slide is a puddle of water which isn't frozen," warned the Snow Bird. "If you slide too far or too fast you'll slip off and plop into the water, and you'll get all wet and freeze."

"I'll be careful!" promised the rabbit. So when he came near the end of his first slide he caught hold of a tree on the edge, and so he saved himself from going plop into the puddle of water.

Uncle Wiggily was having fun on his slide, all by himself, catching hold of the tree each time to save himself from going into the puddle, when, all of a sudden, along through the woods, came slinking the Bob Cat.

"Oh, ho! What a fine chance to catch Uncle Wiggily," snarled the Bob Cat. "I'll surely get him now." And Uncle Wiggily, seeing the Bad Chap, said:

"Oh, dear! Now my fun is spoiled. But maybe I can play a trick on this fellow." So, pretending to be glad to see the Bob Cat, Mr. Longears said: "Don't you want a nice slide this morning?"

"Yes," growled the Bob Cat, "I do. But don't think you can get away. I'll take a slide and then I'll take you."

"Go ahead, slide! I'll watch you," said the bunny, sitting down on a stone. Uncle Wiggily didn't tell the Bob Cat about the puddle of water at the end of the slide and the Bad Chap couldn't see it. So he took a long, swift slide. Faster and faster he went until, at the end, not knowing enough to catch hold of the tree, plop into the puddle he went splashing and lashing and crashing.

"Oh, wow! Why didn't you tell me this puddle was here?" he yowled.

But Uncle Wiggily wasn't there to answer. He had run home, leaving the Bob Cat to get out by himself.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make 16 ounces. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

H. TOMALEWSKY ASSASSINATED

Tomalewsky was a member of the group formerly headed by General Alexander Protogueroff, who was assassinated here on July 3. After his death there were attempted reprisals in which an attack was made on the Chief of Police in Belgrade, and a month after the assassination, fifteen of the general's followers were lured to the mountains and slain.

Canadian Playwright

MERRILL DENISON

Noted Canadian playwright who advises budding genius to look to the radio and the "talkies" rather than the legitimate stage, for financial return from dramatic effort. Mr. Denison practices what he preaches. He is the author of the popular "Maple Centre, Riding, Driving and Free-sliding Association" radio skits, and one of the foremost Canadians in the new profession of radio-writing.

ALLOWS SENATOR HIS SEAT.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 3.—(C.P.)—The United States' Senate today rejected a motion to deny the oath to Senator-elect Davis of Pennsylvania. Mr. Davis 'former secretary of labor, presented his credentials in the Senate to-day and immediate objection was taken to seating him on the grounds that investigation was being made into charges of excessive expenditures during his campaign for election.

POISON GAS USE STIRS OPPOSITION

Final Decision Referred to General Disarmament Conference By Geneva Delegates.

German Proposal Quashed.

GENEVA, Dec. 3 (CP)—Delegates to the League's Preparatory Disarmament Commission Tuesday registered a concerted opposition to the use of poison gas in warfare.

It was a spirited discussion, but definite action on prohibitive measures was referred for final decision to the general disarmament conference.

On the motion of the United States the Preparatory Commission invited all Governments to set their experts to work on this issue and to come to the General Conference ready to draft an agreement which would clarify the interpretation of restrictions on chemical warfare.

By a vce of 6 to 5 the Commission rejeced budgetary limitation for air forces. Lord Cecil of Great Britain directed particular attention to the narrow margin by which this measure was defeated.

The German proposal to prohibit use of tanks of all kinds and use of cannon above certain calibre—as imposed on Germany by the Versailles Treaty—was defeated by 10 votes. Only the Soviet delegate supported Ccunt von Bernstorff's proposal.

WINNIPEG CONFERENCE

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 3 (C.P.)—The Canadian Farmers' Educational League, self-styled radical Agrarian Association, will hold a conference here starting December 6.

Notice of meeting says the "conference is called for the purpose of organizing farmers of Western Canada so that they may "unite all militant debt ridden agriculturists around a program of immediate demands and united struggle."

HARD LABOR BOOSTS CONDITIONS IN N.B.

Govt's Warned That Work of Transportation Commission Must Be Continued.

MONCTON, N.B., December 3 (C.P.). — "That conditions are not more depressed with us than they are now, is, I believe, due to the fact that we are now working harder and working better than we ever did," said C. H. Read of Amherst, president of the Maritime Board of Trade, in opening the thirty-second annual meeting of the body here yesterday.

Problems of transportation in the Maritimes were the prime subject at the opening session. A warning to the Maritime Provincial Governments that the work of the Transportation Commission, now in a state of suspended animation through withdrawal of Government grants, must be continued, came from D. B. Turnbull, Halifax, chairman of the Commission.

"As part of the Dominion we are justly entitled to entry into the central and thickly populated markets of our land on an equal competitive basis, and it is only by virtue of reduced freight rates that this can be accomplished," said Mr. Turnbull, declaring that the Commission could show a "record of work well done and magnificent results to its credit."

War Veterans Make Dugouts For Winter

HOUSE OF LORDS CENSORS GOV'T

Thomas. He declared the British Government sadly mismanaged the Imperial Conference with blundering and insufficient prepartion.

Lord Hailsham asked what was the use of resuming the trade deliberations at Ottawa if the Labor Government was to again represent Great Britain. The Dominion Premiers were going back disappointed and disillusioned, he added.

Lord Passfield Secretary for the Colonies, replied for the Government. He declared acceptance of the Canadian proposals would have involved not merely recognition of the principles of Empire preference —already accepted—but also a tax on foodstuffs entering Britain in order to give the Dominions a preference. He thought the British Government had averted a peril to the Empire. The danger lay in one part of the Empire attempting to coerce another into the adoption of its own economic views.

Amery Bitter in Attack.

Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, former Conservative Secretary for the Dominions, spoke at a by-election meeting in Whitechapel of the Government's "blundering" at the Imperial Conference. The attitude of Mr. Thomas had called upon the British Government's head a castigation from Premier Bennett such as no British Government had ever received, he stated, and which the administration was forced to take 'lying down" because it had no answer, unless Mr. Thomas were dismissed, and the Government had not the courage for this, he declared.

In a speech at London Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, another member of the former Baldwin cabinets, spoke of Mr. Thomas's "lamentable exhibition." Sir Kingsley Wood, another prominent Conservative, at another meeting said the use of the word "humbug" accorded the general attitude of the Labor Ministry towards preferences.

"It is imperative before the next conference is held that we in this country should have the right to decide what kind of government shall meet the Dominion delegates, whether it shall be a government favorable to their proposals or a government which not only rejects them but tenders insults at the same time," Sir Kingsley added.

"Baldwin Silenced"

Following the example of its evening companion (The Star) the News-Chronicle to-day calls attention to the fact that certain Canadian newspapers had termed Premier Bennett's proposal a fraud, and that even Premier Bennett's "patron staint," Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, as soon as he discovered "the offers were worthless was reduced to silence."

"The Dominion Premiers like to claim the right to speak plainly" the News-Chronicle added, "and they should be able to keep a stiff upper lip when an English statesman for once, in a way, speaks plainly too."

Truth, a review mainly Liberal in outlook, asserts the Conservative made a "sad mess" of their attack on the Government in the House of Commons last week. "The acidulated Mr. Snowden is not far wrong in prophesying it will result in another 'Baldwin must go' movement" Truth said. It added there had been signs lately that Lord Beaverbrook's "uncanny silence" would be broken. As to the 'humbug' expression Truth said it was mild compared with the Ottawa newspapers' phrase—"horse dealer's bargain."

Ranked Dangerous Speech

"It is a humiliating experience" said the Daily Mail, "for the Government of Great Britain when one of its most important Ministers brings down on his head such a crushing rebuke as Premier Bennett has just administered to Mr. Thomas. The speech will hereafter be ranked as one of the most dangerous and mischievous ever delivered in modern times by a British Minister. There never was a time when Canada's goodwill was of such importance to the Mother Country. Though the Dominion is passing through a temporary depression its recovery is certain. It is already taken its place as among the wealthiest and most prosperous countries of the world. For a British Minister to sneer at such a virile people so loyal to the Mother Country as an act of political folly and blindness. It is repeating the tremendous mistake British statesmen made in another century when they did their best to alarm and irritate the American colonies."

The Manchester Guardian has this to say: "When Premier Bennett complains of his treatment and when Lord Hailsham in the Lords last night attempts to make political capital out of Premier Bennett's grievance, they seem to forget that Canada offered Great Britain nothing worth five minutes' consideration. It is said these were only Mr. Bennett's first terms and that if the principle had been accepted we might eventually have done a great deal, as though we were buying a horse and he was selling one.

"But Premier Bennett began the negotiations by declaring he would not consider any proposal to lower Canadian tariffs for the benefit of British industry. What, but failure and irritation, could have come of any pretence by the British Government to accept the proposals as the basis of negotiations."

No Call To Be Angry.

The Laborite Daily Herald declared Premier Bennett had no call to be angry with Mr. Thomas. "The latter's language was strong but his judgment was correct," the Herald added. "Mr. Bennett, who speaks bluntly enough on occasion, might profitably be plainer in his statement that if his proposal is to be 'contemptuously rejected,' Canada will reply by embracing other means at hand of further strengthening her economic position in the world."

FRANCE ROASTS MILITARY CREDIT

Sum of $24,000,000 For National Defense Passes in Chamber By 433 to 139 Votes.

WILL LENGTHEN TRAINING.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Additional military credits totalling $24,000,000, earmarked for national defense, were voted by the French Chamber of Leputies yesterday, 433 against 139. Staunch opponents of the Government who have voted regularly against the Tardieu Ministry on other problems, switched to its support when the question of national security was raised.

War Minister Andre Maginot, urging passage of the measure, declared that the additional credits would be used in fortifying France's southeastern frontier, providing military units with gas masks and other gas war preventive paraphernalia, and for strengthening the military aviation service.

M. Maginot also announced that the Government planned to call for an increase in the period of military training of reserves among the populations living close to the country's frontier. This, he explained, would be done by increasing the frequency of the training camps, and the manoeuvres would consist largely in working out a system enabling the reserves to reach the defensive positions assigned them in the minimum time.

The War Minister explained that, because of the low birthrate in France during the war years, the number of men joining the colors from 1935 to 1939 would be between 140,000 and 150,000, instead of the 240,000 men who are now called.

TO PROBE MINISTER'S RESIGNATION

New Heavier Rails Havelock-Peterboro

The local C.P.R. agent reports the completion of the Zharbot Lake-Havelock job. Eighty miles of 100-pound rails were laid between these two places, thus completing the heavier rail line between Havelock and Montreal. It is hoped that next year will see the same being done from Havelock to Peterborough and west. The reason given for such an undertaking is the increase in number and weight of the grain trains.

Minor Hockey Teams To Hold Workouts

Providing the cold weather holds, the two East City minor hockey teams, Choate's Juniors and the East City Bantams, will hold a practise at Sacred Heart rink on Saturday afternoon between 2 and 4 o'clock.

The Prince of Wales and high dignitaries of the British, French and Belgian nations will attend the unveiling of the bronze equestrian statue of Field Marshal Earl Haig in the principal square of Montreuil-sur-Mer on May 31, 1931.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 9 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Suddenly it occurred to Tarzan to discover if the language of this tribe was the same as that of his own former ape-family. "Who are you?" he said. "Who threatens Tarzan of the Apes?" The brute addressed looked his surprise. "I am Akut," he replied in the same, simple, primal tongue. "I am now king. Go away or I shall kill you. None is so great as Akut."

"Let us be friends," said Tarzan. "You cannot kill Akut," replied the other. "None shall be king but Akut." For answer the ape-man hurled himself upon the great brute, who during this conversation had slightly relaxed his vigilance. In the twinkling of an eye the man had seized the great ape's wrist, whirled him about and before the other could grapple leaped upon him.

Down they went together. Slowly Tarzan brought that awful pressure to bear upon the neck of the beast. "Ka-goda", whispered Tarzan to the ape beneath him. In the language of the apes it meant, "Do you surrender?" Akut thought of the creaking sound he had heard just before Molak, the king's neck had snapped, and, shuddering, he struggled to free himself.

But of a sudden a torturing pressure upon his vertebra brought an agonised "ka-goda" from his lips. Tarzan relaxed his grip and Akut rose slowly to his feet. Shaking his bullet-head and growling angrily, he waddled toward his tribe. Presently the whole pack moved off into the jungle, leaving Tarzan, sore from the many wounds inflicted upon him, alone once more upon the beach.

Clover Leaf Salmon Decorates Windows

The magic four-leaf clover has a large place in the two display windows of The Examiner office, this week. It nestles in bright gold on the tins of canned salmon with which the two large enclosures are filled.

The manufacturers of Clover Leaf Salmon have the display this week and have arranged it attractively against backgrounds that carried out very trastefully in navy and white, in one instance and in the third, complementary patriotic color, of red, white, in the other window. The makers of this brand consider the value of color, evidently. They make up their nice-looking one pound and half pound tins in bright hues of turquois blue, rose pink and white, picked out with blue. And every one of them bears the lucky four-leaf clover emblem, in gilt, as a reminder of the Clover Leaf brand.

There are gilt salmon, "rampant" as the maker of heraldic devices would phrase it, on the obverse sides of the tins, also. They are encircled by huge moons of glowing color that give an idea of the color of the fish inside, and come in either deep red, medium red, or pink, just as one wishes. Those are the three colors of the salmon, which are being offered to-day at such low prices.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

FIRST OF SEASON.

A large number of people flocked to Sacred Heart Church skating rink last evening, and skated for the first time this season. The ice was quite good, it is stated, but was soon slashed up by the hundreds of pairs of flying feet, shod with their sharp steel runners. This is the first open air rink in the city this season.

FIRE ON DONEGAL STREET

A chimney fire on 513 Donegal Street required the attention of the fire department at 4:12 p.m yesterday. Fires of this nature occur quite frequently at this time of year, and therefore all citizens are requested to have their chimneys cleaned and to be as careful as possible when firing furnaces.

"Reunion comes, it may be soon—we only part
"Until the Resurrection Morn."

Robin Reported In Jackson Park

All the robins have not deserted Peterborough. One of the popular red-breasted songsters was seen yesterday morning in Jackson Park by R. L. Orde, the park's caretaker. This particular robin, the only one observed here, as far as The Examiner can learn, since the bird clans gathered and winged South, was hungrily picking berries from a mountain ash tree. It was in the morning and the mercury hung at around 10 degrees below zero, but the bird in its eager search for food seemed not to mind the cold.

Mr. Orde advances two theories to explain the robin's presence: either the bird was injured and could not make the southerly journey with its mates, or else it is harbinger of mild weather throughout the winter. Then, again, it is just a crazy robin that did not realize when it was time to move.

The Examiner wishes to acknowledge with much gratitude the donation from R. J. Kidd, of the Neill Shoe Store, of a large quantity of shoes for women and children, and spats. These will be distributed at once.

KNIGHTS HEAR REV. JOHN FRASER

INTERESTING TRAVELOGUE.

The Rev. John Fraser, head of the China Missionary College at Scarboro Bluffs, was an interesting speaker last night to the Knights of Columbus, meeting in their hall on Simcoe street.

Father Fraser, who is spending a few days in the city, gave an illustrated travelogue of his work in Central China, where the Catholic missions are located, in the area apportioned to that church. He has been for twenty-eight years resident in China, working in the mission fields, and is well acquainted with his subject. He is also head of the Canadian Mission College at Scarboro and divides his time between the foreign and the home schools, having just returned from a trip to China.

The lecture was under supervision of the Lecturer T. J. Ryan, and Grand Knight Dr. M. Crough had charge of the meeting. At the conclusion of the travelogue, a vote of thanks was moved by F. J. Hickey and V. McCabe, who spent some time in China while a member of the Siberian Expeditionary Force from Canada, also made a few remarks.

The travelogue was interesting and instructive, showing the development and scope of the mission work undertaken in that country with its population of 450 millions of people. The work is carried on from a centralized point and the slides showed the wonderful mountaineous scenery of the Oriental land, the narrow streets of its cities and the ways of its inhabitants. There were pictures of the mission school for young Chinese girls and the equally interesting schools for boys.

The reverend speaker said that the young converts readily adopt the Christian faith, and adapt themselves to Occidental customs. He spoke also of the trouble caused the missions by Communist activities and the killing of several missionaries in the province neighboring the district where the Catholic missions are active.

Father Fraser, who spoke to the children of the Separate Schools at St. Alphonsus Lyceum, yesterday afternoon, giving them the same illustrated travelogue, will address the members of the Catholic Woman's League at their meeting to-night, at the Lyceum.

FRICTION LOOMS ON RELIEF FUND

U. S. Republicans Favor $150,000,000 in Offering Legislation—Democrats Differ.

HOOVER SUGGESTS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — The much talked of harmony between the parties in Congress over emergency relief legislation appeared today narrowed down one more notch.

So much skeptical comment on the part of Democratic leaders met President Hoover's recommendation for a $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 unemployment relief fund, that a contest along party lines on this issue was not impossible. The Republicans moved immediately for action, taking the larger figure in offering legislation.

It was not the idea of taking the money out of the treasury to benefit the unemployed that the Democrats criticized, but rather the President's suggestion that it be turned over for distribution to the Government Departments "upon recommendations of a committee of the Cabinet and approval by the President.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

WEDDINGS

VANDENBERG—GILDERS.

A pretty but quiet wedding took place at two o'clock on December 1 at St. James' parsonage, when Daisy daughter of Mr. Charles Gilders and the late Mrs. Gilders, became the bride of Peter, son of Mr. Vandenberg and the late Mrs. Vandenberg, of Manvers. The Rev. A. E. Moorhouse officiated.

The bride wore a dainty gown of orchid canton crepe, which fell gracefully to the floor. It was caught at the waist with a brilliant buckle. She wore matching hat, shoes and hose.

Later a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's father, to the immediate relations.

Mr. Vandenberg and his bride will reside in the city.

DUBAY—FOWLER.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Murray Street Parsonage on Tuesday afternoon, December 2nd, at four o'clock, when Helen Jean Fowler, younger daughter of David H. Fowler and the late Mrs. Fowler of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Olfir James DuBay, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. M. DuBay, Dublin Street, Peterborough. The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated.

The happy young couple were attended by Mr. Emery Dubay, brother of the groom, and Miss Jean Tedford of Norwood, who wore a green ensemble with eggshell trimmings.

The groom's gift to the bride was a white gold wrist watch; to the bridesmaid a biege purse, and to the groomsman a silver cigarette lighter.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT CHURCH SUPPER

Held in Connection With 20th Anniversary of Knox United Church.

On Tuesday last one of the most successful and best attended bazaars and fowl suppers in the annals of Knox Church was held in connection with anniversary services, over five hundred and fifty sitting down to a sumptuous supper served in the lecture hall, where three long tables the full length of the hall were set. These were very prettily decorated with yellow 'mums and yellow candles. During the supper hour, William Potter presided at the organ, rendering some beautiful instrumental numbers. Immediately following the supper all repaired to the church auditorium, where a splendid entertainment was given, arranged by Mrs. J. J. Pollock, consisting of the following numbers: Chairman's Address, Rev. William McDonald; Piano and Violin Duet, Miss Mildred Hetherington and Alex. Robertson; Vocal Solo, Mrs. N. Todd, accompanied by Miss Muriel Wilson; Reading, Miss Jessie Tulley; Piano Solo, Miss Olive Prest; Recitation, little Miss Isobel Young; Vocal Solos: Walter Farr, accompanied by Miss Mildred Hetherington; Griffin Young, accompanied by Miss Lily Bacon; Mrs. Ross Williamson, accompanied by Miss May Pollack.

The bazaar, held during the afternoon in the ladies' parlor, which was beautifully decorated in crepe paper in a variety of colors, was well patronized, and a splendid showing of fancy and useful articles were soon picked up by the ladies in search for Christmas gifts.

A table of home-made candy was the centre of attraction. The sweets being put up in very attractively decorated baskets and boxes. It was looked after by the C.G.I.T. girls of the church, with Mrs. McDonald and Miss Donaldson as convenors. Mrs. J. S. Londerville, president of the Women's Association of the church, acted as general convenor, assisted by a score of faithful and eager workers. Mrs. H. Baptie and Mrs. T. Johnson were in charge of the arrangements for the bazaar.

SIX INSANE CRIMINALS ESCAPE PRISON

Croyaon-Cape Town Flight Ends in Crash

YOUNG AVIATRIX SWIMS TO LAND TO SAVE FRIEND

CATANIA, Italy, Dec. 4. — Miss Winifred Spooner, British girl aviator who was seeking to make a record flight from Croydon to Cape Town, South Africa, today came down in the Tyrrhenian Sea near the toe of Italy's Boot, and courageously swam ashore to save the life of her companion, Captain E. C. T. Edwards.

Their plane, in which they had left Rome before daylight, fell in the water about three kilometers from Del Monte Calabro but did not sink. Although it was still dark, Miss Spooner, who is 23 years old, plunged into the sea and eventually reached the shore.

Walks to Station

It was deserted and she could not find anyone, so she walked a short distance to a small railway station where her appearance startled railroad employees. She was exhausted but under their ministrations she was revived quickly and told them of Edwards' plight.

Meanwhile Edwards continued his signals and finally attracted attention of some fishermen who went to his assistance, took him off the plane and drew it to shore.

The two fliers left Croydon yesterday.

MINERS REJECT STRIKE PROPOSAL

SPREADOVER ENDORSED.

LONDON, Dec. 4.— Delegates to the coal miners' conference this morning voted 230,000 to 209,000 to reject a proposal for a general strike in protest at application of the "spreadover" hours arrangement to British mine shafts.

The vote represented a triumph for Premier Ramsay MacDonald and members of the Cabinet, who sat with the delegates' conference for hours, urging all efforts for settlement of the difficulties with the mine operators, including, if necessary, endorsement of the spreadover.

The vote followed a report of the miners' leaders on the situation and probably results of application of the spreadover, which would entail a ninety hour working fortnight against a seven and one-half hour day guarantee, which the miners have insisted upon.

After the vote was taken there was a general discussion of the coalfields position. Observers noted that the margin of rejection of the strike proposal was very small.

STEVENS DENIES FINANCE POST RUMOR.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 4. (CP)—"No grounds whatever exist for such a report" declared Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce today, when a despatch intimating that he would be named Minister of Finance, was referred to him. "The matter has never been discussed with me" he added. He expressed regret that such a rumor had been published because it would make it embarrassing for Premier R. B. Bennett.

Crippled Children Clinic on Friday

The Rotary Clinic for Crippled Children is to be held tomorrow at the Clinic Building at two o'clock sharp. Those who are anticipating attending with their children are kindly asked to be present at this hour. If it is not convenient for parents to get to the Clinic, they may telephone Dr. Moir, and cars will be sent.

This is a valuable opportunity for the crippled children of the city and district to receive attention and it is hoped that all who have been interviewed will realize the benefit to be obtained.

Three Persons Die In Montville Fire

MONTVILLE, N. J., Dec. 4.—(C.P.)—A woman and her three children were burned to death to-day in a fire which destroyed their home in an isolated section near Montville.

The dead were Mrs. Wanda Durken, Madeline 5, June 2 and Jean, one.

When firemen reached the house they were met by a burst of flames from windows and doors and could not enter. A defective chimney was believed to have caused the fire.

J. Frederick Durken, husband and father of the victims, left for work 15 minutes before the fire.

ENGINEERS' TRIAL REACHES CLIMAX

Crowds Fight For Admission to Hear Sentences Handed Eight Russians.

MOTION PICTURES TAKEN.

MOSCOW, Dec. 4. —(CP)— The trial of eight Soviet engineers and former officials, charged with plotting the overthrow of the Moscow Government, reached its climax today. Its end, when the eight defendants, who have confessed to damning list of crimes of sabotage and conspiracy, will know the price they must pay for their political sins, appeared only a day or more away.

Crowds gathered from early in the day outside the House of Columns, former aristocratic club center, where the trial is being staged. A comparative few gained admission inside to hear N. B. Krilenko, and demand of five judges a verdict and sentence which will make them an example for other of counter revolutionary hopes.

Fight for Tickets

There was a great fight for the tickets of admission to the grand ball room of the former club house, in which the trial has been held in an atmosphere of radio microphones, Kleig lights, and grinding motion picture cameras, for the Russian loves nothing better than a speech and has anticipated this effort of M. Krilenko for weeks. Most of the space has been reserved for labor organizations.

The counsel for the defense, two lawyers named B. Braude and M. A. Otsep, representing Vladimir Ochkin and Xenephon Sitnlun, probably will not speak for their clients until Friday. All the eight defendants have pleaded guilty, practically throwing themselves on the mercy of the court.

This morning's session of the court was given over to conclusion of the testimony involving "friendly foreign Governments" in the alleged conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet regime and the "certain French institution" in Moscow which maintained contact with the plotters.

EXHIBITION HAS $4,500 BALANCE IN SHOW OF 1930

Total Receipts For Biggest Week in Fair's History Amounted to $26,662.01.

NOTE IN BANK REDUCED.

Just how great a success this year's Peterborough Industrial Exhibition enjoyed was not known completely until last night, when the Exhibition Board convened in the Chamber of Commerce rooms to hear the financial statement read.

It was confidently expected by the directors that the exhibition this year would roll up a comfortable balance, and their well-founded hopes were fully realized. Total receipts for Peterboroughs' big show ran up to $26,662,01. After all bills are paid, a balance is left of $4,500.

Encouraged and somewhate elated by the statement, the directors were able to reduce the note to their bank by $3,000. This note arose in the past from exhibitions that were not favored with such splendid weather as this year's show.

Best in Cities Under 50,000

It was not untruly stated that the Peterborough Exhibition was the best in the Dominion for cities of less than 50,000 population. It was also said that next year, with like kindness by the Weather Man, that the fair will go on to an even greater success. In this connection the board will likely seek Class A rating for the exhibition, which will mean a material increase in the grant from the Federal government. Other details to provide different and varied attractions for the exhibition in 1931 were discussed, and from the tenor of the meeting it was clearly shown that those guiding its destinies are men of experience and foresight.

The biggest item in the exhibition's receipts was from gate and grandstand. People of the city and county during the five days of the fair clicked through the gates and grandstand to the tune of $13,809.20. The Welsh Brothers' Rodeo was said to have been the big attraction that crowded the grandstand night after night to bring the attendance and gate receipts up to a new high.

Details and interesting sidelights on the exhibition's attendance were not available last night, because Fred Holmes, who keeps this record, was absent through illness.

President Roland Denne acted as chairman and the whole feeling of the meeting was one of pleased satisfaction and mixed thoughts of even better things next year.

Not only financially but also in exhibits did the fair show a most creditable advancement, as William Knox reported. Livestock entries this

Low World Butter Price is Being Given As Reason for Dumping in This Country

OTTAWA, Ont., December 4 (C.P.). — Reports from Vancouver that Canada will be booded with Australian butter even if the duty of slightly under seven cents a pound (which would include the dumping duty) were put into effect, are being studied with no little anxiety by the Dominion Government in view of its effect on the dairy industry. An official statement will be issued some time this afternoon on behalf of Australia, and complete data will be before the Cabinet when it meets later to-day.

The fundamental difficulty, of course, is the low world price of butter, believed to be the lowest since before the war. The world price is generally figured as the price on the English market. The latest quotation the Department of Agriculture has is from 22.57 to 53.87 cents a pound for finest Australian.. There may have been some slight change since then. In 1925 the price went as high as 47 cents. Last April the price dropped to 25.17 cents a pound, but lifted again.

SEAFORTH LOSES BUSINESS BLOCK IN MORNING FIRE

Three Main Stores Razed Before Firemen Check Flames.

LOSS NEARS $60,000.

Girl Fractures Ankle in 15 Foot Jump—Many Flee in Night Clothes.

STRATFORD, Ont., December 4 (C.P.). — Three main street business places in Seaforth were wiped out by a disastrous blaze at an early hour this morning, causing a loss estimated at approximately $60,000. The fire had gained too much headway to give the firemen any chance to fight the seething flames, and at noon today nothing but black ruins, damaged furniture, and a few charred walls are left of a large block in the centre of the town, the property of Mrs. Mary J. Broderick.

The business places wiped out were Walter G. Willis' boot and shoe store, Seaforth branch of the Swift Canadian Company, Israel and Charters, merchant tailors.

Very Little Insurance

The insurance on the buildings was very small. The origin of the fire, the worst in Seaforth for many years, is undetermined yet. A probe is likely to be held.

Heroic firemen numbed by the near zero weather, fought valiantly to conquest the blaze and prevent it from spreading. The succeeded in a large degree in this respect.

Many persons residing in apartments over the burned stores had a narrow escape and were forced to flee in their night clothes. Miss Dorothy Robinson, nineteen year old hairdresser who resided over the Willis shoe store, one of the places destroyed, is suffering from a fractured ankle, having leaped to the ground, a distance of fifteen feet, from the balcony. No other persons were injured.

ATLANTIC YIELDS VICTIM OF WRECK

Searchers Find Second Body of Eight Lost Aboard Linton.

STRUCK IN SNOW STORM.

YARMOUTH, N.S., Dec. 4 (C.P.).—Searchers along the rocky shore at Chebogue Point, off which the Saint John motorship Linton went down early Tuesday morning in a blinding snowstorm, with her crew of eight men, were rewarded during the night when a second body drifted ashore. It has been identified as that of Ernest Leblanc, 26, one of the trio o' Yarmouth's unemployed who decided to try a life at sea when three of the regular members of the crew refused to sail. Yesterday the body of Carman Fry, mate of the motorship, frozen to the wreckage drifting ashore at Yarmouth Cape, led to the discovery of the half-submerged hulk of the vessel on Canoe Rock, Cape Forchu. The Linton had struck, it later developed, in a howling Norwester some few hours after sailing from Yarmouth for Selma, Hants County, in ballast. Search for the remaining six bodies, including that of Captain Percy M. Richards, is being continued.

Government Falls

Andre Fardieu, whose Government was defeated in the Senate by 149 to 145 on a vote of confidence to-day. This is the fourth time in French history that a Government has been forced out by a defeat in the Senate. The last time was when the Herriot Government fell in 1925.

TRAPPED BANDIT IS MUCH WANTED

Prisoner Identified as Toronto Man, Refuses to Make Any Statement.

CAUGHT IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 4. (CP)—The man arrested yesterday after attempting to rob the Title and Guarantee Trust Company Lower Broadway office of $40.000 was identified in police line-up here to-day as having a long record of arrests in other States under various names.

He was identified yesterday as "John Read, 223 Ford Road, Toronto" the name being taken from a passport in his possession. A check failed to show such an address on Ford Road.

The man refused to make any statement when arraigned to-day on a grand larcency charge or to answer any questionsp ut to him when he appeared in the line-up.

Police officials said his record included jail sentences for minor offenees and arrests for larcency a number of times. In 1921 he was sentenced to three months for larceny at Lawrence, Mass.; in 1926 he was arrested as Leo Ware in New York and charged with larceny. He jumped his bail and is still wanted on the charge. He was arrested in New York in 1923, in St. Louis in 1924, in Cambridge, Mass. in 1925 and in Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1926, on minor charges. In these instances he was identified as Charles or Joseph Harris.

Freighter Is Victor In 100-Hour Battle

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Dec. 4. —(C.P.).—A hundred-hour battle with Lake Superior waves terminated when the steamer Willowbay, of the Tree Line Navigation Company, on her last inbound trip from Montreal, arrived in port yesterday. Bow and rigging of the ship was sheathed in a 12-inch coat of ice, testimony to her four-day struggle with the elements.

"One of the worst trips in my experience on the Lakes," was Captain R. H. Houde's description of the battle. "In spite of the north-west wind that we fought the whole trip," he said, "a fog so thick that you couldn't make out the bow from the wheelhouse hung over the entire route, and until this morning when we docked at Port Arthur, we had not seen another boat."

ECKENER BLAMES LEAKING GAS BAG AT R-101 PROBE

Graf Commander Claims Gas Escaped to Tail Letting Nose Drop.

DUMPING BALLAST USELESS.

LONDON, Dec. 4. — Dr. Hugo Eckener, master of the Graf Zeppelin and the world's foremost lighter-than-aircraft expert, today told the British Board of Inquiry into the loss of the R-101 in Northern France in October, what he believed were the reasons for the disaster.

As he took the stand Dr. Eckener was thanked by Sir John Simon, Chairman of the Board of Inquiry, not only on behalf of the Court but on behalf of the British Empire, for having come to London in connection with the investigation of the dirigibles loss with lives of 48 of those aboard.

Dropping Ballast Useless

Dr. Eckener began his testimony with a statement of the situation at the time the ship bumped into a hill north of, Beauvais and burned. "I commence," he said, "with the fact that the ship made a sudden and very steep dive, and in spite of dropping ballast she could no longer be kept on a level keel. Although she had been able up to that moment to hold her altitude."

Dr. Eckener then expounded at some length his theory which was that a leak in one of the airship's gas bags caused her head to become heavy, the weight probably accentuated by a current of air from above on her nose.

"The gas between the gas bags and outer cover escaped to the tail thus increasing the pitch of her movement still further. Owing to this unusually violent movement of the ship the already damaged gas bags received a large rent, from which the gas quickly escaped, going to the tail."

Should Have Stopped Motors.

"Thus it took some time, perhaps fully thirty seconds, to bring the ship back on to a level keel. The ship, having been righted through a throwing out of ballast, was unable to maintain her horizontal position by reason of the fact that the gas continued to escape quickly."

He said that the people in the control tower would have known that they were going down and therefore would have stopped the engines. "Thus with a second dive the ship was stranded," Dr. Eckener explained.

He said that in his opinion the fire which destroyed the craft was caused by broken electrical wires.

CUP PRESENTED TO YACHTSMAN

United States Sportsmen Pay Honor to Lipton as "Gamest Sport."

DEEPLY MOVED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. (CP)—Sir Thomas Lipton was presented a cup for his sportsmanship to-day, but in the middle of his address accepting it he was overcome by the heat in the presentation chamber at city hall and swayed into his chair without finishing.

"Unfortunately" he apologized as he was assisted to his seat, "I can't read as well as I used to." The rest of his address was read for him.

The "Cup of Good Will" for which thousands subscribed so he might have a token of good will in lieu of the America's yachting cup which he has tried so vainly to win with his Shamrock vessels, was presented in the aldermanic chamber at city hall by Mayor James J. Walker, who with the humorist, Will Rogers, arranged the public subscription for the cup.

Sir Thomas began his speech of acceptance by saying, "I have never had a higher honor paid me in the whole of my life than that which has been bestowed on me by the people of America in the form of this most magnificent loving cup."

At the end of the ceremanies he walked out with a firm tread declaring he felt fine again.

Will Rogers, who was unable to be present, said in a telegram to Sir Thomas: "You think this is a fine cup. Say, this is nothing to the one we are going to give you when you lose the next time."

Asylum Guards Are Overpowered By Armed Trio

Raid on Matteawan Hospital at Beacon, N. Y., is Staged Shortly After Midnight, Inmates Roused From Cots and Rushed Away in Two Waiting Cars.

VISIT OF ONE PRISONER TO WIFE'S ROOM IN NEW YORK LEADS POLICE TO BELIEVE CRIMINALS MAY BE IN CITY

Report That "Mad Butcher" Who Killed Two Business Rivals is Free Sends Officers Rushing to Guard His Wife's Home —Fifty Others Seek Protection.

NEW YORK, December 4 (C.P.). — Six insane criminals, one a murderer and another a pyromaniac, made their escape early this morning from the Matteawan Hospital for the Criminally Insane at Beacon, N.Y., near here. To-day they were being hunted in New York City.

Shortly after midnight three armed men overpowered four employees of the asylum, summoned the six inmates from their beds, and carried them away in two motor cars.

About half-past five Mrs. Frank Vanderkuylen heard a pounding on the door of her apartment in West Fifty-third Street (No. 420), and answered the intruder. He said he was her husband, one of the six fugitives, and demanded admission. Frightened, she refused to unbar the door, and called Superintendent Kieb of the asylum. By the time New York police were notified Vanderkuylen was gone.

This and another circumstance convinced Kieb and New York police that the men were hiding here.

"Mad Butcher" Tells Plans.

Several weeks ago Harry Gordon 38, Rochester's "mad butcher," who was in the Criminal Asylum for the slaying three years ago of two business rivals and the woundings of two more, was visited by his wife. He told her, Mr. Kieb said, "I'll get out of here some day if I can, and when I do I'll take a boat and ride away."

Mrs. Gordon told of the incident to-day, and the District Attorney of Monroe County, to whom she reported it, tipped New York police at once to watch the steamship piers.

Vanderkuylen was committed to Matteawan last March from New York after trial for murder. Gordon who was 38, had confessed and boasted of the killings for which he was found "not guilty but insane."

Former Inmate Leads Rescuers

The leader of the gang which rescued the sextet was identified by Matteawan guards as a former inmate, William Nelson of New York, who escaped a fortnight ago after being sent to the asylum for burglary.

When the men in the rescue party entered the hospital grounds by a back gate in to-day's early darkness they encountered a night watchman, Patrick McGrath, whom they took along with them. In the kitchen they added Clifford Cooper, night cook, to their entourage and at the front of the prison building they picked up Joseph Brown, groundsman. While one of the armed men guarded the three in a front office, the other two went to the dormitory where the six inmates slept with others. A least four of the men were watching, apparently for their rescuers. They leaped from their cots and ran out. Gordon and one other, apparently unprepared, followed in night attire.

To-day's Matteawan escape recalled the sensational break of Harry K. Thaw from that institution seventeen years ago. He had been an inmate since February 2, 1908, when he was sent there for the slaying of the famous architect, Stanford White.

50 Seek Protection.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Dec. 4 (C.P.).—Mrs. Harry Gordon, whose "mad butcher" husband was one of six men who escaped to-day from Matteawan Asylum, said to-day that money was given to Gordon by the sister of a former Matteawan inmate to enable him to pay his way after getting out.

Mrs. Gordon's home was guarded to-day by three policemen. Police said fifty other persons who had heard of Gordon's escape, had asked for protection, among them Jack Cohen, one of the two men Gordon wounded after killing two business rivals.

THOMAS PRESENT AS R. B. BENNETT SAILS FOR HOME

Crowd Smiles as Canadian Premier and British Cabinet Minister Pose Together.

PART AS FRIENDS.

"On To Ottawa" is Prime Minister's Parting Slogan to Interviewers.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Premier R. B. Bennett and Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas today bade each other a cordial farewell. The scene was Euston station, London, where a large crowd gathered to give a parting greeting to Mr. Bennett, his sister Mildred and Hon. Maurice Dupre and Mrs. Dupre. They boarded a train for Liverpool and later today sailed for Canada on the steamship Duchess of Atholl, bound for Saint John.

Malcolm MacDonald, M.P., was there to represent his father, the Prime Minister. Sir Edward Harding, permanent Under-Secretary, was there from the Dominion's Office. Many officials of the Imperial Conference and representatives of the Canadian colony in London were also there.

"On to Ottawa"

To interviewers Premier Bennett said the motto now was "On to Ottawa." At the Ottawa Conference next year it will be the earnest desire and the fixed intention to proceed along the lines of mutual interest and co-operation, he said.

Mr. Thomas, the Secretary for the Dominions who figured in a clash of words with Premier Bennett over the Canadian proposals at the conference came hurrying up a few minutes before the train was to leave. He and Premier Bennett greeted each other warmly.

The crowd smiled as the Canadian Prime Minister and the British Cabinet Minister stood side by side for a photograph. Then together they entered Premier Bennett's saloon on the train. With a smiling crowd watching through the carriage windows, they could be seen in earnest converse. Again th eantagonists of the past few days shook hands cordially.

"Premier Bennett came here as a close friend of mine," Mr. Thomas said to reporters as he stepped from the train, "and he leaves still a close friend."

Action Is Promised On Electoral Reform

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 4. (C. P. Cable). — Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald announced in the House of Commons to-day that the Government's highly important measure for electoral reform will be introduced before Christmas.

The Prime Minister did not reveal the exact changes contemplated but the bill is recognized as a measure long sought by the Liberals, who suffer between the majorities given Conservative and Labor candidates.

It has been repeatedly contended in Parliament and elsewhere that the Liberal members in House represent a great many more voters than do the Conservative or Laborites in proportion to members elected.

INSPECTOR STRINGER WILL ARREST MILLS WHEN SENTENCE COMPLETED

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4 —(C.P.) — Bearing a warrant issued by the Attorney General of Ontario, charging Harvey Mills of the defunct stock brokerage firm of Solloway Mills and Company with conspiracy to defraud, Inspector William Stringer of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Provincial Police, left last night ao arrest the broker on the completion of imprisonment in Lethbridge, Alberta.

Mills was sentenced in the Alberta courts to a fine of $25,000 and one month in jail following conviction on charges laid in connection with the operations of his firm in the western province. His term will be completed on Saturday.

Announcement of Inspetcor Stringer's departure for the west was made to-day. In addition to the conviction of Mills in Alberta, the broker had been found guilty here on a charge of gaming in stocks, a fine of $50,000 being imposed. Isaac W. C Solloway, jointly charged with his partner in Alberta and Ontario was sentenced in the west to four months in jail and a fine of $225,000, while in Ontario he was ordered to pay $200,000.

The action of the Ontario Government in laying further charges against the brokers was forecast by Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, recently, following the failure of the Alberta authorities to proceed with a counter-appeal against the sentences imposed in that province, on the ground that they were "inadequate." The brokers, following their conviction, immediately appealed, but decided not to proceed on this course and entered Lethbridge Jail to serve their sentences. It was then announced that the Alberta Government would not press the counter-appeal.

The trial of Solloway and Mills here was followed by criminal proceedings against eleven other brokers, eight being convicted and sentenced to penitentiary terms on charges of conspiracy. Four were given three-year terms and a similar number two and a half years.

Scotch Members Growing Reckless

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(C.P. Cable.) Ben Tillet, well known Trades Union leader, found a shilling on a back bench of the House of Commons occupied by members from Glasgow, last night.

"I shall mount it and frame it," he announced. "It is the only thing I ever had from a Scotsman."

BERNARD HARVEY WINS 1ST AWARD ON BUTTER FAT

...rs Are Announced in Patron and Herd Competition at Belleville Convention.

PRIZES PRESENTED.

Alex Milne Wins First Prize in Campbellford District.

BELLEVILLE Dec. 4.—(Special to The Examiner.)—Announcement of the prize winners yesterday, which awarded cheesemakers of the district and patrons entered in the Patron and Herd Competition sponsored by the Cheesemakers' Association of Central Ontario, brought to a close one of the most successful conventions ever held by the cheesemakers of this district. Last night a monster banquet was staged in the Moose auditorium at which Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, was the principal speaker. Entertainment was provided by Duncan Cowan and his group of artists from Toronto.

Campbellford and Peterborough district was well represented in both competitions and the makers and patrons of these districts carried off some good awards. In the Patron and Herd competition for the Peterborough district, Bernard Harvey of Lakefield was first. He delivered milk to Young's Point factory and farmed 175 acres. The total butterfat produced was 3,421.22 lbs. and the average pounds of butterfat per acre was 19.55. Ernest Harvey of Young's Point, was second he also farming 175 acres, producing 2,789.78 lbs. of butter fat or an average of 5.94. James A. Northey of Lakefield, with 150 acres produced 2,272.78 lbs. of butter fat for an average of 15.58 lbs. per acre and took down the third award.

In Madoc district, Charles Thompson of Eldorado factory, was first, Charles Doughty of Eldorao factory second and James Whytock of Madoc third. In the Campbellford district Alex Milne of Campbellford was first, H. Arnold of Crow Bay was second, and S. Diamond of Kimberley was third.

Alex Milne Campbellford, was the second prize winner in the cheesemakers' competition, receiving a money award of $40.00. Hector Arnold R.R. 2. Campbellford, won a pure bred Ayrshire bull calf and a large chair, while the other awards to Mr. Milne were a farm tubular milk cooler, a silver cup and five bags of cleaning soda, which awards brought Peterborough district high in the standing.

Addresses of a most interesting character were given by many prominent in the cheese industry and the concensus of opinion of all speakers was that the industry had never gone through such a period of depression as the present year, but there was a bright outlook, providing the quality of the cheese made was raised to a higher standard.

The challenge was thrown out to the government during the convention to appoint a bacteriologist in order that the direct cause if possible be found for the off flavour of cheese and the rancid and fruity flavour.

22 ARE KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE

Section of Burma is Hit Hard By Quake During Night.

RAILWAYS BLOCKED.

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 4 (C.P.)—Twenty-two persons are known to have been killed and several others injured in two earthquakes which rocked Burma during the night. There was much material damage. The Pyu district particularly suffering.

The first shock, a mild tremor, was felt at Rangoon at about 10.20 p.m. last night. It caused very little damage but the second at 1.20 a.m. was much more intense, and lasted much longer. A district 150 miles north of Rangoon appeared hardest hit.

Buildings in Pyu were reported afire to-day with a number already destroyed and others, including the court house, badly damaged. Several miles of railway line and a number of bridges were badly damaged and a score of persons are homeless.

Fear for Safety of Train

The safety of the Mandalay-Rangoon mail train is causing some anxiety since the train would have been in the area where the epicenter of the shock was located at about 1 a.m.

Severance of rail and telegraph communications is delaying accurate information of the scope of the damage. An unconfirmed report says that there was considerable loss at Toungoo.

A special train with medical officers left Rangoon this afternoon for the affected districts. A railroad administration communique stated that as a consequence of the earthquake approaches to the bridge of the Pyu Chaung 134 miles from Rangoon, had sunk five feet, and that the railway line itself was badly damaged further along.

Both up and down lines were blocked. Five freight cars and the locomotive of a freight train on the down line were derailed and turned over but the train crew was not injured at Pyu station 13.

Freight cars turned over owing to the severity of the shocks. As far as is known no passenger train was affected, but the mail train from Mandalay, expected here this morning, had been held up and nothing known as to what happened to it.

Sir John Denies Woman on R-101

LONDON, Dec. 4 (C.P.).—Sir John Simon, chairman of the board of inquiry which is investigating the crash and destruction of the dirigible R-101 in Northern France in October, denied today that there was a woman aboard at the time of the catastrophe, or that there were large quantities of intoxicating liquors on the ship, and that its crew were not sober.

Sir John stated emphatically at to-day's session of the court of inquiry that there was no woman on the craft, adding that the woman mentioned "had now reached Rome on a flight she was undertaking."

The reference apparently was to Miss Winifred Spooner, British woman aviator, whose plane had made a forced landing in the Tyrrhenian Sea during the night.

REVOLUTION PLOT BARED IN LISBON; 23 ARE ARRESTED

Police Seize Three Taxicabs Heavily Loaded With Bombs.

CONSPIRATORS CONFESS.

LISBON, Dec. 4.—Lisbon police announced to-day that a large quantity of bombs and explosives had been seized in various parts of the city, and a revolutionary movement, in which it was planned to blow up public buildings, thwarted.

A mysterious taxicab gave the police their first hint of the plot. The cab was stopped and found to contain a cargo of the bombs, destined for one of the depots of the revolutionaries.

The driver confessed participation in the conspiracy and implicated Sergeant Joaquin Feliciano Freire, who was arrested and in turn implicated others, all of whom were arrested except two lieutenants, Manuel Correta and Pio, both of whom escaped. The police searched the home of the conspirators and seized over 600 bombs.

20 Civilians Implicated.

Among those arersted were a captain of infantry, his name undivulged, two sergeants, and 20 civilians. One of those arrested, Naia Monteiro, who denounced his friend, Lieutenant Pio, eluded the attention of his guards and jumped from a window. He landed hard and suffered contusions about the head.

The bombs were said by police to have been manufactured in Lisbon from dynamite and other explosives supplied by the foreman of the phyrotechnic works, Augusto Souza, who was arrested. The plotters already were distrbiuting their bombs to extremist parties in taxicabs and motor truck, three of which fully loaded fell into the hands of the police.

Further investigation of the plot, it was disclosed, revealed that the Republican Democratic Party opened subscriptions ostensibly to aid the families of political deportees, but in reality to obtain funds to finance a coup d'etat against the dictatorship.

Two Arrested in Hamilton and Third Wounded in Toronto Recently Are Jailed.

SHOT HIT WRONG MAN.

TORONTO, Ont., December 4 (C.P.).—Following up the story told by Anthony Nervalli that he had been shot in the nose after he had been taken for an automobile ride by two Italians, local police, with the assistance of two Hamilton detectives, raided a house in Hamilton early yesterday and arrested two Italians, who are held on charges of attempted robbery and shooting with intent to kill. On returning to Toronto police arrested Nervalli in St. Michael's Hospital on the same charges. The two Italians arrested are Angus "Tony" Sanguin, who according to Toronto police, is wanted in Detroit on a charge of murder, and Louis Rosse.

The charge is laid against the three men in connection with an attempt to hold up Thomas Conboy city traveller for a wholesale grocery firm on Monday night. Conboy managed to escape, but shots alleged to have been fired at him hit Nervalli by mistake. Conboy, who had more than $500 on his person at the time of the planned hold-up, is well known in the local Italian district.

SEEK GIANT FRUIT WAREHOUSE

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4.—A request by fruit growers of the Niagara district to Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, that he use his efforts to bring about co-operative action on the part of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways for the erection of a giant terminal fruit and vegetable warehouse here, is expected to feature a conference to be held at the Parliament Buildings between the Minister and growers.

TONS OF BUTTER FROM AUSTRALIA TO FLOOD CANADA

LAID DOWN AT 24 CENTS.

Shipped to Both Coasts—Present Tariff Carries Only 1 Cent Duty a Pound.

VANCOUVER, Dec. 4 (C.P.).—The Vancouver Sun, in its news columns, says:

"Australian exporters are prering to flood Canada with over 20,000,000 pounds of butter before next April, laid down in Canada at 24 cents a pound, all charges paid.

"It is believed in Australia that butter can be shipped here on consignment, escaping dumping duty and paying 1 cent a pound import duty until March or April.

"What the Australians are planning to do became known here through a bulletin of the Australian Dairy Products and Export Board, dated October 21. The circular says shipments will bemade to Atlantic ports, as well as to Vancouver through a well-known Canadian importing firm with connections right across the Dominion.

Shipment For Atlantic Coast.

"A total of nearly 15,000,000 pounds will be shipped to Eastern Canada in the next five months, while 100,000 boxes will come to Vancouver, beginning in December, at the rate of 20,000 boxes a month.

"Under the Australian treaty, which cannot be abrogated until either party to it gives six months' notice, Canada imposes a duty of only 1 cent on Australian butter, plus a dumping duty not to exceed 15 per cent.

"Butter is wholesaling in Australia at 36 cents a pound, but can be sold here at 24 cents under the Patterson scheme, which pays Australia producers a bonus of 11 cents a pound on all butter exported."

SINCLAIR SCORED FOR HIS ACTIONS

A. J. Young Claims Party Suffered Through Association With O.T.A. and Prohibition.

DRYS JOCKEYED LEADERS.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4.—(C.P.)—Prohibitionists active in the 1929 Provincial election campaign and W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., Ontario Liberal leader, are criticized with equal vigor in a statement issued here by A. J. Young, former President of the Ontario Reform Association.

When Mr. Sinclair recently made his attack on the Ontario Liberal Association executive, for alleged failure to support him, he gave the best evidence as to why he is being opposed for the party leadership, Mr. Young states.

Tracing the history of the Ontario Liberal Party since the "abolish the bar" campaign in 1914, Mr. Young declares he finds the Liberal Party's association with prohibition and the Ontario Temperance Act has been fatal to it.

Continuing Mr. Young states Mr. Sinclair charged he had no support from the Liberal Association, but the Liberals who are in the forefront of Federal election campaigns, many of them holders of moderate views on temperance reform, were willing to help the leader, but ere alienated by the latter's being jockeyed into domination by the prohibitionists.

GOV'T TO PROBE PRICE OF FLOUR

Great Canadian Milling Companies Offer Full Co-operation.

ACTION IMMEDIATELY.

OTTAWA, Dec. 4. (CP)—Further inquiry into flour prices in Canada will be made by the Department of Labor in this inquiry the Department has been offered the full co-operation of the great Canadian milling companies. Announcement of the continued investigation was made by Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, at the conclusion of a two-hour conference with representatives of seven large Canadian milling companies of the Dominion.

"It is probable that a report summarizing the results of the Labor Department's inquiry by registrar into bread prices will be completed in the not distant future" said Senator Robertson "and the offer to furnish all desired information, volunteered by the millers, will be accepted. The flour inquiry will be pursued further as rapidly as possible, it being obvious that many factors enter into the matter which must be the subject of full inquiry and consideration before a definite departmental decision can be made as to whether or not an inquiry by commissioner will be necessary in the public interest."

DECISION IS HELD IN RODNEY CASE AGAINST TEACHER

Girl Had Four Ribs Fractured, Bruised Chest and Swollen Arms, Doctor States.

PUPIL RELATES STORY.

Two Classmates Raise New Angle By Claiming Victim Was Disturbing Element.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Dec. 4 (C.P.)—Decision was reserved by Magistrate Maxwell in police court at Rodney yesterday in the case of Harvey Gillis, 21-year-old teacher of the continuation classes in Oak Grove School, Section No. 10, Aldborough Township, who is charged with assaulting Bessie Lamont, 13-year-old pupil, on October 13.

The girl alleged she was assaulted by Gillis for classroom misconduct, of which she professed to be ignorant.

Four fractured ribs, a superficial wound an inch long over the left eye, a bruise on her chest, her hands swollen and marked, and skin bruises on the arms, wrists, shoulders and knee, were the injuries suffered by the girl, according to the testimony of Dr. J. R. McPherson, family physician of Durant, who asked that the hearing be held in camera so that the present nervous condition of the girl would not be aggravated. His request was refused.

A new angle to the proceedings was introduced in the evidence of two other pupils, Catherine and Dorothy McDonald, who stated they remained after school hours on the day of the alleged assault to complete some work. They gave their teacher the highest commendation and added that Bessie was a disturbing element in the school.

FEDERAL MEMBER NAMED DEFENDANT

Two Criminal and Two Civil Actions Set Down For Cobourg Assizes.

COBOURG, December 4 (Special to The Examiner). — F. W. Bowen, Conservative member for Durham in the Federal House, is the defendant in the action, Larkin vs. Bowen which will be heard before Judge L. V. O'Connor, when the County Court opens here on Tuesday. The case is a dispute over farm costs. Two criminal and one other civil action comprise the docket. The other civil action, McGafey vs. McGafey, is a dispute between two Hope Township residents. The case of McLaughlin vs. Johnstone has been settled out of Court.

CHEESEMAKERS' ASSOCIATION WILL SEEK GOVERNMENT AID

One Hundred Representatives Gather at Belleville For Annual District Convention.

WARMLY WELCOMED.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 4.—Over one hundred were gathered in the city hall Tuesday afternoon for the opening day of the third annual convention of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association which will convene here for two days, closing Wednesday evening with a monster banquet in the Moose auditorium.

The delegates were welcomed to the city by Mayor George A. Reid, the first official function in which he has acted in his official capacity since his re-election Monday, and Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater, who welcomed the delegates to the County on behalf of the county council and himself, as Warden.

In presenting his annual report to the convention, W. V. Drewry, the president for 1930, stated that the membership in the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association had increased by approximately twenty percent. "We," he said in his opening remarks, "have increased our record for special and first grade cheese over that of 1929 by about 1 percent."

President's Address

"In my address before this, our third annual convention," he said, "I would beg to briefly draw your attention to the following facts which constitute the progress we have made during this cheesemaking season of 1930, which has just terminated."

As far as the work accomplished by our different local groups is concerned they have held about eighty-two meetings with a total attendance of over four thousand (approximately) consisting of cheesemakers, factory inspectors, dairy produce graders, cheese exporters and other gentlemen interested in Canada's premier dairy industry, and were without doubt a source of inspiration and ecouragement to all those who attended them."

"During 1930 I attended meetings in seven of the ten local groups in my jurisdiction."

"I also attended as the representative of this Association, the annual meeting of the Federated Dairy Associations held at Toronto, also the annual convention, of the Western Ontario Cheesemakers Association held at Ingersoll on the 13th of November together with several local district banquets and in short attempted to give the work my general supervision.

"An innovation we have introduced this year is the Cheese Factory Patrons Farm and Herd Competition which was inaugurated with the idea of encouraging our patrons to increase both the quantity and quality of their raw material by supplying them with a double incentive to do so and thereby enabling us to retain and if at all possible to improve our position in the cheese markets of the world."

"I may say that the correspondence in connection with this contest has been most voluminous and the interest taken in same by the banking corporation, dairy supply houses, from newspapers and other firms and individuals connected with the industry has been most pronounced as is evidenced by the generous subscriptions and special prize lists which appear in our program."

"To these subscribers and donators I hereby tender the very hearty thanks of this Association not only for their liberal and generous donations but also for the public spirit and business vision which prompted them."

"I cannot conclude my remarks on this subject without testifying to the valuable co-operation and support rendered by George H. Barr, our able director of dairying, Toronto, and his courteous and efficient staff of local instructors and to acknowledge that without their assistance we could not have made this contest the outstanding success it undoubtedly is. I would be lacking in ordinary gratitude, did I fail to testify to and impress upon the minds of the members of this association and all others connected with the cheesemaking industry the loyal support and efficient assistance which your executive has received from the local office of the Dairy Produce Grader, Federal Department of Agriculture, 175 Front street, Belleville, which has been as you know the headquarters of this association since its inception.

"In our honorary president, J. L. Irwin, we have a man who from the very earliest beginning of this organization has thrown himself body and soul, enthusiastically, energetically and tirelessly into the entire executive and organization connected with the association.

"Too much praise and thanks cannot possibly be awarded him for the unfagging interest he has taken in this, our work, and sage counsel and loyal co-operation he has never failed to extend to your executive who have derived very great benefit indeed from his wide experience as a cheese making expert and his ability as an organizer, and lastly from his kindness and courtesy in always placing his office at our disposal. It is not too much to say that were it not for Mr. Irwin's assistance our Association would not be functioning today.

"It is the decided opinion of your executive that this Association is entitled to and should receive some assistance by way of a grant from the Provincial Government in order that this work may be still further extended.

"In conclusion I must express my deepest thanks to the entire executive for the loyalty and co-operation they have extended towards me during my term of office."

EVANS OPPOSES POOL PROPOSAL

RAPS BENNETT'S OFFER.

SASKATOON, Sask., Dec. 4.—Opposing a resolution by pool contract signers asking Government guarantee of a 70-cent minimum wheat price as "a temporary expedient", John Evans, former M.P. for Rosetown declares: "Farmers should not go as suppliants to the class that controls Parliaments." What the farmer needed, he declared, was freedom of exchange of goods. Even with 60-cent wheat they could weather the storm if they could buy goods at world prices.

Characterising Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett's Imperial Conference offer to Great Britain as "hyprocritical" Mr. Evans said the increased restrictions on imports imposed by the present Government were only following the methods of the previous Government when they imposed further restrictions on import under the British Preference.

England would buy Canadian wheat now if Canada would admit her goods, he said. Mr. Evans urged farmers "to fight it out now" and not put their prices more out of line with world prices."

MADOC CREAMERY WINS FIRST PRIZE

Winner at Royal Winter Competition Held in Toronto Recently.

MADOC, Dec. 4.—According to the published list of prizes for butter at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, Madoc Creamery scored a first. As yet Messrs. Mitchell and Young, proprietors, have had no official notification of the win, but they state that the honor was for a solid block of butter weighing 14 pounds.

For bringing to the town an honor which means so much to the dairy industry here, the creamery is to be congratulated. They deserve the commendation of all. It is especially gratifying to meet with such success during their first year of business in Madoc.

The cream from which the high scoring exhibit was made was obtained from patrons in the vicinity of the village and was selected by the creamerymen on reaching the plant.

Dairymen will be glad to know that their cream is of a quality that can be made into such an outstanding exhibit. If they appreciate the creamerymen that can handle their wares with exceptional skill, Madoc Creamery will continue in its effort to give the customers a butter of highest grade.

WHY do women in this city serve Clover Leaf Salmon to their guests and families more often than any other kind?

We asked over two hundred women here that question less than three weeks ago.

The answers were pointed . . . "Clover Leaf Salmon contains so much real food value," said one. "The fact is"—said another—"that a one pound tin of Clover Leaf Salmon contains far more protein than the same amount of steak, ham or chicken, or even a dozen of eggs . . . and I can buy canned salmon at less than one third the cost."

"It's easy to prepare," and, "It can be prepared in so many interesting ways . . . Hot, or cold, in sandwiches, salads, creamed, or in omelettes . . . in almost unending variety," were some of the other replies.

Indeed, Clover Leaf Salmon is the very finest quality of salmon packed today. Nowhere will you find finer, fresher, firmer fish than those selected for packing in Clover Leaf cans! Housewives here have found that out!

U.S. Will Seek Cause Of Heart Wearing Out

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—In searching the human heart to learn why its failing is the prime cause of death the United States Government will spend $10,000 next fiscal year.

The fund was provided in the annual Treasury Supply Bill reported to the House to-day after Health officials testified heart diseases have replaced cancer as "the major cause of death," and that as the infant mortality problem is eased, the adult-death rate increasingly is brought to scientists' attention.

$15,000,000 TO FIGHT RUM-RUNNING.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (C.P.).—So highly organized is liquor running on the borders of the United States that the coastguard will require more than $15,000,000 to conduct its anti-smuggling operations next fiscal year.

The House Appropriations Committee reported to-day that half the coast guard's expenditures go to protecting the borders against contraband, most of it liquor. It recommended a total of $32,807,562 for the guard's 1932 appropriation.

A GENEROUS DONATION.

The generous action of W. G. Morrow in providing $180 per year in scholarships for pupils in the commercial, industrial arts and household arts departments of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School will be generally appreciated as a recognition of the fact that vocational training has a very important place in education.

Up to the present, save for an I.O.D.E. scholarship for the first form of the commercial department, there have been no awards for successful pupils in the Vocational School, although pupils in academic work for many years have had the opportunity of winning Nicholls scholarships.

Vocational training is coming into its own, and Mr. Morrow's splendid donation of a scholarship fund for competition among those who prefer technical training rather than to follow academic courses will be especially welcomed by those who led the fight for better facilities in Peterborough for vocational education.

The scholarships will be an incentive to pupils in the Vocational School to make the best possible use of their school time and to seek to improve their efficiency that they may qualify for the awards that are henceforth to be given successful scholars.

MORE PROTECTION NEEDED.

The request that has been made by Toronto naturalists for action by the Provincial Department of Game and Fisheries designed to protect large birds, such as eagles, pelicans, herons and cormorants, is entirely reasonable.

News despatches from various sections of the Province during the past summer telling of the appearance of a number of birds of types not usually seen here almost invariably contained the news that the strange visitors had been shot.

There seems to be an unexplainable instinct in most people to regard the sight of an unusual bird visitor as the signal for bringing out a shotgun and potting the newcomer.

Eagles, pelicans and similar large birds are supposed to be protected by law, and the Toronto Field Naturalists' Club in asking that the regulations be enforced and that prosecutions should follow violations of the law, as a means of educating the public, is one that the authorities might well give serious consideration.

It is necessary to make people understand that when a feathered visitor, somewhat out of the ordinary, drops into Canada the occasion does not call for gunfire.

THE 1930 WHEAT KING.

The story of the exploit of Herman Trelle, of Peace River Valley, Alberta, in winning for the second time the wheat championship at the International Livestock Exposition is not only a story of Canadian supremacy in wheat-growing but also of the successful struggle of a young Westerner to climb to the top of the ladder.

Trelle's achievement, his second victory at the Chicago show, was made possible, those who are inclined to sneer at the valuable advice from "arm chair" farmers should understand, by a close study and faithful application of all the agricultural knowledge the young Albertan could obtain from agricultural bulletins and farming literature of all kinds.

Information from the Dominion Experimental Farm located near his home was used to good advantage by Trelle, who, armed with the latest knowledge available on the subject, devoted himself to the problems of farming and particularly to the technique of wheat-growing to such good purpose that in a few years he had won the wheat championship at Chicago for the first time and became a prominent figure in agricultural history.

Now his victory of 1926 has been repeated; once again Trelle-grown wheat has been declared the finest displayed at the great Chicago exposition, and the title of the world's wheat king is carried by a Canadian who did not underestimate the importance of taking advantage of the experience of those who have made a life work of studying the various phases of agriculture.

Canadians on this occasion have carried off the reserve championship as well, a showing that is decidedly gratifying.

INCONSISTENCY.

The Oshawa Times calls attention to an instance of inconsistency that unfortunately is all too often duplicated in other centres than Oshawa.

An Oshawa merchant, it seems, sent out to the householders of that city pamphlets advertising Christmas cards and printed novelties and accompanied by a slip bearing the heading, "Play Fair with the Community in Which You Live—Support Your Local Merchant," and appealing to the citizens to refuse to buy from itinerant peddlers of Christmas cards and to deal instead with local merchants.

But, alas, for the force of this otherwise most worthy appeal—down in the corner of the slip on which it appeared were the words, "Printed in U.S.A.," and an examination of the folder in which the novelties were advertised showed that it also was printed across the border. It is probable that the Christmas cards themselves also came from the same country.

At all events, most people will wonder at the thoughtlessness of a merchant who would call for fair play for his home community and, in spite of the fact that that community contained a number of printing establishments, make his appeal on material printed in another country.

The inconsistency of urging citizens to buy at home and then sending printing orders to some outside plant to keep printers there busy does not seem to have impressed itself sufficiently upon a good many people.

"THE GREATEST OF THESE ——."

Sometimes a great story may be revealed in quite an ordinary newspaper paragraph. For instance, on page 20 of Monday's Globe a nine-line despatch from Oshawa announced that the Associated Welfare Societies of that city had launched a campaign for $15,000, and secured $31,643, with returns not yet complete.

The great news in this brief paragraph is its revelation of the splendid generosity of the citizens of Oshawa. Charity campaigners elsewhere during the present year have not had this success. The canvassers have worked hard, but objectives have not been reached.

Oshawa people have been touched by the plight of their fellow-citizens, and their response has been great-hearted beyond the dreams of the welfare organizations. The sum contributed should ensure that there will be no serious distress in the Automobile City this winter. There are many cardinal virtues, but "the greatest of these is charity"—The Globe

THE FARMERS' INCOME.

There is food for considerable thought in facts concerning the decline in the farmers' income presented by Business Trend, a publication devoted to the study of Canadian economics, and its relationship to the period of business depression with which the country is now struggling.

This newspaper has all along contended that until higher prices are available for farm produce, particularly wheat, there can be little prospect of a steady and permanent revival of Canadian business, whatever the artificial means which are taken to furnish employment and to keep money in circulation. It has also contended that the reduced prices which the farmer has been obliged to accept for his products, while paying almost as much for his manufactured requirements, form a situation that demands correction before business in general can return to its former state of prosperity.

And now comes forward Business Trend with the suggestion that it was this discrepancy between the prices for farm produce and for manufactured produce that really precipitated the period of depression and that made it inevitable. Comparing price levels as between August, 1929, and September, 1930, that publication shows that while the prices of manufactured articles remained relatively high, those of agricultural products declined by one-third. This means that the purchasing power of the farmers of Canada, an important class of consumers, was reduced by one-third. This, according to Business Trend, is what happened:

"Field grains show a decline from August, 1929, to September, 1930, of 45 per cent.—nearly half. Farm products, including grains, dropped during the same period 34 per cent. Had there been a corresponding drop in manufactured products the farmer would not have been so badly hit, but "Manufactured products dropped 9.7 per cent.

"Textiles fell 13 per cent.

"Iron and steel fell 3.4 per cent.

"The spread between the price levels of field grains and manufactured products was 35.3 points greater in September this year than in August, 1929—between manufactured commodities and all farm products the spread was 24.3 points.

"A lower commodity price level strikes those who have definite fixed charges to meet. Interest on farm mortgages did not decline—neither did taxes. The only way the farmer could meet the situation was by lowering his standard of living—cutting down his purchases—buying less. That is why business is dull—the farmer lacks the purchasing power."

Assembling these facts, it says:

1. Business cannot return to normal until the price of farm products goes up or the price of manufactured goods comes down.

2. The spread between manufactured goods and farm products and field grains must be narrowed. The lines must coalesce—they now diverge. The tendency to diverge still continues.

3. Anything which tends to bring these closer, helps to restore better times—opposing forces deepen the depression.

The farmers of Canada as a whole have had already to accept heavier losses than the manufacturers of the country. They are still taking losses even heavier than they were a year ago, while the prices of manufactured articles have not declined in nearly the same proportion. Moreover, while manufacturing is being given further and further aid through tariff increases (one Toronto member of Parliament recently stated that the increases provided for under the emergency tariff would be only "a flea-bite" in comparison with the increases that would be imposed under the next budget) and through other bonuses, the farmer is given no corresponding relief and must continue to accept prices for his products that approximate pre-war levels.

Agriculture is the great basic industry of Canada. Others may possess importance, but none reaches the same standing or affects so many people. It has always been the case that when agriculture suffers depression, manufacturing is similarly depressed. If those responsible for the direction of national affairs would bring back the prosperity of recent years, their first business, therefore, should be to see that farmers are able to command better prices for their products and that their purchasing power is thereby increased. Until this is done, business will continue in a more or less depressed state, no matter how high tariff walls are raised or how many millions of dollars are distributed in unemployment relief.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

That Christmas shopping should mean opportunities for Canadians to find jobs. Choose Canadian-made goods.

Anyway, it is quite clear from Judge Denton's findings that somehow or other the salaries of the members of Toronto's Council were raised.

Mayor Wemp, according to the Denton report, was "passively acquiescent" in regard to the salary grab. That's a fine election phrase to spring upon the electors in the Ward.

Canadian successes at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago show that there is nothing fundamentally wrong with agriculture in this country.

Mr. Ferguson may have been an absolute monarch, as his opponents declare, but at least his abdication has brought grief to his subjects.

T. L. Church, ex-M.P., threw a few bombshells into the Conservative convention the other day. Mr. Church can always be depended upon to add spice to any gathering he attends.

It is hoped that Mr. Bennett will not sail for home until he has wished the British Government a merry Christmas.

A Toronto Italian, shot in the face, says he was "taken for a ride" by two fellow-countrymen. It is to be hoped that the Toronto police will be able to give the guilty parties a ride.

The reason some girls don't blush all over is because they can't carry that much rouge around in their compacts, comments one writer.—Galt Reporter.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

A heavy thunderstorm of blinding rain and bellowing thunder had rolled up from the south that afternoon and kept Aurore and Dorn to their cabin; and she reasoned it was the cause of Kansas' being late. But he should come now; the evening had faired off and a vivid rainbow was arched against the eastern sky, with its feet upon the mountain tops.

A part of Aurore's happiness lay in Dorn's swift and complete recovery: after his tremendous sleep of nearly thirty hours, when he awoke and was himself again, she spied upon him at chopping wood or swimming vigorously in the lake or stretching himself exultantly like a man who feels strength and virality running in his veins again. But Aurore's chiefest happiness lay in this new intimacy which had come—an intimacy so new and strange and so different from all her imaginings, that she still felt shy toward Jim Dorn and could not meet his eyes squarely and would feel her cheeks flushing whenever she knew he was watching her.

What Aurore dreaded was her intuitive knowledge that Kansas was going to put an end to the partnership between himself and Dorn. She had felt his antagonism during that breakfast talk; he had said things which showed her that he meant to go away. She knew what a blow it would be to Dorn; she realised the depth of this rugged friendship between two men who had been partners more years than she had known them weeks. Dorn had told her about that hectic sky battle when he and Kansas shot the Fokker monoplane out of the air; and she saw in that an example of how they had teamed together from boyhood until now. Aurore did not think it right that she should come between them. And she was wise enough to know that love could never be the whole of Jim Dorn's existence; he must go ahead with his ambitions and have other people in his life besides herself; and no person could ever take the place of his partner, Kansas Eby.

When the Silver Hawk winged over the mesa and glided down upon the lake, Aurore and Dorn hurried up to the cove. Paddling out to the plane, they stood on a pontoon and shook hands with Kansas, and Aurore begged him to eat supper and spend the night with them.

But Kansas would not stay for supper. He would not even come ashore. He guessed he'd mosey back to Titan Pass as soon as he talked a few things over.

He said abruptly: "I wired to Red Lake about that job you were going to take, Dorn. They wired 'Come ahead.' As soon as I can get out of service here, I'm going."

Aurore glanced quickly at Dorn. She saw him wince; saw the blood come and go in his face. His keen eyes narrowed, and for a little he looked hard at Kansas. She knew that he understood this was the end of things between Kansas and him. She thought surely he would argue; would try to hold his partner. But he merely said, in his laconic way: "So you're leaving here. I'm sorry."

Aurore thought, with despair: "He knows it's no use to try to hold Kansas." His terseness surprised her, and Kansas considered it proof that Dorn was glad to have him go.

After an awkward and painful silence, Kansas remarked: "You and Aurore are going Out pretty soon, of course." And he glanced at the cabin under the great pines.

He meant it as an innocent question, so that he would know when to come for them. But Aurore blushed and looked away, and her hand fumbled with a button on her jacket. Dorn answered for himself and for her.

"We're planning to stay here a while, Kansas. Neither of us see any reason why we should not. Before last week, when there was a reason why not, we respected it, we lived up to it we held it inviolate. When we do go Out we'll take a wedding trip east. But now we plan to live here as we are until deep into the summer."

Kansas was rather puzzled by Dorn's defiance of a convention. He never had been able to understand some of Jim Dorn's own personal ideals; and he didn't attempt to now. He did think it rather strange that Dorn, who had held himself sternly to the social "Thou-Shalt-Not" when Aurore was Carter Snowdon's wife, should now fly in the face of the strictest and most arbitrary convention of them all. But he knew that those weeks here would be enchanted weeks; and it seemed to him that any imputation against the honour of either Jim Dorn or Aurore McNain would be absurdity.

He merely nodded to what Dorn said; and went on:

"Another thing: I wired the Chief about you. Told him you weren't in position to continue your cartographing. He wired me to take over your work. That squares you with him."

"That was mighty thoughtful of you."

"Another thing"— Kansas' voice softened now. "I arranged about—about Dad Bergelot. His sister down at Canoe was his only relative, and that was where he was boru. I had Burton take him down there in the D-H."

Dorn winced at the words. He was remembering how he had promised to fly Bergelot dowu to the mountain hamlet the night when Aurore came. Now old Dad Bergelot was to be flown there to his aged sister, but his home-coming would be tragically different from the one he had awaited like an eager child.

He wanted to tell Kansas that he and Aurore had planned to take over the funeral expenses for old Dad Bergelot, and had planned to put old Luke in comfort for the rest of his days. But he could not mention money in the same breath with death, and he kept silent.

Kansas fidgeted in his seat, wondering how to broach the chief purpose of his visit. He had staved it off until now, but now it had to be said. He broke out:

"Jim, I tried to cover this whole thing up. I did my best, but it can't be done. There's a dozen operatives at Titan Pass right now trying to discover where you are and what happened to Carter-Snowdon. They're bound to get hold of some clue. I wanted to ask you what you think we ought to——"

Dorn said briefly: "I've thought that out already. There's only one thing to do. That's to tell the truth—from beginning to end."

"But see here: two men got killed, you were their enemy; suppose the guilt is fastened on you?"

"It won't be, can't be. You and Aurore and old Luke were witnesses to how and why that biplane crashed. That clears me there. I can swear the detective walked off a cliff. It's the truth. If they doubt about him being blinded, they can easy enough verify it. I wish, anyway, that you'd bring Inspector Oldfather up here to take my affidavit and go over the ground himself."

"But, Jim, the publicity—you and Aurore——"

"We've talked that over too. We'll face it." Dorn's voice rose a little, and he spoke with hated emphasis. "We want to. Do you know why? What effect do you suppose it's going to have on this political battle when the whole story is known? Don't you see that this publicity is going to go a long way toward completing the wreck of Carter-Snowdon's party? Kansas, look here: this wilderness is my home, it's Aurore's too. I've told you I love it; hated to see it spoiled. Now when the test comes, now when we've got a colossal chance to get in a lick on the right side, we're going to stand up to it. This publicity is our contribution. We hope the story is echoed all over three provinces. That's that!"

Kansas presently asked, "Then you want me to give out the story when I go back?"

"Yes. The sooner the better."

"Well, than . . ." and Kansas glanced around at the gathering twilight and made as though to switch on ignition.

But Dorn checked him with a gesture. Dorn lifted Aurore upon the edge of the cockpit; and it was then, with Aurore sitting there, steadying herself with a hand on Kansas' arm, that Dorn in his deliberate way thrust a few barbed javelins into his partner.

He said: "While Aurore and I are over east, Kansas, I'm going around to the Vickers Company and order three big amphibians for that Alaska passenger service you and I planned. I thought once I'd never want to fly again, but it's in my blood and I'm itching to have hold of a stick. I've been figuring on you throwing in with us. I though you'd like to finish out the season here cartographing, and then next winter we could make all our preparations. But you—this talk about that Ontario offer—you seem to consider yourself the odd person in a crowd. You seem to think, after all you've done for us, that Aurore and I would be glad to see you pitch off.

"I sort of felt, after that Sunday morning we spent in the air together, that we were closer partners than ever. I don't want to drag you into this Alaska plan, but I wish you'd think it over. I haven't talked about this with Aurore, I wanted to iron out these other things first; but now you've forced my hand. It's Aurore's money that's making the project possible. I think she ought to invite you." Dorn turned his eyes to her. "Aurore, do you want Kansas with us?"

Then, in a breathless moment, Aurore realised why Dorn had been so laconic a few minutes ago when Kansas had announced his going! Then she realized why he had not argued or pleaded! Dorn had given his partner rope to hang himself with!

There was nothing half-hearted about Aurore's invitation. To Kansas' stupefied confusion she flung her arms around his neck and made him bend to her and hugged him and kissed his unshaven cheek.

Kansas gulped; he glanced at Dorn as though trying to say it was not his fault. Unexpected, staggering, Dorn's offer—and the manner of Aurore's invitation—struck him squarely between the eyes. He groped for words—to apologize, to beg forgiveness. But Dorn would not listen; he lifted Aurore down and stepped into the canoe with her; and without another word he paddled back ashore.

They stood on the jutting boulder—Dorn and Aurore—watching Kansas as he taxied out upon the lake, leaped into the air and began circling. In steep spirals he climbed above tree-line and the snowfields and the gaunt naked pinnacles of the horseshoe range, till his motor was a faint whispering hum and the silver Hawk glistened in the high slant rays of the setting sun as the plane climbed on aloft.

Dorn kept looking up at it, wondering what Kansas meant by this strange spiralling to so lofty a height. In the quickening chill of evening Aurore nestled close and her body was warm against him. Dorn put his arms about her, and kissed her lips.

Behind them in the wildwood the golden-crowned sparrows were singing their exquisite evening song. The purple shadows of the great pines were lengthening across the lake where innumerable swallows were tilting over the water. The ineffable peace and solemnity of twilight in the mountains was swiftly shutting down.

"Look! Notice Kansas' turns— He's starting to spell something. Aurore he's answering our invitation!"

In gigantic, imaginary characters Kansas was penciling a message on the sky. Spelling the letters one by one, watching the airy manoeuvring back and forth across the fading rainbow, Dorn and Aurore made out the words:

"COUNT ME IN."

And then with a final salute—a loop and a long roll and a graceful falling leaf—the plane sped south and vanished out of sight, leaving them to the twilight and hushed happiness of their beloved wilderness.

RECORD DEVELOPMENT

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:

The announcement by the President of the Canadian Rail-Airways of the formation of the Board of Directors of that Company shows it to be the most stupendous undertaking in the history of Canada.

When the international arrangement was made between the U.S.A. and Canada which made them one country for all flying purposes it was but a matter of time until airplane flying became something more than to talk about. But now that the big railways and the big banks have all put their presidents and managers on the active and executive board of management of Canadian Rail-Airways, there can be no doubt in anybody's mind of the immediate future in prospect and in actual fact for the huge undertaking.

Peterborough was put by nature on the main route of the transcontinental undertaking, but if we do not wish to enter in the company tells us that they will go through Kingston, etc.

Wherever the airport at Peterborough may be situated, whether on the property in which I am interested or not, there can be no doubt that a deputation of our City Council should get in touch with this immense company whose head office it at Montreal, without delay.

A new private commercial airways company has just come into the field, operating between Montreal and New York. The development of commercial flying is extraordinary.

U. S. PLANS TO SPEND $690,00,000 ON NATIONAL DEFENSE DURING '31

What To-day Means To You

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 4th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a.m. to 10 a.m., and from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The hours for discretion and care are from noon to 1:30 p.m. and from 10:30 p.m. to midnight.

Painful experiences are predicted on this date through the treachery and gossip of so-called friends. It will be proven that adversity makes strange bed fellows, and you will find some unexpected allies. Tie a knot in your purse strings!

The children born on this December 4th will have obstinate, perverse natures. Their wills should not be bent, although they should be taught the difference between blind stubbornness and decision. They will make strong charactered, intelligent and successful adults.

Your wits may sometimes fail to bring results, but your smile almost never lets you down. A smile may bribe, but it never corrupts. You have ingratiating manners and enticing ways, and the world is usually glad to give you a lift if it can. Your hands, however, are extended with gifts as well as to give as receive, and you aim to do unto others as you are done by. You have an optimistic outlook, a kindly, tolerant heart, and a sunny disposition. You are blessed with both Hope and Patience, the two sovereign remedies for all, and the softest cushions to lean on in adversity.

You are able to think for yourself, and you prefer your own to second-hand thoughts. You are not a copyist in your work, and you can always do your best without supervision. You are a little deaf to suggestions from others and a little too resentful of criticisms, and a little too sure that your plan is the best of the lot. Experience is the one teacher for whom you have sufficient respect, and in whom you have sufficient confidence to obey.

The last half of your life will be better than the first. "Age is opportunity as well as youth, for at evening the sky is filled with stars invisible by day." You will often be called upon to sacrifice your own interests for the sake of duty. You seldom, however, whine about your disappointments, and take them in good grace.

Publicity One Reason Of Company's Success

The world wide fame of Bovril is attributed by the Company to two main factors; first, a high quality product and next, forceful publicity in newspapers and magazines, carefully chosen because of the prestige of the medium used.

The BOVRIL Company use only those newspaper and publications, which prove themselves to have first class reader interest, and which are recognized as in the first rank in prestige among the general public.

The Bovril Company having a first class product, only associate their advertising with first class mediums. The fact that their message of food quality and the strength-giving virtues of their famous product, appear in this journal, is evidence backed by dollars and cents, that this publication is a medium which always gets results for a worth while product.

Appropriations, if Congress Adheres to Estimates, Be $34,000,000 Less sThan For 1930.

WILL FINISH CRUISERS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—The United States will spend $690,000,000 for National defense in the next fiscal year, if Congress adheres to the budget estimates forwarded yesterday by President Hoover.

This is nearly $34,000,000 less than defense appropriations for the current year, but the contemplated use in 1932 of unexpended balances would almost offset the decrease.

The President asked $38,300,000 for construction of naval vessels next year, a decrease of $21,100,000. But utilization of a large unexpended balance resulting from delay in building pending negotiation of the London Treaty would bring the 1932 construction total to $51,000,000.

These funds would be used to carry forward work on the aircraft carrier and seven of the light cruisers carrying 6-inch guns authorized in 1929, and for work on the incompleted light cruisers and submarines being constructed under prior authorizations.

Wishes No Delay

"The construction of those vessels now authorized which are permitted by the London Treaty should now go forward without delay," the President said.

He noted that the Government could build three more 8-inch gun cruisers by 1935, under the London Pact, if it desired, but that the remaining five under the 1930 fifteen-ship program would have to carry guns of less than 8-inch calibre.

An estimated 1932 expenditure of nearly $30,300,000 for army and navy aviation was listed. This contemplates the procurement of a minimum of 787 airplanes, engines, and accessories.

SOCIETY HONORS ST. ANDREW'S DAY

Young People's Club of Hastings Anglican Church Holds Weekly Meeting.

HASTINGS, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Young People's Club of St. George's Anglican Church, Hastings held their weekly meeting on Monday night.

St. Andrew's Day formed the keynote of the opening hymns and address which was given by Rev. H. F. Battersby. After the usual business of the meeting was finished a programme consisting of songs and Christmas Carols was rendered by the musical committee.

The next meeting will be held on Monday evening, December 8 when lantern slides of Dickens Christmas Carols will be shown. Everybody is welcome and only a small admission fee of 10 and 15 cents will be charged.

Grain Storage Rises During Past Week

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 4.—(C.P.)—Stores of Canadian wheat rose during the past week, and shipments dropped off, according to figures issued by the Board of Grain Commissioners at Fort William. The statement for the week ending November 29, shows total storage of 208,077,586 bushels as compared with 204,121,350 bushels a week ago.

Western country elevator stocks rose more than 2,000,000 bushels during the week to 84,867,651 bushels. Ocean shipments for the week aggregated 3,910,956 bushels compared to 5,154,946 bushels the week before. Atlantic shipments from Canada were 2,147,610 and Pacific Canadian shipments 1,075,345.

Australian Imports Lower By $120,000,000

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 4 (C.P. Cable, via Reuters).—Concrete evidence of the effects of Australia's numerous recent changes in her tariff schedules was forthcoming to-day with the figures for external trade during the four months ending Nov. 30.

For this period imports to the Commonwealth totalled $135,000,000, compared with $285,000,000 last year. This was a decline in imports of $120,000,000.

On the other hand there was a difference of only $15,000,000 in her exports during the same period. They totalled $160,000,000, compared with $175,000,000 last year.

In England this winter 25,000 acre are being planted to trees, giving work to 3,700 men.

GENERAL DROP MARKS TRADING TORONTO CURB

LITTLE LIQUIDATION.

Practically Entire Group of Oils Sells Under Last Night's Close.

TORONTO, Dec. 4. (CP)—A general decline marked wearisome trading on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. The reactionary movement was a reflection of Wall Street, however there was no liquidation in evidence as the market softened and consequently losses did not extend to more than a fraction and were not seriously regarded.

Practically all the pivotal issues were easier. Nickel, Noranda, Brazilian, Bell Telephone, Ford of Canada, lost ½ point or less with Noranda down a full point at one time.

The oils slipped back without causing any excitement, practically the entire group selling under last night's close. Supertest at midday was off to 28 comparing with a recent high of around 32. Massey-Harris did not change from 13 7-8 and Dominion Stores, Canada Dredge, Goodyear Tire common, Standard Paving came out unchanged. Service Stations lost approximately ½ point.

Atlantic Sugar gave another jumpy exhibition this morning. Yesterday the stock sold at 16 during the morning, reacted to near 14 in the afternoon, then shot up to 15 or better before the close without a single transaction recorded between the two prices. This morning it opened strong at 16, regaining all the ground lost yesterday, she bid price for the preferred was raised again but still no stock came out.

MINING BRIEFS.

It is considered indicative of the lightness of general participation that the bringing in of the Acme Oklahoma well which ranks among the largest the field has produced, resulted in little more than a mild flurry in Acme Gas shares at the opening to-day. As one chap put it: "If they had brought in 78,000 barrels of dynamite and put it under the stock there might possibly have been more pronounced action." It is understood selling by those who purchased the stock for a speculation during the past few months has counteracted and buying that may have developed. The decline in copper in London to-day bears out the general sentiment prevailing abroad since the recent recovery in price. One London writer, about a week or so ago, stated: "Personally, I should not be the least surprised to see copper lower than ever in the next few weeks. This would only be similar to what has happened in both tin and oil on several occasions in the past year. By premature optimism insiders have encouraged weak bulls to take up positions and when even the enforced liquidation of these prices have dropped to new lows. Restriction or no restriction, neither copper nor any other commodity will become a genially good market again until there has been a natural revise of consumption right from the small houses in the back street and the retail shops to the middleman and the manufacturers."

Ashley-Garvey Drilling.

Two drills will probably be sent to the Ashley-Garvey find in Bannockburn, M. F. Fairlie, Mining Corporation manager, states. One of the drills is on its way now, but will wait at Old Lake until there is enough snow to make a winter road to the new gold field. Bert Ashley, who is in charge, has not sent out any news recently. It is believed efforts have been pretty well confined to building camps and cutting a road over which to bring the drills. A pool embracing approximately 4,800,000 shares of Ventures stock terminates January 2, 1931. Some nervousness that a part of this might be dumped on the market has been displayed by shareholders. The Northern Miner has canvassed the larger shareholders and reports that the pool is composed entirely of insiders, chiefly directors with Thayer Lindsley, president, holding approximately 4,000,000 shares. Assurance is given that none of the small group composing the pool will dispose of their shares when they are freed. One large shareholder thought that any adverse influence on the market, if it should develop, would be purely psychological.

Kirkland Lake gold production during November exceeded that of any other month, total being estimated around $57,000 compared with $54,000 in October, the previous record month. Driving west on the 4,275 level for the downward extension of ore cut on the 4,150 is giving promising results with the face at present in $17.50 ore. This is west of the dyke and at the greatest depth that gold ore has been found in Canada.

Gossip in the boardrooms continues to centre around the meeting of Noranda directors and the possible dividend action. New York reported a rumor there to the effect the meeting was to be held to-day but no confirmation could be secured at the local office. It is understood, however, the board will meet either to-day or to-morrow.

Toronto Man is Given Five Years

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4 (C.P.)—Pleading guilty to a charge of robbery while armed, before Magistrate Browne in City Police Court to-day, Harley Arnbrust, 21, married, was sentenced to five years in Portsmouth Penitentiary with ten strokes of the strap.

Arnburst admitted holding up a drug store but after the druggist put up a fight the hold-up man fled without getting any money. He also pleaded guilty to robbing a Chinese store of about $22. Arnburst, who has a wife and small baby, explained that hard times were the cause of his banditry.

MINING LIST RETAINS FIRM GENERAL TONE

Acme Gas, Although Active Feature on Board, Fails to Make Any Advance.

NORANDA DECLINES.

While Dome Remains Strong Spot in Gold Section.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4. (CP)—In spite of softness in Noranda and the oil section the mining list, as a whole, had a somewhat firmer appearance at mid-day to-day

Acme Gas was the active feature of the board, but failed to make any significant advance on the strength of completion of the Oklahoma well with estimated flow of 78,000 barrels of oil and 60,000,000 cubic feet of gas. Opening at 37, the price eased off for a time, standing up a couple from last night at 35½ when taken. Nordon lost another couple to 53 and Baltac and oil selections were off a point apiece.

Noranda, due to uncertainty regarding the dividend result of a directors' meeting to be held to-day or to-morrow, dropped three-quarters to $16.25. Nickel was slightly easier. Ventures recovered a few cents to 43, however, Sherritt a point, Waite 5 and White Lake 4.

Dome was still a strong spot in the gold section, adding another 15 to recent gains to sell at $8.65. Lake Shore was up a quarter, Teck Hughes and Hollinger 10 each and Wright Hargreaves a couple.

DOWN TREND CONTINUES ON NEW YORK LIST

Losses Again Range From One to Three Points in To-day's Session.

RAILS AT LOW LEVELS.

Market Fails to Make Bullish Response Following Steel Announcement.

(By Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — A listless downward drift of prices was extended without interruption into another session of the stock market to-day.

Losses again ranged from 1 to 3 points. A few of the rails penetrated new low levels, but the list as a whole held well above the bottom prices touched last month. Trading was extremely slow.

Shares losing 2 to 3 points included American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, Electric Auto Lite, North American, Sears Roebuck, Macy, Eastman, Delaware and Hudson, Underwood Elliott, Gillette, Western Union, Coca Cola and Atchison. While issues losing a point or more included U. S. Steel, Radio, National Biscuit, Woolworth, Electric Power and Light, Procter and Gamble, New Haven, New York Central, and Rock Island. Lehigh Valley was firm, reflecting declaration of the regular dividend. Richfield Oil had an upturn during the morning, but then lost its advance.

Failure of the market to make any bullish response to the announcement of higher prices for plates, shapes and bars by leading steel producers, in view of the highly constructive interpretation placed upon it by some observers, evidently encouraged a little bear selling, but the scant volume of trading made bears cautious.

$1,000,000 FIRE SWEEPS HARBOUR

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (C.P.)—Streams of flaming oil pouring from the Pratt Works of the Standard Oil Company illuminated the Brooklyn waterfront early to-day.

The fire, which threatened for a time to wipe out the entire plant, was stemmed by forces working by land and by water after a vigorous fight of three hours.

More than 200,000 gallons of gasoline, crude oil and turpentine and 18 tanks in which it was stored were destroyed. Piers, barges, a fireboat and a tanker were damaged as the fiery mass poured into the East River between the Williamsburg and 59th Street bridges.

Fire Department officials said the loss might reach a million dollars. Precautions were taken to protect the plant of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company and nearby tenements.

The fire started in a terrific explosion of a 10,000 gallon crude oil tank. Through underground pipes, the flames and burning fuel spread quickly to a 50,000 gallon petroleum tank, eight crude oil receptacles and eight turpentine tanks.

Four Workers Are Fatally Burned In Darien Fireworks Plant Explosion

DARIEN, Conn., Dec. 4.—(CP)—Four men were probably fatally burned today in an explosion and fire in a fireworks plant here.

The explosion occurred in a small factory owned by Mogo Delisco located on Watmore Street. The four men injured, who were take to Stamford hospital, were the only ones in the building at the time. The owner was outside the factory, but was uninjured.

A set piece which in some unaccountable manner became ignited while in the hands of one of the injured men caused the explosion. The employee dropped the burning piece, which landed in a box filled with powder. The flames then spread to other fireworks in the plant.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Roy D. Kerby, president and general manager of Durant Motors of Canada, Limited, in writing shareholders in his usual manner tells them the company is just entering upon the last month of a year which has been fraught with obstacles that have looked at times almost insurmountable. Durant Motors, however, although the company naturally will not show a statement that will make good reading in so far as profits are concerned, has nevertheless been successful in maintaining a particularly outstanding liquid position. Cash on hand to-day, as a matter of fact, is slightly greater than that of a year ago; our position in the industry in Canada this year also is better than a year ago, although our sales column is considerably lower; our factory productive inventory situation never was better and practically every epic of material that is in our plant has been paid for. Mr. Kerby tells stockholders their organization has endeavored to anticipate that December requirements of dealers and has a sufficient quantity of cars built up to cover and Durant will not be called upon to operate the plant at all during the inventory period which is this month.

In recent weeks, stockholders of many Canadian corporations have received letters from the management pointing out the help they can be in buying the products of the company and in boosting the same products to their friends. It is not unusual for such letter to continue order forms and quite frequently full descriptions of the articles for sale are included. In his current letter to Durant shareholders the president speaks of the product of the company as "the best we have ever built," and again appeals to stockholders, as a family, to cooperate with the management in the marketing of their own product. "Collectively, if we would all pull together, we would form in Canada the greatest co-operative selling unit ever in existence," states President Kerby. "We have 8,000 shareholders. And if each shareholder could influence the sale of one automobile next year, just think what it would mean to the company. I believe sincerely that each shareholder could do this; you could at least, I am sure, give us the name of one prospective purchaser."

Prices Drop Lower.

This morning's development on the Toronto Stock Exchange market included a generally lower range of prices. With the exception of the leaders, very few stocks participated in trading, and the volume continues just to be extremely light. The decline this morning did not involve more than a fractional loss, nor did it bring out liquidation. In reality the market is immobile, public attitude passive. Occasionally the market leans like a tree in the wind, a point perhaps two off the mein but the base retains firm around the index figure of 67 and invariably the market comes back to that upright.

The appeal to determine whether or not the common stockholders of the Steel Company of Canada are entitled to back dividends equal to those paid on the preferred shares was argued before the Privy Council in London yesterday and judgment reserved. In a few days now the matter will be settled for all time. The action hinges around the wording of the charter and those seeking cumulative dividends have two decisions in their favor from the Canadian courts. The sum involved amounts to $4,986,400, or the equivalent of $10.84 a share on the ordinary stock outstanding. Wallace R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, is another leading Canadian executive holding the opinion that the Dominion has passed through the depression with flying colors. Mr. Campbell, in a letter addressed to Ford dealers, states: "Canada has come through this period in far better condition than any other leading nation, not excluding the United States."

Car of Dynamite Kills 36 People

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 4. — (C.P.).—An innocent looking box car, backed onto a siding at Porto Novo da Cunha, State of Minas Geraes, when the revolution began, packed in its interior death for 36 residents of this city and destruction of three of its buildings.

Yesterday, for some undetermined reason, the dynamite with which the car was loaded exploded, killing 36 persons and destroying three nearby buildings. Among those killed were Major Manuel Lerac, revolutionist commander of this sector during the recent trouble, and his wife and three children.

PLAY PRESENTED IN HAVELOCK HALL

King's Own Class of St. James' Church Producers of Comedy Drama.

Havelock was all agog last night—and no wonder, for what could be more stirring than the fact that "Mammy's Lil' Wild Rose" has come to town.

The King's Own Class of St. James' United Church, Peterborough, were the producers of the play, a comedy-drama in three acts, which Earl Eakins ably directed. The play was of distinctly Southern atmosphere and offorded the expertly drilled cast a chance to display their gift of making people both laugh and cry, providing an evening of genuine fun to the audience.

The scene is laid in the Mountains of Virginia and the entire action of the play takes place in the cabin dooryard of Old Joe and Mammy Celie. Very realistic were the little log cabin with its climbing roses, the old-time picket fence and trellis, the benches, the clothes line and clothes basket, with the mountains looming in the distance, all lending a fitting and artistic background to the creative personnel.

A splendid between-act program was given by Peterborough talent, featuring little Betty Irwine in her two songs, "If I Had a Girl Like You," and "Dancing With Tears in My Eyes." Betty responded with encores to the great appreciation of the large audience, with Miss Isabel Middleton accompanying.

Mrs. G. H. Cutmore also delighted with her two selections, "The Little Brown Owl" and a specially appropriate number, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."

At the conclusion of the program, the cast and their friends were entertained at a sumptuous banquet by the Havelock L.O.B.A., under whose auspices the play was given.

Woman Swallows Poison in Mistake

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 4 (C.P.)—The condition of Mrs. Frankford Rogers, prominent young society matron of Ottawa, who swallowed two bichloride tablets in mistake for aspirin, continued critical today. The poison was accidentally taken when she awoke last Monday night with a headache and it is considered that only the hurried summoning of doctors when Mrs. Rogers realized her error through the rank taste of the bichloride, prevented immediate death.

Senator and Mrs. A. C. Hardy, parents of Mrs. Rogers, now on the high seas en route home from Europe, have been advised of their daughters' illness.

He was presented with a ring as a jewel of merit, and in appreciation of his 46 years' service in the Order. A bouquet was sent to Mrs. Benton.

The regrets of the members were expressed at not having with them their worthy financial secretary, Bro. Shiner, on account of illness.

SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT NOTED AT BANK OF MONTREAL MEETING

Sir Charles Gordon, President, Stresses Inherent Vigor and Soundness of General Economic Structure in Canada—Sees Period Approaching When Comparison With Previous Year Will Be More Favorable—Reaction in General Business Due Principally to Depressed Grain and Other Commodity Prices.

W. A. Bog and Jackson Dodds, the General Managers, Draw Attention to Maintenance by Bank of Traditionally Strong Liquid Position — Profits Compare Favorably in Difficult Banking Year—Canada Fortunate in Her Banking System—Ample Money Awaiting Investment.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was marked by a distinct feeling of confidence in the general outlook in Canada.

Sir Charles Gordon, President, in summing up his views of the situation expressed the opinion that when the turn in conditions come, Canada will be found leading the procession in the return to prosperity.

W. A. Bog and Jackson Dodds, the General Managers, in their report pointed out that Canada is singularly fortunate in her banking System. The traditional strong liquid position of the Bank has been maintained and this had been accomplished without curtailing the credit requirements of customers.

Sir Charles in reviewing the principal developments of the year, said in part:

"I am sure it will ve bery gratifying to the shareholders to learn that we have not suffered any losses from depreciation in the securities which the Bank hods als part of its assets. From this you will understand that great care has been exercised in our investments.

"The year under review has been a most difficult one nbt only for banks but for practically all classes of business, and this has been reflected in our profits, but nevertheless ample provision has been made for all losses and prospective losses.

"Since our last meeting we have been witnessing a decline in commodity prices, but this has not been due to restriction of credit. There is an abundance of money available for sound commercial purposes and credit is not stinted. Prices of many staples of primary production are now extremely low, to which condition the prevalent dullness of trade is principally due. Such important commodities as wheat, sugar, rubber, raw cotton, wool, tin and copper are all now at lower price levels than in 1913. Examination of the figures of the foreign trade of Canada shows how large a part the item of wheat plays. No other single commodity approaches this cereal in volume and value; as a consequence, when crop failure occurs or prices fall below the line of profitable production, the whole business of the country is adversely affected. That has happened. The wheat crop of 1929 was shortin quantity; the crop of 1930 faced low prices and a glutted market; and the foreign trade returns disclose the results of these unfavorable factors. In the twelve months ending September 30th, total exports of Canadian produce had a value of $1,303,228,000 in 1929, and of $982,098,000 in 1930, being a decrease of $321,130,000 of which decrease $167,185,000, or more than 50 per cent, was in the item of wheat and wheat flour alone. To short crops and congested markets can be traced much of the reaction in general business, the decline in railway traffic, the diminished earnings of carriers by land and water, unemployment of labor, and, above all, diminished purchasing power of the agricultural class.

"Approximately one-half the population of Canada derive support directly from the farm, and while this year their labor has been rewarded with an aggregate average quantity return, low prices have reduced profit close to the vanishing point. Of wheat, the crop was $90,000,000 bushels larger than in 1929, but what was gained in quantity was lost in value, an increase of about 30% in production being offset by a 50% decline in price.

"It is the history of all new countries that they depend at first upon the utilization of their most available resources, and later turn to manufacturing and similar pursuits. Canada at the present time is in an intermediate stage. We have been making use of resources most readily converted into money, but are now entering the second stage, that of manufacturing. In 1915 the gross value of Canada's agricultural products was $1,118,694,000, and of her manufactured products, $1,381,547,000. In 1928 the figures were: gross value of agricultural products, $1,730,304,000, and of manufactures, $3,769,850,000. These figures illustrate the trend of our economic development, and have an important bearing upon our future outlook.

Reason for Confidence.

In summing up his conclusions Sir Charles stated that:

"In this virile country of Canada with its abounding resources there can be no permanent depression.

"My own view is that when the turn comes Canada will be found leading the procession in the return to prosperity. That view, I think you will agree, finds full justification from the manner in which this country has been weathering the storm and from the vigorous and practical remedial measures which we as a people have applied."

General Managers' Address.

The address of W. A. Bog and Jackson Dodds, General Managers, dealt more particularly with the report of the Bank for the past fiscal year. The report said in part: As you know, the Banks of the world at large are passing through one of the most difficult periods in history. Canada is singularly fortunate in her banking system. It has been able to withstand, without apparent strain, the heavy drop in the price of commodities and in the market valde of securities which has taken place in this country as it has elsewhere. A reduction in Bank figures is a natural sequence of this decrease in values.

"In times like the present it is inevitable that losses suffered through the heavy fall in prices must affect Banks at least indirectly. It is a satisfaction to be able to assure you that we have made ample provision for all losses and doubtful loans.

"You will note that the traditionally strong liquid position of your Bank has been maintained. This was accomplished without curtailing the credit requirements of our customers. Profits, while reflecting the quiet state, during the past year, of the general business of the countryand lower money rates in foreign markets, have been more than sufficient to maintain the usual distributions to shareholders.

"Our Total Assets now aggregate $826,900,000 against $965,300,000 a year ago, a decrease of $138,400,000, which may be considered a reasonable contraction in view of the conditions which have prevailed. Of this total $438,100,000 consists of quick assets, namely ,cash, call loans, bank balances and securities of a readily realizable nature.

"Cash Reserves to Liabilities to the Public are 13.33 per cent.

"Capital, Rest and Undivided Profits amount to $74,947,000, as compared with $74,632,000. Rest and Undivided Profits are now $2,947,000 in excess of our capital.

"Deposits aggregate $697,300,000, a decrease of $83,300,000. Demand deposits have decreased $72,300,000. Deposits after Notice amount to $409,600,000 as compared with $420,400,000. During recent months deposits in our Savings Department have increased, an indication that with the passing of abnormal conditions in the stock markets, the inherent saving tendency of the people is again in evidence.

"A notable increase during the year in the number of small accounts is especially gratifying, as we have consistently emphasized the fact that the Bank of Montreal welcomes small accounts. It is our experience that the amount represented by many small accounts is a more stable quantity than a similar total represented by a few large balances.

Situation in Canada.

"In Canada the collapse of stock speculation, which occurred just prior to our last Annual Meeting, has been coupled with a decline in commodity prices sufficiently widespread to affect nearly every form of business. Canada is fortunate in that its income is derived from a variety of important trades and occupations, most of which are based upon raw materials exiting in abundance, within our own borders.

"Unemployment and over-production are both unpleasant features in the present situation, and to alleviate these evils Canada should use every legitimate means to increase and extend her trade. We have great hopes for the growth of our trade with the Orient, a market of increasing importance, and for the continued development of Vancouver as a seaport. Our exports to the West Indies show a considerable increase during the last few years; our Atlantic seaports greatly facilitate our trade with this desirable market.

"The return of prosperity will probably be slow, but there are grounds for believing that the bottom of the depression is near at hand. There is the possibility of a seasonal slowing down during the early winter months."

NOT ALLOWED TO LAND.

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 4.—(C.P.)—Two hundred striking fishermen were lined up here to-day awaiting the arrival of the Lunenburg schooner Ronald George, Captain Romkay, due in from the banks with a load of fish consigned to the North Sydney dealers who are standing firm in the resolve to deny the demands of the local men for an increased price for their product.

LONDON PARLEY AIDED DOMINIONS SCULLIN STATES

FAREWELL ADDRESS.

Claims Australia Willing to Examine All Methods to Aid Trade With Britain.

LONDON Dec. 4 (C.P.)—The recent Imperial Conference from the Dominions' point of view, was marked as a great advance in the declaration that existing Imperial tariff preferences would be maintained by Great Britain for at least three years, declared Prime Minister James Henry Scullin of Australia, in a farewell message before leaving on the long journey back to Australia yesterday. He was interviewed, over part of the continent.

The conference had given a very definite impetus to the ideal of closer economic co-operation between the nations of the British Commonwealth, Premier Scullin said. A solid foundation had been laid. He was confident that considerable advances would be made when the economic section re-assembled at Ottawa next year.

Australia Ready to do Part

Premier Scullin affirmed that Australia was willing as part of her definite policy of Imperial economic co-operation to examine every method of assistance to British trade with Australia. Apart altogether from any general Empire decisions that might be reached, he added, the industrialists of Great Britain and Australia should come together and consider plans for mutual increase in trade.

In a further statement dealing with Australia's financial position, Premier Scullin said the depression was only temporary. We can look forward with confidence to a bright and prosperous future," he concluded.

Hon. Parker Moloney, Australian Minister of Markets, left for Canada last night. He will discuss with the Canadian Government various matters arising from the Canadian-Australian trade treaty.

Rival Reeves in "O Promise Me" Duet

Harry Parker and C. S. Tanner are Aspirants for the 1931 Wardenship—Both Experienced in County Affairs.

Aspirants for the wardenship of Peterborough county next year are expected to be Reeve C. S. Tanner of Lakefield and Reeve Harry Parker of Harvey township.

At the concluding session of the county council last week it transpired that both these reeves are not averse to assuming the responsibility and honor of directing the county administration in 1931. In fact it is reported that Mr. Parker and Mr. Tanner were both humming the theme song of a popular and universal pledge, "O Promise Me", and it is said that they not only know the music or the tune of it, but also the words. So it may be announced that they are candidates for the wardenship, with no third man as yet in the field. To qualify for the contest within the council, they must of course be returned by their municipalities, and that is taken for granted.

Henry Parker represents the township which for years sent the late Robert Shaw to the county council. Mr. Shaw's last year as reeve of Harvey was 1922. Mr. Parker succeeded him in 1923, but the next year found Archie Wilson in the reeve's chair. Mr. Parker came back in 1925, and has been a member of the County Council continously since then. His service thus totals seven years.

Charles S. Tanner was elected reeve of Lakefield in 1927, succeeding John C. Strickland. He has represented the northern village in the county council since then, and if Lakefield's streets are not paved as part of the county's program, as in Campbellford, Hastings, Millbrook and other municipalities in Northumberland and Durham, it was not his fault.

Harvey was last accorded the wardenship in 1914, during "Bob" Shaw's incumbency. And as for Lakefield's recognition, it is recalled that Mr. Strickland was warden in 1922.

These are the main facts pertaining to the municipal careers of the candidates for next year's wardenship. They are both amply experienced in the affairs of the county and in the council's procedure. They have always been popular with their colleagues, and no doubt their present rivalry will not in the least affect their mutual goodwill.

PRUDENTIAL LIFE WILL HOLD BANQUET

Peterborough District Wins Two Weeks' Campaign.

The district staff of the Prudential Insurance Company will dine at the Empress Hotel Friday night, and it won't cost them a nickel. Fifteen managers of other districts who failed to win the recent two week's campaign for ordinary life insurance will pay for this banquet which comes as a reward for the successful effort of the Peterborough district.

This reunion of John I. Allen's Prudential family will bring together a company of about eighty, including the wives of the company's representatives. The district staffs will be present from Midland, Barrie, Orillia, Lindsay, Oshawa, Whitby, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Campbellford and Peterborough. The company's medical and banking staffs with their wives have also been invited, and also the clerks of the Peterborough, Oshawa, Orillia and Cobourg offices. Jack Marshall's orchestra has been engaged for the evening which will be concluded with bridge and dancing.

In this campaign, which lasted two weeks, with Peterborough district emerging with the production honors, it was agreed that the losing manager would pay for a banquet for the winning district, and as a result Peterborough will celebrate Friday night.

COMMUNITY TO STAGE CONCERT

Campbellford Relief Fund Will Benefit By Efforts of Popular Local Talent.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9TH.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — What promises to be one of the most popular concerts this year will be staged in the auditorium of the Campbellford High School on the evening of Tuesday, December 9, when all the most popular talent of the community will combine to present a program in aid of the relief work of the Campbellford Branch, No. 103, Canadian Legion.

This function, which can be rightly termed a community concert, will be under the direction of Mrs. R. T. Cowell, who for some time has been ably helping the local veterans. It will be featured by the presentation from the Sunshine Knitting Club to the Legion of a quilt which the girls have made for the purpose of raising money for local veteran relief work.

The program will comprise the best of the local talent, among the numbers being vocal selections by Mrs. F. DeCarrol, Miss Helen McDonald, Mrs. C. J. Windrim, Miss E. Meiklejohn, G. Lucy, W. Henson, H. Leonard, E. H. Lewis, the Ionic Quartette, piano selections by Mrs. E. H. Lewis, A.T.C.M. Spec. Dip., W. A. Newcourt, L.C.C.M., A.L.C.M., readings by Mrs. J. Black, and accompaniments by A. Hadeil and E. C. Dolman.

One portion of the program will be given over to boys' talent, which will include vocal and instrumental numbers. Dr. O. C. Watson will be the chairman for the evening.

Buckwheat Days are Here Again

Eyes brighten at these delicious Pancakes so quickly made

"I'se in Town, Honey"

There's something in the crisp air of frosty mornings that suggests the inimitable tang of buckwheat cakes for breakfast. With Aunt Jemima prepared Buckwheat Flour, they are made in an instant. Simply stir with milk or water and then cook on a moderate fire.

No waste, because you mix only what you need and the buckwheats will be ready while the coffee is boiling. Fit for a king, yet cost only a penny a plate.

Aunt Jemima's recipe was famous throughout the plantations of the Old South. Her own ingredients, ready mixed, come to you to-day just as she used them, and you get the same golden-brown, delicious pancakes.

Serve whichever you prefer . . . buckwheats or southern pancakes. Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour comes in the red package . . . Aunt Jemima prepared Buckwheat Flour in the yellow package. Keep both on hand and be ready for all demands.

TWEED W.A. PLANS BALES FOR DISTRICT

TWEED, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—At the regular meeting of the Women's Auxiliary held at the home of Mrs. George Thompson, it was decided to make ready a couple of bales for the northern part of the Deanery and the ladies to meet to do the packing.

The Rev. W. L. Wright outlined and discussed the first chapter of 'Japan' the study book in an interesting manner. Reports of the Diocesan W.A. Board were also read.

MARMORA TO FORM GIRL GUIDE TROOP

MARMORA, Dec. 4. Examiner Correspondence).—On Wednesday afternoon at the Public Library a well attended meeting of ladies was held in the interests of a Girl Guide Troop for the village. The meeting was addressed by Mrs. W. N. Ponton of Belleville, who is the Divisional Commissioner. The local committee was formed with the following officers:

President—Mrs. F. S. Pearce.

Hon. Secretary — Mrs. Hamilton Crawford.

The company will be known as the 1st Marmora.

Mrs. W. E. Gould was appointed Captain with Miss Evelyn Rice as Lieut. The strength of the proposed troop is estimated to reach 30.

Gordon Action Is Dismissed By Court

LINDSAY, Dec. 4 (Special to Examiner).—Ex-Constable David Gordon, of Fenelon Falls, has failed in his second suit against the village for the sum of $100, payment for his duties as assessor. His Honor Judge Swayze in a somewhat lengthy judgment dismissed the action without costs. His Honor held that no special contract existed between Gordon and the municipal council.

A few days ago Judge Swayze dismissed another action which the ex-constable had entered against the council for wrongful dismissal. His Honor in his judgment held that a municipality had a right to dismiss one of its servants. The action of the council in dismissing the constable at this time of year was deplored by the judge.

GENEROUS GRANTS TO AGENCIES IN AID OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN IS PLANNED BY HON. W. G. MARTIN

NEW INSTITUTIONS.

COBOURG, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—Generous grants to agencies carrying on special work for crippled children, thorough reform of the industrial schools of Ontario both for boys and girls, and the introduction of a new system of voluntary sentences for juveniles, are promised in an address before the Children's Aid Society here yesterday by Rev. the Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare.

Under the plan of voluntary sentences as laid down by the new Minister of the newly-created portfolio, boys or girls completing terms imposed for corrective purposes, will be told that they are free; but that if they care to remain and learn thoroughly any one of a score of trades, they may do so.

In addition, the Public Welfare Department will organize a thorough system of follow-up work, to the lack of which Hon. Mr. Martin attributes the breakdown of the Province's industrial school system. This safeguard will provide that no youth in future who passes through an industrial school will be freed from the highest type of social supervision until he or she is definitely established in life and good citizenship.

New Institutions

Hon. Mr. Martin intimated also that construction of perhaps two additional institutions similar in purpose and methods to the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville may come in due course.

"I will never be content as Minister of Public Welfare," Mr. Martin added, "until we have a school in this province similar to the Heritage Craft School in London, England, where children irremediably crippled for life shall be cared for and trained, first for happiness, and secondly for useful citizenship."

Mr. Martin lauded the splendid work being accomplished at the Boys' Training School in Bowmanville by Dr. Ernest Reaman, and gave high praise to the conduct of the Children's Aid Society, mentioning particularly the activities of Rev. J. T. Daley, D.D., of Port Hope, the superintendent.

Rev. Mr. Daley detailed serious conditions of child neglect in the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, and dealt with the growing problem of illegitimacy.

"Conditions are not cleared up despite the prosperity and goodwill of this district," Dr. Daley declared. He also asserted that the staff of the institution for special work is only half the size recently recommended by the Rose report to the Ontario Government.

306 Complaints

"The past year saw 306 complaints involving neglected or delinquent children investigated," Dr. Daley declared. Only 18 of the 306 were made wards of the society. There were 136 court attendance cases, and the superintendent held 1,100 interviews and travelled about 10,000 miles in his work.

The treasurer's report of the Society showed receipts of $6,811.09 and expenditures of $6,680.43. The meeting expressed its sympathy in the death on Tuesday of Dr. E. A. Totten of Port Hope, who was treasurer of the Society for eight years and who for the past twelve years has given free dental service to the children in the shelter. All members of the executive, with the exception of Harold Fulford, the president, who is ill, will attend the funeral of Dr. Totten, which is being held this afternoon.

No Hope Of Majors Rescinding Action

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 4—(AP)—John A. LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY BANQUET HELD IN MADOC UNITED CHURCH

GOOD PROGRAM.

MADOC, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—Over one hundred people attended the Laymen's Missionary banquet in Trinity United Church on Thursday evening, November 27th, and all enjoyed the good things provided both by the ladies of the church, and the speakers who had come to give addresses. Rev. G. W. Rivers, who had been active in arranging for the banquet, spoke words of welcome and introduced as chairman of the evening's programme, Rev. W. J. H. Smyth, of Wellington, chairman of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee for the Belleville Presbytery.

The guest speakers were Rev. S. A. Martin, of Churchill, and Rev. D. J. Davidson, B.A., of India, both of whom, by their earnest convincing addresses on the work in their respective fields, held the rapt attention of their audience throughout the evening.

Rev. George Williams, B.A., and Mr. H. W. Ackerman, organizer and chairman, respectively, of committee for the Bay of Quinte Conference, gave short pointed addresses.

Mr. William Scrutton entertained with violin selections which were much appreciated. Besides the large number present from the local congregation, representatives were present from Marmora, Springbrook, West Huntingdon, Ivanhoe, White Lake, Tweed, Flinton, Eldorado and Queensboro.

BERNARD HARVEY

that sometimes occur. If this can be determined and the mechanical defects, which make up 50 percent of the whole can be eliminated, then the cheese industry is on the upgrade.

Mr. McLagan, an exporter of Montreal, was emphatic that central Ontario cheese, especially from the Belleville district, demanded a price from two to three cents a pound more than English, Scotch or New Zealand cheese in the British market.

Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dairy Commissioner at Ottawa, emphasized the value of cool curing for this year over 11,000 cheese in Western Ontario, was thrown out for rancid flavor. He believed there was an an over production of cheese at the present time with not enough attention paid to the quality of cheese, but I do not think that New Zealand will ever equal the quality turned out by Canada" said Dr. Ruddick.

The afternoon session of yesterday was given over to a discussion of the address by J. L. Irwin, dairy produce grader for this district. Mr Irwin, who resides in Campbellford, has given intensive study to the cheese industry and especially to the Herd and Patron competition inaugurated by the Cheesemakers' Association this year to induce the patrons of factories to supply a better raw material. There were 400 patrons who took part in the competition, which was a small percentage, but as the competition is only in the embryonic stage, interest in it in so far as its practicability is concerned has still to be proven. Peterborough had five factories represented with eleven patrons and the number of acres 1,967. Stirling had nine factories for 25 patrons and 2,500 acres, while Campbellford had 25 factories, 109 patrons and 14,531 acres. Mr. Irwin stated at the close of his address: "Although the competition is far from complete, it has no doubt opened up many avenues of thought, and we hope it will prove the nucleus for further work along the lines of development, that will be the means of returning to the factory patrons greater returns on their investment and to the cheesemakers a better position in the industry."

George B. Rothwell, chief animal husbandman of the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, was another speaker and stated that neither the Liberal nor Conservative Government were to blame for the present depression. "It is a world-wide condition, and overproduction is the main cause made possible by the number of new countries stepping into the world's markets. We need a wider market and a lowering cost of production. Canada per capita is the largest consumer of bacon and eggs in the world but Canadians do not appreciate good cheese. Just as there are misfits in every walk of life, there are misfits on the farm," said the speaker, and pointed out several ways in which the cost of farming might be lowered.

year totalled 1137 as compared with 1031 in 1929, an increase of 106. Taking the entries in classes they were:

Horses	266	313
Cattle	416	392
Sheep	246	278
Swine	103	154

Poultry entries showed a decrease of 140, there being 1101 in 1929 and 961 this year.

The Junior Farmer division of the exhibition is becoming a bigger factor each year. All records for junior farmers were broken this year with 185 entries as against 161 last year.

A vote of thanks was expressed for the co-operation of G. S. Matthews and .D A. MacKinnon, both of the Canadian Packing Company, who gave the junior farmers' show.

The directors also expressed their sincere thanks to President Denne for the valuable and untiring services he had given the exhibition for yet another year. Full approval and thanks were also tendered William Knox for his share in the fair's success.

CHURCH LADIES HOLD BAZAAR

Tidy Sum Realized From Successful Event Held in Roseneath.

HALL DECORATED.

QUEENSBORO, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—The ladies of the United Church held a very sucessful and well attended bazaar in the Orange Hall on Friday afternoon. Misses Jennie Thompson and Marion Love had charge of the decorations which consisted of red, white and blue streamers of bunting and also of colored tissue paper which gave a very homey and attractive appearance to the spacious bright room. Mrs. George Glover and Mrs. Charles Thompson had charge of the sale of fancy work which was prettily arranged on false doors that were erected across the front and forward part of the walls. The candy table was in charge of Mrs. William Lynn. Supper was served from small tables which were systematically arranged in the centre of the hall. Mrs. Miles Dyer had charge of the tea and Mrs. Bruce Leslie, Mrs. Fred Rollins and Mrs. John O'Rorke served. The fish pond was in charge of Mrs. Vernon Spencer and Mrs. Walter Tokley. This was much enjoyed by the younger element who indulged freely in the purchase of articles at five and ten cents.

The articles sold consisted of centre pieces, home made socks and mitts, aprons, cushions, fancy runners, flowers, bead work, necklaces, pillow covers and little articles of usefulness all of which gave evidence of dainty taste and much care in the making. The amount realized from the various sales made af ine addition to the treasury of the society.

Schools Are Guarding Against Diphtheria

WOOLER, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—Every precaution is being taken at the local schools to guard against diptheria, of which Lorne Whitney, a young lad, is at present a victim. Many of the pupils have been inoculated to prevent the spread of the dread disease, which proved fatal to Jean Asselstine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Asselstine, who resides north-east of the village.

USINESS LOSSES WILL BE STUDIED

STUDY OF FAILURES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 4.—Business and individual failures in Greater Boston will be studied intensively during the next six months by the United States Department of Commerce, the Institute of Human Relations of Yale University and the Yale Law School, following the report to those named in the research conducted by Yale and the Department of Commerce in New Jersey last year, when 600 firms were investigated.

Chief benefits expected from the study, said Professor William O. Douglas, of the Yale Law School, a reduction in the colossal waste in national production and distribution, and the securing of definite relief legislation.

The Boston survey, begun recently, will be directed by Dr. W. C. Plummer, of the Department of Commerce and by Professor Douglas. The field staff representing Yale includes Albert W. Ginsberg and Samuel M. Jordon.

A study of business failures, developed at the Yale Law School in co-operation with the Department of Commerce and taken over last year by the Yale Institute of Human Relations, began two years ago in Philadelphia. Groups and Associations at Boston requested that the study be extended to that city. This was done with the co-operation of Charles C. Cabot, Arthur Black and I. Loring Young, civic leaders of Boston.

It was announced that for general purposes of the investigation, intensive studies of failures would be made by means of data gathered by interviews with bankrupts, analysis of their books and records, and other information obtained from creditors, trade and credit associations, and business bureaux. All types of current bankruptcies will be analysed, including retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers, contractors, wage-earners and professional men.

In the case of business organizations, special emphasis will be placed on types of books kept, merchandising methods, credit losses, capitalization, overhead, turnover and advertising. Also, previous business difficulties of every bankrupt will be examined, providing the investigators with a complete picture of the financial conditions of the bankrupt and the steps leading to his failure.

SCOUT OFFICERS' ANNUAL MEETING

Favorable Reports Given By Various Troop Leaders.

OFFICIALS ELECTED.

The Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association held their annual business meeting last evening in the Council Chamber of the City Buildings and was presided over by J. E. Sullivan, the President. Reports, indicative of progress, were presented by the various leaders and adopted. New officers were elected for the ensuing year.

District Commissioner J. T. Hornsby opened the meeting with a few remarks on the Scout movement. The success of the rally of May 24 was outlined; about 700 boys were present from various parts of the district; the jamboree resulted in frequent meetings and camps for the boys. In September a troop went down to Oshawa and gained some prizes. But what was especially needed to run the movement were Scout Masters.

The President asked F. L. Roy to show the moving pictures of the May 24 rally. Mr. Roy stated that the film was 1000 feet in length and that there was also 200 feet of the Millbrook Cadet drill. Every one enjoyed the pictures, recalling as they did "old times."

J. E. Sullivan took over the chair and made a few remarks as to the place of the Scout movement in the city. A. L. Inch, the Secretary-Treasurer, was called upon to make his report. At the end of October, 1929, there was a balance of $20.38; at the end of November, 1930, $30.52. At present there are 53 Wolf Cubs, 123 Boy Scouts, 2 Cub Masters, 1 Assistant Cub Master, 5 Scout Masters and 6 Assistants, 1 Commissioner, and 1 Assistant, making a total of 192.

Scout Masters Give Reports.

The Scout Masters were then called upon to make their reports. G. Johnson, No. 1 Troop, spoke of the training camp, and urged the repairing of Christmas toys for distribution to the poor. G. E. Groombridge, 2nd Troop, asked for monthly meetings and an examiner for badges, and said that a Red Cross first aid class had been started. R. Ross, 3rd Troop reported a favorable year, mentioning the summer camp and the second annual Parents' Banquet. The 4th Troop leader was absent from the meeting. H. G. E. Choate, No. 5 Troop (All Saints' Church), noted the growth of his troop from a membership of 8 to that of 25 or 30. However, the leader stated that he had not had enough time to take them out as much as he should liked to have done, and that the boys should have had more woodcraft training, but that they had had a pleasant time at their camp at McCracken's Landing. E. Wolff of the 6 h Troop said that he had 31 Scouts, all active, of which 18 had been in camp at Young's Point.

E. Peters gave an outline of the work of his Cub Pack. He urged the provision of examiners and instructors, of a Rover Crew, and of an Assistant Commissioner for the Rovers and one for the Cubs.

Election of Officers.

Patrons—Judge E. C. S. Huycke, Bishop O'Connor, E. A. Peck, M.P., J. F. Strickland, M. P. P., and Mayor Denne.

President, J. E. Sullivan; 1st Vice-President, H. C. Southeran; 2pd Vice-President, F. Taylor; Secretary-Treasurer, A. L. Inch; District Commissioner, J. T. Hornsby; Assistant Commissioner, J. A. McKone; Executive, I. P. McNabb, J. J. Turner, Rev. D. Paterson, J. O. Bowen, F. L. Roy, C. Coleman, W. R. Morris, T. Barrie, A. Hope, J. I. Allen, A. Elliott, R. Abbott, C. Corbett, C. Rogers, W. J. MacPherson, F. H. Dawson.

Mr. Sullivan summed up by mentioning three marks of a true Scout—unselfishness, appreciation of what was done for them, and preparedness to do a kind act. J. T. Hornsby asked for added attention for the repair and distribution of toys at this time of year. A. Hope spoke further of the toys, and was afterwards asked for support by Mr. McKone.

It was moved by J. T. Hornsby and seconded by G. E. Groombridge that the secretary be asked to write to the charitable organizations of the city to offer the services of the Scouts. Mr. Peters again asked for the formation of Rover Scoots of the ages of 17 and over, and attention was promised to this matter.

Gains Seventeen Pounds

Anyone seeing Mary would find it hard to believe that this smiling young woman was a consumptive, indeed, for Mary this word "was" is the best part of the whole story, for she fully believes that she is just about "cured" and ready to go back to work. "Why, in just three months they put nearly seventeen pounds weight on me," says she, with a hint of Irish brogue, "and me that weak when I came in that I had to be carried on a stretcher."

Mary has been in the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives for several months, but such is the skill of the doctors, such the result of good food, rest and careful nursing, that she again meets the world with a smile, and counts the days to the time when she will be able to work once more and help to her mother's support.

A great work this, that cares for many hundreds of the consumptive poor who otherwise would have to accept the hardships and uncertainties of being tended at home. Will you please help such as Mary to get well? Your subscription will be gratefully acknowledged if sent to Mr. A. E. Ames, 223 College Street, Toronto.

Workless Seek Shelter In Brick Yards

While bitter winds blew and the temperature sank to almost zero, 42 homeless jobless and penniless wanderers slept close to the warmth of the brick kilns in the Don Valley yards, near Toronto. Some of the men have built little brick shelters close to the kilns. Others crawl right inside the kilns where the hot bricks are cooling off. The yards have been used as a shelter by homeless men for six or eight weeks.

Omemee

Mr. E. Mitchell and daughter, Emily, of Lindsay, were in town on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Cornell, Niagara Falls, N.Y., spent the week end with the former's parents, Mr and Mrs. Hiram Cornell.

Mrs. A. Johnston of Peterborough was in town last week.

Mrs. Robert Wilson has gone to Toronto for an extended visit.

Miss McPhee of Barrie is visiting at the home of her brother, Dr. McPhee.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Stephenson are visiting friends in Toronto.

Reeve Southworth was in town on Monday attending the council meeting. Mr. Southworth has been appointed to the Cannington council for the ensuing year.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kennedy and children, Mrs. Kennedy, Sr., of Lakefield visited Mr. and Mrs. R. Carey on Sunday.

Relatives who attended the funeral of the late Mrs. William Philp included: Mr. Henry Laidley, Mrs. Stephenson, Omemee; John Robert and Lulu Bates, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bryson and Harry Philp, Toronto; the Rev. J. B. Hicks and wife, Ogdensburg, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dunn, Osaca; Mr. and Mrs Robert Philp, Burketon; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Philp, Nestleton; Mr. and Mrs. Henders, Port Perry, and Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson, Mt. Horeb.

Sanderson May Be Premier's Successor

HAVELOCK, December 4 — Press despatches from Brockville state that there is a strong feeling there that James A. Sanderson, of Oxford Station, will be the possible successor of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, representing Grenville County in the Provincial Legislature.

Mr. Sanderson, who by the way is a brother of Reeve Sanderson, of Havelock, has been Reeve of the Township of Oxford-on-Rideau for many years, and is one of the most active Conservatives in Grenville County. He is the chairman of the Good Roads Committee of the County Council, and is exceedingly well known throughout the surrounding district as one of the most prominent cheese buyers.

NAILS, CIGARETTES MATCH

Paris' latest fad is to have cigarettes colored to match feminine fingernails. Pale lilac nails are accompanied by "cigs," to match, with deeper mauve monogram. Amber cigarettes have "amber" nails to harmonize, perfumed with amber. Rose-colored nails must be "used" with rose-colored cigarettes, perfumed with roses, and newest of all are apple green nails with apple green "smokes," and a gilt monogram.

EAT MORE WHEAT

Canadians Can Help To Solve Canada's Wheat Problem.

Advertising columns of Canadian newspapers are to-day carrying a practical suggestion made by a Canadian manufacturing concern to alleviate the present problem of surplus Canadian wheat. It is a suggestion which is capable of wider application.

The manufacturer suggests how millions more bushels of exclusively Canadian wheat could be consumed within the Canadian market itself by concerted public effort—simply by eating more of their biscuit product each morning for breakfast. Several million more bushels of Canadian wheat will be marketed annually in this way.

It is pointed out to us by this advertiser — the Canadian Shredded Wheat Company, Ltd. that this appeal, while made primarily for commercial motives, might be the first move in a national effort to help a national problem.

"We can honestly say that our advertisements had an altruistic as well as a commerical motive" he said. "Canada at the moment is finding her exterior wheat markets to be hopelessly crammed. Why should Canadians not endeavour to help farmers by concerted public effort and gating more Canadian wheat!"

"The theory is economically sound. Consumption of more Canadian wheat by Canadians is one of the logical palliatives for Canadian wheat troubles."

"Dr. James Miller, Professor of Pathology at Queen's University, developed the same theory in a newspaper article which appeared the other day."

"Discussing the present world overproduction of wheat he said: "It seems to me that there is a palliative if not a cure—namely, the consumption of more wheat by the world generally and, as a beginning, by the ten million inhabitants of Canada." "Our advertisements is an attempt to persuade a practical application of this principle."

"There is another angle to the argument. Wheat is one of the cheapest yet most nutritious foods. As Dr. Miller points out in another part of his article, a meal consisting of whole wheat with fruit and milk is adequate for human needs."

"Our product is made of 100% Canadian wheat. If the public can be persuaded to eat Canadian wheat in that form we shall benefit and so too will the farmers. If we have suggested a way in which official sources, and other branches of the food industry can help an 'Eat More Wheat' campaign, we shall feel satisfied with our efforts."

BETHANY

The Women's Institute held a very successful card party on Friday evening when ten tables of euchre were played. Mrs. William McCartney, first, and Mrs. W. L. Rowan, consolation; Mr. Bob Wake first and Mr. W. Paton, consolation.

Mr. F. C. Dawe was a business visitor to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. J. J. Preston left for a visit to Toronto on Monday.

The ladies of St. Paul's church are holding a bazaar in the town hall on Thursday afternoon.

IMPROVE YOUR HEALTH

MRS. G. W. POSLIFF
243 Huron St., Stratford, Ontario

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a good medicine. Anyone who is in poor health should not hesitate to try it. When I was taking the Compound I tried the sample Liver Pills I found in the package. I have taken them every night since and I can feel myself improving. I am so thankful for the good they do me that I have told several women about it."—Mrs. G. W. Posliff.

MRS. T. E. SLEEMAN
R. R. 4, Cobourg, Ontario

"Years ago when I had a sick father and a nursing baby to care for, I got all rundown and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get strength to do my work. Another time at Change of Life, I had severe headaches and felt tired all the time. I took seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound and felt like a new woman. I recommend it to any woman who is at this age."—Mrs. T. E. Sleeman.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—Receipts at the Union Stock Yards yesterday were: 588 cattle, 100 calves, 1,088 hogs, 1,650 sheep and lambs.

There were 1,700 stale cattle in addition to the fresh receipts at the opening of the market yesterday morning. Trade continued slow on common killers, which ate up the bulk of the supply with bids on the lower grades 25c to 50c lower for the week. A few fair to good butcher steers sold early at $6.50 to $7.25 a cwt., or 25 cents a cwt. down on the week's trading. Butcher cows are a dull trade at $4.50 to $5 a cwt. for choice.

A few baby beef sold at from $8 to $10.50 a cwt. Trade in stockers and feeders is not so active as at the opening of the week and prices were a shade easier on the few sales made up to 11 o'clock. Veal calves in the light offering are selling 50 cents a cwt. lower than Tuesday at $11.50 to $12.50 a cwt., for choice, with grass calves steady at $4.50 to $6 a cwt.

Lamb prices are steady at 25 cents a cwt. lower than Tuesday. Some 500 head sold at $8.75 but bids on the good ewes and wethers were $8.50 a cwt., after the first hour's trading. Culls and buck lambs are selling at from $6.50 to $7 a cwt. Sheep are weak at $4.50 a cwt., for the best. The run on sheep and lambs is heavier than expected. Hogs are selling steady to a quarter lower than yesterday at $8.50 to $8.75 f.o.b. and $9.75 to $10 a cwt., w.o.c. for bacon.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—Egg prices were changed considerably on the local market yesterday, all grades being put on a new basis in accordance with the increased receipts of fresh supplies from Ontario farm points and heavy shipments from the West. Quotations to country shippers were reduced a few cents by the larger dealers and not quite so much by the smaller buyers. Retailers benefited to the extent of 1c on extras 3c on firsts, 3c to 5c on seconds and 3c on pullet extras.

The general quotations were: To shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, 55c to 58c for extras, 48c to 52c for firsts, 29c to 30c for seconds and 40c to 45c for pullet extras, and to retailers, 64c for extras in cartons, 63c for extras loose, 57c for firsts loose, 35c for seconds loose and 52c for pullet extras loose.

Demand Only Fair

Brokers had short-held supplies for sale at 37c for extras and 33c for firsts, and storage eggs at 34c to 35c for extras and 32c to 33c for firsts, but trading was slow in these lines and there were very few lots moving. Fresh supplies were sold to wholesalers, graded, in free cases, at 57c for extras, 50c for firsts, 45c for pullet extras and 30c for seconds. British Columbia shipments were not finding too keen a market at the asking prices of 60c for extras, 55c for firsts and 50c for pullet extras.

Butter

The trade in butter was very small and most dealers reported business in this commodity at a standstill. Asking prices were 30c to 30¼c for No. 1 and 29c to 29¼c for No. 2. But trading, if any, was probably done on the lower basis. Quotations to retailers were steady at the old prices of 33¼c to 34c for No. 1 creamery and 32¼c to 33c for No. 2.

Cheese

The cheese market was steady, with prices to shippers at 14¼c to 14½c for new large, 14½c to 14¾c for twins, and 14¾c to 15c for triplets.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 4.—(CP).—Hogs 1,700; active, generally steady; bulk desirable 150-250 lbs. 9.00; few 9.10; 260-300 lbs. 8.75-9.00; pigs nominal; packing sows 7.00-7.50.

Cattle 200; mostly cows; slow, steady; beef cows 5.00-5.50; steers unsold, bidding lower; late Tuesday choice 1330 lb. steers 12.50.

Calves 150; vealers unchanged 14.00 down.

Sheep 700; lambs active; mostly 25 higher; good to choice ewe and wether lambs 8.75.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.— Sliding down nearly 2c a bushel, corn yesterday suddenly reversed its higher trend and pulled other grain values lower. Heavy profit-taking in corn found demand inadequate and pit observers said the market had been overbought. There were also reports of enlarged rural offerings of corn here.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous, ⅝c to 1⅜c lower than Monday's finish. Wheat closed unchanged to ½c off, oats ⅝c to ⅞c down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—Prices were unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Regraded grass-make Eastern townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter was quoted at 29 cents a pound. To retailers, solids were 32 cents and prints 33 cents a pound. Receipts were 99 boxes.

On the cheese market Ontario was quoted at 12 to 12¼ cents and Quebec at 11½c to 11¾ cents a pound. Receipts totalled 157 boxes.

Carlot prices for eggs were: Fresh extras, 60 cents, fresh firsts, 55 cents and fresh pullets, 50 cents a dozen. The day's receipts were, 1,398 cases.

New Brunswick Green Mountains were quoted at 90 to 95 cents per 10 pound bag on the potato market. Prince Edward Island potatoes were $1 for Cobblers and $1.10 for Mountains per 90 pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 4.—Strength at Liverpool and Buenos Aires markets had a bullish effect during the first part of trading on the Winnipeg wheat market yesterday. Gains of more than one cent were marked up, but 15 minutes before the close buying slackened and profit-takers took a hand, sending values downward. Closing quotations were ⅝c to ⅞c below Tuesday.

Exporters failed to take any interest in Canadian wheat yesterday. Trading was dull in cash wheat and coarse grains throughout the session and prices were generally unchanged.

Roseneath

The annual meeting of the United Church W.M.S. will be held in the church at Roseneath on Tuesday, December 7, when officers for the coming year will be appointed.

The King's Workers of the Mission Band are busily engaged preparing for the annual bazaar which will be held in the town hall on Saturday afternoon, December 13.

The Roseneath Amateur Society are staging their play, "Marrying Anne," at Baltimore on Friday, December 5, under the auspices of the Women's Institute.

A miscellaneous shower was given in the Orange Hall in honor of Lawson Taylor and bride (nee Evelyn Lean) when a delightful time was spent in dancing. The young couple are very highly esteemed which was evident by the many beautiful and useful gifts received.

The Athletic Association called a meeting for the purpose of selecting a caretaker for the skating rink. Five tenders were received and after considerable discussion it was finally decided that the position of caretaker be given to Lewis Nixon at a salary of $36 a month, the salary to begin when the rink is ready for skating. It was also decided that the Athletic Association retain their interests in the skating rink.

Mr. Nixon is now working at the rink levelling the ground and soon will be flooding it providing the weather keeps cold.

Miss Gladys Turner, nurse-in-training at General Hospital, Cobourg, spent a few days with her mother, Mrs. Lily Turner.

Misses Kathleen and Helen Barrie spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barrie, Birdsalls.

Mrs. Lottie Nichol entertained a few of her friends at her home on Friday evening.

The many friends of Miss Jessie Smith are pleased to see her home again after her lengthy illness when she was with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs Eagleson, Cold Springs.

While driving his automobile hearse from a funeral G. A. K. Porter, of Magh, Ireland, found an injured man beside the road, and took him to a hospital in the hearse.

TRENT RIVER

The teachers of the public schools throughout the township of Seymour have formed an association and meet the first Thursday of each month. Earl Fairman, teacher at Connolly's school is president and they meet this week at the home of Miss Locke of the English Line school.

Mr. Harold B. Wood will attend the final hearing of the oratorical contests held at Castleton on Thursday and also a business meeting of the trustees and ratepayers' association, of Northumberland county.

The annual Christmas concert and tree is to be held at Trent River school on December 18. The pupils are preparing an interesting program of dialogues, organ instrumentals, choruses and recitations.

NORA HENNESSY WINS FRASER CUP

Elimination Series For Oratorical Honors Will Be Held in Castleton on Dec. 5.

COOLER, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—Nora Hennessy, Carmen Place, School Section 1-5 was successful in winning the handsome silver cup, donated by W. A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland, at the oratorical contest for Murray Township, held in the Town Hall on Friday evening.

The judges were W. Frank Smith, B.A., of Trenton High School, E. L. Fraser and H. D. Graham, also of Trenton.

Such contests are being held at various centres throughout Northumberland County and will culminate at Castleton on Friday, December 5, when the winners of each township will compete in the elimination finals.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

TONSILS AND RHEUMATISM.

One of the lessons that has been taught medical students for a number of years is that when the active state or stage of acute rheumatism is present that there should be no operation on the tonsils. The tonsils might be treated in the usual way with sprays, gargles, and so forth, but the removal of the tonsils themselves at this time was dangerous.

The thought was that it would stir up the poisons, and cause an increase in the swelling of the joint or joints.

Further, it was dangerous from the standpoint of the heart, because you'll remember that most cases of organic heart trouble follow attacks of tonsilitis.

However, Drs. W. H. Robey and M. Finland, Boston, "present evidence that the removal of the tonsils can be safely accomplished during the active stage of acute rheumatism without harm to the patient from the operation. The removal of the tonsils even with the joints red and swollen offers no more dangers than when performed under what would appear to be the most favorable conditions."

They record 165 cases to prove their point, and among these cases were a number with organic heart trouble.

There are some cases in which heart trouble existed, and the operation was not performed not because the operation was to be on the tonsils, but because the heart was not safe, for any operation whatever.

Ether was the anaesthetic used in most cases.

Where in addition to the tonsilitis the patient had bronchitis or broncho pneumonia, the operation was delayed until these were cleared up, but as far as the acute rheumatism itself was concerned the operation was performed without any delay.

In every case undergoing operation, the decision to operate was made by the physician, not by the surgeon.

In several cases in which attacks of rheumatism had repeatedly occurred, the results of the operation have been brilliant.

What is my point?

That many individuals have attacks of tonsilitis, a little later rheumatism follows, and then in a short time tonsilitis occurs again; a vicious circle.

The report of these two physician on 165 cases in which tonsils were removed during an attack of acute rheumatism would tend to show that delaying the operation until rheumatic attack is past isn't really necessary.

The removal of the tonsils at this time may not only cut short the attack of rheumatism but prevent future attacks.

GROPING.

Sometimes I see how all the world is groping,
How every man goes by with outstretched hands,
How every look is lifted, each heart hoping
For clues to peace, though no man understands.
I see, sometimes, how bliss is for the taking,
How each might yet be glad would be but learn
That in his hand alone he has the making
Of all the joys for which his soul may yearn.
How kindly are the beings all about us,
How tender is the purpose in each breast,
How loath our brothers are to harm or doubt us;
I see men all are groping for life's best!

HOME TOWNERS

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous

CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 4. — The cold snap which was experienced in this district on Tuesday seems to have surprised some folks. One farmer reports that water running into a trout pond froze two inches. However, with the soft spell now prevailing, ice seems to have disappeared for awhile. Rain is the big need of the farmer at present, for wells are very dry in this locality.

Mr. J. A. Murray of Burnbrae and Mr. J. Irwin of town are attending the Central Cheesemakers Association being held at Belleville this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hector Arnold of town were the guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sayles of Warkworth.

Mr. A. L. Riendeau is reported to be the holder of the lucky number on the Trent River Womens Institute quilt.

Favorite Recipe

MOUNT ROYAL POTATOES

(Contributed by Beatrice)

1 pint cold, mashed potatoes; 1 well-beaten egg; ¼ cup milk; ¼ cup flour; salt and pepper. Mix the beaten egg with potatoes, season well, and add milk and flour alternately. Roll about ¼ inch thick, and cut in large circles; on half of circle place a spoonful of mixed and well-seasoned cold meat; turn over the other half and pinch edges together. Brush over with egg or milk, lay on buttered pan, and bake brown.

Havelock

The meeting of Havelock Efficiency League was held on Wednesday evening last instead of the usual Monday meeting and was very well attended. The president, Miss Roberts, presided and led the devotional exercise. After the business was concluded a very interesting program was enjoyed when Miss Helen Fennell sang a solo in good voice. Mrs. (Rev.) Archer read a portion of an interesting story, which will be continued at a later meeting. A word contest was won by the Reds group. Meeting closed with Mispah Benediction.

Miss Mildred Redden, assistant teacher on the Continuation school staff, spent the week end at her home in Tamworth.

Mr. Phillip Greenley of Sulphide spent the week end with his mother here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walker of Farnham, Que., and Mrs. Walker Sr., of Toronto, were in Havelock attending the funeral of Miss Voyer.

W.M.S. Thank Offering Service At Roseneath

ROSENEATH, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Women's Missionary Society annual Thankoffering service was held on Sunday evening in the United Church.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. R. W. Paton, the chair was taken by the president of the W.M.S., Mrs. Varcoe, who opened the service in an impressive manner.

The ladies of the society had with them Dr. Frank Allan and Mrs. Allan of Toronto who are on furlough from Sz Chuan or better known as Wet China. Dr. Allan having taught school at Alderville some years ago was gladly welcomed by a host of friends in the village and surrounding neighborhood. Mrs. Allan who is American born but a Canadian by choice gave an interesting talk at Sunday School in the morning, bringing with her several pieces of pottery made by the Chinese of West China. She also addressed the large congregation in the evening, explaining a few of the many works and duties along missionary lines, and says each member of the society must have enthusiasm and earnestness to God, it is the work being done over here which makes all this possible over there. Sacrifice is needed, and may it be ever so little it means a great help in this good cause. Mrs. Allan is very fond of the Chinese girls and women, she finds them kind, loveable and many are exceedingly brilliant and eager to learn the truths of Christianity.

Dr. Allan's lesson was taken from the last chapter of St. Mark's gospel. Speaking briefly of the days he taught school in Alderville in 1897 to 1900 his leaving for Denver, Colorado where he studied medicine and then his journey to West China where he has been working for the past twenty-four years as a medical missionary of the former Methodist Church and now the United Church of Canada.

Dr. Allan reports much progress in the Revolution and in the establishment of the church in West China, which has a population of sixty million people and its area is about one half the size of Ontario. Telling of the Chengtu Plains where farmers are very thick, the average being 1730 farmers to a square mile, vegetables are their greatest products and of course rice is their chief food.

In closing Dr. Allan said the greatest gift we can give the Chinese is the missionaries.

Suitable music was rendered by the choir which was greatly appreciated.

ROYALTY IN EDINBURGH

Never within living memory have so many members of the Royal family visited Edinburgh, Scotland, as in 1930. King George passed through the city twice in recent months. The queen was there several times while in residence at Balmoral, and visits also have been paid by the Prince of Wales, Princess Helena Victoria, the Duchess of York and Prince George.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Have you purchased all of your Christmas gifts yet?

• • • • • • •

No, of course you haven't. I don't believe I've met anyone yet who managed to get all of their Christmas shopping done some three weeks before the 25th!

• • • • • • •

No doubt many of you have done quite a bit of window shopping, and know just what you want, when you have the time and funds to make the purchase. But others begin to shop with no thought whatever of what might be appreciated.

• • • • • • •

Let's commence with members of the family and see what we can purchase for each!

• • • • • • •

Beginning with the most important member of our family—Mother—we ponder. I wonder would she like something for the home or some personal gift?

• • • • • • •

Don't you think she will eventually get the things she needs for the house, but she will wait a long time for some little treasures she wishes. A bit of jewelry would be likely to please her—it can only be her own, whereas if a piece of furniture or silverware were bought the family might use it more often than she!

• • • • • • •

Then come Dad—does he smoke—if so you know his favorite pipe and tobacco

• • • • • • •

If he reads a great deal there are some splendid new books available. Maybe he'd like a lamp to read and smoke under—I don't think any other member of the family would capture Dad's chair.

• • • • • • •

Sister appreciates anything dainty—especially lingerie. But of course, we can't expect any male members of the family who may chance to read this to purchase lingerie for the girl friend or sister. Gloves are lovely, also scarfs.

• • • • • • •

The problem for brother is much the same as Dad—if he smokes and reads, the problem is easily solved. If not, some little personal gift usually pleases him.

• • • • • • •

For the younger members of the household some toy that will last until he is older is more appreciated than a toy that is broken before Christmas Day is over.

• • • • • • •

For the person who has everything, flowers bring a happy remembrance and Grandmother will also appreciate having a bouquet for the Christmas dinner.

Nora Thomas, daughter of Sergeant and Mrs. A. G. Thomas, was the lucky winner of a doll and doll sleigh offered as a prize in a contest recently conducted by four little girls who canvassed for votes. Nora received a total of 2,170 votes and her three companions, Anna Marie Heffernan, Mary O'Reilly and Virginia Primeau, also did very well. The proceeds will be presented to the Catholic Women's League for their relief fund.

The Home and School Association of Prince of Wales School held a very enjoyable card party in the Canadian Legion Hall last evening. Twenty-two tables of bridge and euchre were played. The guests were received by Mrs. G. Davis, president of the Association, while Mrs. F. Pearson and Mrs. H. Hughes assisted at the door as treasurers. The prizes were presented by Dr. J. J. Craig who, in his usual genial manner, made a few congratulatory remarks. One amusing feature was the fact that the prizes were all carried off by the ladies, a great many playing with gentlemen's cards. Prize winners for bridge were: Ladies, Mrs. G. Worboy, 1st; Mrs. C. E. Lloyd, second; Mrs. S. Watson, 3rd; with gentlemen's cards, Mrs. C. E. Seymour, 1st; Mrs. F. Miller, 2nd; Mrs. H. Beatty, 3rd. The euchre prizes were won by Mrs. G. Sexsmith, 1st; Mrs. C. E. Wiley, 2nd, and Mrs. McMann, 3rd, while the gentlemen's prizes went to Mrs. H. Spargo, 1st; Mrs. Roy Ferguson, 2nd; and Mrs. McCabe, 3rd. The lucky draw prize for euchre went to Mrs. W. A. Harvie and for bridge to Mr. E. W. Fisher. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. G. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wiley, Mr. and Mrs. G. A Spicer, Mr and Mrs. C. ALUMNAE OF NICHOLLS HOSPITAL ARE ADDRESSED BY DR. YELLAND

CANADA IN PICTURES.

The Alumnae of Nicholls Hospital were hostesses last evening at a banquet held in the grill room of the Empress Hotel and attended by members of the society and their guests, who included in their group the staff of Nicholls Hospital Mrs. E. M. Leeson, superintendent, Miss Elleda Walsh, assistant superintendent; Miss D. E. McBrien, night supervisor; Miss W. Cowan, operating room supervisor; Miss E. Young, instructress; Miss V. Heyes, dietitian and Miss Aleitha Davidson also Miss Fanny Dixon, past president of the Alumnae, Mrs. W. L. Ferguson, Miss Daisy Dobbin, a graduate of Danville, N.Y. Hospital, Mrs. E. E. Ferguson, a graduate from the hospital at Rumford, Maine, Miss Florence McIndoo, superintendent of the General Hospital at Belleville, Mrs. D. Carmichael, former superintendent at Nicholls Hospital, Miss Lillian Simons, nurse for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Miss Mamie Foote, nurse for the Well Babies' Clinic, Miss L. Stewart, a graduate of the Vancouver General Hospital, Miss May Jory, School nurse, Miss Jessie Deyell, School nurse, Miss D. Sherin, a graduate of the Toronto General Hospital the president, Mrs. F. LePlante, Miss Laura O'Brien, Miss Olive Cowie, Miss Margaret Grady, Miss Blanche Kelly.

Miss Helen Anderson, president of the Nicholls Hospital Alumnae, presided in her usual bright manner. Nearly seventy ladies were present and one gentleman, Dr. H. M. Yelland, who showed some interesting pictures of his recent Western-Alaskan trip, and who was accompanied by Mrs. Yelland.

The banquet was served with the usual despatch and excellent attention which characterizes the Empress' staff, and the tables, with their snowy cloths, were very attractively decorated with tall ass vases filled with dwarf 'mums in shades of bronze, yellow and rose, and lighted white candles in low china holder.

Community singing enlivened the repast, led by Miss Alma Dobbin, convenor of the Social committee, who had arrangements in hand and carried them through with much satisfaction to the assembly. At the piano was Miss Jessie Deyell. The songs included several that were distinctive in type, like "Boost for Nicholls" and "I'd Rather Belong to Alumnae" set to familiar, favorite tunes.

Miss Dobbin welcomed the guests of the evening and announced the numbers on a very entertaining program which included songs by Miss May Jorry; "Who is Sylvia?" and "Passing By", with accompaniments played by Miss Gwen Mary Donley; a vocal number, "The Desert Song", by Miss Frances Parsons, with accompaniment by Miss Florence McIndoo, of Belleville, who also gave a vocal number entitled, "I love to Hear You Singing", and a reading, "Willie's portion", by Miss Mabel Watson.

The toast list commenced with "The King" and progressed to "Our Alumnae" proposed by Miss F. Dixon, past president and the senior member present, of the class of '96, and responded to very gracefully by Miss Helen Anderson, the president, who included in her remarks, a sincere tribute to the untiring and faithful efforts of her predecessor, Miss Dixon, who had held the office of president for so many years.

Older Days as Nurses.

The company sang the catchy ditty, "How d'you do, Madam President?" at the conclusion of Miss Anderson's brief speech, and Miss Vera Baker of the class of 1920 gave the toast to the Training School, to which Mrs. E. M. Leeson responded, with some interesting reminiscences of older days in the nursing profession. Since 1903, Mrs. Leeson said, when the first graduating class was held, over two hundred girls have graduated from Nicholls Hospital. She recommended the beaconlight of the nurses' life as the constant exposition of the virtues of patience, courtesy, tact and understanding.

Miss Glady Wilson of the class of '29 expressed the welcome of her class members to the class of '30, in a clever and humorous little speech that was responded to by Miss Marion McKinnon.

A very pleasing portion of the proceedings was the presentation to Miss Fanny Dixon, whose long and faithful service as president of the Alumnae evidently lives green in the hearts of her fellow-members, of a lovely silver flower basket filled with bright yellow button 'mums, its handle tied with a bow of violet tulle. The presentation was made by Miss Bernice Smith and Miss Dixon made a fitting acknowledgement. The company sang for her "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The vote of thanks to the assisting musicians and to all who had helped to make the evening a success, was voiced by Miss Mabel Watson and seconded by Miss Margaret Reid. The vote of thanks to Dr. Yelland, who was also accorded the singing of 'What's the Matter with H.M.Y. He's all Right", as a finish to his interesting showing of picture slides, was moved by Mrs. W. T. Holloway and seconded by Miss Elleda Walsh.

Canada in Pictures.

The pictures which Dr. Yelland showed, with the aid of his portable moving picture camers, were most interesting. Starting from Sarnia, they progressed to Seattle and Alaska, back through Western Canada and on to the British Medical Association meetings in Winnipeg in August.

On the boat, the Huronic, which carried the passengers from Sarnia to Port Arthur, was shown the bit where the pipers play for the deck march which gives the travellers the equivalent of their daily dozen, while on board. Then there were the grain elevators of Port Arthur against a mild skyline and then the scenes at Calgary and around the Banff Springs Hotel and the Calgary residence of the Rev. Mr. Todd, formerly of this city. There were Indian braves in their feathered war bonnets, squaws in their special slow race, where the last horse wins, papooses in their stiff wrappings, and many scenes of natural beauty in the Bow River Valley, the waterfall at Castle Mountain the bungalow camps, the beauty of Emeral Lake and its snow-capped peaks in the background, and the natural rock bridge near it.

Then came Field, in British Columbia, the Yoho Valley and Lake Louise, that gem of the mountains, with the famous glacier and the Chateau and the totem poles with their weird carvings.

There was Kicking Horse River, stern and threatening, and the famous Pass; Mount Sir Donald with its head in the clouds; the Okanagan Valley and Mount Baker, with Dr. McNair, formerly of this city, pitching snowballs on its snowy sides, on the 2nd of August. There were the lovely homes and gardens of Vancouver Island and Victoria; John Barrymore's yacht in Victoria Harbor; Prospect Point; the halibut-axmen with their enormous knives; Ketchnikan and the salmon making their way over the falls; Juneau and Skagway, with its pictorial rocks; Lake Bennett and Wrangell Island and the U.S. destroyers and Prince Rupert, showing the salmon leaping high in the air in the dark water.

Views of Jasper Park, with the black bear and the Buffalo and of the beautiful University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon, concluded the first reel, which was followed by a descriptive reel of the British Medical Association meetings and two short, interesting series that included a lot of local scenes and people.

The pictures were watched with much interest by the nurses and their guests, and they brought to a close an enjoyable program.

Prominent Members Of Air-Line Board

The personned of the directorate of the new trans-Canada airway-railway system, known as the Canadian Airways Limited, was announced at Ottawa this week. Among the prominent Canadian who form the directorate are James Richardson, Winnipeg, President, (centre); Sir Henry Thornton (left), president of the Canadian National Railways, and E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway (right) will be vice-presidents of the new system.

OTONABEE CHAPTER PLANNING BRIDGE

White Elephant Bridge Party to be Held in Paragon Hall.

At the regular meeting of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., with the regent, Mrs. C. A. White, presiding, it was decided to hold a White Elephant bridge party in the Paragon Hall on Saturday afternoon, January 17th.

The Chapter also decided to give donations to the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion and to the Navy League.

The Otonabee Chapter is presenting first and second prizes of $12 and $8 each, respectively, to the two pupils attaining highest and second highest standing, in the first and second forms of the Commercial Department of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. These prizes, totalling $40 in all, will be presented at the annual Commencement exercises, next week.

Reports were presented by the secretary, Mrs. J. D. Cameron, and the treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Robinson.

In Police Court

"And everyone was having a rollicking time and — then the police walked in." Briefly, a correspondent might write thusly of the sad ending to a joyous party held at Cordova Mines the other night. Just how costly a party it turned out to be was not realized until this morning, when eight of the leading lights in the evening's glad "hoofing" appeared in police court and paid out fines ranging from $10 to a $100, for consuming and having liquor in their possession.

Provincial Constable Percy Gray, of Deloro, visited the dance when the doings were at their height. The charges followed.

A young Havelock man was charged with procuring drugs and administering them for illegal purpose. He was remanded without plea on $1,000 bail.

GOODLY SUM IS REALIZED

George Street Church L. A. Profit $900 From Christmas Fair.

SOCIETY MEETS.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of George St. United Church was held yesterday afternoon.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. G. C. Staples and Mrs. S. A. Harris gave the financial statement, owing to the absence of Mrs. S. Oke. The correspondaing secretary, Miss Mary Elliott read a number of letters. Mrs. J. Stubbs for the sick and visiting committee ireported eighty-four calls made during November. Mrs. B. Shortley for the Cupboard committee reported new dishes and kitchen utensils purchased before the Christmas Fair supper. The convenors of the booths for the Christmas Fair gave splendid reports of their activities and net receipts and the committee composed of Mrs. C. E. Smith, Mrs. H. Foote and Miss Mary Elliott, each expressed their gratification at the results and their appreciation of the help given them. The sum of over nine hundred dollars being realized after all expenses were paid. Mrs. Hetherington all who had co-operated with her and put over this annual event in such a successful manner after which Rev. J. E. J. Millyard offered a prayer of thanks.

Announcement was made of an illustrated travel talk by Dr. N. H. Buchanan, on his trip to Bermuda and the Panama to be given in the Sunday School auditorium on Friday evening, December 12 under the auspices of the Ladies Aid.

As in past years the society will follow their usual custom of sending out baskets of Christmas cheer. The arrangements for Christmas decorations for the church were left in the hands of Mesdames Bartlett, Weldon and Miss Morrow.

A resolution was passed that new Hymnals be purchased for the choir which will be need about the beginning of the New Year. Rev. J. E. J. Millyard was then asked to take charge of the meeting for the election of officers. He congratulated the society on the splendid work they were doing, both in a social as well as financial way and said they had deserved success for the amount of time and work they had given and on behalf of the church he gave them hearty thanks.

The nominating committee's report given by Mrs Shortley recommend that the officers of last year be returned by acclamation.

Officers Elected

The following will hold the reins of government for 1931: President, Mrs. W. P. Hetherington; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. T. Mark; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. T. H. Squire; Secretary, Mrs. G. C. Staples; Treasurer, Mrs. S. Oke; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Mary Elliott.

The convenors of standing committees to be named at the January meeting.

A splendid program was then given consisting of a vocal solo by Mrs. J. Mathews, accompanied by Mrs. D. Howat two violin number by Alex Carlisle and an address by Miss Murphy entitled "The Christmas Church of Canada and the Stranger". Miss Murphy presented her subject in a very concise and capable way and captured all by her ease and fluency.

Regular Meeting Of Queen Alexandra Assoc.

Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held their regular meeting on Monday night in the school. The problem of relief work at the present time was discussed. The idea advanced of the children bringing provisions to the school to be distributed being left to the discretion of the school principal.

Mrs. Graham read an article on ways in which parents may help in lateness and non-attendance at school.

Very pleasing piano solos were given by Donald Ross, Loreen Wellwood and Billy Shosenberg.

The attendance picture was won by Miss Ross' room. The members had a most enjoyable hour's bowling at the close of the meeting.

Noted Woman Flier Sails From Orient

YOKOHAMA, Dec. 4 (C.P.). — The Honorable Mrs. Victor Bruce, who recently flew from England to Tokyo and thus became the first woman to span Europe and Asia by air, sailed to-day for Vancouver, B.C., whence she plans to resume her aerial tour.

With Mrs. Bruce aboard the liner Empress of Japan was her plane. Arriving in Vancouver December 12, Mrs. Bruce expects to fly from there to San Francisco, and to make a transcontinental flight.

The Empress of Japan also carried the Canadian Chamber of Commerce trade mission which is returning from a tour of the Orient.

WEDDINGS

HARRISON—LECLARE.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at George Street United Church parsonage on Wednesday, Dec. 3, when Molly LeClare, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon LeClare of Midland, was united in marriage to Clarence J. Harrison, son of Mary and the late Joseph Harrison of Peterborough.

The bride looked charming in a dress of beech nut brown chiffon and velvet with shoes and hose to match. The bridesmaid, Miss Ida V. Harrison, sister of the groom, wore a gown of blue with hat to match. The bridegroom was assisted by Mr. Floyd Wagar. The only ornament the bride wore was a wrist watch, the gift of the bridegroom. The gift to the bridesmaid was a gold brooch with a ruby setting. The gift to the groomsman was a leather covered cigarette lighter.

After the ceremony a sumptuous dinner was served at the home of the bridegroom to the immediate relatives. The house was prettily decorated in pink and white

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison left on a short honeymoon, the bride travelling in a gown of black satin with blue coat and hat. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

SMOKING EXPENSE IN TRAIN SERVICE

The influence of habit on railway transportation and expense was the outcome of a recent interview with A. McNabb, C.N.R. Agent for Peterborough. The habit referred to is smoking, which has made men so inveterate to tobacco that they cannot leave it alone for half an hour. As a result "smokers" have to be provided for men, and later on perhaps special ones for the women.

It does not often strike one that smoking compartments are luxuries and are at a man's disposal without any extra charge. At this time of year everything is cut to a minimum cost. Now if a train has four passenger cars, for example, the equivalent of one car could be discarded if no one smoked. For every extra car there is need of more heating, electricity, more cleaning and upkeep, wear and tear on the engine, and switching and coupling. Eighteen or twenty tickets have to be guaranteed in order to secure an extra car; taking the operating expense to be two cents a mile per person, the cost of the car is forty cents per mile. If the mileage run by all the trains were 50,000 miles per day, the operating of an extra car, the "smoker" would be about $20,000. These figures may be entirely theoretical, but they at least show the extravagance of smoking on the train. A cut in the expenses by means of the removal of this service would not necessarily entail loss of employment to railway workers, but would lower the cost of operation.

A local example of this "extravagance" is the C.N.R. oil-electric train running south from Peterborough in the morning and north in the evening. The trailer is unnecessary except at rush seasons because only twenty or so passengers make these trips. Such passengers could easily be accommodated in the compartment now used as a smoker in the rear of the locomotive unit.

Chapter Lays Plans For Tea And Musical

The regent, Mrs. F. Hooper, was in the chair, and arrangements were discussed for the tea and musical program, and for the selling of tickets for a dressed doll and a Christmas cake, to be made by the members and offered at the tea. Mrs. Hooper, Mrs. N. C. Staples and Miss Daisy Davidson will be in charge of arrangements. The proceeds will be used for the regular Christmas donations by the Chapter.

Mention was made of the date of the fifteenth anniversary of the foundation of the Peter Robinson Chapter, which falls on April 11th next, when an elaborate program will be staged.

New members were proposed at the meeting last night and Mrs. E. M. Turner was welcomed to membership in the chapter.

HERTZOG WARNS GREAT BRITAIN

Forced to Change Economic Policy Unless Wider Empire Market Opened.

FARMERS NEED HELP.

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa, Dec. 4.—Prime Minister James Hertzog, newly returned from the Imperial Conference issued a solemn warning last night that if South Africa failed to gain a wider market within the Empire for her products her economic policy, in connection with Empire preferences would have to be revised.

"In almost every agricultural country the great problem of the Government today is how to assist its farmers to obtain the requisite overseas markets," the Prime Minister told the Orange Free State Nationalist Party. "To us, and also to Canada, Australia and New Zealand, it is clear that only by a system of tariff preferences would it be possible for our farmers to obtain any particular advantage on the English market in Comparison with foreign countries.

"The seriousness of the matter from our point of view was made perfectly clear to the Imperial Conference. It must be clear to every one that, unless South Africa can find a wider market for her products within the Empire, and in a reasonable space of time, her economic policy as regards Commonwealth preference will have to undergo considerable revision—a revision which, in the event of abolition of the existing preference for our products on the Engish markets, will in all probability have to be fundamental."

Good-Bye Meant Silence

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Hoover opposed continuance of reduced income taxes to-day in notifying Congress a $180,000,000 Treasury deficit for this year is in prospect.

In his second annual Budget message, he requested $3,932,842,000 to finance the Government the next fiscal year. He also warned that appropriations looking beyond action in the next six months to ameliorate unemployment and difficulties caused by the drought might result in another deficit in 1932.

Farmers Will War On Overproduction

WASHINGTON, December 4 (C.P.) —Salvation from ruin for thousands of farmers was held by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to depend on whether they all will band against the giant, overproduction.

The call to rally went forth in his annual report to President Hoover, with the declaration:

"I want to emphasize the need for equitable, intelligent, systematic, and collective action to bring supply into better relationship with demand."

Citing the particular oversabundance of wheat, the Agriculture Secretary said producers of that grain could expect Federal help only if they made a practical approach to the task of combining to adjust output to needs.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FEATHER BROOM.

"Dear me!" said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. "It is so worn out I can't do a bit of cleaning with it!"

"Don't tell me your tail is worn out!" exclaimed Mr. Longears for he came into the kitchen in time to see Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy looking at the end of her tail. "That's too bad!"

"No, it isn't my tail that's worn out," Nurse Jane answered. "It is the little feather broom, or duster, that I fasten on the end of my tail when ever I want to clean up around the bungalow. Look," she went on, taking the old feather broom off the end of her tail where it was tied on with an old hair ribbon belonging to Baby Bunty. "I need a new feather duster, Uncle Wiggily."

"And you shall have it!" bravely cried the rabbit gentleman as he twinkled his pink nose and hopped to get his hat. "I'll see that you have a new feather broom before night, Nurse Jane!"

"But where are you going to get it?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Leave that to me!" said Mr. Longears and he looked very fine in his fur coat as he started out of the bungalow.

"I shall!" he promised.

"And look for a snow man to drive away the Fuzzy Fox if he comes after you," advised Mrs. Longears as she blew a kiss to her husband from the end of her paw.

"Ha! Ha! That's what I'll do!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "I'll soon be back with a new feather broom for Nurse Jane's tail," he said.

Now though Uncle Wiggily did not tell his wife and Nurse Jane where he was going to get a new feather broom, the rabbit gentleman himself well knew where to find just what he wanted.

"If my friend the Turkey is still in his secret bunk in the woods, I can easily get enough feathers from him to make just the sort of a dusting broom Nurse Jane wants," thought Mr. Longears.

I think you may remember the story I told you last week how the Turkey Gobbler, knowing it would soon be Thanksgiving, when he would be expected to make a big dinner for somebody—the Turkey built himself a little coop, or bunk, in the woods, not far from Uncle Wiggily's bungalow. And there Mr. Gobbler said he would stay until after Thanksgiving.

"I think I shall find him there now," thought Uncle Wiggily as he hopped through the woods. "For it isn't Thanksgiving until next week."

Surely enough the Turkey was in his little secret bunk made from brush, bark and dried grass. As he hopped toward the place, Uncle Wiggily whistled so the Turkey would know it was his rabbit friend and not the Farmer with an ax, who was coming.

"Oh, it's you; is it?" asked Mr. Gobbler, sticking his head, with red wattles on it, out of a chink in the bunk.

"Yes, it is I," said Uncle Wiggily, "and I have a favor to ask you."

"Don't tell me you want me to come to a Thanksgiving feast!" yelled the Turkey, his red wattles turning pale.

"Oh, no! Nothing like that!" answered the rabbit. "But you have been hiding in this secret bunk quite a while now, and you must have duffled out quite a few loose feathers; haven't you?"

"I should say so!" clucked the Turkey. "There are a lot of my best feathers all over this place. It's really too small for me. I shall be glad when Thanksgiving is over so I can come out and strut around as I used to. But who wants my old loose feathers?"

"I do!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I want to make a new duster broom for Nurse Jane to fasten on the end of her tail to keep the bungalow neat."

"Here!" Take all the feathers you want!" said the Turkey, handing out a clawful to the rabbit. Uncle Wiggily tied them into the shape of a little broom, with some string from his pocket, and he was just going to thank the gobbler bird when, all of a sudden, along through the woods came running the hungry Fox.

"Oh ho!" barked the Fox. "I've got you now, Uncle Wiggily! There is no snow man here to drive me away! I can bite you now!"

"Oh, please don't," begged the bunny.

"Yes I shall!" howled the Fox.

"Oh, no you shan't!" gobbled the Turkey. With that the brave bird took another claw of feathers and, sticking them out of a chink in his woodland bunk, so tickled the Fox on the end of his nose that the Bad Chap sneezed and coughed and didn't know quite what had happened.

"Oh dear be! I'm gatching gold! Oh, what a gold I've dot!" blubbered the Fox. "Ker choo! Ker zoo! Ker foo!" And, sneezing and coughing, away he ran so he didn't bite the bunny rabbit after all.

Argos Win Junior Eastern Canada Football Title

ARGO JUNIORS QUALIFY FOR CANADA TITLE

Double Blues Capture O.R.F.U. and Eastern Canada Honors.

FINAL SCORE 17-8.

TORONTO, December 4.—Showing superiority on the backfield that would not be denied, the Argonaut Junior defeated the Hamilton Grads by 17 to 8 at U. of T. Stadium yesterday afternoon, won the O.R.F.U. Eastern Canadian championships, and qualified to play against the Native Sons of Winnipeg in the Dominion final next Saturday. The game will be played in Toronto but it has not been decided on what grounds.

The Grads conquerors of the Montreal Winged Wheelers, were playing their third game in a week and showed the ill effects of the grind. They were mighty tired before the final whistle blew, yet they had enough reserve power left to score a touchdown in the last few minutes. Argos held them even along the wingline and had a big advantage on the rear-guard where Taylor ran wild and Clarke Bell did some good catching and kicking.

Taylor, wearing running shoes, was the hero of the battle and his long jaunts through broken fields had the invaders dismayed. On several occasions he almost broke clear for touchdowns, the last man halting him. Taylor combined well with Bell on smart extensions that gained a lot of ground. The Hamilton outside wings were drawn in and also out and the Argo end run caught them off guard repeatedly.

Officials—Toots Lalonde, Toronto; Bert Harper, Hamilton.

First Quarter

The opening quarter was evenly contested. Argos outscored the Grads two to one, mainly through substantial gains from scrimmages. Bell put the locals in front soon after the kickoff when he hoisted the pigskin to Dore behind the Grad goal line for a rouge. Allen tied the score for Hamilton a few minutes later on a kick to touch in goal after Bell had fumbled Allen's kick to give Hamilton possession on Argos 45 yard line. A splendid run of 50 yards on an extension run by Taylor placed Argos in position for Bell to kick to Dore for another rouge.

Second Quarter

Some clever gains on extension plays put Argos in position for a touchdown soon after the start of the second quarter.

Taylor skirted the Grads' short end for 25 yards, then Bell made 35. Gain plunged for yards and Haugh squeezed over for the try which was not converted.

Argos committed numerous errors during the balance of the session and were on the defensive most of the time, but Bell's great kicking drove the Hamiltonians back each time they threatened the local goal line.

Argos led at half time 7 to 1.

Third Quarter

Argos again outscored their opponents in the third quarter, but while they played fine football, it was the breaks of the game enabled them to increase their point total. Grads added another point to their slim margin early in the session when Allen recovered an Argo fumble on his 20 yard line. Mountain then plunged for first down to put the ball on the Toronto 10 yard line. An onside kick was tried which went to Taylor who was rouged. McKendry then broke through for 40 yards to carry play to the Grads' 30 but Symes' attempted drop was short.

Grads' tough break then occurred when they lost possession on their 30 through an offside. Symes then made his second effort for a drop which was successful.

Fourth Quarter

Grads rallied strongly in the latter part of the final quarter after Argos had increased their lead when Bell hoisted a powerful kick to the deadline for a point and followed this up with a 40 yard run for a touchdown which Symes converted.

After this reverse Hamilton started a parade toward the Argo goal line when they got possession on the Toronto 40 as the result of an Argo misplay. Smillie then kicked for a rouge, and when Bell kicked into his own scrimmage the Grads got the ball on the Scullers' 15 yard line and Fitzsimmons plunged over for a try which was not converted, to end the game.

Right now Nels Stewart, famous Maroons' centre giant, is carrying extra avoirdupois. But he'll strike his stride before the season is far advanced. Nels is generally well up in the scoring records. To be exact last year he finished second to Kilrea in points for individual scoring, with 55 points that included 39 goals, 22 assists and he spent 81 minutes in the cooler. Many critical, or supposedly critical, fans regard Nels as lazy on the ice, but he isn't. He saves his energy, is one of the greatest opportunists in the game and has a pair of powerful wrists that are respected by all goalkeepers. Stewart is said to be instrumental in the development of the play of his younger friend, Hooley Smith. In going over his hockey career he started to bat the puck around before the war, with the Beaches Toronto Hockey League and the Junior O.H.A. After the war he lined up with Parkdale Canoe Club seniors, and will be remembered for his many hectic tilts with the now famous Jerry Laflamme of the Granite Club. Nels then migrated to Cleveland to play amateur hockey and for some time was considered the outstanding centre for the boys across the border. When he first jumped into the N.H.L. he led the league in goal scoring and it might be said that he is a 100 per cent. Maroon player, as he has spent his entire career with the Montreal puck chasers. Not only has he spent his time shooting the puck but was considered a Ruthian threat when he played baseball, batting from the port side when he played for the Beaches League in Toronto and at the first bag was considered to be one of the most colorful first baseman of the league. He is one boy that is worth keeping your eye on this year.

WINDSOR BOWS BEFORE JACKETS

Pittsburgh Causes Biggest Upset of Season By Scoring 2-1 Victory.

WEAR DOWN BULLDOGS.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4. (CP)—The biggest upset of the season occurred in the International Hockey League last night when Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets registered their second victory in seven games, at the expense of the Windsor Bulldogs. The score was two to one.

Weary from a gruelling struggle with their ancient rivals, London Tecumsehs, the previous night, the Bulldogs fought desperately to attain victory and again tie the Londoners for second place. The Yellow Jackets, however, showed surprisingly good form and with the advantage of extra weight on the front line gradually wore the Bulldogs down. The latter team took the lead in the first period on a Duncan to Lever thrust. Late in the middle frame Gordon Fraser, former N.H.L. defence player who was recently signed by the Smoky City team, evened the count on a bullet like shot from the blue line.

The final session had barely started before the Yellow Jackets were in front on Milton Halliday's goal, engineered by Freddy McGuire.

Two games are on tapis to-night. Detroit Olympics have a good chance to pass Windsor for third place when they entertain the cellar occupants, Syracuse Stars. Cleveland Indians, who are one point behind the Olympics journey to Pittsburg in the other game.

DOUBLE BILL IS POSSIBLE IN SATURDAY'S FOOTBALL

AT VARSITY STADIUM.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4 (C.P.)—Possibility of a double championship football bill at Varsity Stadium on Saturday looms as the result of Toronto Argonauts' Victory against Hamilton Grads, by 17 to 8, in the Eastern Canada Junior final yesterday.

Speeding eastward to-day are Regina Roughriders, Western Canada's best, and Winnipeg Native Sons, Western Canada Junior champions. The Roughriders meet Balmy Beach, Ontario Rugby Football Union and Eastern Canada representatives in the Canadian Senior final and, if Native Sons agree, the Junior final between the Winnipeg squad and Argos will be decided prior to the major engagement.

Both Western twelves are journeying East confident of taking the Grey Cup, emblematic of the Senior championship, and the Junior title back with them.

Undefeated in their Western schedule and imbued with hope because of the fine showing they made against Hamilton Tigers, monarchs of the nation's football realm, who played the Roughriders during an exhibition tour last Fall, the Regina rugbyists are quite likely to hand Beaches their first defeat of the season.

Toronto's only Senior champions are not under-rating the breezy Prairie pigskin artists, and to-day will hold a stiff workout to prime themselves for their first test against a Western championship squad.

Uncertainty still prevails in the Beach camp regarding their starting line-up. Teddy Reeves, great middle wing, and several other stars injured in the game against Tigers are not responding to treatment as well as had been hoped for, and they may not play a great deal against the Roughriders, who are overjoyed at not having to meet the Jungle Kings.

Native Sons Confident

Just like Regina, the Native Sons are confident this is their year to annex football laurels. Teddy Morris, captain of the team, saw yesterday's tussle for the Eastern and O.R.F.U. titles, between Argos and Grads. Afterward he expressed the opinion his team mates would vanquish Argos in the final.

If the Winnipeg youngsters accomplish this they will have earned for themselves not only the Junior crown but the reputation of being one of the smartest teams produced in years, for they will need to be just that to halt the locals, who are one of the finest Junior aggregations gathered together here for some time.

FOUR TEAMS TIED FOR FIRST IN NEW YORK BIKE GRIND

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 — Four teams rode into a tie last night for first place in the semi-annual six-day "bike" race in Madison Square Garden. In a wild hour of jamming from 9 to 10 p.m., the teams of Denef and Charlier, Linari and Binda, Spencer and Debaets, and Georgetti and Brocardo took the lead away from the Canadian, Bill Peden, and his Boston mate, Al Crossley, by a single lap margin.

Several crashes added an extra thrill to the picture. Near the end of the hour it was announced that Paul Buschenberg, German partner of Franz Duelberg, was forced to withdraw because of injuries. Deulberg was given four hours to find a partner. Withdrawal of Buschenhagen reduced the field to twelve pairs.

WIN FOR CANADIENS OVER RANGERS WILL PLACE THEM IN TIE WITH MAPLE LEAFS

Senators Also Have Good Chance of Getting Into Thick of Battle.

THREE GAMES TO-NIGHT.

Chicago Hawks and New York Americans to Engage in All-America Battle.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4 (C.P.) — Victories for the two Canadian teams participating in to-night's National Hockey League program of three games will cause a merry scramble at the top of their group.

Montreal Canadiens, led by the league's scoring ace, Howie Morenz, will endeavor to jump into a tie for first position with Toronto Maple Leafs when they entertain New York Rangers at the Forum. The Leafs are idle and this not only gives the Flying Frenchmen a splendid opportunity to climb the ladder, but it also furnishes Ottawa Senators with a chance to get right into the thick of the battle for first place. Ottawa are only three points behind the pacesetters and victory over the lowly Philadelphia Quakers will carry them near the top, perhaps into second place if Rangers topple the speedy Montreal Canucks.

Amerks at Chicago

While the leadership of the American group is not at stake in the all-American game carded at Chicago, a victory for New York Americans will enable them to vacate the cellar position to the Maroons. The Blackhawks are leading the procession in their group, however, having a margin of two points over Boston, who are idle. They suffered their first defeat of the season on Tuesday at the hands of the Maroons, but are expected to continue their winning ways at the expense of the A's, who appear to be slipping after showing powerful defensive strength at the start of the season.

The meeting between Rangers and Canadiens is the first of the current schedule between the two most-polished aggregations in the Calder circuit. A win for Lester Patrick's hockeyists will catapult them into second place, one point behind the Blackhawks, but it is a certainty they will have to show their best exhibition of the popular winter pastime to finish in the van of The Habitants, who showed they are at top form by registering a smashing victory over Boston Bruins in Montreal last Saturday.

In the last meeting between Ottawa and Philadelphia the Quakers staged a surprising rally in the last period to emerge with a tie from a game they already had marked down in the loss column. The Senators have shown remarkable strength in their early games, considering they parted with one of the best defence men in the league prior to the opening of the season. Like Canadiens, the Senators have a game in hand over Toronto, so that victory over Cooper Smeaton's weakened outfit will place them right in contention for first position.

SANDSTORM SIGNAL WORKS

That the new sandstorm detector, invented by three French scientists, is a success, is the report issued following a recent test. The device originally was perfected to observe the movements of flying insect hordes over the desert. By attaching a telephone apparatus the instrument detects the peculiar beating sound which heralds the rising of a sandstorm. It has been named the "atmoradiograph."

CHARLIE CONACHER HAS WRIST INJURED

Leading Marksman of Leaf Team Will Be Out of Line-up For Month.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4.—(CP) The Maple Leafs, this city's entry in the National hockey League received a body blow to their championship aspirations in Tuesday night's game against Boston. Returning home from the game the Leaf management revealed that Charlie Conacher, hard hitting right winger, had sustained a fracture of his left wrist that will keep him out of the lineup for at least a month. Conacher is second to Howie Morenz of Montreal Canadiens in the Canadian group scoring race and is the leading Leaf marksman.

MINORS WILL SUFFER, SAYS BRANCH RICKEY

Need Assistance of Major Circuits in Order to Survive.

BIG LEAGUERS "PAT."

Majors Refuse to Reconsider Decision to Sever Business Relations.

MONTREAL, Que, Dec. 4. (CP) The five non-draft leagues sought to tighten their defenses to-day in preparation for a long drawn out struggle with the majors on the draft question.

All relations between the two rival groups—the American and National Leagues on one hand and the International, Pacific Coast, American Association, Western and Three-Eye leagues on the other—were at a complete standstill, at least temporarily and there were no indications that their differences could be patched up in the immediate future.

The majors insist that they be given the right to select or draft at a fixed price players in these five leagues just as they do in other minor circuits. They already have the right to draft from the AA leagues—International, Pacific Coast and American Association—any player previously in the majors but they want to obtain the right to include young stars who never have reached the big leagues.

They backed their demands with a drastic action—complete severance from December 1, of business relations with the non-draft leagues until they accept the draft.

The five leagues affected offer to re-open the question with a view to possible settlement provided the majors rescinded this action within fifteen days, but replies from president Heydler and Barnard of the National and American Leagues indicated there was no change of the majors doing this and the war was on in earnest.

Anticipating that there will be no move toward an amicable settlement at the joint major league meeting in New York next week, the non-draft minors planned to confer on ways and means of carrying on without the aid of the majors. The most pressing problem was the always troublesome question of where first grade players are to be obtained in sufficient quantities. It was generally regarded that the minors would make no further move toward peace, at least at this time.

Another of baseball's sore spots crept out at the first session of the 29th annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. Branch Rickey, vice-president and business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals largest operator of "chain-store" clubs in the country, told the convention the majors were ready to come to the aid of those minor leagues who may be running into financial difficulties but that no further moves in that direction could be made unless some further "protection" was given the majors.

Operate Independently.

Rickey, whose club has run into trouble at the office of Commissioner K. M. Landis in some of its complicated minor league deals, explained that he thought minor league clubs operated by a major league outfit should be regarded in exactly the same light as clubs owned independently. The whole point seems to be that Rickey considered it unfair that a player sent to one of the Cardinal farms and then sent to another should still be regarded as under option to the Cardinals— under the rules major league clubs cannot keep a player under option in the minors for more than two years.

A resolution was offered suggesting that "the commissioner and the National Board of Arbitration should interpret the rules and regulations without discrimination pertaining to ownership of clubs" but it subsequently was withdrawn and the entire subject dropped. Rickey possibly may attempt to get the majors lined up behind his proposal at their meeting next week.

Largely because of the draft dispute, trading has been very light so far. A score of deals have been completed but none of outstanding importance. Few, if any, were expected since the majors cannot do business with the AA circuits, strongest organizations in the minors.

Stars With Beaches

Bob Reid, wing player of the Balmy Beach team, Toronto, was the hero of the game between Hamilton Tigers and Balmy Beach. He grabbed the loose ball after Beano Wright's kick had been blocked and ran 20 yards for the touchdown that won the game for the Balmy Beach squad. Reid also did work in line plunging and also in the defensive play.

BOSTON BEATS PROVIDENCE.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., December 4.—Boston and Providence last night played one of the most rugged hockey games ever seen at the local auditorium, with the locals winning, 4 to 3. Twice the Providence club took the lead, only to have the Tigers tie it up again. Finally Hago Harrington's second goal, scored in the sixth minute of the third period, proved the winning tally, for the Reds staved off the hectic attempts of the Tigers in the remaining play. Twenty-one penalties were handed out by the officials, six of them going to McNeil, the young Tiger defence man, who was taking Yip Foster's place.

International League Fielder Figures in Trade For Cash and Players.

TERRE HAUTE SELLS SUGGS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—The Rochester Internationals yesterday announced the transfer of Third Baseman Joe Brown to Jersey City for Catcher Scheeflot and an unannounced amount of cash. Brown was an important cog in Rochester's pennant-winning team last season.

The Terre Haute club of the Three-Eye League sold Outfielder W. C. Suggs to Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League. Suggs, a left-handed batsman, hit around .340 last season.

The Portland club of the Pacific Coast League bought Catcher John Fitzpatrick from Oklahoma City of the Western League.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR 1931 BY L.O.L.

Installation of Officers By County Master F. Millard.

The Nassau Lodge, L.O.L. No. 457, held their regular monthly meeting the other evening, with a large number of members and visitors from outside lodges attending. The business of the month was transacted, and that of December outlined.

The election of officers was then carried out under the chairmanship of District Master W. Chambers, as follows:

Worshipful Master, F. Sanderson; District Master, A. Millen; Chaplain, E. Payne; Recording Secretary, H. Welsh; Financial Secretary, B. Lockington; Treasurer, F. Robson; Marshall, V. Fife; 1st Lecturer, W. Millen; 2nd, L. Kennedy. Committeemen: 1st, J. J. Cunningham; 2nd, F. Lockington ;3rd, C. Bolton; 4th, D. Beavis; 5th, R. D. Robson; Tyler, K. Payne Auditors, R. Bolton, A. Franks.

These were duly installed by Worshipful County Master F. Millard. With such a fine list of officials, the lodge looks forward with confidence to 1931.

Following the installation, addresses were delivered by Past Master H. Rome and the newly-elected officers T. Brien, Worshipful Master of L.O.L. No. 80, and B. Rumary of L.O.L. No. 1175 also gave interesting speeches. The most important address of the evening was that of the County Master. The meeting was brought to a close by the serving of refreshments prepared by L.O.L. 457, and the singing of the National Anthem.

PROVIDENCE MAY BUY READING FRANCHISE IN INTERNATIONAL

AFTER 15 YEARS ABSENCE.

MONTREAL, Que., December 4 (C.P.). — William L. Verek, president of the Chicago Nationals, who is attending the minor league convention here, made it clear yesterday that the Cubs definitely would abandon their International League franchise at Reading, Pa. Announcement that the Reading club was for sale was made at a meeting of the directors at Reading on Tuesday night.

Verek pointed out that the Cubs could not find sufficient first-class players to supply two class AA clubs and that since more closely allied with the Los Angeles club in the Pacific Coast League than with Reading, the International League franchise would have to be given up.

Asked what the Cubs would do should no buyer for the Reading club turn up before the start of the International League's season, Verek said:

"That contingency will not arise. We definitely are going to get rid of the franchise. When someone offers us sufficient cash we will do business."

He declined to reveal whether any negotiations actually were in progress. It was understood here that Reading interests would not be able to operate the franchise and that some outside bidder, perhaps Ty Cobb, would come to the rescue. There was some talk, also, that Providence, now affiliated with the Eastern League, might obtain the franchise and return to the International League fold after an absence of more than fifteen years.

Mandell To Fight In Toronto Show

TORONTO, Dec. 4.— (CP) — Sammy Mandell, former world's lightweight boxing champion, will appear here on December 10 in the headline attraction of a boxing and wrestling show to be staged in aid of the local Poppy day fund. Mandell's opponent has not yet been selected.

Notre Dame Fullback Out of California Game

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 4.—A knee injury will keep Larry "Moon" Mullins, Notre Dame fullback ,out of the game with Southern California at Los Angeles Saturday, Coach Knute Rockne announced when the Irish arrived yesterday from Chicago.

Rockne said that Mullins was injured in the Army game last Saturday and that he did not plan to use him against the Trojans.

Dan Hanley, 195-pound Butte, Mont. ,boy, will start in place of Mullins. Mullins recently became first string fullback through the loss of Joe Savoldi, suspended from school.

A crowd of more than 1,000 persons greeted Rockne and his players when they arrived here for a two-day stop-over en route to Los Angeles. Almost 4,000 persons witnessed the practice, held later. Signal drill, defence against passes and dummy scrimmage comprised the workout. The players remained on the field until a light rain set in and drove them to cover.

Rockne plans to hold two workouts here to-morrow morning and afternoon, and they leave for Los Angeles Thursday night.

Slugging "Rip" Collins Reported Seriously Ill

MONTREAL, December 4. — Jimmy (Rip) Collins, slugging first baseman obtained by the St. Louis Cardinals from the Rochester Internationals, and slated to succeed Jim Bottomley this season, was reported here yesterday to be seriously ill in a Rochester hospital.

It has been an open secret that Bottomley has been placed on the market and a good many National League clubs, including the Chicago Cubs, would be glad to get him if the price is right.

Signs As Coach

Louis Berlinquette, who for the past 20 years has been one of Canada's best known hockey professionals and during that time has helped win world's championships and piloted his own professional team into championship play-offs, to-day signed a contract as coach of the Fredericton Hockey Club of the New Brunswick League.—(New Brunswick Govt. MARMORA MAN FIRST IN MILLS SILVER TROPHY

John Finnigan Leads in United Dairymen Co-operative Competition This Year.

THIRD YEAR HELD PLACE.

W. V. Drewry of Warkworth Gains Second Place in Same Event.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence)—The following is the statement from the United Dairymen Co-operative showing the standing of the cheesemakers in the five grading centres. The first five places are given in all warehouses except Brockville where only the first two are given, owing to the smaller number of factories.

It will be noted that John Finnigan of Marmora has the top score, and therefore wins the Mills Silver Trophy. Mr. Finnigan came third in the 1929 and second in the 1928 competitions.

Second place this year is won by W. V. Drewry of Warkworth, who is a director of the U.D.C. and president of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association. Fred Langford of Battersea came third.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY IN THE TURKEY'S BUNK.

Well," squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one morning as she watched Baby Bunts and all the other rabbit children hopping away to school, "it will not be long now until Thanksgiving."

"No, not long," agreed Uncle Wiggily, who was standing on the steps before hopping away to look for an adventure. "And I have much to be thankful for this year. Especially for what happened yesterday."

"Well, I was having a slide in the woods," the bunny gentleman replied, "and at the end was a puddle of water. Every time I got to the end of the slide I caught hold of a tree so I wouldn't plop in the puddle. But when the Bob Cat who wanted to catch me, came to slide, he didn't catch hold of the tree, so he went plop into the puddle. So I am thankful this Thanksgiving that I'm not that Bob Cat."

"I should think you might me!" squeaked Nurse Jane with a laugh.

"And I am also thankful," went on the rabbit gentleman, "that I am able to hop, skip and jump around to find adventures. I'm going to look for one now."

Into the puddle he went!

"Good luck to you!" wished Nurse Jane. "And if you see any red cranberries growing in the woods bring some home for our Thanksgiving dinner."

"I'll look for red cranberries," promised Mr. Longears. Away he went, hopping over the fields and through the woods, looking here and there for an adventure and also cranberries. At last, in some thick bushes, near a clump of trees, Uncle Wiggily saw something red gleaming in the yellow sunshine.

"Ha! Cranberries for Nurse Jane!" exclaimed Mr. Longears.

The rabbit gentleman hopped nearer, the thick bushes in the clump of trees stretched forth his paw to pick what he thought was a red cranberry, but, instead, got a surprise!

"Hey! What's the matter!? What are you doing? Let go my wattle!"

"Your what?" asked Uncle Wiggily, wonderingly.

"Not my WHAT, but my WATTLE!" cried the voice. And then the rabbit gentleman jumped back in alarm as a big turkey gobbler stuck his head out from the thicket of bushes. On the turkey's head was a red dingle-dangle which Uncle Wiggily had mistaken for a cranberry. But it was the gobbler's wattle, and he didn't want it pulled.

Muscular-Rheumatic Aches and Pains

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Distressing muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond pleasantly to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant," because it gets action and is not just a salve. Musterole helps bring soreness and pain to the surface, and thus gives natural relief. You can feel how its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy; jars and tubes.

MUSTEROLE

BETTER THAN A MUSTARD PLASTER

"Oh, it's you, is it, Uncle Wiggily?" said the turkey in a gobbling voice, but still politely.

"Why, yes. Whom did you think it was?" asked the rabbit.

"I didn't know. You never can tell these days—so near Thanksgiving," went on the big bird. "What did you think this was?" he asked, shaking the red wattle, or dingle-dangle, at the rabbit.

"I thought it was a cranberry," answered the rabbit. "Nurse Jane asked me to get some red cranberries for Thanksgiving and when I saw that bit of red color I thought it was a berry."

"Yes," said the turkey with a sad sigh. "I always seem to go with cranberries, somehow or other, or they go with me. I guess there isn't much difference. But you gave me a scare when you pulled my wattle."

"I'm sorry!" spoke Uncle Wiggily. "But what are you doing out here in the woods?"

"I'm hiding in my bunk," and the turkey pointed one wing at the thick bushes. "You see they are always looking for me around Thanksgiving time to roast me, Uncle Wiggily. So this year I thought I'd get ahead of them and come out here to hide in a bunk I made. If I can hide through Thanksgiving and Christmas I'll be safe."

"A good idea! I hope it works out," said the rabbit.

"Thanks," gobbled the turkey. "Well, anyhow, I made this bunk and here I'm going to stay and hide. Hark! Here comes somebody now! Get into my bunk and hide with me! Maybe it's the farmer with his ax!"

"No, it's the Fox, and I think he's after me," said Uncle Wiggily, looking off through the woods and seeing the Bad Chap coming.

"Fox or farmer, it's just as bad! Quick!" whispered the turkey. "Hide in my bunk with me until he passes."

So Uncle Wiggily crawled into the turkey's bunk. But the Fox did not pass on. The Bad Chap came snooping around the hiding place, sniffing and snuffling and he growled: "I wonder what's in here?"

"I'm here, and so is Uncle Wiggily! But we don't want you!" the turkey loudly gobbled, shaking his red wattle. Then he darted out his sharp beak and gave the Fox such a hard nip on the nose that the Bad Chap howled and ran away. Then Uncle Wiggily could come out and the turkey told him where to find red cranberries."

Men's Club Changes Nights of Meeting

MARMORA, Dec. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Men's Club of St. Paul's Church held another very successful meeting on Tuesday evening at the White Hall under the chairmanship of C. H. Buskard.

During the business period it was found advisable to change the night of meeting from the first and third Tuesday to the first and third Wednesdays of the month. The office of second vice-president, was also created, the honor falling to W. J. Cottrell.

The program opened with a violin solo by T. Llewellyn Jones entitled "The Flower Song," and Leslie Rundle, vocalist of the evening sang, "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby." T. L. Jones played a Scotch medley on his violin.

The speaker for the evening was W. L. Rigg, of Deloro, his subject being "Burma." In a fascinating manner, the speaker threw much light on the history and religion and customs of that country, gleaned during his residence there some years ago.

Mr. Rigg was heartily thanked for his interesting talk and as a third selection, Mr. Jones played, "Humoresque." Lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

CHURCH CHOIR WILL ASSIST LADIES' AID

Will Present Scene From "The Geisha" on Friday Evening.

The choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will assist the Ladies' Aid to-morrow (Friday) evening with a scene from "The Geisha" (by Sidney Jones), the bright Japanese musical play. The synopsis of the first scene in the tea gardens is as follows, with typical Japanese setting:

Act I.—The Tea House of the "Ten Thousand Joys." The action takes place in Japan, outside the Treaty Limits. The time is the present.

These tourists stay at a Japanese tea house owned by a Chinaman named Wun-Hi. This Chinaman has also a geisha establishment, the girls of which entertain his guests. The chief geisha is a beautiful Japanese girl named Mimosa, who is in love with a Japanese soldier called Katana. Wun-Hi also keeps a little French girl called Juliette to act as an interpreter.

During Molly's stay here, a ship puts into dock for several weeks and the tea house is overrun by sailors, who take a delight in flirting with the geisha girls. Two officers of the ship, Fairfax and Cunningham, make the acquaintance of the English tourists and Fairfax falls in love with Molly. However, he continues to flirt with the Japanese girls; so in order to teach him a lesson, Molly disguises herself as a geisha girl.

The plot thickens and soon Fairfax believes himself to be in love with two girls -- one the little geisha, the other the English girl Molly.

About this time the tea house suffers a reverse of fortune and Wun-Hi is forced to close down. The geisha girls are auctioned off. Of course, all the men are eager to buy Mimosa, but she begs Molly to save her; so Molly buys her for her own personal maid.

The sailors introduce a humorous part in their anxiety to buy the pretty Japanese. Molly soon discloses her identity to Fairfax, and they are married. As they are returning to England to live, Molly gives Mimosa to Katana, and they are happily married.

The preparation of the choir for this presentation was under the direction of the choirmaster, Martin B. Chenhall, and with costume and action suitable for the scene, a bright period of music will be enjoyed.

An Only Child

Jim was the "only child," and the family were lonesome when he accepted a position some distance from home. But Jim was a modern young man, and knew all about Long Distance. Now his mother looks forward all week to "Jim's night" when the telephone brings back the much-loved voice.

His first need was for fire. He cut a small straight branch and scooped a small round hole in a fallen tree. Sitting astride the bole of the tree, he started spinning the slender rod rapidly between his palms. A thin curl of smoke began to rise. Next he searched for some brittle rock. From the glass-like material he patiently fashioned a primitive hunting knife.

He had noted in the forest a spot where tracks in the trampled mud told him many animals came down to drink. Hither, at dusk, the hungry ape-man made his silent way, swinging through the tree branches with the grace and ease of a monkey. Except for the heavy burden upon his heart he would have been happy in this return to the old, free life of his boyhood.

In a great tree that overhung the trail, his lithe, muscular legs drawn up ready to spring, Tarzan crouched waiting for his "dinner" to appear. Presently, Bara, the deer, came daintily down to drink. But more than Bara was coming! Behind the graceful buck came another which the deer could neither see nor hear. But from his elevated position the ape-man saw Numa, the lion.

With a sudden start the deer paused for an instant, trembling, in his tracks, and then with a swift bound dashed straight down the path beneath Tarzan's ambush. Not a hundred yards behind him came Numa. If the ape-man were to dine tonight, he must act quickly. Could he do it? Even as he asked himself the question, the hungry man hurled himself from his perch.

His first need was for fire. He cut a small straight branch and scooped a small round hole in a fallen tree. Sitting astride the hole of the tree, he started spinning the slender rod rapidly between his palms. A thin curl of smoke began to rise. Next he searched for some brittle rock. From the glass-like material he patiently fashioned a primitive hunting knife.

He had noted in the forest a spot where tracks in the trampled mud told him many animals came down to drink. Hither, at dusk, the hungry ape-man made his silent way, swinging through the tree branches with the grace and ease of a monkey. Except for the heavy burden upon his heart he would have been happy in this return to the old, free life of his boyhood.

In a great tree that overhung the trail, his lithe, muscular legs drawn up ready to spring, Tarzan crouched waiting for his "dinner" to appear. Presently, Bara, the deer, came daintily down to drink. But more than Bara was coming! Behind the graceful buck came another which the deer could neither see nor hear. But from his elevated position the ape-man saw Numa, the lion.

With a sudden start the deer paused for an instant, trembling, in his tracks, and then with a swift bound dashed straight down the path beneath Tarzan's ambush. Not a hundred yards behind him came Numa. If the ape-man were to dine tonight, he must act quickly. Could he do it? Even as he asked himself the question, the hungry man hurled himself from his perch.

"CLOVER LEAF" SALMON COMPANY SELECTS PETERBORO FOR TEST OF RADICAL BUSINESS CHANGE

Women of Peterborough Regarded as Representative of Canadian Womanhood.

"EXAMINER" ALSO FACTOR.

Company Extending "Clover Leaf" Brand to All Its Salmon Lines.

The packers of Clover Leaf Sockeye Salmon, the largest fishing company in the world, are paying to the people of Peterborough a notable, if not an unique, compliment.

This British Columbia company has selected two Ontario cities, Peterborough and Kingston, as ideally representative Canadian communities to test a contemplated extension of the trade name "Clover Leaf" to all its products.

In the Pacific Coast catch of salmon there is not only the red or sockeye, but also a medium red salmon called "cohoe," and a third variety designated as "pink." They are mainly differentiated by their distinctive degrees of color.

Actual Dominion-wide investigation has shown that the "Clover Leaf" sockeye or red salmon is the most popular of all brands of red salmon. Sales and production figures verify the reports that come from wholesale and retail distributors and from consumers themselves.

"Clover Leaf" Established

In other words the brand "Clover Leaf" has a high and established reputation in the Canadian market. But, up to the present, "Clover Leaf" has applied only to the company's product of sockeye or red salmon. This company's pack of cohoes and pink salmon, two distinct species or varieties, has been spread out under sixty-two brands or trade names. They possess all the characteristic "Clover Leaf" quality, but the public has not been aware of that fact. The public has undoubtedly associated the name "Clover Leaf" only with the red or sockeye salmon and its white-labelled wrapper.

The "Clover Leaf" company are retaining the distinctive white tins for their red sockeye salmon, and their innovation is this: they purpose packing their cohoes or medium red salmon in green-labelled tins, and their pink salmon in pink labels. But, all three brands will be "Clover Leaf."

External distinguishing features will be in the colors of the labels. The white remains unchanged. Just the same "talls" and half-pound tins so many people have been buying for years past!

New Tins on Shelves

The green and pink labels bearing the words and sign of the Clover Leaf will be newcomers on the shelves of Canadian stores. That is the company's plan which it is trying out in Peterborough. It was announced in a big advertisement in The Examiner two days ago, and the campaign of introducing the two new "Clover Leaf" lines is now in progress.

Appeal to Women

Naturally, this appeal is directed chiefly to the women of Peterborough. They already know the high standard of "Clover Leaf" or red salmon. All the experience in purchasing home supplies falls within their distaff side of domestic responsibility. Their husbands and families perhaps only seldom, and even then but casually, see the containers.

But, in any event, the women have a full knowledge of brands and their quality, and as they have shown a preference for "Clover Leaf" in the red salmon class, the company is confident of their immediate approval of the two other lines,—the medium red salmon or cohoe in the green tins, and the pink salmon in the pink-labelled tins.

As a popular means of enlisting the co-operation of the women of Peterborough, the "Clover Leaf" company is offering their three lines at a sharply reduced, introductory price. They have prepared for the purpose of this campaign a special carton containing three tins, one of each of three varieties—the white-labelled "Clover Leaf" sockeye salmon, which is a favorite already in many homes; the green-label tin of cohoe or medium red salmon; and the pink wrapper tin of pink salmon.

The company is reducing sixty-two brands to these two green and pink-labelled "Clover Leaf."

Before the campaign is concluded representatives of the company will call at the homes to ask Peterborough's home-makers the simple question as to how they liked these two new lines of "Clover Leaf" salmon.

Have 45 Canning Plants

The British Columbia Packing Company as already stated, is the largest fishing company in the world. They have 45 canning plants along the 700 miles of the British Columbia coast. This string of factories is to meet the company's essential requirement that the salmon must be canned within twenty-four hours at the latest from the time they are caught up out of the sea.

"Clover Leaf" production this year is 1,060,000 cases, each case of 48 pounds net. Twenty-five per cent. of their production is sold in Canada. The rest is exported. The twenty-five per cent consumed at home represents fifty per cent of the entire domestic trade of this country.

As an evidence of the "Clover Leaf" company's keen interest in this campaign it may be mentioned that Richard Gosse, managing director, and Clifford Thomas, production manager, are in Peterborough at present.

Selected Peterborough

"We selected Peterborough for one of our two trial cities in the east," said Mr. Gosse, "because from all our enquiries we concluded that it had a uniform or homogeneous population. We understand that you have very few people who may be called foreigners.

This is what should be called a typical Canadian city. We don't wish to flatter you, but we learned that you have good homes, your people are accustomed to buying good food and you have smart stores. We believe the women of Peterborough to be representative Canadian women. That also applies to Kingston.

"I might also tell you that we chose Peterborough because we found that The Peterborough Examiner has a most complete coverage in its circulation. That is, it goes into all the homes, and that gave us the opportunity of going into your home with our three lines of "Clover Leaf" salmon at this special price, and of finding out what is the response of Peterborough's women."

Such is the object of this British Columbia company, whose output reaches annually $9,000,000.

Mr. Gosse is confident that the two new "Clover Leaf" brands, the green and pink tins, will be received in Peterborough just as favorably as the white-labelled "Clover Leaf" sockeye salmon that has been established here for years.

Mr. Gosse is assisted here by representatives of the Walter Thompson Advertising Company.

Kovac Murder Conviction is Quashed

WELLAND MAN WILL BE GIVEN ANOTHER TRIAL

Accused Too Drunk to be Capable of Forming an Intent States Justice Mulock.

CASE IS REVIEWED.

Court Holds That the Trial Judge Erred in His Instructions to the Jury.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5.—(CP) — A murder conviction against Joseph Kovac, sentenced to be hanged for the slaying of a Crowland constable, was set aside by First Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall today, and a new trial ordered.

In the judgment, Chief Justice Sir William Mullock declared there cannot be a conviction of murder unless the jury had found the accused, in causing death, was guilty of intent.

The defence pleaded drunkenness and it is held by the Appeal Court, "That the learned judge erred in his instructions to the jury as to the test to be applied in determining the guilt or innocence, whereas in the case, insanity was neither pleaded nor attempted to be proved.

Case Is Reviewed

The circumstances of the were briefly given.

The accused on the evening of Sept. 2, this year, had been drinking in the cellar of his home in Welland where he resided with a woman, and she the Chief Justice says, gave evidence in which she said she saw the accused drinking from a gallon jug of cherry wine and cleaning a double barrelled shot gun. She swore he was angry and using profane language. Later she again went down to the cellar and noticed that there were only about "three fingers" left in the jug.

"The accused" states the Chief Justice, "was cursing and mad," according to the story and the woman took the jug upstairs.

Almost immediately she heard a shot fired and she called the police. In response two constables arrived. Constable McNichol left the car and proceeded to the house. On his arrival a shot was fired through the window of the house and McNichol was hit in the head by numerous grains of shot. He fell to the ground and was removed to the hospital and died almost on arrival.

"The evidence" the Chief Justice continues, "fully warrants a finding that the accused fired the fatal shot, in fact this was practically admitted The only defence was that the accused was so drunk as to be incapable of forming an intent, and therefore at most was only of manslaughter."

Tests Are Different

It had been previously held it is ruled, "that the test of criminal responsibility is not the same in a case of drunkeness as in the case of insanity, and upon a plea of drunkenness where insanity is not pleaded, the jury should not be asked to consider whether if the accused knew what he was doing, he knew also that he was doing wrong."

"The law regarding drunkenness not amounting to insanity, is different from insanity which is a visitation of providence, and the test applied to the state of mind of an insane person," is the view expressed by the Chief Justice on behalf of the court.

MISSING NURSE FOUND IN FIELD

Hamilton Woman Disappears Again After Being Put On Bus By Officer.

BRIDE OF FEW MONTHS.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5.—Missing for the last six days, Mrs. H. G. Rorke, Hamilton nurse and bride of a few months, was found in a field at Humber Bay yesterday by Constable George Simpson of Mimico. He placed her aboard a bus bound for Hamilton, but again the woman disappeared. According to the driver she reached the bus terminal in the Mountain city, but advices from her home are to the effect she has not arrived there.

Constable Simpson stated when he found the woman she declared she had slept in the field all night. The two nights previous she had stayed in a Toronto hotel, she said, under an assumed name. She said she walked from Toronto to the western suburb.

"Pea-Souper" Halts Traffic in Channel

LONDON, Dec. 5 (A.P.)—One of London's notorious pea-soup fogs rolled inland from the coast to-day, choking the city streets with slowly moving traffic and blocking all navigation in the Thames.

Two cross-Channel vessels, fog-bound half way between England and France, informed shore stations by radio that they had enough food aboard but they were badly in need of water. So thick was the fog, however, that other craft could not set out with supplies.

KIWANIANS HEAR BISHOP O'CONNOR

Better to Build Than to Destroy So Let All Be Builders, Declared Speaker.

PROUD OF PETERBORO.

"You are builders of the city; of the nation—onward builders—onward the Kiwanis Club. Onward on the basis of individual righteousness on the basis of education and the triumph of religion," were His Lordship Bishop O'Connor's concluding remarks to members of the local Kiwanis Club at their noon luncheon at the Empress Hotel to-day.

President Carl S. Browne called upon J. A. O'Brien to introduce His Lordship, who was accompanied by Revd. J. J. O'Brien of Sacred Heart Church.

"The title Bishop O'Connor is no strange one in the Catholic Diocese of Peterborough," said Mr. O'Brien. The present Bishop's predecessor by one was also a Bishop O'Connor, a relative of the present Bishop. There was also in the Diocese of Peterborough an Archbishop O'Connor, also a relative of the present Bishop.

His Lordship comes to us, said Mr O'Brien, with a reputation as a priest, a scholar, and a gentleman. He also possesses a faculty for after-dinner speaking. In his association with Bishop Fallon of London Bishop O'Connor was responsible for opening one of the affiliated colleges of Western University in London. For the whole of the eighteen years' existence of that college it has been under his guidance.

For a period of fifteen years His Lordship was Vicar-General of the Diocese of London, later he was created a Monsignor with the title Domestic Prelate, which is but a step below the title of Bishop. On the

DOMESTIC MARKET GOOD.

The De Laval Company looks forward to 1931 with confidence that business in their own particular field will increase, and that all Canadian industries will be roused to renewed activity.

"The tide has turned and Canadian business is sailing out of the doldrums of so-called depression," W. R. Breyfogle, general manager of the De Laval told The Examiner to-day. "I believe that 1931 is going to be a very good year—a year of recovery in many lines, even those which have not suffered much will be stimulated."

Last Months Better

Mr. Breyfogle stated that his optimism was partly based on the trend in the DeLaval Company's business. October and November of this year for the DeLaval plant here was much ahead of the same two months in 1929, which foreshadows the larger opportunities to arrive in 1931.

He said that the domestic market for DeLaval products had not been bad this year, but that the company's export business to the United States had fallen off due to the agricultural situation existing in that country. "Our domestic business has really been equal to that in many years of the recent past which we consider good." Mr. Breyfogle stated.

"The exclusion of New Zealand butter is helping us a great deal. It has placed a responsibility and de-

SIGN UPON TREE SHOWS AVIATORS MAY BE LIVING

Pilot Treks Miles to Abandoned Plane Seeking Missing Trio.

NOTE SAID "FOOD NEEDED."

Prospector Reports Cabin With Remains of Moose Near Burke's Ship.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Dec. 5.—(C.P.)—Six week old carvings on a north country tree and reports of the finding of a fresh-killed moose to-day brought hope that Capt. E. J. A. Burke and two mates still live, after being missing in British Columbia's rugged interior eight weeks. Eleven days ago, the Burke plane was sighted where it made a forced landing on the Liard river.

Returning to White Horse, Yukon, after treking miles over snow to the abandoned plane, Search Pilot E. L. Wasson stated that he had found a note carved on a nearby tree reading:: "October 17—leaving for Wolf Lake. Need food badly." Wolf Lake is 50 miles distant from the spot where the plane came down as Burke sped westward from Liard Post toward Atlin, B.C.

Prospector Finds Cabin.

But from Portland Canal came optimistic news. A prospector newly returned from the interior told members of the Coastguard cutter Cygan, engaged in the quest for Pilot Robin Renham and two missing companions, that he had found a cabin not far from where Burke's plane was found; the building showed evidence of being recently occupied and remains of a moose were left there.

Pilot Wasson is awaiting further orders before he continues on the quest for Burke, who was accompanied by Emil Kadin and Bob Martin. Search for the Renahan party, lost six weeks ago en route to aid in the quest for Burke, is about to be abandoned on the belief that his plane plunged into the sea somewhere along the Pacific Coast. Renhan was accompanied by Sam Clerf and Frank Hatcher.

POLICE INJURE 30 HINDUS

BOMBAY, Dec. 5 (A.P.)—Thirty persons were injured to-day when police attempted to break up a flag-placing ceremony of Indian Nationalists in the Esplanade Maipan in commemoration of completion of Mahatma Gandhi's seventh month in prison.

The police charged with their lathis, or staves, every time the crowd would grow and an attempt would be made to plant the Nationalist flag and hold the forbidden ceremony.

Grapefruit exports from the Isle of Pines this season are nearly 50 per cent greater than a year ago.

Australia Planning New Tariff Treaties

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 5. — (C.P.)—The Opposition in the House of Representatives to-day asked the Government what steps, if any, were being taken in regard to the tariffs against Australian wheat in overseas markets.

The acting Prime Minister, Hon. J. E. Fenton, explained that negotiations with France were now in progress, that Hon. Parker Moloney, Markets Minister, was on his way to Ottawa to discuss the situation with the Canadian Government, and that Prime Minister James Scullin was on his way to Italy to discuss it with the Italian authorities.

MYSTERIOUS GAS IS FATAL TO 48

Deadly Fumes Float Down Meuse Valley in Belgian Fog.

FARM ANIMALS VICTIMS.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 5. (CP) Forty eight persons are dead in the vicinity of Engis near Liege, apparently poisoned by a mysterious gas mixed with a fog which swept over the region last night and to-day.

Cattle have also been affected by this strange malady of the mist and many of them have died. To-day frightened and bewildered farmers drove as many as possible of their cows and horses into warm dry kitchens to shield them from the death outside.

One theory of the mysterious malady is that it has resulted from a leak of poison gas from some unknown source which mixed with the fog in the Meuve Valley and drifted slowly down the air currents.

Members of the Public Health Committee at Brussels, immediately upon hearing the report of the deaths, proceeded to Engis for an investigation.

Most of the deaths were at Engis, where 14 persons succumbed. In the Liege district itself eight are dead at Flamelle Haute, four at Flamelle Grande, five at Yvoy-Ramet, ten at Jemeppe-Sur-Meuse, and seven at Othee.

GIVEN 15 AND 10 YEARS.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5 (C.P.).—Convicted yesterday of a series offence against a young girl, William Marcus and Samuel Richmond, both of Toronto, were sentenced to 15 apd 10 years' respectively when they appeared before Mr. Justice Raney in the Criminal Assizes to-day. Marcus and Richmond were arrested last April and have been in custody since their apprehension.

PARLEY FAVORS BANNING SYSTEM OF INDIAN GOV'T

Sub-committee Completes List Likely to Come Under Federal Authority.

15 LOCAL GOVT'S PRESENT.

Propose Separate Conference to Draft New Constitution For Burma.

LONDON, Dec. 5 (By George Hambledon, C.P. Staff Correspondent).—The sub-committee of the Indian Round-Table Conference to-day completed its list of subjects which it considers might appropriately come within the jurisdiction of the Federal authority, should India be granted a new constitution on the Federal system.

Discussions to-day further revealed general agreement that the present dyarchal systems of government in the Provinces of British India should disappear. The 15 local Governments of British India as now constituted are administered by a Governor and Executive Council, and a Legislative Council of mixed elected and appointed members, the Governor having the power to over-rule the Ministers chosen from the elected councils if he considers their policy inconsistent with the discharge of his responsibilities.

Propose Separate Meet.

A separate conference to draft a new constitution for Burma is suggested, to follow the present Round-Table Conference for India, following acceptance of the principle that Burma should be separated from India. At to-day's special meeting of the Burma sub-committee Lord Russell (secretary to the British Transport Ministry), presiding, expressed the opinion that the principle of separation did not come within the terms of reference of the sub-committee. Its purpose was to consider the nature of conditions which would enable Burma to separate, he said.

Reds Along Yangtse Fire On British Boat

KIUKIANG, China, Dec. 5 (A.P.) —The British gunboat Aphis was gravely endangered yesterday by cannon fire in what was said to have been the sharpest engagement in many months between Red cannonaders infesting Yangtse River shores above this city, and foreign gunboats patrolling the river.

As far as is known, none aboard the Aphis was injured.

The British commercial steamer Wuku, carrying Rear-Admiral C. K. McLean, Commander of the British Yangtse patrol, was subjected to a similar attack shortly after the Aphis passed. The helpless vessel managed to escape uninjured because of the Reds' poor aim.

HUNTER BELIEVED SLAIN BY DEER NOW THOUGHT VICTIM OF MURDER

SHOT THROUGH BODY.

MILFORD, Pa., Dec. 5. (CP)— A mysterious tragedy of the deer hunting grounds of Pike County was under investigation by the authorities to-day.

What was at first believed to have been a battle to death between a wounded deer and Wellington de Groat, of Matamoras, N.Y., was viewed by police, in the light of developments, as a possible murder.

The body of De Groat, a hunting knife in his hand and his rife at his side, was found in the wilds about ten miles from here ast Tuesday. A few feet away a big buck lay dead, shot through the breast.

In reconstructing the supposed battle between the hunter and animal, De Groat's companions said he had wounded the deer and apparently had been crushed against the frozen ground by its antlers as he ran forward to deliver the death blow with his knife.

Then a post mortem examination revealed that De Groat's death had been caused by a bullet wound

SHEPARD TRIAL STARTS.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 4. — Trial of Major Charles A. Shepard, 50 years old army medical officer, charged with the poison murder of his second wife, got under way in a crowded Federal court here to-day. Shepard formerly resided at Belleville, Ont.

Selection of a jury was begun immediately after defense counsel waived formal arraignment and entered a plea of not guilty.

R-101 Crash Probe Brought to Close

LONDON, Dec. 5 (C.P.).—The long investigation into the loss of the British dirigible R-101 was brought to a close to-day. Sir John Simon, the head of the Board of Inquiry, announced that he could not say when he would be able to make its report.

GRIFFIN FOUND DEAD IN PLANE

FORMERLY OF HAMILTON.

DUNKIRK, N.Y., Dec. 5 (C.P.).—The gales that sweep Lake Erie have claimed another victim, snatching him from the air this time to plunge him to death in a lonely swamp.

William M. Griffin, of Berea, Ohio, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., has been found dead at the controls of his plane in a morass far off the beaten air lane he had been flying from Buffalo to Cleveland when the fury of the storm caught him.

Griffin took off from Hamilton in a small monoplane of his own design on Monday, Nov. 24, for Cleveland. He landed at Buffalo on the same afternoon for more fuel, leaving later in the teeth of a furious gale for Cleveland.

Two rabbit hunters, roaming trails of the muskegs near Bear Lake, between Brocton and Stockton, in Chautauqua County, came upon the wreckage of Griffin's plane.

Union Delegates Order 70,000 Men To Work Monday

No Details of Settlement Given Out, But It Is Assumed the Miners Accepted Owners' "Spreadover" Proposals in One Form or Another.

WORKERS HAD DESIRED STRAIGHT 7½ HOUR DAY AS WAS PROVIDED IN NEW COAL MINES ACT

Decision to Call Off Strike Reached Unanimously at Meeting of Mine Leaders in Glasgow — Alleviation of Uneasy Feeling in British and Welsh Mines Expected.

LONDON, December 5 (Canadian Press). — A strike in the Scottish coalfields which was called on December 1 was ended to-day when a conference of union delegates ordered the men back to the pits on Monday.

The Scottish strike was at bottom a protest against the "spreadover" working schedule under which the mine owners proposed to work their shafts in five 8-hour shifts and one 5-hour shift a week, instead of on the straight 7½-hour day provided in the new Coal Mines Act.

Seventy thousand miners walked out last Monday when the new Act became effective.

Decision Unanimous.

The decision to call off the strike was reached unanimously at a meeting of miners' leaders in Glasgow. No details of the settlement were made public, but it was assumed that the miners accepted the owners' "spreadover" proposals in one form or another.

A notable alleviation of the whole confused and uneasy situation now existing in the British and Welsh mines is expected to follow the ending of the Scottish strike.

SIX SENTENCED PRISON TERMS AT WINNIPEG

Lashes Also Meted Out to Men Convicted of Robbery Counts.

YOUTHS SUSPENDED.

Three Sent to Prison For Robbery and Abuse of Aged Couple.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 5 (C.P.)—Lashes and lengthy terms in the penitentiary were meted out to-day in Police Court to six men found guilty of a series of robberies in this city recently. Two other youths were given suspended sentences by Magistrate Graham.

George Scott, found guilty of robbing the Canada Malting Company of $2,139, and aiding in the robbery of the home of an aged married couple, was sentenced to seven years in penitentiary and ten lashes.

Two other men were charged with accompanying Scott in the raid on the married couple's home. They were Cecil Helgason and Peter Devries. Helgason was sent to prison for three years and will receive 20 lashes. Devries will serve three years and receive five lashes.

The three men were said to have entered the aged couple's dwelling, ransacked the house and finding only $100 in cash became enraged. The trio abused the aged couple and locked them in the cellar before escaping.

The other men found guilty of a number of robbery charges and sentenced to-day were:

Raymond Anderson, three years and ten lashes.

John Lamb, five years and ten lashes.

William Watkins, three years and five lashes.

SUNDAY SHOWS DONE IN LONDON

High Court Rules Council Had No Authority to Make Agreement.

ENTERTAINMENTS ILLEGAL.

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 5. (By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Press Staff Correspondent). — Important consequences for all branches of the entertainment business may follow the High Court's ruling that the London County Council has no right to permit London moving-picture theatres to operate on Sunday, since all public entertainments on the Sabbath are illegal under the Lord's Day Observance Act of 1781.

To date, what counsel has described as a "gentlemen's agreement" has existed between the moving picture theatres and the city authorities under which the council refrained from prosecuting the theatres remaining open, providing that a percentage of the Sunday profits went to charity.

The High Court judgment however rules that the County Council acted ultra vires, to adopt the familiar term of the Privy Council. Mr. Justice Swift used a less judicial term when he described the "gentlemen's agreement" as "all bunkum."

THREE CHILDREN PERISH IN FIRE

ONE CHILD SURVIVES.

GORE BAY, Dec. 5.—(CP)—Tragedy struck swiftly at the family of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Fogal, residents of the Gore Bay district, and left them mourning the death of three of their children, who were trapped in their farm house, razed by fire.

The dead are Dorothy Fogal, aged 5, Elva, 2, and Gladys, 11 months. Gertrude, aged 5, who also was in the house at the time of the outbreak, was the sole survivor.

Neither of the parents was at home. They returned to find their house a pile of ruins and three of their children, whom they had left playing only half an hour earlier, burned almost beyond recognition.

Mrs. Fogal left the house to visit a neighbor before leaving for town to purchase food supplies. She told the authorities that a fire had been left in the stove, as it was bitterly cold, and she believes her children may have upset it while playing.

The father had accompanied another neighbor to a roadside about half a mile from his farm, where the neighbor's car had stalled. It was while they were attempting to start the car that Gertrude came screaming in their direction to tell them of the tragedy.

The two men rushed back to the house, but they were too late to save the children. When they arrived the frame dwelling was burning fiercely, and without any means of battling the blaze, the men were helpless.

A few minutes later the mother reached the scene and hysterically attempted to rush into the blazing house. She was restrained by the small group which had gathered.

An inquest will be held, the date of which has not yet been set.

PRINCE MICHAEL A MOTORIST

Seymour Township Boy Wins Honors

ESSAY CONTEST FINALS HELD AT CASTLETON

Donald Lloyd of S. S. No. 1 is Winner of W. A. Fraser Trophy.

NORTHUMBERLAND COUNTY.

COBOURG, Dec. 5 (Special to The Examiner).—Donald Lloyd of S.S. No. 1, Seymour Township, near Campbellford, was the winner of the Northumberland County Oratorical finals held at Castleton last night. He received, for safe-keeping in his school for one year, the handsome silver trophy presented by W. A. Fraser, M.P., who also donated 28 other township and town contest cups and minature replicas which will be the permanent possession of the winners.

The success of the preliminary contests in townships and towns, culminating in the triumphant conclusion to-night, is attributed by the executive of the Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association to Mr. Fraser's open-handed generosity which stimulated interest to a point that no one, three months ago, dared to anticipate.

The second prize, a silver cup presented by Warden W. H. Nelson, of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham and distinguished for its beauty, went to Edna Snelgrove of South Monaghan township.

The third prize, a cup presented by F. J. McArthur, M.L.A., was won by Norma Arkels of the Colborne Public School.

Wins Second Cup

The champion orator, Donald Lloyd of Seymour, was presented with a second championship cup, the gift of R. B. Dawson, president of the Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association of Northumberland.

This, together with the Fraser Trophy and the Fraser township Trophy which he won a few days ago, will be kept in the school he attends. He will also receive miniatures of all three for permanent souvenirs. The same applies with regard to township cups previously won to the second and third prize winners.

The Northumberland champion, it was announced, will attend a district elimination contest to be held in Peterborough Normal School early in the New Year when students from Peterborough, Haliburton, Durham, Northumberland, Hastings and Prince Edward Counties will compete for the honor of entering the Provincial oratorical finals to be held at Toronto in connection with the Ontario Educational Association meeting during Easter week, 1931.

Judges of to-night's County oratorical contest were W. M. Morris, Toronto, secretary of the Provincial Trustees and Ratepayers' Association, and S. Farmer, editor of the Port Perry "Journal." These two gentlemen served as judges through the appointed judges failure to arrive.

Every contestant received a prize consisting of a handsome fountain pen set and a sweater coat. Those competing in addition to the winners, Lyla Allen, Percy Township, who spoke on "My Homework"; Sidney Casson, Brighton Township, "Story of the Automobile"; Sandy MacDonald, Hastings, "Story of the Automobile"; William McLauchlin, Haldimand Township, "A Trip to Market"; Gerard Black, representing Campbellford, and a student of the Separate school there, "Story of an Automobile"; William Halstead, Alnwick Township, "Going to Market"; Elizabeth Solomon, Brighton Village, "Story of an Automobile"; Nora Hennessey, Murray Township, "How I Can Help at Home"; Doorthy Craig, Cramahe Township, "What a Girl Can Do to Help"; Muriel Hodgetts, Cobourg schools, "The Creek"; and

Car Jumps Rails; Workman Injured

LINDSAY, Dec. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. C. Wormak, a C.N.R. sectionman of Haliburton, was badly injured on the I.B. & O. branch on Tuesday. He was riding and operating a gasoline car when it jumped the rails with Wormak under it. It was feared at first that the man was fatally injured, but he only sustained painful body injuries and a crushed leg.

BRANT FARMERS STAGE DOG HUNT TO SAVE SHEEP

LOSS IN ONE DISTRICT IS 43.

Every Farmer May Be Given Power of Special Constable—Industry Threatened.

BRANTFORD, Dec. 5—The troubles of Brantford Township farmers and Council caused by dogs running wild have by no means ended. Yesterday a complaint came in from the township boundary near Onondaga that 17 sheep from one flock had been destroyed. It is suggested that every farmer in the district may be made a special constable, with power to shoot dogs found straying on farms after dark. The whole sheep industry in this district is threatened, it is declared.

Posse Stages Hunt

Farmers of Harley district conducted an all-day chase for sheep-killing dogs. Spying two tearing at a sheep owned by Arthur Beron, near Burford, word was sent out, and soon a posse of 15 men assembled. Shots were fired at the animals, but they seemed to have become as wild as wolves, and made for the open country. The chase led the farmers through swamps and across many farms. A motor car was called into service, but just as the pursuers believed they had head off their quarry the elusive dogs again slipped away.

Loss of sheep by dogs in the Harley district has reached a total of 43, among the suffers being William Burtch, Dan McPherson, Clarence Smith, Henry Malcolm and Arthur Beron.

RUMOR BENNETT TO CALL PARLEY

Will Discuss Repeal of Colonial Laws Validity Act.

PRIOR TO NEXT SESSION.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5. (CP)—From authoritative sources at the Parliament buildings here it has been learned Premier R. B. Bennett, now enroute home from the Imperial Conference at London, will call a conference of Provincial Premiers to discuss abrogation of the Colonial Laws Validity Act. It is understood the conclave will be held prior to the next session of the Dominion Parliament.

The forthcoming conference will endeavor to formulate plans agreeable to the Dominion Government and the Provinces, it is believed. The success of the conference here last winter of Provincial representatives in regard to the Security Frauds Prevention Act is looked upon as auguring well for a Round Table Conference of Provincial Premiers on the question of status.

Prior to his departure for England to officiate at the opening of the new Ontario building in London last month Premier Ferguson issued statement here declaring that as the Provinces of Canada jointly formulated the constitution of the Dominion, the Provinces had the right to be consulted before any amendments were made.

His declaration was concurred in by several other Provincial Prime Ministers.

COUNCIL PASSES STRINGENT ORDER IN N. MONAGHAN

Rigid Rules Laid Down Governing All Persons Seeking Township Assistance.

HAND IN PERMITS.

Members Decide to Number the Houses in Claraday District.

Rigid rules and regulations governing all persons seeking assistance from North Monaghan township were laid down at a special meeting of the township council held in the Court House, in this city, over which Reeve McIntosh presided, with all members present, yesterday afternoon.

It is decreed that all persons applying for relief or for work, from the municipality must hand in their liquor permits to the local vendor; an inspection of their homes must also be subjected to by the township relief officer, while no person operating an automobile, or owning a radio or other luxury need apply for assistance from the unemployment relief.

The question of numbering houses in Claraday district where sidewalks have been constructed was discussed by the Council. The Government is inaugurating a mail service in the district, and a resolution was passed that deputy reeve Waterman and Councillor Whitfield, with whatever help is needed are appointed to have all the houses in Claraday district numbered, where sidewalks have been constructed.

A letter was read from the secretary of the Unemployment Relief Fund approving sidewalk construction in the township of North Monaghan to the extent of $3,000.

Will Purchase Swamp

The question of purchasing a piece of swamp from G. N. Moncrief, to provide work for unemployed was dealt with and a resolution passed that the township accept Mr. Moncrief's offer to sell his wood to the township at $1 per cord.

A further resolution was passed that men engaged cutting wood should be paid $1.50 per cord and that James Patterson be appointed overseer, the cutting wages to be 30 cents per hour.

The following sidewalk accounts were passed for payment: Kingan Hardware Company (Lock street) $4.85; Kingan Hardware Company (Braidwood and Young streets), $15.25; A. Johnston, (four loads of stone, King George street), $8.00; G. Walter Green Company (grates and traps, Braidwood and George street) $41.88; G. Walter Green Company (grates, Lock street) $57.26; Peterborough Hardware Company (cement Young and King George streets) $442.00; H. D. Hickey (gasoline and oil, Gordon, Young and Payne Payne streets) $8.50; H. D. Hickey, (gasoline and oil, Lock street) $13.50; H. D. Hickey (gasoline and oil, Braidwood, Young and King George streets) $11.00; H. F. Doig, lumber, $18.75; City of Peterborough (water, for Gordon, Braidwood and Payne streets) $12.60; City of Peterborough water for Lock street) $20.44; Metallic Roofing Company (culverts), $38.40.

DISARMAMENT PLAYS BIG PART IN FRENCH CRISIS

President Doumergue Warned to Choose New Cabinet Accordingly.

NATIONS BACKING NEEDED.

France Must Decide Now Upon Naval and Air Policy.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—(AP)—International disarmament and security enter directly and prominently into the French ministerial crisis, Paul Boncour, France's leading authority on disarmament and former representative at the League of Nations told President Doumergue today.

M. Boncour, who is President of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, was called in by President Doumergue for a consultation regarding the choice of a Premier to succeed Andre Tardieu who resigned yesterday. He counselled the President to choose a cabinet which would give a first place to disarmament commission at Geneva has succeeded in preparing a draft convention, and because, he said, the forthcoming general disarmament conference will have a vital effect upon the future of Europe.

France, he told the President, will play an important role at this conference and must enter it with precise plans and figures "based upon the guarantees of International Security which will be given us."

He told the President that France must decide now upon her military and air policy and that this policy must be backed by the entire nation.

Windsor Resident Shoots Wife Down Then Turns Gun on Self.

BOARDER IS WITNESS.

WINDSOR, Dec. 5.—Marital troubles which have extended over a considerable period ended last night in the slaying of Mrs. Elizabe H. Yarmolowich, 45 years old, and the suicide of her husband, Stratton Yarmolovich, in their home, East Windsor According to statements to the East Windsor police, Yarmolovich entered the house about 9 o'clock, saying "You know what I came for?" Drawing a pistol he fired one shot, which struck his wife in the head and killed her instantly. He then fired a bullet into his own brain. The shooting was witnessed by Katy Nahorrik, a roomer, who was talking to Mrs. Yarmolovich when the husband entered the house.

FARMERS' PLIGHT IS BLAMED UPON OVER PRODUCTION

Bracken States Views Before Manitoba Municipalities Banquet.

NEW METHODS NEEDED.

Recommends Dominion Gov't Be Asked to Fill Payment of Old Age Pensions.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 4.—(CP)—Over-production of wheat arising out of high prices during post-war years was blamed last night by Premier John Bracken for present troubles of Prairie farmers. Mr. Bracken spoke before the delegates to the annual meeting of Union of Manitoba Municipalities, gathered at a banquet given in their honor by the Provincial Government.

"Who is to blame,' Mr. Bracken asked, "for encouraging cultivation of 12,000,000 more acres since the war, and the production of seven times more wheat than we can consume? The farmer should not be called on to bear the burden. There are some who say proposals to stabilize the price of wheat are unsound — but they are better than having to adopt the living conditions of the serf-agriculturists of Russia."

60,000,000 Added Acres

The cause of present difficulties lay in high prices for wheat in the years following the war, bringing in their train nearly 60,000,000 added acres of wheatlands throughout the world and resultant depressed prices, the Premier asserted. Only calm investigation of the causes of depression, adoption of new methods of efficiency in production, and trade arrangements with importing countries to insure markets could improve conditions, he believed.

Mr. Bracken recommended to delegates that they call on the Dominion Government to implement its promise to assume payment of old age pensions. When the Dominion did that, he said, the Provinces would further relieve the municipalities of the health levy.

The Irish Free State has a population of 2,943,000, according to a report just issued.

Another Ocean Giant Afloat

The sister ship of the White Star motor vessel Britannic, world's largest cabin liner, now taking shape in the Belfast shipyards of Harland and Wolff, will be named the Georgic, it was announced in a cable just received at the Montreal office of the line.

As in the naming of the Britannic, a name has been chosen that has been borne with distinction by an earlier vessel of the same line, and at the same time which has a patriotic significance to subjects of His Majesty King George V. throughout the world.

The first Georgic was a twin-screw vessel of 10,000 tons, built in 1895 for the New York-Liverpool service. She was engaged in carrying away supplies when she was sunk by a German raider in 1916 in mid-Atlantic.

The new Georgic, which will join the New York-Liverpool service of the line, will be an exact duplicate of the Britannic, which was put into service last July as the world's largest cabin liner and the largest British motor vessel and which has already achieved a notable success in the North Atlantic, having carried more than 7,000 passengers since her maiden voyage. The Georgic will be 680 feet long, 83 feet beam, 43 feet 9 ins. depth and upwards of 27,000 tons gross register.

Other resolutions were: better endorcement of the motor light law by the provincial police with the idea of eliminating the one-light glare light and the no light motor; establishing of country health units similar to those in Quebec; the bonusing of doctors in outlying sections of the province; the establishing of a summer course for vocational guidance training for teachers. The banishment of gun pictures on advertisements for cigarettes and sterilization of the unfit were the aims of the resolutions passed.

Reference was made to the cordial gestures to foreign officers of former enemy countries who attended the Royal Winter Fair horse show and it was pointed out that peace was advanced by such attitude, the same went on record as in favor of showing respect to those who fell in the war by taking part contributing to the decoration of cenotaphs.

Mrs. Lang said: "Nothing has been said in the report about a home for pre-delinquent girls like the Bowmanville school for boys, but we will press on till we get it!" Mrs. Lang also stated that she could see no reason why the Institute should not bring in a resolution for better liquor laws.

The matter of being a school trustee, was discussed, it is quite legal for a farmer's wife to be a school trustee, if she has the necessary property qualifications either in her own right or as a joint owner.

J. B. Fairbairn, deputy minister of agriculture in his address asked the Institute to assist in keeping and circulating Canadian money at home.

Miss Lauro Rose Stephens, the first Women's Institute lecturer gave in her address a splendid description of her mission to the International Institutes' Convention at Belgium. Mrs. Walker also gave an interesting account of the convention at Belgium.

On Wednesday morning, the 260 farm girls who were guests of the Government at the Winter Fair took charge of the meeting and joined the Seniors for lunch and were alo guests at the banquet tendered to the Convention at the Royal York.

Col. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, Sir Joseph Flavelle, Canon the Hon. H. J. Cody, and the Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, addressed the gathering.

During the last session of the convention Mrs. George Edwards, of Komoka spoke on Canadian Industries. "We are good citizens of a good country, if we want to be the best citizens of the best country we must support all Canadian industries and use Canadian products."

Speaking on the Ontario Research Federation, Sir Joseph Flavelle told of the work being done by this organization for the development and improvement of the agricultural industry and farm life. Stressing efficiency he said that in his own plant an annual saving of $65,000 has been effected through buying efficiently.

Miss M. V. Powell spoke on Canadian Textiles, cotton, linen, silk and wool and Dr. Helen MacMurchie on the health problems in which the rural women could join in eliminating.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—Receipts at the Union Stock yards yesterday were: 3 cattle, 31 calves, 21 hogs, 63 sheep and lamb.

There were 800 stale cattle for sale at the opening of the market. They were mostly plain butchers and store cattle. Trade continued slow with only 100 head over the scales by 11 o'clock. A few handy weight steers sold at $6.50 a cwt. and some cows at $4 to $4.20 a cwt. Bids on common killers were down 50 cents a cwt. for the week.

Two loads of stockers and feeders sold at $5.25 to $5.50 a cwt. Most of the stale cattle will be carried over the week-end. The light supply of calves consisted of fair to good quality vealers, which sold from $9 to $11.25 a cwt., or down about 25c a cwt. for the week. Lambs sold unchanged from yesterday at $8.50 to $8.75 a cwt., for good ewes and wethers. Sheep closed steady at $8.75 f.o.b. and $9.75 to $10 w.o.c. for bacon. Truck hogs sold at $9.50 to $9.75.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

EAST BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 5. — (CP)—Hogs 2,600; below 250 lbs. active to all interests, 5-10 higher; others about steady; bulk desirable 140-240 lbs. 9.10-91.15 below 140 lbs. 9.10-9.25, 260-230 lbs. butchers 8.75-9.00, packing sows 7.10-7.60.

Calves 150, vealers barely steady, 14.00 down.

Sheep 600, fat lambs steady to slightly lower, others fully steady good to choice ewe and wether lambs 8.50-8.75, mixed offerings 8.00.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.— Wholesale eggs and butter were slightly lower on the produce and dairy markets here yesterday.

Carlot prices of eggs were 1 to 2 cents a dozen lower. Fresh extras were unchanged at 60 cents, while fresh firsts were 1 cent lower at 54 cents, and fresh pullets 2 cents cheaper at 48 cents a dozen. Receipts were 766 cases.

Regretted grass — Eastern Townships No. 1, pasteurized, creamery butter was down ¼ cent, being quoted at 28¾ to 29 cents a pound. Solids were 32 cents, and prints 33 cents a pound, to retailers. Receipts totalled 106 boxes.

The cheese market was unchanged. Ontario sold at 12 5-8 to 12 1-4 cents, and Quebec at 11 1-2 to 11 3-4 cents a pound. Receipts were 182 boxes.

On the potato market New Brunswick Green Mountains were quoted at 90 to 95 cents per 80-pound bag, Prince Edward Island potatoes were $1 for Cobblers and $1.10 for Mountains.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Stimulated by wheat purchase, orders apparently form farm board allies, grain values took a late upward slant yesterday. Shipping call for wheat was better than for some time, and there was an improvement in domestic milling demand. Future delivery purchases of rye also was a bracing influence, especially December deliveries at Winnipeg, which sold approximately 18c under Chicago, putting Canadian rye on an import basis, the United States tariff on rye being but 15 cents a bushel.

Wheat closed irregular, but mostly showing an advance, ranging from ¼ off to 1c higher than Wednesday. Corn closed at ¼ decline to 7-8 cent gain; oats, ¼ to ½ cent higher, and provisions from 15 cents lower to a rise of 10 cents.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 5. — Receipts of fresh eggs on the local market were fairly plentiful yesterday, and though prices were lowered to shippers and retailers on Wednesday, they again took a tumble. A sure proof of the quality of supplies on hand was the indifference of the wholesalers to shipments of pullet extras; they did not want them, as they claimed there were too many sizes coming.

Egg Prices

Country shippers were quoted 53c to 55c for extras, 48c to 50c for firsts, and 28c to 29c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were offered extras in cartons at 60c extras loose 58c, firsts loose 53c, and seconds loose 33c. Brokers were quoting fresh supplies at 55c for extras, 50c for firsts, 30c for seconds, and 40c for pullet extras, graded and in free cases. There were some sales at lower figures than these, according to reports on the market, fresh extras going at 53c.

Butter

Trading on the butter market was unchanged, but prices were easier than previously at 29c to 30c for No. 1, and 28½c to 29c for No. 2 creamery. The despatch from Vancouver, regarding shipments of Australian supplies, was very disturbing, but dealers seemed confident that Ottawa would act in the very near future toward rectifying the situation.

Cheese

Cheese was selling at lower prices yesterday, but the amounts changing hands were very small. Prices to shippers were 14c for new, large, 14½c for twin, and 14½c for triplets. Quotations to the retail trade were steady at 16½c for new large, 16¾c for twins and 17c for triplets.

Turkeys

There were a few cars of turkeys on spot from the West yesterday and many more have started to roll this way for the Christmas trade, but buying has not been too good, as it is a little early. So far local buyers have been quoting country shippers from 20c to 28c per pound, according to size and quality of birds shipped, with some stating they will pay best market price on the day received.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 5. — Easiness in Winnipeg wheat prices during the past week ended yesterday with a 2¼c to 1¾c dump on the wheat market. Heavy buying by shorts near the close forced prices upward, despite the weakness on foreign markets.

Export trading overnight was small and demand for cash wheat yesterday was negligible, values remaining unchanged. Oats were the active feature of the coarse grain section, the other grains displaying no activity.

The wheat values went right through the sessions until the final half-hour without a sign of anything unusual. Near the close, however, the shorts started covering their lines and commenced buying all available wheat, forcing the quotations upward.

WRIGHTLEY CASE FULLY DISCUSSED

HAVELOCK, Dec. 5. (Examiner Correspondence)—The regular meeting of Belmont and Methuen council was held in the Armstrong House on Saturday, Nov. 29, with all members present. It was moved by Whitney and Vansickle that the township of Burleigh and Anstruther be authorized to have the fence built by Mrs. Robbins on the road allowance from the Jack's Lake road cottage to the hill removed from the road allowance. (Carried).

Moved by Vansickle and McNeeley that Reeve Griffith and Councillor Whitney be authorized to have the Wrightley case set back, pending the possibility of a settlement on receiving word from Mrs. Kirby who was injured in the accident on Rock Hill last winter. These two will also act in seeing about the removal of Mr. Anderson of Cordova to a sanitorium and in arranging for the care of Mr. Anderson's wife and family.

Moved by Whitney and Vansickle that the following accounts be passed and orders drawn on treasury for the same:

John Pollock, payment of supplies to Anderson family at Cordova, $44.01; Carmen Steenburg, payment of unloading culverts at Pedlar, $6; Mrs. Sam Watson, payment of attendance on Mrs. Geo. Youmans, $30; James Freeman payment of supplies to Percy Mack, $3.89; Jas. W. Russell, sec'y-treas. Belmont Telephone, balance over debt and re telephone system, $352.40; G. Steeburg, voucher No. 17, $433.69; Dr. A. S. Thompson, medical attendance re Youmans, $45.70.

ANNUAL MEETING OF PINE VIEW SOCIETY

QUEENSBORO, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual meeting of the Women's Association for Pine View was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Holmes. The society has only five members, but they are all active and do a creditable amount of work each year. The income for the year amounted to $35.89. There was a balance on hand of $16.67 at the beginning of the year. The expenses for the year 1930 amounted to $36.94 and the balance on hand to date is $15.62. The activities of the society include knitting of mittens, socks, making of fancy articles and coarser garments, quilting quilts and afternoon teas.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were, president, Mrs. John Holmes; vice-president, Mrs. Daniel Holmes; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Holmes; secretary, Mrs. Joshua Anderson. The election of officers was conducted by the Rev. J. F. Everson. The books were audited by Mr. Everson and Mrs. Anderson. The January meeting is to take the form of a social evening at the United Church parsonage in Queensboro. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and a social half hour enjoyed.

District Notes

Mr. John Lynn, Mr. Arthur Lynn, Miss Emma Lynn and Miss G. M. Harper recently visited friends in Peterborough.

Mr. Felix LaPalm has completed the digging of a well at Pine Grove School. A plentiful supply of water was obtained at about fifteen feet.

The first sleighs of the season came into the village on Monday with loads of grain and wood. It was exactly one year ago on December 1st that sleighs were put into operation.

AT LAKEFIELD.

Little Miss H. Jeanie Miller entertained twelve little boys and girls at her home on Regent Street on Saturday afternoon at a jolly little party in honor of her fifth birthday. The weather not being favorable, the guests were entertained in the living-room by singing and playing games, and at five o'clock thirteen happy children, wearing gaily colored paper hats, sat down to the table which was well laden with the goodies which children love and prettily decorated in pink and white, centred by a birthday cake, topped with five pink candles, which were lit and the electric lights were turned off, each little guest made a wish, and all helped to blow out the candles. The hostess was the recipient of many gifts in honor of the event, which had proved so delightful for all. Mrs. E. A. Jones assisted Mrs. Miller in entertaining the young people. Among those present were: Misses Murietta Hull, Lilian Calberry, Mary Northey, Gladys Allan, Mary Alice Renwick, Audrey and Frances Mulkins, and Masters Jamie Hull, James Webster, Lloyd Allan, Harry and David Spence.

ANOTHER FLOOD OF BUTTER.

It is unfortunate that just at a time when Canada's dairying industry is getting firmly on its feet, as indicated by the splendid business reported by the De Laval Company, that the situation should be disturbed by alarming news from Vancouver to the effect that the Canadian market is to be flooded during the next few months with tons of Australian butter.

It is declared that because of the market situation in England, Australian butter producers are planning to pour 20,000,000 pounds of butter into this country before next April and to lay it down in Canada at the rate of 24 cents a pound with all charges paid.

The Patterson scheme of paying Australian producers a bonus of 12c per pound on all butter exported makes this low price in Canada possible for the wholesale price in Australia at the present time.

At the same time the dumping duty, it is believed, can be evaded by shipping butter into Canada on consigning and paying one cent a pound import duty.

Domestic production of butter has been increasing since New Zealand importations were cut off, the November make being the largest in seven years in a number of Canadian creameries, and the industry cannot afford a setback in the shape of bonused butter from Australia.

Peterborough is particularly concerned in this development, for the De Laval Company has been reflecting the increase in dairy production and was looking forward to a very busy period during the coming year, a prospect that is threatened by the reported flood of Australian butter.

A SPLENDID SHOWING.

Most gratifying and encouraging is the announcement that the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition had a surplus of $4,500 as a result of this year's show.

The 1930 Exhibition, with total receipts of over $26,000, must be listed as probably the most successful in the history of the event—a showing upon which the directors, who confidently planned for a big exhibition this year, are indeed to be congratulated.

When it is realized that many fall fairs throughout the country experienced smaller attendances this year, even the Canadian National Exhibition reporting a decided falling off, the success of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition in attaining a new financial level is a noteworthy achievement that reflects most favorable upon the business ability and vision of those entrusted with its management.

The splendid attendance and grandstand patronage unmistakably indicates the wisdom of the lower price scale adopted for the first time at this year's exhibition and confirms the assertion that with lower admission charges there would be an appreciable increase in attendance.

It is pleasing, too, to note that the all-round excellence of the Exhibition matched the financial success scored, inasmuch as the livestock exhibits showed a total of 1,137, as compared with 1,031.

The gains made in this respect show that Peterborough's Exhibition is fulfilling the primary object for which it was created, that of encouraging agriculture as Canada's basic industry.

CARING FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

Hon W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, declared in a recent speech that generous grants from the Provincial Government may be expected by the social service agencies which are carrying on special work for crippled children, and there is no doubt that public opinion will support the new policy.

Here in Peterborough the Rotary Club has made it possible for some eighteen local crippled children to be examined to-day by expert surgeons, and at the expense of the Rotarians, the special treatment ordered for the care of these because of financial conditions being unable to pay for the expert skill required to improve the condition of these handicapped children.

That is a most commendable work, freely and voluntarily undertaken by the public-spirited citizens who comprise the membership of the local Rotary Club and assumed without any thought of assistance from other sources.

At the same time there is reason to believe that the state itself has some responsibility in regard to crippled children, and has a right to assume some share of the expense.

This apparently is the view of Ontario's first Minister of Public Welfare, and his announcement of special grants for the carrying on of this work will be applauded by those who have given any thought as to what is involved in this wonderful work of making crippled children whole.

THE BANTAM CHAMPIONS.

In honoring the members of the local Maple Leaf Baseball Club, bantam champions of Ontario, last night the City Council showed a proper appreciation of the achievement of these clever young players in winning a provincial title.

It is well for a community to be known as a sporting centre, for manufacturers are attracted to and most people like to live in a place that has a reputation, not only of developing outstanding teams in various branches of sport but of properly recognizing the exploits of such teams.

Peterborough's baseball clubs have done her excellent service in spreading the city's fame far and wide; it is a lean year indeed in which no provincial championship comes this way.

This year, as last, the honor of bringing home an Ontario title fell to Peterborough's representatives in the youngest division of organized baseball, which is perhaps a most desirable place in which to start, inasmuch as the bantams of to-day are the juniors of to-morrow and the seniors of the day after.

The Maple Leaf team earned the championship by clever and effective baseball, and the City Council has done the right thing in paying a fitting tribute to this worthy young sporting organization, the only Peterborough club of any kind to win provincial honors during 1930.

FORGIVE US OUR MEANNESS.

Press despatches say that the Honorable Howard Ferguson, the new High Commissioner for London, will receive $50,000 per annum instead of about a quarter that amount received by his predecessors.

The Ottawa correspondent, who appears to have looked into the matter, says that the late Hon. Mr. Larkin received $12,000 in salary and $13,000 for expenses, which probably is correct.

It is a well-known fact that the nations of the world, for the most part, though lavish in expenditures in other directions, are meanly penurious when dealing with their representatives abroad.

The late Mr. Larkin was a very wealthy man and the interest on the amount he invested in a house more than consumed all his salary. This left him $13,000 for expenses which would not cover a period of more than three months at the longest. Sir George Perley was High Commissioner in London, and he also is a very wealthy man. He and Lady Perley were lavish entertainers, but the salary they received was a mere pittance compared with their expenditure.

At this distance it might look as though $50,000 were a lot of money, but to any person who has at first hand been in a position to ascertain approximately the cost of being High Commissioner in London it is a very reasonable appropriation.

To begin with, Canada's High Commissioner in London and his family must perform their share of public and social duties in no mean way, because the British people entertain lavishly and frequently. In addition to that, to put it bluntly, the salary of the High Commissioner heretofore would not pay for the food consumed by hungry Canadians who visited London, to say nothing of others. Queer as it may seem, when a citizen of any country represented in London visits there, he expects the man from his own country to entertain him, and in addition, see that he gets "what he wants when he wants it."

The same things can be said about our representative in Paris, who gets far too little, and always did. Also of Canada's representative at Japan, who is making good.

At Washington, although the Government was criticized severely for its expenditure in the United States capital, Canada's representative had to spend lavishly of his own money because this country was too penurious, as all countries are, to pay its representative a sufficient amount to enable him to sponsor his country in a dignified and impressive manner.

Vincent Massey poured out his own money in order that Canada might be properly represented in Washington, and unless Mr. Bennett is prepared to greatly increase the remuneration of the man he sends to Washington the latter will have to be very, very wealthy.

It might be noted that the United States is just as mean as Canada has been in this respect, and anyone who reads the letters of Walter Page will discover that a great dissatisfaction has existed for many years because Uncle Sam's representatives in London were compelled largely to finance themselves.

The result of the international representatives being poorly paid is that, unless the individual has wide credit or is willing to go into bankruptcy, he cannot, unless very wealthy, accept any of these useful posts. No matter how competent a man may be to discharge the duties devolving on an international representative, he must stand aside in order that some wealthy man who can afford to pay the shot may be given the position.

In the appointment of Mr. Ferguson this precedent has been broken, and he is being given a salary that will at least approximate his expenditure, and there is no doubt the Government will add a sufficient amount eventually to cover all his legitimate outlay.

If a man be capable of filling these positions with credit to his country there should be no hesitation by Parliament in paying not only a good salary but a sufficient amount to cover all the expenditure that must necessarily be made on behalf of his country.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

(Author of "Mary Della" and "The Girl in The Air")

CHAPTER ONE

It began this way.

Jean Melba had been to the Torrington-Winsted football game with Phillip Baldwin. Riding home in his shabby roadster, Phillip remarked that she was the best looking girl at the game. To which Jean had replied quietly:

"Is this the prelude to another proposal?"

"No," Phillip lied, and added, "I mean it."

And he did, of course. Jean was a composite of yellow hair, great blue eyes, a slightly upturned little nose, and a small, cherry-red mouth. Add a slim, lithe figure and you have an unquestionably pretty girl. Phillip not only meant it; he knew what he was talking about.

"I'm grateful," Jean told him. "But if you don't mind, let's talk about something less personal."

"All right," Phillip agreed, "we'll talk about me. I'm very much in love, I have a job that pays fair wages, I could give a nice girl three rooms and a kitchenette and a heart full of real devotion. Not only that, but . . ."

"All you need is the nice girl. Is that it? But why ask foolish questions? If I run into a nice girl, I'll tell her where to find you, Phil."

He was sensitive. She saw the hurt in his gray eyes. "Phill . . . please!" She put a hand on his arm and leaned toward him. "Why do you always have to bring up the same old subject? You know I like you . . . better than any other man I know; but . . . I'm simply not ready to settle down, Phil. I'm only nineteen and what have I seen . . . what have I done? I've just got to live a little first. After that . . ."

He nodded gravely. "By that time, I'll be dead of old age."

She laughed merrily. "Poor old decrepit Phil!" And then, seriously: "I don't necessarily mean years, Phil. If I could just get in the swim for . . . oh, a few months, long enough to know what it is, so I wouldn't always be dreaming about what it might have been . . ."

"I wish you'd get in and have it over with," he said petulantly.

She wanted to laugh, again but restrained the impulse.

For many minutes they rode through the peaceful twilight in silence, Jean slumped down in the seat with her head thrown far back, drinking in the cool, crisp air.

Presently she sat up with a little, "Oh . . .!" And with her eyes on a lonely little star, mumbled, "Star bright, star light, first star I've seen to-night; I wish I may, I wish I might have the wish I wish to-night . . . ."

Phillip grinned. "Wishing what?"

"You'd laugh."

"I promise not to."

"I wished that Santa Clause might come to see us this Christmas."

"Santa Claus!" He wiped the smile from his face with a comical gesture. "Say, it's about time you were growing up."

The little star twinkled gaily, and Jean winked back at it. "No girl ever quite outgrows the illusion of Santa Clause, Phil. She may think she does, but she doesn't. When she discards the child's St. Nicholas, she substitutes another patron saint. She couldn't live if she didn't."

"What does she call him, if not Santa Claus?"

Jean shrugged her shoulders vaguely. "Perhaps she doesn't call him—by name. But when she says 'I hope . . .' or 'I wish . . .', she's talking to him."

"I can't follow you," Phillip admitted smiling. "Anyway, we've gotten away from the subject. You wished that Santa Claus might come to see you Christmas . . . Was that all to the wish?"

"No."

"I'm not laughing."

"You will."

"Cross my heart."

She laughed gently. Then: "I wished that he might come and bring me the arest of all gifts . . ."

Phillip looked at her curiously. "And the rarest of all gifts is . . . ?"

"Adventure . . . !"

"The opportunity to 'live', as you put it?"

"Yes. To get out of the rut, Phil. To get into a fresh atmosphere, to see new faces, to run into the unexpected, to get a kick out of life for a change. Do you see what I mean, Phil?"

He nodded uncertainly. "I suppose so, Jean. You expect your wish to come true?"

She shook her yellow head sadly. "Of course not. I've wished it every Christmas since Dad died, and left me with the job of making my own living. The fun's in the wishing."

"And suppose you awake Christmas morning to find me waiting at the door with a marriage license?"

The boy was persistent. She wanted to be angry with him, but she laughed in spite of herself. "Phill," she said suddenly, a mischievous twinkle in her blue eyes, "if you are waiting at the door with a marriage license Christmas morning, do you know what I'll do?"

Phillip grinned. "Shoot me," he said, "or worse."

"Nothing of the kind. I'll . . . marry you!"

That is substantially how it began It was, in much greater degree than Phillip realized, Jean's final surrender. Since she had gone to work as te entire office force of the Red Diamond Novelty Company nearly a year before, she had been thrown with Phillip Baldwin daily. He was foreman of the Harrison Avenue Garage, just across the street from the Red Diamond plant and was frequently running in for a hurried chat. She went out with him now and again and came to like him, as she had told him, more than any other man she knew.

But she had never seriously considered him as a husband. Chiefly because she was old-fashioned enough to believe that love should precede marriage, and however much she liked Phillip, she was satisfied in her own heart that she did not love him How many times had he proposed, and how distasteful had she fund the task of repeatedly refusing him.

Her conditional acceptance the night they came from the football game was wholly unpremeditated. Long after she looked back to that night and understood that their conversation had forced her to it. "You expect your wish to come true?" he had asked, And she had answered, "Of course not . . ." and with her words had realized that her happiness depended upon her acceptance of the little that life gave her.

The wishing star was for wishing only. Reality demanded that she forget her silly dreams and extravagant ambitions and make the best of what she had. Adventure, she decided, she could not have: Phillip was hers for the taking. And, tentatively, she had taken him.

But if Jean Melba could have seen through the veil of time and circumstance that concealed the future, she might have understood that, after all, wishing stars are not for wishing only, and that reality, as they say of heaven, is a state of mind.

Teh next day, Monday, November 17th—a date to be remembered—Jean received a letter at the office that called up all old memories. It was from Mollie Wilder. Jean and Mollie had gone through high school together and had been imseparable until Mollie, after a violent quarrel with her stepmother, had suddenly departed, bag and baggage, for New York. It had been all of a year and a half since she had gone and during that time Jean had now and then heard from her, letters filled with the vicissitudes of a working girl in the big city but the dominant note of which had always been Mollie's unrestrained enthusiasm for its gayer attractions.

This letter was no exception, save that for the first time Mollie indulged in what she saw as a vain hope. She wrote:

"Why don't you come on down here and get the hay out of your eyebrows? They don't pay much money, but there are plenty of other ways of grabbing off a dollar here and there. The men are bigger saps than they are in Kelsey. You give them nothing but promises and make them pay and pay. It's a swell life, Jean, honey, and we could have a great time. I've got a bedroom, sitting room (how small but comfortable— and a kitchenette. How about it?"

Jean shook her head soberly. She was fond of Mollie, but she had never approved of her attitude toward life. Once long ago Mollie had told her: "I'm a poor working girl and the world owes me a good living. If I know my onions, I'll get it, sister."

She was evidently getting it, but her methods were not Jean's.

Another paragraph in her letter interested Jean particularly.

"I've met a swell kid from Moberly, Missouri, and is he crazy about me? Wants to get married right now! His name is Cyril Thatcher and I hear his family has plenty. But you know me. How long would I last as a blushing bride? He comes to the store for me almost every night and it looks like he's going to demand a showdown pretty soon, but I'll play him as long as I can."

Mollie's letter was on Jean's mind all morning, but during the afternoon she was too busy to think much about it. Earl Manley, president, treasurer and general foreman of the Red Diamond Novelty Company, called her out into the shop to check nearly 4,000 pounds of display fireworks to be shipped out to Atlanta next morning.

"I'll be glad when this stuff's gone,' Manley told her. "It's more dynamite than I like to have in the place at one time."

"Dynamite?" Jean asked.

"Same thing," said Manley. "I hate to think what would happen if anybody ever dropped a cigarette around here. Did you get the two gross of mixed shower bombs?"

Jean wrote, and checked, and rechecked. It was after six when they finished, and she all but ran to Mrs. Pritchard's a block away. Mrs. Pritchard was a kindly old soul, but she insisted that her boarders be on time for meals. Jean was rarely late and tonight she offered her landlady a hasty apology as she ran in.

"It's not your fault," Mrs. Pritchard said agreeably. "Go on in, child, and I'll get your soup."

Stretched out between clean, cool sheets that night, Jean found herself thinking of Mollie again. Of Mollie, and New York, and of her own dreams of someday going there as Mollie had done; only—she couldn't do what Mollie was doing. If she couldn't have a job that paid her enough to live on, she would rather stay in Kelsey where she could at least be respectable in her own eyes.

And then she was thinking of Phillip and of her promise. Would he be waiting at Mrs. Pritchard's door Christmas morning? Would she . . .

Whatever the question, it was never asked, for at that moment Jean's bed suddenly jumped from the floor like a bucking horse, the house trembled, and there came to her ears a noise like the break of doom.

She leaped to her feet, caught up a dressing gown, and ran to the door. The house still shook. A woman's voice on the top floor cried out hysterically: "It's an earthquake! Take me out of here! Take me . . ."

Jean knew better. She ran down the stairs in her bare feet, jerked open the front door and stepped out on the narrow porch.

As if in a stupor, Jean sat down on the top step and closed her eyes. Whatever else more important it might mean, the destruction of the Red Diamond Novelty Company had but one immediate significance to Jean Melba . . . she was without a job.

CHAPTER TWO

Fortunately, the Red Diamond conflagration, as it was described in The Kelsey Progress next morning, was checked before it spread to the neighboring houses. There was a momentary scare once when a shower of sparks came down on the roof of the Harrison Avenue garage across the street, but the ever vigilant Phillip was waiting there for just such an emergency and promptly removed the danger with a bucket of water.

With practically the entire population of Kelsey, Jean had dressed and gone down to the fire line, which was drawn at a point about half way between Mrs. Pritchard's and the burning plant. One of the volunteer firemen explained that they were afraid of other explosions, and thought it wisest to keep the crowds well back.

In consequence Jean did not see either Manley or Phillip until next morning when she returned to view the ruins by daylight.

The little plant was completely wiped out. Only the old safe, imbedded in ashes, marked the spot where Jean had worked.

"I tried to get to the safe," he told her gravely, "but the firemen brought me out. I guess it's a good thing." And suddenly turning upon her: "Remember what I said about throwing a cigarette in that stuff last night? . . . Well, I did it . . ."

"What! Why, you couldn't have!"

"If the insurance agents knew it, they'd crucify me," he said sadly, "but it's the truth. The minute I heard the explosion, I remembered. It was just a small butt. I'd been sitting there thinking after you left and absently I thumped it off into the air. I didn't even realize I'd done it until the big blast. Then . . ."

Jean put a slim hand on his arm. "Forget it. The Red Diamond Novelty Company is history. Collect your insurance and go into something else."

She was starting out when he called her name and followed her to the door. "About your pay . . . you're entitled to two weeks' salary at least, but . . ."

"Forget that along with the rest," she told him carelessly. "I'll have to take my loss, too."

"Oh no, you won't. I'll be on my feet in a day or two. In the meantime . ." he shoved a hand into a trouser pocket and produced a bill . . . "in the meantime, take this on account."

She tried to get out without taking it, but he finally opened her purse and dropped the bill into it.

"I'll do everything possible to help you get another place," he called after her as she hurried down the steps. "And when I get going again, I'll make you a good offer . . . !"

She waved her thanks to him, and made her way toward Harrison Avenue again. When she had turned the corner, she opened her purse to examine the bill he had given her. But the first thing that met her eye was Mollie Wilders letter.

The decision to go to New York came in a flash. One moment she stood there in the street staring at the letter telling herself that it was impossible. The next moment her mind was made up definitely and finally as if she had been considering it all along.

Mollie hadn't actually said there was a job in the store for her, but she had suggested it quite plainly. Besides, in a city like New York there must always be work, she told herself, if one would go looking for it. For a week or two she could live with Mollie. After that . . . she would cross all bridges as she came to them.

Ultimately she thought of Manley's bill again and finished it from the bottom of her purse. Ten dollars Again her fingers groped about in the purse, and this time came up with two thin, shiny 10-cent pieces and two pennies.

"I'd have been in a fine mess if Mr Manley hadn't made me take this ten dollars," she told herself. She let the four coins slide from the palm of her hand into the side pocket of the purse. 'For luck," she thought, smiling. "When I'm the socially prominent Mrs. Vanderfeller, I'll take you out and frame you."

Phillip was not at the garage. With a ast look at the smouldering ruins of the Red Diamond Novelty plant across the street, she returned to the boarding house. To her surprise, Phillip was sitting on the top step, waiting for her.

"I go to the garage and you come to Mrs. Pritchard's," she laughed. "Fine co-operation . . . Why the heavy expression?"

"I've been looking all over for you, Jean. Can we walk somewhere?"

"Sure. Around the block. But we'll have to hurry."

"Hair dressing appointment?"

"Train." She evaded his eyes. "I'm going to New York at 1 o'clock. Or is it 1:10?"

"You're not, really?"

"I'm telling you, Phil. I'm going to New York this afternoon."

"Have you found a job in New York?"

She hesitated. "Well, no. But I had a letter from Mollie Wilder yesterday and she talked as if she could get me a job if I wanted it."

"So you were going anyway."

"No, I wasn't. For my own good reasons I wasn't going, until the novelty plant went up in bits. I have to do something, Phil. My job's gone and I've got to live."

"Yes, I know," Phillip said simply. 'That's what I came to see you about. You know what you said coming hom from the game last night? About . . . marrying me?"

Jean nodded, said nothing.

"Well, I thought since things had worked out as they have, you might be willing . . . I mean, we might just as well get married now . . ."

Again she nodded. "Being out of a job, out of money and out of prospects," with an odd little gesture—"I could just get married and not have to worry about such details. Oh, Phil! You're such a good sort, and yet you make it terribly hard for me to be nice to you. You're always saying things like that. Don't you know me well enough, Phil, to realize that I wouldn't grab at marriage as . . . as a life-saver?"

"I'm not asking you to do that," Phillip replied quietly. "I've begged you to marry me for months. Now I'm asking you again. It just happens that you're out of a job, and I can't see where it's an argument against marriage, if you ask me."

"On the one hand, Phil," she told him, "it's pride. When, and if, I marry you, it will be a time when, economically, I can just as well go on without you. But that's an argument for principle. The most honest and adequate answer I can give you now is the same I gave you last night."

"You mean about Christmas morning?"

She looked up at him curiously. The prospect of New York had somehow altered her feelings concerning her promise. But she said evenly: "Well, yes. I gave you my word . . But I had reference to what I said about wanting to see something of life before I settled down. This looks like an opportunity., Phil. By Christmas, I may be in a fever to get back to Kelsey and . . . you. However, there's a possibility that . . ."

But Phillip's one-track mind was dealing with what he saw as most important. "The agreement was that if I was waiting at your door on Christmas morning . . . Do I understand that you will keep me advised as to your address? I can't be at your door, unless I know where your door is."

Jean laughed, though she tried not to. "Old man practical," she teased. "Why so all-fired serious about it, Phil? Of course you'll know where I am."

He caught her arm, almost fiercely. "Why shouldn't I be serious? You're everything in the world to me, Jean. If you only knew how . . . how much I love you . . ."

Jean looked up at him, and there were tears in her eyes. His simple appeal had touched her more deeply than had all his persistent pleadings since he had first asked her to marry him. Gently she put an arm about him and leaned her head against his shoulder.

At that moment, had Phillip sensed his opportunity, he might have taken her in his arms and made New York, with its promise of adventure, seem a cheap and paltry thing. But Phillip, wholly ignorant of the ways of a girl's heart, was content to put his arm about her shoulders and continue their leisurely walk.

Mrs. Pritchard, desiring to help, but finding nothing to do, sat on the bed and watched the proceedings. When Jean at last shut the suitcase and sat on the bed beside her, purse in hand, Mrs. Pritchard protested.

"Never mind about paying me anything now, Jean," she told her. "When you get a job and can spare it . . ."

"But Mr. Manley paid me," Jean declared. "Besides, I'll be with Mollie Wilder to-night, and to-morrow . . . I hope . . . I'll be working."

But an hour later, when she handed the conductor her ticket and thought to take inventory, she regretted that she had not taken advantage of Mrs. Pritchard's generous offer. She took out a little pencil and a piece of paper and drew up her accounts. The finished statement read as follows:

Cash on hand	$1.22
From Mr. Manley	$10.00
Total	$11.22
Board	$6.00
Railroad Ticket	$3.90
Magazine	.10
Total	$10.00
Cash on hand	$1.22

She was amused at her own audacity. "Going to New York with a dollar and twenty cents," she mused. "Thank

WHY USE "XMAS"

The Editor, The Examiner

Dear sir:

May I say a few words in connection with that hideous abbreviation used for the word "Christmas" which is "Xmas." As the anniversary of Christ's birth comes from year to year I see in almost any newspaper, in almost every shop window and countless other places the above form which means Christmas. Why is it used and why don't people think what takes place when it is used? Take away the name of Christ and substitute an "X" when in taking away Christ there is no Christmas and without His Blessed Name there would be no Christmas.

If anybody who reads this can tell me who began this practice, I should very much like to know

DISGUSTED.

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 5th is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to noon, and from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Astrological influences on this date are of too relaxing a nature to make for an efficient or alert mind. The saying that more things are missed because they are too big to be seen, will be a truism at this time — a lost opportunity.

The child born on this December 5th will take a keen interest in educational pursuits, and the mental side of its nature will be much to the fore. It will be positive in its opinions, and will be moved to much enthusiasm for any cause it espouses. It will cultivate a good command of language.

You are of an easy-going character and you take life, with its admixtures of troubles and joys, as it comes. Your never-failing sense of humor will pull you through the tightest of holes, with a smile, and no visible bruises. You are slow to anger, and even when in a fury, your emotions are too much under control, to be expressed outwardly. As is often the case, people fear much more your cold deliberate wrath than the quick, fiery tempers of others.

You will always be popular and the leader of your set. This is due to your adaptability and to your being able to really and sincerely interest yourself in all the little worries and joys of others. You are worthy of your confidences, for they go no further. You demand companionship, constant activity, and amusements. You are not a reader and it takes a "thriller" to hold your interest.

You have talent for amusements or occupations that give scope for these tendencies, and may gain fame through singing, music, or writing. Lack of ambition or determination and not lack of ability may hold you back from your rightful position in the world. You readily respond to encouragement and praise, and your chances in life will be doubled, if you marry someone who understands you.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

One of the most notable features of the statement of the Canadian chartered banks for the month of October is the substantial increase in savings deposits, raising the total almost level with that of December 31, 1929, and wiping out most of the decline that has taken place since March last. Savings deposits reached a new all-time peak in the early months of 1929 when the total rose to over a billion and a half, in subsequent months deposits dropped rapidly and the decline was accelerated by the market crash in October of that year with the total at the end of 1929 amounting to $1,434,405,212 or $85,900,000 below that of $1,520,285,026 reported at the close of 1928. January, February and March of 1930 all met with increases and the amount recovered to $1,455,311,593 when another decline set in over $50,000,000 to $1,402,027,767 by the end of July. August and September same improvement which was followed by further addition of $12,000,000 in October or a total increase of $29,500,000 from the low of July. It is now apparent that the decline in savings deposits due to the depression has been checked and it is to be expected that the closing months of 1930 will bring further improvement to close the year with a substantial increase over the closing month of the previous year

Call Loans Lower.

Call loans both in Canada and outside were materially lower in the month of October and reflect the deflation and liquidation that has taken place in the stock markets since the collapse in October and November, 1929. In September, 1929, the total Canadian call loans were above $270,000,000 and following the liquidation in October of that year the amount dropped to $268,336,003 and the decline has been consistent since with the total in October, 1930, down to $214,123,029, or almost 25 per cent. from the peak. It is interesting to note that the total dropped $12,000,000 in October last when the price averages on the Canadian boards were driven down to the lows for 1930 and beyond. Call loans outside Canada have also dropped considerably in the past year. Just prior to the market crash the Canadian banks had on call outside the Dominion a sum of $313,381,231 and by October, 1930, this total had dropped to $164,721,836, a drop of very nearly 50 per cent. against approximately 25 per cent. in Canada. Interest rates in New York a year ago were quite high and the Canadian banks found a profitable field for the employment in funds.

It was also necessary that the banks keep liquid funds on hand in New York to take care of deposits from outside the Dominion, which at the end of September, 1929, amounted to $423,802,616 against only $374,534,608 at the end of October last. A local broker this morning rather aptly sized up the stock market situation as being "an unconscious battle for control between buyers and sellers." No direct attempt is being made to either boost or depress prices, but both buyers and sellers are naming price limits on their orders. Consequently there is a very narrow range within which the market may fluctuate during the course of nominal trading, yet without breaking through the "order points." It is along this groove the market has been moving almost without interruption the past month. On November 4 the index for Toronto Stock Exchange stood at 67 on December 4, the average also was 67 and in the intervening period it never went beyond a couple of points either way. Occasionally outside influences affect a particular stock and it rises or declines beyond the ordinary range. Immediately orders are uncovered and trading enlivens until such time as either the rise or fall in price uncovers orders placed on the other side of the market and the stock is again bracketed. Floormen concurring the expressed opinion of the particular broker to whom reference has been made. "I have plenty of orders just off the market. Any movement of fair breadth, it matters not in which direction, will once again make mean, active trading." Such is the general opinion on the floor. The general business depression in Canada and esewhere has its reflection in the current loans of Canadian banks. When industrial corporations were operating to capacity and commodity prices were well above the level of to-day, current loans in Canada rose to a new all-time peak of $1,473,427,797 in October, 1929. Slackening of industrial operations and lower commodity prices is evident the drop in current loans in the past year of $844,000,000 to $1,269,508,836 as of October 30, 1930. This also applies to loans outside of Canada with the amount down over $15,000,000 at $226,192,353, contrasted with $241,866,294 at the end of October, 1929.

Declaration of the regular semi-annual bonus of $5 by the directors of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Limited is a tribute to the management as it comes at a time when most other producers of base metals on this continent have found it necessary to curtail dividend payments. In years past the management was active in building up substantial reserves from profit and loss and the advantage of such a policy is now fully realized by the shareholders who found fault with the conservative action of the board in the past. The dividend of $1.25 and bonus of $5 a share brings total distributions for 1930 to $12.50 a share and makes the fourth annual distribution of this amount.

MINING LIST IS UNCHANGED

Acme Gas Advances a Couple Higher to 34 in Active Trading.

B. A. OIL EASES.

TORONTO, Dec. 5 (CP).—Majority of stocks held unchanged in a forenoon period of dull trading on the mining market to-day. A good portion of the list failed to put in an appearance. Tendency among the issues to show movements was slightly firmer.

Acme Gas was active and rose a couple higher at 34, but Nordon and Alberta displayed point losses. B. A. Oil eased a quarter while Imperial firmed a similar amount to $17.75.

Noranda was soft in early trade but recovered to stand steady with last night's close at noon. Other base metals were holding in quiet turnover.

McIntyre was a strong spot in the gold group, selling at $18 for a gain of 25, and Mining Corp. gained 8 to $1.60. Teck Hughes was up 5 at $5.75, and Sylvanite a couple at 53. Kirkland Lake gold, off a couple to 47, was the only easy point in the group.

RAILS AGAIN HEAVY GROUP

Trading Dwindles at New York To-day After Fresh Opening Selling.

CALL MONEY FIRMER.

(By Claude A. Jagger Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The undermining influences of impatience and uncertainty caused another gentle settling of share prices in todays stock market.

Trading quickened a little, and the creeping sag of the past two days gained momentum for a time, but around midday, the market seemed to strike hardpan, and after a momentary upturn, trading dwindled off close to the vanishing point.

Rails were again the conspicuously heavy group. New York Central, Chicago and Northwestern, Frisco, Southern, Lackawanna, and Nickel Plate sold off 1 to 3 points to new lows for recent years. A few specialties broke rather widely. Firestone preferred, Eastman Kodak, and Coca Cola sold off about 5 to 6 points. Shares losing about 2 points included U. S. Steel, North American, American Tobacco "B" American Power and Light, Air Reduction and Associated Dry Goods. Losses of a point or so embraced more than a score of prominent shares.

The weekly Federal reserve statement, showing a further small decline of $11,000,000 in brokers' loans, and further extension of credit to meet seasonal and month-end demands, failed to provide much of interest. Call money was possibly at a little firmer at 2 per cent. Outside offerings at 1½ per cent. were small. The fall of the French Cabinet was not regarded as a complicating development, and foreign exchanges held fairly steady, although there was a slight sag in the franc.

Statements by Royal Dutch officials urging the oil industry to follow the copper and steel producers in bolstering prices were regarded as encouraging, coming from the largest crude producer in the world, and an organization which has at times greatly intensified competition in marketing, but as this is the time of seasonal slackening of consumption, spectacular developments were not expected.

Large Grain Carrier Enters Lake Ontario

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 5.—(C.P.)—The largest vessel that ever sailed Lake Ontario, the freighter John Ericsson, entered the Welland ship canal at Port Colborne to-day bound for Toronto from Fort William with 220,000 bushels of grain. She is the largest to pass through the canal and first of the great grain carriers of the Upper Lakes to enter Lake Ontario.

The John Ericsson has a gross tonnage of 3,200 and is 382 feet long with a beam of 48 feet. She will be laid up for the winter at Toronto.

AT WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, Man., December 5 (C. P.). — Opening prices: Wheat, Dec. ⅛ higher at 80¾, May ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher at 84⅝, July ¼ higher to unchanged at 86⅞ to 86¾.

Oats—May ⅛ lower at 39⅝.

WHEAT.

Winnipeg—Open: May 85; July 68¾; Dec. 60 5-8. Close: May 64½. July 66; Dec. 59 7-8.

Liverpool—Open, ½ higher. Close unchanged to ⅝ higher. Due, 1⅜-1⅝ higher.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 5. (CP)—Prime mercantile paper 2¾-3 percent.

Foreign exchange steady; demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents): Great Britain 4.85½; France 3.92⅞; Italy, 5.23¾; Germany 23.83. Canadian dollars 1-16 of one percent. premium.

KARACHI, India, Dec. 5.—(C.P.)—Several persons were injured to-day as police charged a mob of 2,000 adherents to the Congress Party who created a disturbance outside the judicial commission's court. Three men were arrested, including one who was selling contraband salt.

ATLANTIC SUGAR DROPS ONE POINT

Losses Hold Slight Advantage in Uneventful Forenoon Session at Toronto.

BRAZILIAN DOWN.

TORONTO, Dec. 5 (CP).—Losses had a slight advantage in an uneventful forenoon session on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. The trend was somewhat irregular and the list heavy with the volume again light.

Atlantic sugar was subject to profit-taking and lost over a point. This issue had featured the advance on the local market for many days past. Brazilian Traction, Gypsum, Lime and Alabastine and Waterloo manufacturing were all down fractionally. International Nickel was steady and practically unchanged.

Imperial Oil was up fractionally in the oil group. International Pete, British American Oil and Supertest were unchanged to slightly lower.

KIWANIANS HEAR

promotion of Archbishop O'Brien to the Archdiocese of Kingston. Bishop O'Connor was named as his successor. Even before his advent to Peterborough he has some association with us through hsi illustrious relatives.

Born in Western Ontario

In an address characterized by precise brevity and sparkling wit, His Lordship drew a simile between himself and the wanderers of feudal days, who were entertained in the old baronial halls. As a mark of appreciation for the hospitality he had received, the wanderer was always expected to tell something about himself. Who he was, when he came and where he was going.

His Lordship recalled the great civic welcome which had been tendered to him, when he first came to Peterborough, saying, "I desire to become acquainted with the people of Peterborough and welcome this opportunity to address the Kiwanis Club."

In accordance with the ancient custom, he told his interested listeners that he was born in Western Ontario—in the county next to the county that produced Mr. O'Brien—good Old Huron County. I was in the Western section of the Province in the capacity indicated by Mr. O'Brien, and for some reason unknown to myself was pitchforked into Peterborough to become spiritual head of this Roman Catholic Diocese. I am here not in that capacity, but in the status which I automatically acquired when I came to this city—as a citizen of Peterborough, and of that citizenship I am very proud indeed. I meet you and greet you on the common ground of Canadian civic citizenship; it is a wonderful country, this Canada of ours. All that the human heart can desire is here. We have a fertile soil, a favorable climate, great sweeps of prairie, the majesty of the mountains, and lakes as big as seas; we have the rivers which have been harnessed to turn the wheels of industry. We also have a law abiding and God-fearing people. The greatest gift of heaven is the gift of good citizens.

His Lordship said he had tried to find the word Kiwanis in the dictionary, but without success. The nearest approach to the word, was the name Kiwi, meaning a night bird of New Zealand. He did not wish to imply that Kiwanians are night birds. "I know that the word Kiwanis means builders—you gentlemen are builders. It is better to build than to destroy, and if there is any iconoclasm, let it be the tearing down of all that is narrow and prejudiced and smacking of ill will.

The speaker was tendered a vote of thanks, which was ably proposed by Dr. E. H. Wood.

Expressions of sympathy were voiced in the bereavements which have recently been suffered in the families of four Kiwanis members.

PROTEST RAISED ON APPOINTMENT

PRACTICE OBJECTIONABLE.

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 5. — (C.P. Cable Via Reuter's)—The appointment of the first native-born Governor-General of Australia was attacked in the House of Representatives to-day by the Nationalist-Country Party opposition.

Hon. J. G. Latham, Opposition leader, charged the new Governor-General was the nominee of the Federal Government, and not of His Majesty. He declared there was no constitutional warrant for the practice.

Hon. Mr. Latham expressed fears that the appointment of the Chief Justice of Australia would infringe the old-established principle that Judges had nothing to fear from any Government. If the practice continued, he said, obviously Judges could look to the Government for advancement. This was objectionable as it might created suspicion of their decisions on constitutional matters, he added.

South Tipperary County, Ireland, is considering the appointment of a commissioner to rule the county in place of the present county council.

C.G.E. WILL PAY EXTRA DIVIDEND

SATISFACTORY RESULTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—One of the most cheering announcements that has come forward in a long time is made by the directors of Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, to the effect that an extra dividend of $1 will be paid at the first of the year together with the 75-cent quarterly disbursement then to be made on the common stock. This payment comes as confirmation of the assumption which has been held all through this year that this organization has been meeting with highly satisfactory results, in line with the well-maintained rate of progress which has been shown by the electrical equipment industry in this country over recent years.

The new bonus payment will mean that shareholders in the current year will receive a total of $4, or at the rate of 8 per cent on par. That the company can very well afford to make such a disbursement can be realized from the fact that in the year 1929, after taking care of preferred dividends, net earnings of the company were equal to $20.28 per share. The company carried last year a profit and loss surplus of $3,388,074, while net current assets amounted to $14,940,233, or equal to 8.71 of current assets to each 1 of current liabilities. The common is outstanding at 188,845 shares, so that this year's regular dividend will require $566,535, while the bonus will bring the total payment to common shareholders up to $755,380. Last year's surplus, after allowing for a full year's preferred dividend, would equal the regular $3 common dividend for a period exceeding five years.

PETTY THIEVES AGAIN AT WORK

GAS PUMPS RAIDED.

Petty thieving is rampant in the city and hardly a night passes without adding fresh burglaries to the mounting list. Proprietors of local service stations are bearing the brunt of the losses through nocturnal thefts, but recently the burglars have turned their attention to stores and freight cars.

Sidney Crowe's grocery store on George street, South, was robbed on Wednesday night of close to $200 worth of confectionery, cigarettes and tobaccos. The thieves gained entrance into the store through the basement window and, using a heavy instrument, forced up the boards in the floor. The shelves and show cases were ransacked and left bare. When a show case opened with difficulty the thieves broke the case. Much damage was done to the store's furnishings.

Raid Gasoline Pumps

The night previous thieves raided the gasoline pumps in front of Percy Harrison's store, at the corner of Water and Smith streets, and William McKnight's store in East City. Locks on the pumps were broken and large quantities of gas taken. With few exceptions, every gasoline station removed from the centre of the city has reported similar thefts over the last three weeks.

Thieves are also breaking into railway freight cars standing on sidings within the city. Cars loaded by one large plant in the city reports that in the past week the seals on five Canadian National cars have been broken. In one case the thieves carried away coal from a car, but in the other cases it is not known what was stolen. A checkup can not be made until the cars reach their destination.

City police, Provincial police and police of both railway companies are being hard put to it to contend with the many thefts. Local police are working particularly hard on the cases but as yet no arrests in any of the burglaries have been made.

CANADIAN WHEAT FOR FRANCE.

OTTAWA, Ont., December 5 (C. P.). — France has undertaken to import a minimum of from seven to nine million bushels of Canadian wheat in the course of the next four months, the Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. H. H. Stevens, announced to-day following receipt of advices from the Canadian Trade Agent in Paris.

FIREMEN TO AID IN RELIEF WORK

Fire Hall Will Be Distribution Centre For Vegetables, Provisions, Clothes and Toys.

COMMENDABLE ENTERPRISE.

Members of the City Fire Department, having obtained the necessary permission from Fire Chief George Gimblett, have decided to make the Fire Hall the receiving and distributing station for vegetables, provisions, clothes and old toys, which will be distributed by them at Christmas time to the needy poor.

This commendable enterprise which comes as the result of concerted action by the members of Branch 11 Ontario Firefighters' Association, who are anxious to do their "bit" towards the relief of distress in this city, is fully endorsed by their Chief. This is not the first occasion on which the firefighters have assisted in such work. Their efforts at the time of the Halifax disaster appeal, and on subsequent occasions are still remembered, and it may be recalled that in the past the firemen have in their spare time, accepted old toys which they have renovated and distributed. Such efforts have been the means of bringing a little of the radiance and joy of the festive season into the lives of less fortunate people and to the children in particular.

This year the firefighters will again undertake the task of renovating old toys; they will also be glad to receive vegetables and provisions, and old clothes, which will be stored away until the time for distribution draws near.

NEW LOCK BRIDGE PLAN SPONSORED

Replies Received From E. A. Peck and Federal Department of Canals.

DEVELOPMENTS PENDING.

In reply to an editorial in the Examiner of November 27, F. G. Stinson, of the Chamber of Commerce in this city wrote letters to E. A. Peck, M.P., and to the Federal Department of Railways and Canals, concerning the construction of a new high level bridge over the Otonabee River at the Lock Street Site. The reasons given for the erection of the new structure were the doing away with the interruption to motor traffic, the presenting of no inconvenience to navigation, and the relieving of the Government of the cost of maintaining a swing span.

Mr. Stinson has received replies, and is assured the support and attention of both Mr. Peck and the Federal Department. The former replies as follows:

Dear Sir:

I beg to acknowledge yours of the 3rd, instant, with reference to proposed bridge at Peterborough Lock.

I would expect that the Government would be quite prepared to put in an overhead swing instead of the one at the present level, as the Government would therefore be saved the expense of appointing anyone to attend to the operation of the swing.

The question would seem to be one for the Provincial department of Highways, which would be responsible for the location of the bridge. If the Provincial Government comes to a decision in the matter, I am sure there will be no difficulty in securing the co-operation of the Federal Department of Canals.

Yours truly,
E. A. Peck.

The other letter, from the Assistant Deputy Minister, reads as follows:

Dear sir:

By direction of the Minister, I have the honour to acknowledge your letter of December 1, recommending on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce of Peterborough, the construction of a high level bridge over the Otonabee river above Lock 19, Trent Canal, in connection with the new highway which it is proposed to construct between Ottawa and Sarnia, Ont.

We are asking our engineers to take this suggestion into consideration and let us have a report in the matter, which will have consideration in due course.

Yours very tryly,
Geo. W. Yates,
Assistant Deputy Minister.

These replies should be followed by interesting developments, and the citizens of this city will no doubt await any further steps taken in the matter with great eagerness.

CHINA ANSWERS BRITAIN'S OFFER

Foreign Miister's Reply to Extraterritoriality Proposals Not Made Public.

U. S. IS INCLUDED.

NANKING, China, December 5 (C. P.). — C. T. Wang, the Chinese Foreign Minister, to-day announced that he had given to the representatives of the British and United States Governments China's reply to their extraterritoriality proposals. The contents of the reply was not made public.

The United States, in proposing the gradual relinquishment of its extraterritorial rights in China stipulated that this policy would apply to designated territorial areas or to particular kinds of jurisdiction, such as civil or criminal rights held under treaty. Under these rights Americans are not subject to Chinese courts.

Great Britain has offered to return the British concession at Amoy. The Nationalist government considers the question of extraterritoriality to be the most important diplomatic issue with which it has to deal.

6,000 MINERS FIRED.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 4. — Coal miners in Civitao to-ady gave notice of the discharge of 6,000 miners, claiming it necessary to let a number of shafts remain idle because of unprofitable working. A strong portest from the miners demanding information as to reason for the action reached the Labor Ministry.

MRS. E. WRIGHT LAID TO REST

Brighton Township Pioneer Dies in Her 92nd Year—Was Born in Seymour.

PIONEER CITIZEN.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — With the passing at Orland on November 26, in her 92 year, of Mrs. Elizabeth Wright, the Township of Brighton loses one of its pioneer residents and a faithful friend and counsellor to the community. The funeral was held at the family residence at Orland on Sunday, November 30, with interment in the family plot at McPhail Cemetery. The service was jointly conducted by the Rev. Mr. Clare of Norham United Church and the Rev. J. G. Belford, Anglican minister of Codrington. The pall-bearers were five sons of the deceased lady, Joseph, David, William, John, and Edward, and one nephew, Major Harry Sophia.

Despite the severe weather, a large number of people gathered to pay their last tribute of rsepect to one well remembered and loved in the community. Mrs. Wright, who was born in Seymour Township on September 6, 1837, was before her marriage, Elizabeth Free. On June 1, 1855, in her 18th year, she married James Wright, and went to live on the farm in Brighton Township, where they have resided ever since. Mr. Wright predeceased his wife in 1911.

In the passing of the late Mrs. Wright, the people of Orland have had one taken from their midst who knew the history of the township better than anyone in the district. Coming to the country as she did when a girl, she has seen its transformation from rough bush farms to smiling agricultural fields, as they are today. Active and energetic and retaining the use of her faculties until a short while before her death, when she was confined to the house, it was an interesting experience to hear her tell of the early days and the trials and hardships that were endured by the old pioneers.

Since the death of her husband, Mrs. Wright preserved the old home, and it was the meeting place for all her children and grandchildren.

There were ten children of the union, two being deceased. Those surviving are: John of Campbellford, Joseph, William, Edward and David, all of Brighton Township, and Millie, Mary, and Jennie at home. There are also eighteen grandchildren and fifteen great-grandchildren.

The sympathy of the community goes out to those who are left to mourn the loss of a dear friend and mother and one who has kept the name of the home precious for many years.

BALES DISPATCHED BY LAKEFIELD W.A.

Charity Dance Held in Inn on Tuesday Evening is Huge Success.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—A bale of gifts for the needy White Settlers in the far north west was packed on Tuesday by the members of St. John's W.A. and is a direct response to the appeal made by the late Mrs. Barker, who attended the Diocesan annual in Toronto last year and was inspired by the appeal of Bishop Lucas' wife and brought a most interesting report.

An annual gift of this sort would be a highly appropriate perpetual memorial to Mrs. Barker who was such an ardent worker and practiced the Lord's command to help others.

Charity Dance Held

A very successful dance was held in the Lakefield Inn on Tuesday evening for charitable purposes and about seventy couples enjoyed dancing and music supplied by Ferdy Mowry's orchestra.

The rotunda was prettily decorated with greens and red and white crepe paper which combined in a yule tide effect much admired. The committee in charge was made up of Lakefield younger set who showed splendid organization. Refreshments were served about eleven-thirty. Quite a number from Peterborough were present as well as the local younger set.

Lakefield

The Women's Institute will meet in the Town Hall on Wednesday, when the report of the delegate to the annual meeting, Mrs. A. Davis, will be heard.

A number of the pupils from The Grove School attended by a number of the staff attended the "Byrd at the South Pole" picture at the Capitol, Peterborough, on Thursday.

The Rev. W. J. Creighton and family were in Peterborough on Thursday.

Mrs. Cotton of Peterborough was a visitor to the village on Tuesday.

The Rev. W. J. and Mrs. Creighton and family were in Peterborough on Thursday.

Miss Maud Creighton has returned from Toronto, where she spent a few days.

Mrs. H. M. Stuart and Miss Helen Stuart were in Peterborough on Thursday.

Miss Mary F. Maloney of Peterborough was a visitor to the village on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Shewen of Mount Julian were in the village on Friday.

Mr. Walter Chappel was presented with a smoking set from the members of the Canadian Legion and a pipe by the A.Y.P.A. prior to his departure from the village.

Mrs. G. A. Peterson is in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

COUNCIL PASSES

The road superintendent presented the following road accounts, which were passed for payment: Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company (steam coal), $8.84; John Kemp (62 yards of gravel, $9.30; Drummond and Hall (slush scraper), $14.00; Joseph Madill (75 yards of gravel), $11.25; S. G. McIntosh (245 yards of gravel), $36.75; Metallic Roofing Company (one culvert), $51.32; Jos. Madill (118 yards of gravel) $17.70.

The following general accounts were passed for payment: Bruce Johnston (meals, deputation to Toronto), $6.85; Trebilcock Brothers (stationery), $1.35; W. G. Polson (taxi, House of Refuge), $4.00; George Strain (digging trenches at dump), $8.10.

Street Lighting

The Clerk was instructed to write to the H.E.P.C. of Ontario and ask for estimates of cost of lighting the streets in the suburban area and bounded as follows: on the east by the Otonabee River, on the south by McKellar street as far west as Park street, thence northerly on Park street to Rose avenue, thence westerly on Rose avenue to Monaghan road, thence northerly on Monaghan road to Lansdowne street, thence westerly on Lansdowne street to westerly limit of plan number 49, thence northerly along the western limits of plan 49 to the Provincial Highway, thence north-easterly along the Provincial Highway to Monaghan road, thence southerly along Monaghan road to Lansdowne street (excepting the Prince of Wales school property), thence easterly on Lansdowne road to Otonabee River.

The next meeting of the Council will be held on a statutory date, December 15, 1930, at which time the Council will meet at 10 a.m. in the Court House at Peterborough.

People in China are consuming only about five pounds of sugar per capita as compared with 108.1 pounds in the United States.

Dr. Wood's

Norway Pine Syrup

Her Two Children Coughed Day And Night

Mrs. Fred. T. Kilnappel, R.R. No. 1, St. Agatha, Ont., writes:—"My two children were coughing, day and night, from a very severe, whoopy cough. I tried every kind of medicine I could think of, but they got no relief. A friend told me I should try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got two bottles of it, and before they were used the children were rid of their coughs. It is a very good medicine, and I would not be without a bottle in the house."

mand on Canadian creamery men that they simply must meet. Our sales of pasteurizing machinery for milk plant and creamery purposes and for butter factory churns has been the best that we have had over the last several years.

"Our Montreal, Peterborough and Winnipeg divisions have all taken some extraordinarily large orders in the last thirty days. This is conclusive proof that the creamery and dairy business in general is preparing to take advantage of the increased opportunities which 1931 brings with it."

The benefits this city gains from the wide diversity of its industries was aptly explained by Mr. Breyfogle. He affirmed that "when some of our industries are in the valleys others are bound to be on the hill tops."

At the present time DeLaval's employees are engaged in preparing the company's new models for 1931. Some 250 are on the firm's payroll.

Mr. Breyfogle saw a big blow to Canadian butter producers in the despatch from Vancouver, which declared that Australia was undertaking to flood Canada with 20,000,000 pounds of butter before next April. He referred to the Patterson scheme which subsidizes Australian butter makers 12 cents a pound on all butter exported, making it possible for Australian butter to be dumped into Canada at 24 cents a pound although it is wholesaling in Australia at 36 cents. He maintained that the Canadian government should take some drastic steps to deal with the situation.

Havelock

A very enjoyable afternoon tea was held at the home of Mrs. H. Brown, Donald street, on Thursday last, under the auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star in Havelock. Mrs. W. Holcombe presided over the tea table and was assisted by Mesdames Williams, A. Russell, H. T. Mathison and R. Green. Mrs. Robert Buchanan received with the hostess. Proceeds amounted to ten dollars.

Those from Havelock who attended the banquet at Norwood on Friday evening last when the Masons celebrated their diamond jubilee were: Mr. T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A. and Mrs. Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huffmann, Mr. and Mrs. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Quinn, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Breckenridge of Belmont.

Provincial Engineer Fellows of Toronto was in Havelock last week and in company with township road superintendent Steenburg, made a tour of inspection of the road work completed this year. It is understood that Mr. Fellowes found the work satisfactory.

Mr. Gordon Haggerty of Toronto was in the village last week-end on business. Gordon is taking a course at the technical school in Toronto in addition to attending high school.

Messrs. Isaac Barlow and Alex Leeson attended the Conservative banquet in the Royal York Hotel on Tuesday evening, when the retiring premier was presented with an illuminated address.

Miss Massey of Campbellford has been engaged by the school board to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Miss K. Scully, who leaves at the Christmas recess.

The play, "Mammy's Lil Wild Rose" which was held in the town hall on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the local L.O.B.A. was very well attended and received. The play was very well done and the players received much applause. A very popular number given between the acts was the singing of "Dancing With Tears In My Eyes" and "If I Had a Girl Like You" by little four-year-old baby Irwin. This was greeted by rounds of applause and was really a charming number.

The last session of the village council will be held on Monday, December 15.

MRS. J. LENNOX VISITS GUIDES

First Havelock Company Holds Regular Weekly Meeting in Mission Band.

PLAN CHRISTMAS TREE.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The first Havelock Company Girl Guides held their weekly meeting at their headquarters, Havelock Mission Hall, by the kindness of Mr. Kinnaird, last week.

The district commissioner, Mrs. J. Lennox, paid her first official visit and expressed her gratification at the splendid progress the Guides have made in their work. The commissioner, in the friendly talk to the Guides, congratulated them and their captain, and said that she would like an annual Christmas tree inaugurated. This suggestion was taken up most enthusiastically. The Christmas tree will be held in the Orange Hall on Thursday, December 18. At eight o'clock a Guide program will be given.

At this meeting the captain advised the Guides that in the very near future they may hope to expect a visit from the County Commissioner, Mrs C. H. Rogers of Peterborough. All are looking forward with pleasant anticipation to this visit. Winner of doll and winner of butterfly contest will be announced at the entertainment on December 18.

ESSAY CONTEST

Betty Garland, Hamilton Township, "Going to Market."

It was announced the students may select their own subjects for the district contest at Peterborough, and those who go to Toronto will give addresses on the histories of their counties.

Addresses were made by W. A. Fraser, M.P., Trenton; F. J. McArthur, M.L.A., Cobourg; Lt.-Col. J. W. Odell, Public School inspector, Cobourg; A. A. Martin, Public School inspector, Brighton.

Praises Work.

Both Mr. Fraser and Mr. McArthur praised the splendid work being carried out by the county's two inspectors, Col. Odell and Mr. Martin. The latter, a young man in years, has already made his inspectorate one of the model rural school districts of Ontario. Col. Odell's work in West Northumberland, it was also pointed out by the speakers, is of outstanding value in every sense both of educational efficiency and character building work.

The contest was held under the chairmanship of R.B. Dawson, Castleton, president of the association. M. F. Ames, Plainville, the secretary, was responsible for most of the successful day's arrangements, and his efforts in this and in the township contests were highly lauded.

The association voted him, without his knowledge, an honorarium. This was promptly declined and since the association would not accept its return, Mr. Ames used it to purchase the fine and practical souvenirs which were given to those who did not win cups.

Haultain

HAULTAIN, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—All the old officers were re-elected at the annual meeting of the South Burleigh Dairy Co. held in the cheese factory on Friday afternoon. They include William McCauley, president; Bruce Reid, W. T. Northey, John Book and Gordon Reid, directors and Isabel Reid, auditor.

Ralph Wasson, cheese maker was hired for the third season, and Mrs. William Mathews was appointed secretary filling the vacancy made by the resignation of Mrs. I. D. Church who has held the office for twenty-four years and is now leaving the community.

As a token of appreciation of her valued service in the factory and as a highly respected neighbor she was presented with a sum of money accompanied by an address. Owing to recent bereavement in the family the address was enclosed with the gift. Mrs. Church thanked the people for their kindness at this time during the time of trouble.

The following is the report of the factory: milk received 251,226 lbs., cheese made, 24,159 lbs.; money received, $3,830; number of standards of milk, 83.7; average number of pounds of milk to pound of cheese 10.39.

A dividend of 6 per cent was paid to the shareholders, leaving a balance of $154.51.

HAULTAIN

The Rev. E. C. Moore of Young's Point and Mr. Kyle, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Lakefield attended the cheese factory meeting on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Matthews visited friends in Peterborough on Friday.

Miss Queenie Montgomery of Clysdale and Miss Letta Lytle of Deer Bay were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Northey for a few days.

Mr. Herb Long was in Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. Ralph Wasson of Dummer attended the annual meeting of the cheese factory on Friday.

Mr. Reg. Matthews of Lakefield was in the district on Friday.

MARMORA.

Mr. and Mrs. U. T. Linton and baby, Betty, of Peterborough, visited Mrs. Linton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilkes, over the week end.

The local A.Y.P.A. is planning to entertain Stirling and Rawdon St. Thomas A.Y.P.A.'s at Deloro on Tuesday evening.

Miss Muriel McIntyre Addresses Institute

KEENE, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — Miss Mabel McIntyre, who was fortunate in winning a trip to the Royal Winter Fair, gave an interesting address on the many places visited while in Toronto, at the monthly meeting of the Keene Women's Institute held in the Community Hall on Tuesday evening.

After the business discussion, a music contest was held, conducted by Miss Louise Donaldson and Mrs. Annie McFarlane, which the members enjoyed very much. When the contestants' answers were read, they revealed a widely varied and amusing account of their experiences.

Miss Viola Wilson, who also won a trip to the Fair, was, unfortunately, unable to be present.

The President arranged to send the box of used clothing to Northern Ontario. The meeting closed in the usual way, after which a social hour was enjoyed.

BENSFORT

Among those from Bensfort who attended the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto were Messrs. T. Armstrong, S. Robinson, Wallace Morrison, William Morrison, William Wood, N. Nurse and M. Nurse.

Mr. Thomas Nurse made a business trip to Toronto recently.

Mr. E. Thorpe has returned to his home after visiting in Toronto.

Reflooring of the Bensfort Bridge has been completed and traffic is resumed.

Miss May C. Wood, of Millbrook, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wood.

Miss Margaret Thompson has returned to Toronto after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, who recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lang, of South Monaghan, entertained the members of Bensfort Church choir at their home on Friday evening.

A very pleasant evening was spent in games and music and dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Lang assisted by her sister, Miss A. Berry.

Chemong Lake Is Covered With Ice

BRIDGENORTH, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — Chemong Lake was completely covered with ice during the cold spell on Tuesday. Some of the older residents of this district state that this is the earliest the lake has been frozen over for some time.

If it stays covered now it will mean a very long winter.

Mrs. Robinson Heads Lakefield Society

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. J. R. Robinson was elected president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion at annual meeting held at the home of Mrs. E. Orr, Regent street.

The viec-president is Mrs. H. McCracken, secretary, Mrs. J. C. Smith, treasurer, Mrs. W. W. Leonard, executive, Mesdames Junkin, Cameron and Wannamaker, and auditors, Mesdames Stenner and Earnshaw.

At the close of the business session, Mrs. Orr served refreshments and a social time was spent.

Mrs. James Young Gies Mission Talk

BRIDGENORTH, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence) — Mrs. James Young gave a splendid account of the life and work of Mrs. Lipinski, missionary at Royce Avenue Baptist Mission in Toronto, at the annual Thankoffering of the Ladies' Mission Circle of the Gilmour Memorial Church on Sunday.

She told an interesting story of how a Russian mother was led to seek Jesus as her Saviour through her little daughter attending the mission in Toronto and later the father accepted Jesus as his Saviour.

OYSTER SUPPER HUGE SUCCESS

Jolly Affair Held Under Auspices of Apsley Women's Institute.

SOCIETY'S REPORT READ.

APSLEY, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—Under the auspices of the Women's Institute an oyster supper and dance was held in the Parish Hall on Saturday evening, and was attended by a big crowd.

During the evening a draw was held for a cake donated by Mrs. Dean which netted a handsome sum and was won by Mrs. M. Emmal. Music for dancing was supplied by Messrs. John Coones and A. McColl and Mrs. R. Scott violinists with Don Newberry accompanist.

Institute Report

The semi annual financial report of the Apsley Women's Institute is published and the totals show receipts of $223.44, expenditure of $151.92 leaving a balance of $71.52. The Cemetery Fund shows receipts $161.35, expenditures of $152.50, with a balance of $8.75.

20 Degrees Below Zero

Lumber Companies Curtail Operations

LINDSAY, Dec. 5—(Examiner Correspondence). — Lumbering operations in the northern part of Victoria county and in Haliburton county will be limited to a couple of small camps this winter. The big mills in this section are not operating camps on the same scale as in past years. Some of the firms found themselves pretty well stocked with lumber this fall with little demand for the material.

The cessation of lumbering operations on a large scale in the northland this winter will be a serious blow to hundreds of men in that section who found steady winter's work in the different camps for a number of years.

NO WORKING AGREEMENT SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

DEATH PENALTY IS BEING ASKED FOR 8 ENGINEERS

Demanded By Millions of Russians States People's Prosecutor.

TRIAL NOT FRAMED UP.

"Arch Plotter" Smiles as Report Read States Torture Was Applied.

MOSCOW, Dec. 5 (A.P.)—A demand of the People's Prosecutor, N. B. Krilenko, that they be given the death penalty for having plotted the overthrow of the Moscow Government to-day rang in the ears of eight Soviet engineers and former officials as their trial approached its close.

Pacing the floor of the grand ball room of the House of Columns nervously, occasionally dragging at a cigarette, the Prosecutor summed up the case against the men. Millions of Russians, he shouted, have demanded the death penalty for them, and he echoed that demand.

Trial No Frame-Up

M. Krilenko ridiculted the idea that the trial was a frame-up, the evidence false, or obtained by torture and coercion. "We don't need false documents," he said, "because we have real proof. These defendants and witnesses were arrested at various times, they belonged to different branches, yet without talking to each other they have come on the stand and confirmed the plot with statements of methods, dates and other facts."

Krilenko swung into his summation to-day with a great sheaf of notes before him, and it looked as though he would go on for hours.

Even Ransin, "arch plotter" of the eight defendants, smiled as the Prosecutor read a Parish newspaper article alluding to methods of torture applied to extract confessions from the accused, and the spectators guffawed as he read another statement attributed to Sir Henri Deterding, in which the British oil magnate professed ignorance of the plot in which he is alleged to have participated.

Formal Protest Rumored

There has been no official statement from the Foreign Office here, but it was reliably reported that a formal protest had been filed by the British Arbassador against a radio broadcast in English early in the week in which was read a letter from Maxim Gorky, urging workers in Great Britain and France to unite against any move for intervention in Russia.

OPPOSE REDUCING RACE TRACK TAX.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5. (CP)—The District Labor council of this city has expressed opposition to any reduction in taxation on race tracks. The question came before the meeting through a letter sent by a delegate who suggested the matter be considered, as racing was the only sport, supported in the main by workingmen, where the masses were segregated by barriers from the classes in the enclosure.

PRIZE WINNERS GIVEN AWARDS

TWEED STUDENT SECOND.

BELLEVILLE, December 5. — Evelyn Badgley, of School Section No. 11, Tyendenaga, won the gold medal and also the Warden's Trophy yesterday at the oratorical competition arranged by Warden Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O. Vivian Elliott of Tweed Consolidated School won the silver medal, and Raymond Gunsulos, of School Section No 8, Marmora, won the gold medal for boys.

Other prizes, including shields and cups won at school fairs in the Province, were also presented. The five young women who won first prize in the inter-county competition for domestic science at the Royal Winter Fair were presented to the audience. Colonel Vanderwater presided, and was congratulated by the members of the Council on the part he took in the Great War. He had the honor to lead the Second Battalion, the first Canadian troops to enter Germany after the Armistice. The event took place twelve years ago yesterday.

C.N.R. EARNINGS

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the period ending November 30th were $4,702,313 as compared with $6,398,670 for the corresponding period in 1929; decrease of $1,696,257.

Boy Shoots Brother At Play With Rifle

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence) — A sad tragedy occurred on Monday at the home of William Smith, situated about seven miles from Haliburton, and adjacent to the Nesbitt radium mine, when his eleven-year-old son was instantly killed. It appears that his younger brother picked up a rifle and, thinking it was not loaded, pointed it at his brother at the same time pulling the trigger. The County Coroner investigated the circumstances and deemed an inquest unnecessary.

SOUTH AMERICA TRADE MISSION

VACATIONAL TOUR.

A remarkable opportunity is being given the business men of Canada to extend trade relations to one of the world's richest markets, South America.

The per capita wealth of Latin America generally is very high; the Argentine being the richest country in the world with a foreign purchasing power of $90 per capita of population.

Of the $900,000000 worth of imports of the Argentine only twenty millions were exported by Canada. So to increase the Canada-South America trade, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce with the co-operation of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the agricultural interests of Canada have planned a "trade mission" to Latin America, leaving Halifax by the Canadian National S. S. 'Prince Robert,' March 2, 1931 and returning on April 20.

The trip is planned to include visits to Havana, Trinidad, Pernambuco, Montivideo, Buenos Aires, Valparaiso, Santiaga, Santos and St. Paulo, including a visit to the British Empire Fair at Buenos Aires in which Canada is participating. The trip presents two attractive factors to Canadian business men; the securing of first hand information on trade matters, and the vacational enjoyment derived from a cruise of the Caribbean Sea, and other sight-seeing tours.

GUTHRIE AIDING IN DISPUTE

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5. (CP)—Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, is taking a private part in the dispute between employees and a Guelph Hosiery firm, Gerald White Union organizer stated at a Labor council meeting here. The department was unable to act in the strike as the company had refused to arbitrate, Mr. White said, but Mr. Guthrie had undertaken to confer with the Japanese owner of the hosiery plant, on behalf of the workers, according to White.

Scientists Probe Source of Germ

EDMONTON, Dec. 5 (C.P.).—Success has crowned the efforts of the scientists who have spent four days searching for the source of the dread organism, streptococcus haemolyticus, which has caused five post-operative deaths at the Royal Alexandra Hospital.

The source of the infection has not been revealed, nor will it be until the scientists have completed their report to the City Hospital Board.

Coincident with this revelation, almost to the minute, came an announcement from Dr. R. B. Jenkins, city medical health officer, that the same germ had made its appearance in another part of the city and was believed to have caused five cases of scarlet fever through infected milk.

DEPRESSION IS LAID TO TARIFF

Ryckman Places Blame For Situation Upon Farmer Gov't.

SPEAKS IN HAMILTON.

HAMILTON, Ont., December 5 (C. P.). — Addressing the Women's Conservative Association of Hamilton here yesterday, Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Defence, attributed the seriousness of the prevailing wave of depression in Canada to the failure of the former Government to invoke higher tariffs.

"Tariff is absolutely necessary in this country," he said. "There are no free trade countries in the world to-day, but England approaches nearest to it. If the whole world says there must be tariff, then Canada must have protection."

Touching on matters pertaining to the Imperial Conference, he praised Premier R. B. Bennett. The leader did not want to be Prime Minister merely for the honor which goes with the office, proceeded the speaker, but he is hopeful of doing some good for Canada. Unless he accomplishes this all honors which surround the position will be bare and fruitless from the Premier's viewpoint, said Mr. Ryckman.

Mr. Ryckman said conditions in the United States were much worse than in Canada, and he warned his hearers that manufacturers of that country were looking for outlets for their produce here and are anxious to dump their goods on Canadian markets for "they can afford to sell more cheaply than Canadian manufacturers, but such competition is unfair to Canadians," he said.

Ribs Are Fractured While Felling Tree

LINDSAY, Dec. 5. — (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. Jesse Short, a resident of Tory Hill, was seriously injured a few days ago while working in the woods. He was felling a tree, and while liberating a branch the tree caught him in its fall. His body was badly bruised and a number of ribs fractured. His escape from death was miraculous.

LIBERAL LEADER DENIES ANY DEAL WITH LABORITES

Britain Between Devil and Deep Sea Says Lloyd George.

PARTY HAS SORRY CHOICE.

No Desire For Baldwin Gov't as Alternative, Bad as Labor Regime is.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The Liberal Party, which holds the balance of power in the House of Commons has made no deal to keep the Labor Party in office, but it has no desire to see Hon. Stanley Baldwin become Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, the Liberal Leader, asserted today.

His outline of the political line-up came out of the Liberal "war council," and on the heels of reports that he and Mr. Macdonald had patched up a working agreement based upon the Labor Premier's forthcoming electoral reform bill.

Between Devil and Deep Sea

'Britain," said Lloyd George, "is between the devil and the deep sea. Our only practical choice is between the Labor Party, whose avowed doctrine is Socialism, and the Conservative Party, which is ready to plunge heedless into a vortex of fiscal revolution. It's a sorry choice, but bad as the Labor regime is, there is no desire for a Baldwin Government as an alternative."

"Conservative critics ask us why we don't turn the Laborites out" he said, "let us remind them that there is a grim feature of the economic slump in that paradise of protection—Wall Street. It is called jumping out of the window! The Conservatives urge us to jump, but we are not jumpers. I don't believe in jumping until you know where you're going to land."

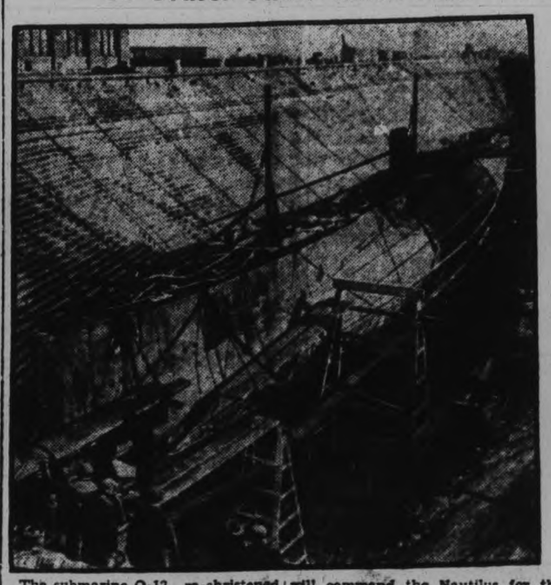
With the alternatives at hand he said, the Labor government can be given another chance and be judged from day to day until that time when the electorate can be prevailed up to trust the Liberal party with the government. He had bitter criticism for the Labor cabinet.

"The government" he said, "is an acknowledged failure. Unemployment is not merely a disaster, it is an opportunity. During such, times an able government can put to right things that cannot be remedied in periods of prosperity".

LONDON, Dec. 5 (A.P.)—The "wild horses of Wall Street" have dragged Great Britain over a rocky road of finance, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, the Liberal Leader, to-day told a council of his party.

The "mischief" of Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin's United States debt settlement continues to spread, he said. "We are lasooed fast by American finance," he cried. "We are only beginning to realize what that terrible debt settlement means. That gold standard settlement was premature and ill thought out. We have been dragged over the course by the wild horses of Wall Street."

To Travel Under North Pole



The submarine O-12, re-christened the "Nautilus," as it was equipped in the Philadelphia Navy Yard for its trip to the Arctic. Fire Destroys Home Girl Dies From Burns

LINDSAY, Dec. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—A sad fatality occurred at Kennaway, Haliburton County, a few days ago when the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Avery died as a result of burns. Mr. Avery's house and contents were completely destroyed by fire, and the little child was badly burned before being rescued from the house.

BUTTER SCARCE IN AUSTRALIA

No Need For Fearing That Canadian Market Will Be Flooded.

1,000 BOXES SHIPPED.

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 5 (C.P.).—It is officially stated that there is no foundation for the fear, expressed in cables from Vancouver, that a large amount of Australian butter will be dumped on the Canadian market prior to the going into effect of the new Canadian duties. A consignment of 1,000 boxes left here November 13 aboard the steamer Niagara, and a few other small shipments have been made, but it is declared that even if attractive prices were to be realized, no further business will be done at this stage, because supplies are small and do not exceed the local demand.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

MONEY TO SAVE ADULT LIVES.

I often wish the health officers of our various towns and cities would get their newspapers to publish certain facts about a week or ten days before they ask for their annual appropriation of money for health work.

Why? Because they could show that it is because they have been so able to control the acute diseases of children — scarlet fever, diphtheria, meningitis and others — that the death rate has been reduced 50 per cent. within a space of fifteen years. Added to this is the control in adults of typhoid fever, another acute ailment.

But what about chronic ailments?

Unfortunately they are on the increase.

During the same fifteen-year period deaths from chronic ailments increased 20 per cent., and that of course means the loss of many useful lives to the world.

How could many of these lives be saved?

One lesson alone would save many lives, and that is that just as watching the food and intestinal movements of babies and children was the means of saving thousands of these young lives, so also would the watching of the food intake and intestinal movements in adults save adult lives.

Man was made to work or exercise, and was given a long small intestine to absorb all kinds of foods, and a large intestine able to hold a fair amount of waste, which was meant to be moved along without delay. In fact, the large intestine has an extra set of muscles running lengthwise on it, whose purpose is to draw a portion of the intestine back behind waste matter and thus let the circular fibres squeeze it along. Thus Nature did her best for us.

It is the delay of waste matter in this long intestine that is responsible for a large percentage of the "chronic" ailments that afflict mankind.

Exercise will help to move the waste along, but exercise simply means "work" to many individuals.

If the health officer will simply advise the people to eat a little bulky food every day — cabbage, carrots, lettuce, fruits, cereals, nuts and so forth — any one of these at least once a day — he would be doing to some extent for adults what he has been doing for children.

And adult lives are worth saving.

ONE HUNDRED MILLION TREES.

Since 1901 when the Department of the Interior through its Forest Service commenced the distribution to prairie farmers of seedlings and cuttings to establish shelterbelts to beautify and protect their homes, well over 100,000,000 trees have been sent out.

This graceful model will have an especial appeal to figures a little above normal.

And into the bargain it will be found extremely easy to make.

The softly falling jabot collar has a marvellous slimming effect on the bodice. It also offers opportunity for contrast.

There are a number of lovely scheme for its development.

You'll like black canton crepe very well with the vestee of self-fabric with the jabot carried out in white crepe.

Crepe marocain in the new rust shade is charmingly wearable with vest and jabot in self-fabric.

A BEDTIME STORY

Bound to Cure

UNCLE WIGGILY IS LOCKED OUT.

"Why, Nurse Jane!" exclaimed Mrs Longears, hopping into the kitchen of the hollow stump bungalow one day, "Whatever is the matter."

Well might the rabbit lady ask that, for she saw the muskrat lady housekeeper sitting down in a chair. Nurse Jane never did this unless something was the matter, for she was a busy worker. And, just now, something seemed to be wrong. For the kitchen was all topsy turvy with tins and dishes and spoons and an egg beater scattered about it.

"I started to make a molasses ginger cake, to keep the children warm this cold day," said Nurse Jane, still sitting in the chair. "But I had to stop."

"Don't you feel well?" asked Mrs. Longears, anxiously. "Oh, Nurse Jane! I'm so sorry! You had better hop right up to bed and I'll send for Dr. Possum. I'll finish making the molasses ginger cake, too."

"No, you can't!" squeaked Nurse Jane with a laugh. "There is nothing the matter with me. I'm all right...."

"Then why did you have to stop making the cake and sit down?" the rabbit lady wife of Uncle Wiggily has to know.

"Because," answered Nurse Jane, "I found, when I started to make the cake, that I had no molasses. So I had to stop and sit down. Uncle Wiggily has taken the jug and gone to the store to get me the molasses. I think he must be coming back in a little while, and then I will finish the cake."

"Oh, then everything is all right," said Mrs. Longears. "No wonder you are sitting down. But I hope Uncle Wiggily comes home soon with the molasses. It has turned very cold and a shivering wind is blowing. He didn't wear his extra fur coat, either, for it was warm when he started out. I hope he comes soon."

"Yes, he ought to be hopping along soon, now," spoke Nurse Jane, as she hopped up to look out of a window across the field over which the rabbit gentleman always came home.

Then, all of a sudden, as Mrs. Long-

"Here comes somebody now!"

ears gazed from the window she exclaimed:

"Here comes somebody now, but it doesn't look like Uncle Wiggily."

"Where," asked Nurse Jane.

"Over there, by the trees on the edge of the woods," went on Mrs. Longears. "Who can it be?"

"It isn't Uncle Wiggily, that's sure," added Nurse Jane. "It looks to me like a tramp dog."

"Or like a big pile of leaves," added Mrs. Longears.

"A pile of leaves wouldn't have legs," spoke the muskrat lady. "And whoever that is, coming this way, he has legs. Oh, I'm sure it's a tramp dog! we'd better lock the doors."

"Yes, indeed!" said Mrs. Longears. So the muskrat lady and the rabbit lady locked the bungalow doors and then went back to the kitchen window to watch the strange figure coming across the lots. All the rabbit children, and Baby Bunty, were still at school.

"Why, he's coming right here—whoever that tramp dog is!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears as the queer figure hopped nearer.

"And it looks more like a pile of leaves than ever!" said Nurse Jane. "Oh, what can it be?"

Just then some on rattled the knob and tried to open the door, but it was locked. Then a voice called:

"Let me in! Let me in! What's the idea of locking me out,"

"Go on away, tramp dog!" squeaked Nurse Jane.

"Who are you?" asked Mrs. Longears. bravely.

"Why I am Uncle Wiggily!" answered the voice. "Ha! Ha! Don't you know your own husband, Mrs. Longears?"

"You aren't her husband," cried Nurse Jane.

"You aren't Uncle Wiggily," said Mrs. Longears. "Go on away or I'll call the police dog."

"Nonsense! Of course I'm Uncle Wiggily" answered the voice of the funny creature at the locked door. "I guess you don't know me because I have on a new coat of leaves. Listen! When I was coming home with the molasses for Nurse Jane, the wind blew so hard and I was so cold, for I had no extra fur coat, that I shivered and shook. I set the molasses jug down in some dried leaves and I saw how they stuck to the jug to keep it warm. The leaves made a fuzzy, warm coat.

"So I poured some molasses on a pile of leaves and rolled myself in them. They stuck to me and made me a warm, fuzzy coat and now I'm as cosy as can be. Let me in and when I take off my coat of molasses leaves you will see that I am Uncle Wiggily."

Timidly the animal ladies unlocked the door, and the strange leaf covered creature came in. But, when some leaves were pulled off, surely enough there was Uncle Wiggily. And, how glad his wife and Nurse Jane were.

"Here's the molasses," said the funny gentleman. Nurse Jane made the cake Mr. Longears washed the sticky stuff off and all was well.

The Young People's League of Mark Street United Church entertained about sixty members of the League of Norwood United Church, this week, when the visitors were welcomed by the Rev. A. E. Thornley. The young people of Norwood presented a very interesting program consisting of recitations by Miss Grace Dayman, a solo by Mr. E. Edwards, a piano duet by the Misses Mary Stewart and Marguerite Webster, instrumental numbers by Miss Morrison, quartette selections by Angelina, Florence, Max and Roy Scott, and a duett by Messrs. Hamilton and Humphries. Mr. Leslie Wildman played accompaniments. There was also an interesting debate by three members of each League, on the topic, "The World is Growing Better," with the affirmative winning. A program of games followed, in charge of Mr. Hector McLeod, and a dainty lunch was served. Miss Grace Dayman voiced the vote of thanks to the hosts.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

I wonder; does your home life seem to be in a rut, with the same things happening day in and day out, with no change whatever?

• • • • • • •

There are homes, you know, like this, but I hope yours isn't. It makes the occupants of the house dull and they don't seem to care what is before them.

• • • • • • •

Would you agree with me if I said that contrasts in home life are important to the appreciation of the comforts of the home and to the well-being of the family?

• • • • • • •

I am sure the majority of you readers would, at any rate.

• • • • • • •

To you, as housewives, falls the greater part of the responsibility to see that variety is put into the days. At this time, perhaps, more than at any other, variety seems lacking.

• • • • • • •

The vacation periods of the summer supply the needed variations. Frequently the luxuries of a well-appointed house are abandoned for the simplicities of camping life, minus the conveniences that years of customary usage have rendered almost too common to be thought of.

• • • • • • •

But then the time spent without these gives a fresh appeal. When you have returned to them they seem like new and are welcome additions to the necessities of life.

• • • • • • •

Perhaps a desirable change would be the elimination of the accustomed forms of living, but you can scarcely expect the family to do without their comforts just to provide variety.

• • • • • • •

This has to be a voluntary choice as in the selection of the kind of vacation that appeals most. She has to provide less drastic changes, but she must avoid letting the family find homelife humdrum.

• • • • • • •

There are several ways of giving the color of contrast to home life. For one thing, avoid having menus follow set days in any two consecutive weeks.

• • • • • • •

Even chicken dinners repeatedly served on Sundays puts the stamp of monotony on that menu, however good it may be and how much it is enjoyed by the family.

• • • • • • •

And you can do your part by entertaining company occasionally in the evening when there is at to be quiet times at home. Or if entertaining in the evening is general, see that some evening is set apart for the enjoyment of the family itself.

• • • • • • •

There are games that have a vogue such as backgammon, at present. If the family enjoys such entertainment, devote some evenings to playing in competitive games, if there are enough persons.

• • • • • • •

See that some prize is offered—it need not be of value—just some funny little prize.

• • • • • • •

In a family it is not difficult to know what will appeal to the sense of humor.

• • • • • • •

If every member of the family is working hard away from home, it is well to let them feel the quiet composure that can be had under their own roof.

• • • • • • •

The whirl of some businesses can scarcely be endured without the contrast of a comfortable home where gracious and kindly thoughts are present.

GROCERS VIEW SALMON FILMS

"CLOVER LEAF" CAMPAIGN.

Motion pictures of the salmon fishing industry on the British Columbia coast visualized for twenty-five of the city's grocers at luncheon at the Empress hotel yesterday the value and wholesomeness of a can of "Clover Leaf" salmon.

These grocers were the guests of Mr. Richard Gosse, Vancouver, managing director of the Clover Leaf Company, who explained the purpose of the company's present appeal to the women of Peterborough for their opinion of the company's new plan of selling its medium pink or Cohoe and its pink salmon under the familiar "Clover Leaf" brand.

Mr. Gosse, who was introduced to the company by R. M. Glover, explained that the Clover Leaf brand has confined exclusively to the red or sockeye salmon.

"The Clover Leaf red salmon has an established reputation" said Mr. Gosse. "We know that from the investigation which we have made throughout Canada. But we have been putting up our Cohoes and pink salmon under sixty-two different brands. We are now proposing to reduce them to two brands which will bear the "Clover Leaf" name, but will be distinguished by green and pink labels. Before we put on a national wide campaign, which we are planning to start early in the year, we want to get the opinion of the housewives of two representative cities which we have selected for a test. We chose Peterborough and Kingston because we believe them to be uniformly Canadian, without any foreign population, and also because we can reach them through the medium of their newspapers. The coverage of the Examiner in Peterborough was so complete that we decided to come here; and we want to get the response of the women of this city. We are guaranteeing the quality of our medium red and pink brands of Clover Leaf salmon, just as we have always guaranteed our well-known Clover Leaf sockeye salmon. We want to know what the women of Peterborough think of them, before we go ahead with our national campaign."

The motion pictures of the industry not only showed the magnitude of this Canadian industry, but they also created a deep impression of the sanitary standards in the canneries. The salmon are caught in the sea, and are canned within twenty-four hours. Long rows of girls in the packing department were seen in white costumes, even to white gloves, and the complete cleanliness of the plants was in itself a guarantee of the care with which the company provides this food in its millions of tins.

Mayor Denne remarked that if the women of the city could have seen these pictures they would have been more than ever impressed with the importance of the salmon industry and especially of the sanitary conditions that surround every branch of it.

TALKING TABLEAU PRESENTED IN HALL

St. Andrew's Guild of Stirling Church Holds Regular Meeting.

STIRLING, Dec. 5. (Examiner Correspondence)—An interesting talking tableau "When the Christ Child passed through," was presented at the regular meeting of St. Andrew's Guild on Monday evening with Miss Smith in charge.

Three carol singers from Europe settle in their homes on Christmas street—P. Mitchell, L. Ward and C. Fargey. A number of children at one side sang, "Christmas Carols," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and "Holy Night." Phyllis Mitchell gave a recitation, "Christ is Born."

Following this a representative from each nation appeared, Indian brave, Harold Baker, who told how the Christ child came over the desert and of the tower on the Churches of the white men which pointed out the place where lessons of Christ were taught.

Eskimo Boy, Don Rogers, told of how the Christ child came to the igloo in Alaska. The aurora borealis went streaming up into the sky, making them think Father, Son, and Holy Ghost represented by snow, ice and water all one substance.

Hindu Girl, Trenelda Eggleton. A white fair teacher, who is constantly smiling shows her the way to Christ. She prays to be made more like her.

Japanese Boy, James Ward, learned of Christ through his Christian School where he can go and talk to Jesus in time of loneliness. In his native school there is no God.

Chinese Girl, Helen Ward, told of an illiterate old lady who although she could not read, owned a Bible and daily tore off a leaf and sent it into the street. She prayed over each leaf, 'God make them understand and step into their hearts, make the doctrine precious.'

Miss Smith and Lorne Anderson gave a piano duet and a character song was sung by A. Nathan, "In the Sweet Long Ago." A procession of girls passed before him: Summer Girl, O. Tulloch winter, I. Chambers, Graduate, L. Fargey, business, H. Lamb, school, M. Johnson, society, W. Morton, His choice falling on the last to enter, a demure old fashioned girl, played by Emma Allen.

This appointment to the staff was announced to-day, although his commission will not be signed until Governor-elect Cross is inaugurated on January 7.

Tunney will be one of four aides appointed from civil life under the law, although he holds a commission as lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps, reserves.

REV. J. FRASER ADDRESSES C.W.L.

GIRL GUIDES FORMED.

The Rev. J. M. Fraser of the China Mission College at Scarboro Bluffs gave a very interesting lecture, illustrated with stereopticon slides, to the members of the Catholice Women's League, at their meeting in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, on Wednesday evening.

Father Fraser, who has recently returned from the Far East, took his audience on a pictured trip from the point of embarkation at Vancouver to the uttermost limits of Chuchow. The slides, which were artistically colored, dealt amost exclusively with the work of the Catholic Missions in China.

The votes of thanks to the lecturer was worded by Mrs. J. J. Lynch and the president, Mrs. M. Henry, also expressed the appreciation of the audience, saying that she felt that a new interest in these children of the Orient had been aroused by the speaker.

In the business session which followed the lecture, it was announced that, following the recent visit of Mrs. Parsons of Toronto, speaking in the interests of the Girl Guide movement, one company had been formed with Miss Agnes McCarthy as captain. New members will be welcomed.

It was decided to continue the chain of card parties, as funds are urgently needed for Christmas baskets.

St. Anthony's Sewing Circle sent in a request for sewing machines, also for clothing to re-model for many needy children.

A sincere expression of thanks to those who contributed to the recent fruit shower in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage and the House of Providence, was read from the Sisters in charge of the two institutions.

The president thanked all those who helped in the sale of tickets for the picture, "Song o' My Heart" recently sponsored by the League, from which a substantial sum was realized, and also thanked those who have been selling tickets for the silver tea service, which will be drawn for next week.

STEVENS SOUNDS OPTIMISTIC NOTE

Claims Growth in Next 25 Years Will Exceed Anything in Past.

PROSPECTS BEST IN WORLD.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 5.—"I am certain just now Canada is standing on the threshold of a new era and that the next 25 years will witness a growth and expansion in this country far beyond anything in the past," declared Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce at an industrial firm's banquet here last night.

Mr. Stevens sounded an inspiring note in his first public address since his return from the Imperial Conference. It was a call to service, notable for its practical nature.

Mr. Stevens feared that Canadians might assume an attitude of false confidence. "I am not going to say that I think we have turned the corner," he said. "I wish the great country to the south as well as Canadians would face the fact that conditions are bad, that there is a great deal of unemployment, that our wheat situation is not so good; look facts frankly in the eye. There might be difficulties to-day, yet this country is inherently sound and there is no country in the world that has the prospects or future of this country, if we face the facts and make the best of conditions as they are."

VICEROY RUMORS STIRRING PRESS

Guardian States Several Indian Delegates Shown Liking For MacDonald.

STORIES ROUNDLY DENIED.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent.)—Premier Ramsay Macdonald's name has been associated with the Viceroyalty of India. At present the talk only extends to newspaper gossip, the Daily Mail having started it yesterday and the News-Chronicle, the Manchester Guardian and an odd one or two others, refer to it more guardedly to-day. It may be added the rumor has not been roundly denied.

The Manchester Guardian says that Premier MacDonald proved himself the ideal chairman at both the Naval and Indian Conferences. Some Indian members of the latter have conceived a great liking for the Prime Minister, the Guardian adds. "They know all the difficulties being experienced in the search for a successor to Lord Irwin, and over the dinner tables they have openly asked why the Government should not find an escape by transferring its head to Delhi," the Guardian says.

Less than a fortnight ago Premier MacDonald recalled to an audience that he first came to London without a soul to welcome him and without money, looking for any kind of a job. It is interesting in this connection to recall that Lord Reading first saw India from a tramp steamer going up the Hoogli river, on which he was a cabin boy, and that fifty years later he made the same voyage as the newly appointed Viceroy.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM HARPER.

Mrs. William Harper (nee Hannah M. Wilson), daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson, of Quebec, died on Thursday, December 4, at her home on 195 London Street. Mrs. Harper was born on July 16, 1838, and was 92 years of age. Her death comes after a short illness. Her husband survives her. During her life, which was practically all spent in this city, she was a member of George Street United Church.

The funeral will take place to-morrow, December 6, at 2 p.m., from 195 London Street. Services will be conducted by Rev. J. E. J. Millyard. Interment will be made at Little Lake Cemetery, attended by Comstock's Funeral Service.

MRS. VICTOR LANG

The death occurred in Nicholls Hospital at nine-thirty this morning, after a brief illness, of Norah May, beloved wife of Victor T. Lang and only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hedge 603 Water street.

Deceased, who was well known in the city, having resided here for the past twenty-five years, was in her twenty-ninth year. She was a faithful member of the Salvation Army and was always ready to give a helping hand when needed; her cheerful disposition and kindly ways will be sadly missed by all who knew her. Surviving her are her sorrowing husband and parents, also her little infant daughter.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon, December 8, at 2 p.m. from the Salvation Army Temple, Adjutant Jones officiating. Interment in Little Lake Cemetery.

DRIVER KILLED—TWO INJURED

CARLETON PLACE, Ont., Dec. 5. (CP)—Stuart Baker, Smith's Falls, was killed and his wife and another passenger suffered severe shock, when a car driven by Baker swerved from the road, plunged into a ditch and turned over after hitting a stump. The road was slippery at the time and Baker, who has only one arm, apparently lost control of the machine.

AGED COUNTRY DOCTOR SERVED PIONEERS WELL

Henry Adams of Embro Fought Small-Pox Epidemic Fifty Years Ago, Burying Victims Himself

OUT of Embro, in the historic Zorras of Oxford county, many men have gone to make their mark in the world.

Few, however, of those who left this little village have had a more notable career, or have given more intimate service to mankind than one—Dr. Henry Adams—who remained in Embro, and who still lives there to-day. He is believed to be in his 96th year.

Dr. Henry Adams

The fact is clearly established that for the past 67 years Dr. Adams has been a continuous resident there. He carried on his profession until about ten years ago. He was not only the dean of country doctors in the Zorras, but he conducted also a drug store; inaugurated an apple evaporator; launched a weekly newspaper which is still issuing though under a changed name; ministered to the wants and the dire needs of an entire countryside in his medical practice, with payment as a second consideration; owned some hundreds of acres of farm land, four hundred being in Oxford and more in Kent; was reeve and councillor and fought to the bitter end those whom he felt to be doing ill in public office; was listed on the directorate of numerous industrial concerns in Oxford; outfitted and conducted a hospital in the lumber camps of the north; brought the Masonic and Oddfellows' lodges to Embro; and at the age of 95 years, still maintains his utter independence to-day, for he lives alone by choice.

Dr. Adams graduated in medicine from the University of Pennsylvania. He served as a medical man in the American civil war. He was born in Prince Edward Island and for some years had lived at Port Hope and also in Huron county before coming to Embro.

Fifty-two years ago smallpox swept the Zorras. Many were ill. Sixteen died. Measures of prevention were primitive or unknown in a general way. It was here that Dr. Adams won undying remembrance for the part he played. He worked night and day among the sufferers when others shunned the very homes they occupied. He even buried a number of his own dead during that scourge. Old residents who well recall the times tell of him dragging the caskets to the cemetery with chains and a horse. Along roads that were almost primitive, in blizzards and through drifts, he was a familiar figure through the Zorras for many years, and many stories are told of his sleeping in the cutter as his horse fought the drifted roads. He was going day and night without any other sleep for long periods at a time.

Utterly fearless and inclined to possess a withering sarcasm where he required it, he nevertheless came to be a beloved character who gave freely of his talents to the poor and the rich without any distinction.

To the east and south of the village of Embro, lays what is termed The Old Log Church cemetery. Here lay the pioneers of the Zorras in a well-kept and historic valley that nestles amid the green fields of modern farms. Here was erected the first church in the district, and here, more than a hundred years ago, the first of the faithful were laid by kindly hands. To this cemetery, followed Dr. Adams as many of these pioneer sons and daughters of Zorra went to their last place of rest. One headstone there, following the name and inscription, bears intelligence to the effect that "her remains were the first to be interred in this cemetery." The woman in question was buried in 1828.

Feeble and bent, with his hearing gone, but still interested in his daily paper and still able, with two canes, to get about to the stores in the little village, this virile link with an historic past still goes on. His has been a full life, and a life given largely to others.

He Missed Monocles In This Raw, Raw, Land

LORD STONEHAVEN, retired governor-general of Australia, must have learned a great deal about the problems of that politically-unsettled country during the five years he was in office, but a life-long diplomatic training forbids him throwing any light on the subject. He is one of the most uncommunicative men ever questioned by Pacific coast reporters who met him on his way home to England.

Lord Stonehaven

The ex-governor-general wears an expression of genial frankness until he hears a question which he does not care to answer and then his face assumes a look of profound boredom as he murmurs: "Ah! And what next, pray?" He says this, too, in a tone of voice that forbids a repetition of the question.

Two things, however, were learned as the result of several interviews. One is that the ex-governor-general is of the opinion that there is so much optimism inherent in the character of the Australians that this will be the determining factor in the eventual recovery of that country from its present economic impasse and trade depression.

The other bit of enlightenment came as a result of the query:

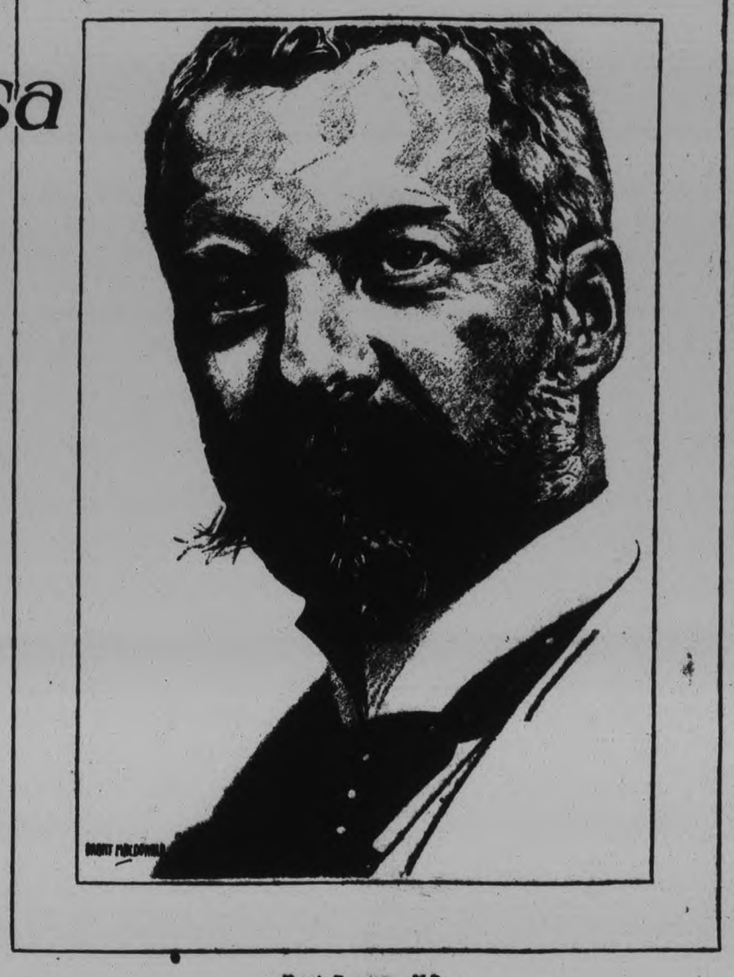
"What is the chief difference you notice between Canadians and Australians?"

"I can only speak superficially, of course," answered Lord Stonehaven, "but I should say that the absence of monocles in Canada has been the most noticeable distinction so far. Have you given up wearing them or haven't you started yet?"

The distinguished visitor was informed that no statistics were available as to the number of monocle wearers in western Canada, but they were not entirely unknown. The news seemed to please him.

Lord Stonehaven himself wears eye-glasses for reading and walking, but he invariably discards these when taking part in an official function and ornaments himself with a monocle instead.

Henri Bourassa by "R. T. L."



Henri Bourassa, M.P.

MR. BOURASSA is probably the greatest of all the Might-Have-Beens in Canadian history.

He beat Laurier in Quebec in 1911 and almost took the French-Canadian crown. He is now merely a Montreal newspaper editor who takes quite an interest in political matters.

He has been called an extinct volcano, but this is not quite true as he still emits a considerable volume of smoke and flame.

Hardly anyone ever pronounces his name correctly, which used to annoy him more than it does now.

The correct pronounciation is Bourassa.

He has not a high opinion of Ontario, which he regards as the most provincial of the provinces and says that Mr. Thomas Church is both proof and product. (Mr. Church is a football fan who lives in Toronto.)

He does not think much of Toronto either. He has visited Toronto a number of times and on each occasion is glad that he lives in Montreal.

He is sixty-two years old.

He was first elected to parliament when he was twenty-eight and resigned his seat three years later as a protest against Canada's sending troops to South Africa. This, however, did not stop the war.

He stayed in parliament until 1907 and then resigned again to go into the Quebec legislature. He thought he could run the Nationalist group better from there, which was a great mistake.

His mother was a Papineau and Major Talbot Papineau, who was killed with the Princess Patricia's at Passchendaele, was a cousin.

Talbot Papineau sent him a reproving letter from France which made him very angry indeed.

He was mayor of Montebello when he was twenty-two and mayor of Papineauville a few years later. Then he bought a fine buggy and a pair of horses and got elected to parliament.

He is a short man with a round bullet head, a cultivated beard, brown eyes that snap and a mellifluous voice.

He wept in 1921 because the doctor would not let him run for parliament, but he ran in 1925 and has been the Independent member for Labelle ever since.

He makes speeches now which are more excited than exciting and this is a pity, for there was once no more potent orator in Canada.

He looks a little like Mr. H. C. Hocken, but this is absolutely the only similarity between them. (Mr. Hocken is another Toronto citizen and a friend of Mr. Church.)

In parliament he is usually chummy with the Labor and Progressive members and has supported the Liberals as the lesser of two evils.

He always addresses the Speaker as Monsieur le President and believes that he is thus asserting a principle of high importance.

He has the vitality of a flapper and when he gets into action he quivers like a terrier after a rat.

He is the most cultured and the most naturally courteous man in parliament, although neither as cultured nor as courteous as Mr. Guthrie at times appears to be. (Mr. Guthrie is a statesman of ambidexterous versatility.)

He smokes clay pipes and pretends to enjoy them although he is rarely able to keep a pipe lit during a conversation because he talks so much and so fast.

One way to become friendly with him, however, is to admire his pipe. Another way is to agree with him, but this is usually more difficult.

He is gradually being overtaken by the tolerance which accompanies old age, but is still probably the best hater we have.

He is still able to have a good deal of fun because, though he is no longer really dangerous, there are enough people who continue to think that he may be.

Among these is Mr. Hennett.

When he starts to speak in the House the Conservative members have a habit of leaving their seats in disdain. They then hide behind the curtains in their lobby so they will not miss what he says.

He has a skilful sense of humor and has declined to sing the National Anthem in the House of Commons on the ground that it is unconstitutional to mention the name of the King there.

He does not know what he is going to do during the coming session, but intends to enjoy himself anyway.

Judge of High Court Judges High Jumpers

THE HON. WILLIAM EVELYN WYLIE, justice of the High Court, Irish Free State, has done honor to Canada in general and to the Royal Winter Fair in particular by coming to Toronto to act as judge-in-chief of the hunter classes.

To the rule that all Irishmen love horses Judge Wylie is no exception. His dual judgeship during his visit to Canada—which, by the way, is his first—was neatly reflected by Chairman George S. Currie, president of the Montreal Canadian Club, in the words, "We hope that he will be merciful to our horses and think kindly of our men."

As to his qualifications to be a judge of equine virtues and failings as well as those of human beings there can be no question. For some years Judge Wylie has been a master of hounds, being M.F.H. of the famous Ward Union pack. Many a great run has he had.

"As a judge," he remarked, "I am forbidden to talk about politics. As a matter of fact, I find it very hard to talk about Ireland without talking about politics." In spite of that, however, he managed to convince a critical audience that he is in the line of great orators who may or may not have kissed the Blarney Stone.

Having been Chairman of the Irish Railway Board the distinguished guest recalled that his grandfather had travelled on the first train from Ballyclare north to Dublin. And thereby hangs a tale.

"Third-class carriages were open to the sky in those days," said the judge. "In one of them travelled a typical countryman. The train came to a place where it would have to pass under a bridge carrying a road.

"Nearer and nearer drew the train, swaying somewhat on the uneven roadbed of those early days. All at once a loud shout was heard from the rustic. 'Bhoys, bhoys,' he yelled. 'All of yez get ready to jump. I'm sartain we're going to miss that hole.'"

Judge Wylie told of a famous chair built for the president of the Royal Dublin Society in 1750. It had two long arms, both quite wide at the ends. One would clearly do for the glass and the other for the decanter. "I'm sure," commented his lordship, "that's a custom which might be adopted by any society."

At Ball's Bridge near Dublin is held the famous Dublin Horse Show. Annually in August there are 1,000 entries, the horses, of which there are 70 to 80 in each event, jumping off two at a time. "Each event takes about an hour," remarked the judge. "Not much delay—and not much time to pick up the pieces of the victims."

As to the Canadian custom of introducing visitors at luncheon clubs by cards giving biographical details Judge Wylie expressed himself as being delighted by it. "May I have one to show my friends in Ireland?" he asked. "I'm reminded of a wake which took place once near Cork.

"'Ah, poor Tim! and a decent man ye were, God rest ye!' said the first mourner. 'Alas! and ye never did any harrm to annybody,' remarked the second. Then the widow stepped over to the coffin. 'Who the devil's in that coffin, anyway?' she asked.

"When I read the announcement on the card I wondered who it was in this suit of clothes," the judge concluded.

SCHOOLCHILDREN in France may have to write with both hands if the education authorities of that country adopt the suggestion of a well-known doctor.

AN ENGLISH NOVELIST WHO DISLIKES ENGLAND

Aldous Huxley Must Have Sunshine, So He Lives in France—Wrote First Book When Blind

THE threat of blindness had a good deal to do with the success of Aldous Huxley, the well-known English novelist. He had intended to become a scientist, but his eyes suddenly played out, and for several years he was partially blind. Of course he was obliged to give up his studies, which entailed a heavy course of reading and exhausting use of the microscope. During this black period his thoughts turned to the writing of books, and he took his first step towards authorship. He actually wrote a novel of 60,000 words—a tragedy—but he did not succeed in getting it into the hands of a sympathetic publisher, and it was put aside and lost. Mr. Huxley has always maintained that it was a good story, too, and he ought to know, for he has published many successful books since those days.

Aldous Huxley

Mr. Huxley has a typical English background, but he does not live in England. He maintains a fine villa near Toulon, in France, and writes his books there. He is married. His objection to England is the climate; he says it depresses him. Sunshine, he says, is necessary to his existence, and there is lots of sunshine in southern France. It is possible, of course, that income tax may have a bearing on his self-imposed exile. The British chancellor of the exchequer swoops down upon successful authors, and if they transfer their place of abode to sunny France they escape the levy. That is the reason why so many English novelists live under the French flag to-day. In other words, they live on England but live in France.

"Journalism," he said recently, "is a fraudulent but amusing profession." Mr. Huxley apparently didn't think much of the training he received in London newspaper offices. "The great thing about journalism," he said, "is that it gives you confidence. You find yourself writing a very good article on something you know nothing at all about. One week in the London library puts you on equality with all but 500 people in Great Britain or perhaps the world."

Mr. Huxley is tall and pale, and dresses distinctively. He loves beauty, and has painted some good water-colors. This hobby is no doubt an inheritance from his mother, who was a daughter of the brother of Matthew Arnold, and a sister of Mrs. Humphrey Ward. His grandfather was the noted biologist, Thomas Henry Huxley. With such a hereditary background, Aldous may go quite a distance.

A PLEASANT CHANGE

"Ah," she exclaimed, getting off the mark as soon as he stepped into the hall, "I've got a lot of things I want to talk to you about."

Jones' face brightened.

"Good!" he replied. "I'm glad to hear it. Usually you want to talk to me about a lot of things you haven't got."

THE prisoner turned a pleading face to the judge. "My Lord," he asked, "have I got to be tried by a jury of women?" "Be quiet," whispered his counsel. "I won't be quiet!" he returned. "My Lord, I can't even deceive my own wife, let alone twelve women. I plead 'Guilty'."

Marco Barone's World-Circling Hike is Hard on Donkeys

BECAUSE Marco Barone is fond of animals he is walking back to Southern California, a distance of 2,200 miles, so that his donkey will be assured warm winter quarters.

On his fourteenth year of a walking tour of the world, with six more years to go before his journey is completed, Marco has already worn out seven donkeys. Number 8, "Inspiration" by name, has been with him since he left old Mexico two years ago.

Forced to abandon the idea of reaching Alaska by way of Dawson over the Yukon Telegraph trail because of mud and poor feed for his donkey, Marco decided to return to California with the animal rather than leave him to starve in a country where the snow often reaches a depth of 20 feet.

This was at 7th Cabin, 165 miles north of Hazelton, on the "Poor Man's Route to Klondike of '98 and 9." To go on past 8th, 9th, Echo Lake and Iskoot, meant even worse conditions for the pack animal.

"A jackass is like a bad wife that you love," Marco asserts. "You just don't know what to do with them. But you do know that they must be cared for just the same. And that's the way it is with 'Inspiration' and me," he explained.

"I am fond of animals," he said. "And I could not have abandoned my donkey to its fate there on the Klondike trail. I could have made Dawson quite easily by myself. But the donkey had stood by me in the desert. And I would not leave it to starve or become bogged down in the mud of that groundhog country along the Naas river."

In 1912, on May 1, Marco started out from Rome, Italy, to walk around the world. With the exception of five years, during which time he served in the Italian army, returning from Mexico to enlist, "the man with the donkey" as he is known along the route has been on the road.

In the thirteen and a half years' travel Marco has visited many countries, learned to speak four languages quite fluently and swear in eleven—he has added Chinook to his former 10—and has covered more than 100,000 miles.

By the time he reaches his destination he will have passed through 40 countries and increased his mileage by 60,000. The remaining continents and dominions to be visited are Asia, Africa, Australia, New Zealand and part of Europe.

Marco started out with a donkey, a dog and a man. The man played out before Marco had shaken the dust of Europe off his feet. Seven donkeys have fallen by the wayside and eight dogs. The ninth dog, "Pal," has been with him since Idaho was passed about ten months ago. One dog lasted four years.

The man, the donkey and the dog were welcome visitors at the lonely telegraph cabins north of Hazelton, where the supply pack trains once a year are the only diversion.

At different places Marco was assisted by linemen and operators when the donkey became mired in muddy fords. At Martin's flats, near 2nd Cabin, the tiny hoofs of the long-eared beast sank so deeply in the muck and mire on the Klondike trail that Marco feared for a time he was about to lose his "Inspiration" for good and all.

"A horse will struggle when it gets in a mudhole," Barone declared. "But a mule and a jackass won't. They'll just lie there and die if you don't jump in the mud yourself and help them get up."

The mud was bad, but the devil's club which grows to such a height that it overhangs the trail in places was worse, Marco says. His hands are full of tiny thorns, which next year, an Indian told him, would work their way out again.

Marco was amused at one Indian he met in the wilds north of Hazelton. Asking the native the time of day he replied that he could not tell him because his watch was "sick."

"Watch he's seeck; he's no go now for long time," the Indian said. And the Indian had no watch at all, Marco discovered.

Leaving the donkey at Hazelton on his return from 7th Cabin, Barone made a side trip to Hyder, Alaska, and back. But he did not see enough of that country and plans to mush in over the Yukon river with dogs this winter. From Alaska he will cross over Bering strait into Siberia.

Marco makes his expenses by lecturing, mostly to school children. In his possession are many interesting photographs—and a number of gruesome ones—taken by himself in various countries. Among them are pictures of men, found by himself, who had died of thirst and exposure in the desert; pictures of hanged Mexican bandits, swinging at the end of a rope. Another is a photograph of a man playing a concertina—a friend of Barone's. This man advertised for a wife and got more than a hundred letters in reply "from husbands anxious to get rid of theirs!"

Marco has been arrested twice for blocking traffic when people crowded around to have a look at the donkey and desert pack outfit. The pack includes a three-gallon keg—"for water in dry countries such as the United States," the man with the donkey says, "but I have never been arrested for speeding."

Their average day is fifteen miles. Once they made considerably more than twenty—but on that day they were following a load of hay!

Marco Barone and his travelling companions.

A WOMAN is never surprised when she is handed a compliment.

When Mr. Rudyard Kipling was living at Rottingdean, near Brighton, it was his custom to pay by cheque for all his local purchases, however small.

After a while the author found to his amusement that his banking account showed a much bigger balance than the counterfoils of his cheque-book warranted.

For some time he was at a loss to account for this strange fact, until one day, happening to visit a certain office where the principal was an enthusiastic autograph collector, he saw one of his cheques framed and hanging on the wall.

It appeared that the local shopkeepers found that they could often get more for Kipling's cheques from autograph hunters who desired to keep them in their collections than they could by cashing them in the ordinary way—which solved the riddle of the author's banking account.

"Bloc" Says Tory M.P: Now Goes Into Discard

THE province of Quebec and the province of British Columbia have at least one thing in common. Both are making a determined effort to amend the dictionary of the English language.

This somewhat surprising activity of the east and the west was revealed by the Hon. Alfred Duranleau during his visit to the Pacific coast, which he termed "this pleasant and surprising lapd." The similarity, however, is perhaps political rather than strictly lexicographic.

Hon. A. Duranleau

It is an unwritten law that politics are barred from speeches given before the Canadian Club, but the Gallic finesse of Mr. Duranleau enabled him to introduce a slight flavor of it into his address in Vancouver. As minister of marine he was naturally expected to say something about the future development of the port, which has been a live issue for many years.

Some of the members of the audience, bearing in mind that Vancouver had sent a solid Liberal delegation to Ottawa at the last election, after having been staunchly Conservative while that party was out of power, were somewhat dubious as to the probability of the city being in high favor with the present government. Mr. Duranleau, however, soon made it clear that Vancouver's political allegiance was its own business and that the development of transport facilities would not be retarded on that account.

Like a wise prophet Mr. Duranleau did not fix a definite date for this happy eventuality. Instead, he went on to develop his lexicographic sally in this wise:

"Although I deplore the loss of our Conservative friends in your city I cannot but rejoice at the fact that British Columbia has joined with Quebec in a determined effort to rid the dictionary of a word that has a deplorable meaning. I refer, of course, to the French word, 'bloc,' which far too often also means 'block.' That expression has been preserved far too long in my own province and I was very pleased indeed to see it disintegrating at the last election, altogether apart from the pleasant political connotations.

"That British Columbia also did its share towards making that word 'bloc' qualify for the obsolete section of the dictionary is something that none of you need regret."

Norwood And Lakefield In City Hockey League

EXECUTIVE PLANNING TO SEND INVITATIONS TO THESE TEAMS

Inclusion of Outside Teams Will Add New Interest to This Hockey Loop.

ANNUAL REPORT.

Present indications point to the probability that Norwood and Lakefield will be asked to be included in the City Hockey League. The outcome of last evening's meeting of the League, held in the Council Room of the Chamber of Commerce under the chairmanship of S. J. Hayes, was that invitations will be extended for delegates from these two outside teams to be present at the next general meeting of the League to be held in the immediate future.

Norwood last year had the misfortune not to be able to get into the Trent Valley League, it was explained, and are now seriously considering the formation of another league into which they would invite the Cognawagas and the C.G.E. toolroom teams. Lakefield has dropped out of the intermediate series.

Added Interest.

It would thus appear that here is the City League's chance to introduce some new and added interest by the inclusion of these outside teams, interest which would help to materially swell the gate receipts and thus establish the game locally on a sounder financial basis. On the other hand the proposal of the Norwood team to establish another league at the expense of the City League, makes it a matter for quick action.

It was considerably disappointing considering the important business that was on the table for discussion, that last night's attendance did not constitute a representative gathering, however a committee was appointed pro tem to act as a nominating committee for the League and to receive entries. The committee consists of Messrs. H. Coit, S. J. Hayes, N. H. McFadden and J. McMartin who are planning to attend to any urgent business immediately and to call another meeting at an early date, when it will be expected to have all prospective teams fully represented.

The following teams were represented at last night's meeting—Juniors: Star Athletics and C.G.E. Office; Seniors: C.G.E. Toolroom. It is probably that East City and Cognawagas will also be joining the league again this season while rumor has it that the Imperial Oil and the Teco are going to enter also.

J. P. Bond, vice-president of the O.H.A. addressed the meeting and in the course of a snappy inspirational review of the large part which hockey has played in the making of this city, said Peterborough has one of the greatest hockey records of any city in Ontario. He traced the course of this great winter sport, so far as this city is concerned from the year 1894 right up to the present day, mentioning such outstanding players as R. M. Glover, Cavanagh, Whiteroft, Chris Graham, Frank Heffernan, Geo. Dwyer, Cyril Giroux, H. C. Jay and many others whom he termed some of the greatest players in Canada who were developed in the City League.

The speaker thought the City League was working along the right lines, and he reminded them that they had a great responsibility so far as hockey is concerned. "The O.H.A. recognizes that the City Leagues are the best incubators for new players," he said, "and it also recognizes the important place which junior players occupy."

Referring to the possibility of Norwood and Lakefield entering teams in the league, Mr. Bond considered it would be a good idea for them to come in.

Annual Report.

The annual report presented by the secretary showed a credit cash balance of $29.35. The income was derived solely from entry fees. The Brock street rink management agreed to allow the league the use of the rink under an agreement whereby the rink took the total gate receipts up to $40 and the hockey league the amount in excess of $40 and under $50. All receipts over $50 were to be divided equally by the league and the rink management. Unfortunately the gate receipts at no time equalled $40, consequently there was no revenue from this source. The amount of the gate receipts during the entire season worked out at $25.25 per game.

Trophies.

For the senior section the following trophies were available, namely: the old City League Cup and the new trophy presented by the De Laval Company. These cups were suitably engraved and presented to the C.G.E. Tool Room Hockey Club. For the junior section the cup presented by V. J. Tully was available, and was captured by the C.G.E. office team. These trophies are all available for the 1930-31 season.

Following a vote of thanks to Mr Bond for his interesting address, the chairman mentioned the difficulties experienced in getting referees who give their services gratis, and voiced his appreciation on behalf of the league for the services which they had rendered in the past. Coupled with these remarks he expressed his thanks to the Peterborough Examiner for the valuable publicity which it has always given the league, and without which the league would be operating at a handicap.

Train Porter Plays With Roughriders

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5.—(Special to The Examiner)—Porter by night and stellar inside wing by day is the double life lead by Robert Ellis Jackson, lineman with the Regina Roughriders, who arrived here on the National from Winnipeg today.

From the realm of gridiron punts and passes, Jackson steps into the role of a Canadian National Railways sleeping car porter as he earns his daily bread. While his Roughrider teammates travel to battle with Balmy Beach, the eastern champions, Jackson makes up their berths to the accompaniment of a lot of good humored chaff.

Jackson has won for himself the nickname of "Stonewall" at the hands of his teammates for he tosses pillows and sheets for a big gain as efficiently as he stops into a heavy line play. His fellow employees and teammates are pulling for the colored

FOOTBALL RESULTS

LONDON, England, December 5 (C.P. Cable). — Three replayed first round games in the English Football Association Cup competition yesterday resulted as follows:

Luton Town 4, Clapton Orient 2.
Newport 4, Dulwich 1.
Wellington 3, Wombwell 0.

A protest registered by Peterborough against Aldershot following the match last Saturday when Aldershot won by 4 goals to 1, was unsuccessful, and Aldershot advanced to the second round of the competition.

VICTORIAS-DUKES ARE WINNING TEAMS

Stratford and Newmarket Eliminated in S. P. A. Junior Series.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—Two out of town teams went down to defeat in the S.P.A. junior series last night, Stratford losing to Toronto Victorias in the first game by 5 to 1 and Marlboros nosing out Newmarket in the second one by a 5 to 4 count.

Both games were fast and thrilling. Stratford was handicapped by the absence of McCulley, star defense player, and the Victorias were favored by scoring a couple of "soft" goals. Marlboros and Newmarket, two husky junior teams, played a see-saw contest that was fast all the way and provided one of the best games of the present amateur season. The Dukes combined with better results than did the Newmarket team.

Victorias got off to a good start in the opening contest and were never headed after taking a one-goal lead in the first period. The Vics scored all five goals on individual thrusts. Stratford checked back freely and broke up combination attempts repeatedly, but the Toronto players bore in on the net oftener, and to that fact they owe their success.

Leo Desilets counted the first goal after nine minutes in the first period. It was a peculiar counter. He chased the puck behind the Stratford net and shot it out to the front. The rubber struck Pinke's skate and deflected into the cage.

TRENT VALLEY GROUP MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

Organization of Peterborough County Section Contemplated With Four Teams.

ALEX KEMPT'S ACTION.

Meeting at King's Hotel—"Cogs" and C.G.E. May Be Local Entries.

Alex Kempt of Norwood is arranging for a meeting at King's hotel here Monday night of representatives of those teams that are interested in the organization of a Peterborough county section of the Trent Valley League.

Four teams would make a compact group. Three of them are already virtually assured, and a fourth looks like a good prospect. Norwood and Lakefield will come in; Jack Killeran of the C.G.E. has written to Mr. Kempt for a berth; and Cognawagas are expected to make the fourth team.

At the recent annual meeting of the Trent Valley League at Stirling its officers declined to extend the scope of their group to Peterborough county, but Mr. Kempt was given every encouragement to undertake the formation of a Peterborough section. It is understood that the main body of the T.V.L. is agreeable to recognizing the Peterborough wing and to play off with this group's winners for the championship of the League.

About twenty-five years ago Norwood and the Peterborough T.A.S. teams weer included in the Trent Valley circuit. At that time the league played a fast brand of hockey, and in the last few years it has probably returned to that standard.

Norwood and Lakefield were represented at the T.V.L. meeting, and Cogs are reported to have sent down a man a couple of days prior to the meeting to look over their prospects of getting in. So apparently all four teams are ready to join up with the Peterborough county group. It will be even more compact than the eastern wing of the league. The winter roads to Lakefield and Norwood are kept open for motor traffic, so there is no difficulty from the transportation angle.

HAWKS EASILY BEAT AMERICANS

FINAL COUNT 4-2.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5. The Chicago Black Hawks regained winning form last night and scored their sixth victory in eight starts, at the expense of the New York Americans, 4 to 2.

The Black Hawks started fast within five minutes had scored twice, the first goal being accomplished by Somers, on a pass from March in 25 seconds, Couture took a pass from Ripley for the next one, before the Hawks tried to ease up. Burch took advantage of the stalling to score unassisted shortly before the end of the first period.

The rest of the scoring was done in the first half of the session. Bostrom counted early, and Himes came back to give the Americans one. Somers thumped in the last one after taking a pass from Cy Wentworth. Only five penalties were called, and a crowd of about 12,000 watched the match.

CLEVELAND INDIANS TIE PITTSBURGH 2-2

PITTSBURG, Dec. 5.—The Pittsburg Yellow Jackets of the International Hockey League and the Cleveland Indians played an overtime 2-2 deadlock here last night. It was a battle every inch of the way.

The Indians scored in the first period and that ended the point making until the third frame, when the locals became desperate with defeat staring in the face, and put across two tallies only to have the score tied later in the same session by the visitors.

It was during one of the early game skirmishes that Doraty, freed from a mixup and snared a loose puck 20 feet out from the Pittsburg net. He found himself with only Goaler Cox to beat, and negotiated a neat goal. Mike Brophy, Cleveland left wing, had taken the puck down to the Pittsburg sector from his own ice, and during his spurt entirely too much attention was paid the puck-carrier, leaving Doraty uncovered. Rough tactics brought eight penalties in this period, evenly divided, both teams having a man in penalty box at the bell.

Automobile polishes exported from the United States this year had a total value of nearly $[illegible],000.

CANADIENS ON TOP WITH LEAFS

COOK GETS THREE GOALS.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 5.—Montreal Canadiens maintained their home ice winning streak by taking a high scoring, rough National Hockey League match from New York Rangers here last night, 5 goals to 4. The locals, undefeated at home this season, went into a tie with Toronto Maple Leafs at the top of the Canadian section of the league.

New York, with superior man power, carried most of the play to the crippled Canadiens, who had two men off through injuries, and Pete Lepine banished for most of the game for abusing Referee Corbeau.

Bill Cook was Rangers' star, getting three of their four markers. Frankie Boucher netting the fourth. Leduc got his first goal of the season, the other three being shot in by Lepine, Joliat and George Mantha.

Lepine received a $15 fine and a major penalty, five minutes elapsing before he could be replaced.

Philly Club Owner Dies In Montreal

MONTREAL, Que., December 5 (C.P.). — William F. Baker, president of the Philadelphia National Baseball League club, died here early yesterday of a heart attack.

Mr. Baker arrived here on Wednesday to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. He greeted friends in the lobby of his hotel during the day.

During the night he was stricken with a heart attack in his suite at a hotel, and died at 5.30 a.m.

QUAKERS OUTSCORED BY THE SENATORS

Winners Are Only Point Behind Deadlocked Leaders—Score is 5-2.

OTTAWA, December 5. — Ottawa Senators used Philadelphia Quakers as a stepping-stone here last night to move into second place in the Canadian Section standing of the National Hockey League, but it took a stiff fight to accomplish the feat. In sixty minutes of dashing play the homesters trounced the hapless Quakers by 5 goals to 2. The score, however, was hardly indicative of the even terms on which the game was fought.

The speed of the Senators was matched by the perfect combination attack of Cooper Smeaton's men and the real difference in the teams was in the rearguards. The Ottawa sharpshooters crashed the Philadelphia backs time and again to stand in front of the Quaker net and five Goaler Joe Miller hardly a chance to save.

OFFICERS ELECTED SOUTH-END LEAGUE

Teams Getting Lined Up For Another Big Season of Competition.

Teams are getting lined up for another big season of competition in the South End City Hockey League. At the league's second meeting held Wednesday evening the officers were elected as follows: Hon. president, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.; first vice-presidents, J. H. Matthews, J. A. Stewart, H. Campbell, Dr. M. J. O'Brien, E. A. Peck, M.P.; president, Wm Kay; secretary, W. Rogers.

A member of each team was selected and placed on the executive. There are still openings for a few more teams in each section. Entered to date are— Bantams: Athletics, Posters and Canucks; juvenile: Canucks, Tigers and St. Peter's; Junior: Choate's Hardware, Canucks, Stars, Pirates and Electrics.

YOUTHFUL BALL TOSSERS GIVEN SWEATER COATS BY THE CITY FATHERS

Peterborough Bantams Winners of Ontario Amateur Baseball Championship.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS.

Other City League Teams Receive Trophies For Season's Competitions.

Honored guests of the City Council, the Peterborough Maple Leaf Bantam ball team, their dads and backers, and those others particularly active in advancing the cause of clean sport here, were tendered a sumptuous banquet at the Empress Hotel last evening. It was the City Council's party and right nobly did they entertain and do honor to the team of youthful ball-tossers, the only club to bring an Ontario athletic title to the city this year.

The excellence of the team as a ball playing unit was praised, and also their sportsmanlike behavior on and off the field, whether the going be smooth or rough. It was emphasized that the city's youngest ball team had honored themselves by their clean-cut climb to the championship and also had adder further honors to Peterborough's sport escutcheon.

Alderman George A. Macdonald, chairman of the Reception Committee of the Council, who was wont himself in years gone by to cavort on local ball diamonds, presided at the banquet, and added much to the spirit of goodfellowship existing around the banquet board. He welcomed the champions on behalf of the Council and the citizens.

R. R. (Bob) Elliott, popular, hard-working and clear-sighted president of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association, was there, representing this Provinces' largest amateur sport body. He presented the team with the large Carls-Rite Cup and the O.B.A.A. medals, emblematic of the Provincial championship.

Presents Activities

Mr. Elliott, in an inspirational and wholly characteristic address, presented a brief, bird's-eye view of the O.B.A.A.'s activities during the past season. All along the line the Ontario association showed remarkable advancement, proving beyond a doubt that baseball is climbing to new heights under the careful guidance of those piloting the association's affairs.

In 1929 there were 44 leagues operating in the O.B.A.A.; this year the number had increased to 59, stated Mr. Elliott. Last year 5,500 players were registered in the association; this year the players totalled 9,000. In 1929, 206 were affiliated with the association, and this year the number climbed to 276. In all series, during the regular playing season, 1,400 games were played.

Continuing, Mr. Elliott said that 31 games were played in the elimination series for the championships last year, while this year there were 133 games i nthe playdowns. For figures kept by the secretary of the O.B.A.A., he estimated than 100,000 fans had viewed the games in the Ontario play-offs.

Emphasizing the greatness of the Peterborough Bantams in winning their championship, Mr. Elliott stated that they had defeated the best of four other leagues. These leagues included Guelph, St. Catharines and Hamilton. Further, he stressed the remarkable brand of ball that had been furnished in the Bantam series, all games being won by close scores.

Minor Ball Important

Minor baseball, he said, had always been a problem, and in order to develop players and train the boys in true sportsmanship the O.B.A.A. had in the past eight years spent $7,000. No other amateur association, affirmed Mr. Elliott, had spent one-twentieth as much.

A ringing message was also left with the boys by Mr. Elliott. He advised them "to lead clean lives, play clean sport, and to be modest in victory and generous in defeat."

Further, he recalled that the annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. will be held in Peterborough, for the first time east of Toronto, in April next year.

Pat Calladine, who managed the Peterborough champions and whose work in that capacity was singularly praised by every speaker, stated his pleasure in having the boys win the championship. Also, he declared, that next year the same team would be out striving to win the Juvenile laurels.

Presentations Made

In presenting sweaters to each member of the team, Mayor Roland Denne pointed out that the gift was selected because it was made in Peterborough. He also was unstinting in his praise of the boys' success and sportsmanship. He defended Alderman Walter Stocker, chairman of the Parks Committee, declaring that James Stevenson Park must be put in shape, but that finances were insufficient to do the work during the past year.

Alex Kay, as a member of the City League executive, told of some of the work that the league was doing in developing ball players here. He referred to the league, jokingly as the "wilderness league" and also lamented the fact that James Stevenson Park had been allowed to fall into disrepair.

Pictures of the team were presented to the team members by Mike O'Brien, president of the City League. Alderman J. D. Fitzpatrick, in presenting the Fitzpatrick and Geraghty Cup, emblematic of the City League Bantam championship to the team, referred to the work Jake Solomon and Alex Kay had done in bringing baseball back in Peterborough.

Receive Trophies

The J. M. Greene Trophy was presented to the Kiwanis Juveniles, which team played in the Ontario championship final series, by Dr. D. W. Clark, and Fred D. Craig, presented the Bredin Cup to the Kiwanis Juniors, who also played in the championship round. Mr. Craig pointed out that for eight years Peterborough had been winning minor baseball championships, but so far had failed to win a Senior championship. He declared that with so many young ball players being developed during the past years, this city should have been able to win the major championship. But this year the city had not even had a Senior club.

Other speakers were Rev. A. E. Thornley, Joseph Begley and Cecil Williamson, all proud dads of players on the team.

Alderman Walter Stocker said that there had been insufficient funds at the service of the Park Committee to do work needed this year to James Stevenson Park. "I have tried to bring the parks to the citizens, and any observant person can see how that work has been carried out," he said.

Would Drop Buffalo From American League

KANSAS CITY, Mo., December 5. — William F. Grant, president of the American Hockey League, indicated last night that Buffalo would be dropped from the league, in which it has been unable to play any games because of lack of players.

Definite decision was expected to-day, when Grant receives an answer to a telegram to Larry Welch, owner of the Buffalo Club, asking if the Buffs could open their schedule next Monday in Tulsa.

Several Buffalo players have been held at the Canadian border, denied admittance to the United States under the classification of "skilled labor." Buffalo is a new member of the League.

Brass Department Is Entering Team

A meeting of the Brass Department Hockey Club of the Canadian General Electric Company, held last evening, resulted in a decision to enter a team in the Inter-Shop League. Officers were elected as follows: Hon. president, G. R. Langley; president E. G. Hardy; secretary-treasurer, C. Whatley; executive committee, S. Flagher, W. Weir, and A. Padgett.

MORENZ RETAINS SCORING HONORS

Bill Cook Replaces "Dit" Clapper as Head of the American Section.

(By the Canadian Press)

Howie Morenz of Canadiens, who appears to have an uncanny facility for placing pucks out of reach of various goal tenders, is still leading the eagle-eye brigade in the Canadian section, National Hockey League. Morenz scored another goal last night, and has now registered a total of 10 scoring points, made up of nine goals and one assist. But there was a change in the American section leadership. Bill Cook, of Rangers, turned the hat-trick in the game against Canadiens, scoring three nice tallies and stepping out in front of "Dit" Clapper, of Boston, who had formerly led the group. The Cook feat gives William eight points, since he has now scored seven goals and one assist Charlie Conacher, of Toronto, who had been running a close second to Morenz, will be unable to continue. It has been learned that Conacher broke a bone in his wrist, and will be out of the game for some time.

Primeau, Toronto and Mantha, Canadiens, are still the leading assisters in the Canadian group, although Finnigan, Ottawa, passed for three goal last night. In the opposition loops, Oliver and Shore of Boston are still out Joliat, Canadiens, has served 30 minutes on the penalty bench, which gives him the leadership. Shields, of Philadelphia, is chief penalty obtainer in the opposition loop with 29 minutes enforced rest.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

The Automobile Leaguers invaded the Duffus Academy last night for the initial league workout of the season eight teams strong, and chalked up some very creditable scores despite the fact that several of the players unlimbered a duck ball that kept diving into the gutters.

The Ford quintette although they loom as a formidable crew, were treated to a coating of the kalsomine by the Durant aggregation who bumped along to an easy win led by Harry Baptie. He secured both high single and triple for the evening with scores of 287-635.

The Chevrolets collided with the Pontiacs in a nip and tuck battle that sparkled with action until the last pin was down, and the final count gave the latter a 6-2 victory. Leggett and Fullbrooke were well in the lead for the Chevrolets while Art Ralph was high man for the winners.

The Chryslers pulled away from the Buicks to stage a 6-2 victory, in a hard fought struggle. Jim Gillespie and R. Wilson took the laureis for the winners, collecting 627 and 553 respectively while J. J. Duffus and Jack Shaughnessy kept the Buicks in the swim with some clever bowling.

Carl Duck and his Hudson-Essex brigade upset the dope-bucket, when they pulled into a 4-4 decision with the Oldsmobile entry after losing the firs two games. Miss Mills, McEwan and Duck, were the outstanding performers for the Hudson-Essex, while the heavy hitting of Inch and Ellis Armstrong made the Oldsmobile formidable.

The Ladies' City Leagur is breezing along like a major loop and the results last night were no exception to the classy brand of bowling which has been a feature of this series so far this season.

Close decisions were the order in the Quaker-Brinton duel, the former winning a 6-2 victory by a narrow margin. A. Dixon was high with a 183 single. The Nashua-Metropolitan Stores tangle, was also a lively contest, the paper-makers scoring a 6-2 win. E. White 291, and M. Hatcher 211, were high for the winners, while S. Holland, M. Baldwin and A. McCormack, each secured singles well over the 200 mark.

The Columbians uncorked a snappy barrage of strikes and spares to win an 8 point victory over their old rivals the West Ends. The outstanding scores are as follows:

D. Prest: 174, 158, 263, total 595; C. Connors: 201, 202, 188, total 591, G. O'Connell, 192, 193, 215, total 600, T. Pearson was high for the West Ends, with scores of 189, 163, 184, total 536.

AMENDMENTS TO MAJOR LEAGUE RULES ADOPTED BY ASSOCIATION

No Player Can Be Signed to Contract Before He is 18 Years of Age.

ELECTION DEFERRED.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 5.—The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues yesterday selected West Baden, Ind., for the 1931 convention, extended the association agreement for one year, deferred election of officers until the next annual meeting, and adopted several amendments to the Major League rules.

It took a constitutional amendment to allow the selection of West Baden as the next convention city. Under the rules the convention must be held in a city in which there is a member baseball club, but this clause was voted out of the constitution in order to permit the meeting to be held in the Indiana health resort. Springfield, Mass., put in spirited bid for the meeting, but lost out in a fairly close fight.

Originally it had been expected the National Association agreement under which the association gains its authority, would be renewed for ten years, but at the request of the so-called "Big Minors," the American Association International and Pacific Coast Leagues, it was extended for one year only.

These three class AA circuits pointed out that they were involved in a hot fight with the majors over the draft question and that they could better deal with the situation if they were not tied down for so long a period of time. The question of extending the agreement for ten years will come up before the next annual meeting, when the "Big Minors" hope to have settled their differences with the majors.

Defer Election of Officers

It was in line with the same idea that the election of officers was deferred. It was pointed out that the election of officers might better come before the next convention when it will be decided whether the national agreement is to be extended for ten years. Under the action taken today, M. D. Sexton of Rock Island, Ills., remains as President, and John H. Farrell as Secretary and Treasurer. Mr. Farrell has been in office since the association was formed in 1901.

One of the most interesting amendments to the major minor league rules was one providing for the insertion of a clause in a player's contract forbidding him to compete either in professional boxing or professional wrestling. The amendment recalled the exploits of Arthur ("The Great") Shires in the ring last year and was passed amid a general laugh.

Another amendment which was passed ruled that "No contract shall be made with a player before he is 18 years of age," but another suggesting that it be made illegal for a club to place a player on option with another club of the same league was rejected.

Peace Signs Appear

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—The draft situation, in a critical condition for several days, took a sudden turn for the better last night as definite signs of peace appeared on the horizon.

After another joint conference of the American Association, International and Pacific Coast Leagues, it was announced that a committee of nine, three from each league, had been named with authority to act at any time the National and American Leagues should wish to discuss the draft.

While there was no definite word as to why this action had been taken, there were strong indications that certain major league clubowners had indicated they were averse to any war with the three Class AA clubs, and would much prefer to reach a compromise on the troublesome question.

TEAM MANAGERS NAMED

TRENTON, Dec. 5—Much enthusiasm over hockey is evident here, and the fans are looking forward to a lively season. W. Howie has been appointed manager of the Junior team, with George Filion as coach. Dave Terry and Major Rogers will jointly manage the Intermediates. About twenty-one Juniors are now listed for try-outs.

BEACHES' VICTORY POPULAR WITH THE ROUGHRIDER FANS

Westerners View Outcome of Canadian Football Final With Optimism.

THINK THEY CAN WIN.

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 5.—(Special to The Examiner, Copyright, 1930)—Regina rugby fans, and particularly the members of the Roughriders' squad, were elated Saturday over the unexpected outcome of the Eastern Canada final, in which the champion Hamilton Tigers were overthrown by Toronto Balmy Beach. Not only were the local sportsmen glad to see a team step up and knock the mighty Bengals off their perch, but they were pleased to see the O.R.F.U. champions make the grade for a variety of reasons.

It has been felt all along by the majority of Regina fans that if the Riders could run up against some team other than Hamilton this fall they would have a better chance of bringing the championship west for the first time in history—not because any other Eastern team would be any weaker, but because the Tigers seem to have had the Indian sign on the local athletes these last few years, particularly in the matter of employing the "breaks" to the best advantage.

The Roughriders personally would sooner beat Hamilton than any other tribe in the Dominion, knowing that they would receive more credit for such a feat than they would gain by tumbling another squad. But they also realize that the eastern play-offs this year have worked out to the particular requirements in several different ways, and they are all steamed up over their prospects of taking the Beaches into camp and making football history next Saturday.

The change in the opposition and in the scenery should have a good effect on the Regina morale. The Roughriders can take the field against the Beaches without any mental hazard staring them in the face. They have never played the Beaches before and can face them on a fifty-fifty basis, whereas if Hamilton or Queen's had earned the assignment the western champions would be tackling a squad that had lowered their colors in some previous campaign. This angle cannot help but buck up the local aggregation.

Then there is the "gate" question to consider. Had Hamilton won the contest would have to be played in the Barnard's lair again and there is little likelihood that it would be a roaring success as a crowd-enticer for the last two Hamilton-Regina tussles did not break any box office records. Toronto, with a much greater population to draw from should pack Varsity stadium next Saturday for the first all-Dominion final in which a Toronto team has engaged in many years. This means a handsome "gate" and assures the holders of more than passing expenses on their long trip east.

Then as far as the game itself is concerned, the Roughriders will have the pleasure of being quartered in Toronto for two or three days, instead of the same city they have already visited twice in succession. During previous challenging jaunts the Regina griders have passed through Toronto en route to the Ambitious City and that's about all. This time they can "do" the Queen City of the east pretty thoroughly meet the different sportsmen and generally have a big time in conjunction with their rugby tilt.

Things are breaking just right for the 'Riders, the local club feels, and if this year's team, which has been rated the strongest of all time, fails to bump off Balmy Beach next Saturday in Toronto there will be a feeling of genuine dismay in these parts, for never was the time so ripe for western football to come into its own.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

heaven. Mollie will be there to save me from the poor-house."

Mollie, she knew, would be no more surprised than pleased to see her. They had been close friends in high-school days and Jean had missed her keenly when Mollie had gone from Kelsey.

It was not until the train was pulling into the Grand Central Terminal that Jean thought of Mollie's address. Hurriedly she referred to the letter again.

"If you ever get down this way honey," he read in the last paragraph, 'you'll find me daytimes in the Men's Wear department of Simmon's Department Store. It's one of the big places, right on Broadway. You can't miss it."

Nevertheless she suspected that the taxi driver had missed it before they finally came to a stop before the enormous building. The meter read "$0.50"

Jean produced her dollar bill, passed it to the driver with a careless flourish, caught up her suitcase and walked into the main entrance of the Simmob's Department Store with the air of a duchess.

The 20 cent tip worried her not at all now. She was not only in New York but in a matter of minutes would be embraced by the invariably cordial Mollie. The big adventure was just beginning.

A floor walker directed her to the men's wear department, in the back on the first floor. She walked on air. She hardly knew she had the suitcase in her hand. Dear old Mollie . .

She saw the sign and spoke to the girl behind the counter near it.

"Mollie?" the girl repeated. "Why—"

"I'm a friend of hers, from Connecticut," Jean explained eagerly. "We were . . "

Something in the girl's amused expression checked her words.

"Didn't you know?" the girl behind the counter asked, smiling. "Mollie was married . . . this morning . . . They are on their way to Missouri . . . They say he has barrels and . . . "

Somehow Jean found her way to the street and stood where the fringe of the milling Broadway crowds brushed rudely against her. A sense of complete desolation swept over her and a solitary tear rolled down her cheek and fell to the suddenly heavy suitcase.

CHAPTER THREE

Twenty two cents!

Two dimes and two pennies!

Jean eyed her worldly capital and for the first time since her discovery that Mollie's unexpected marriage had left her in an extremely difficult situation, a smile lighted up her lovely countenance.

"I'm not broke," she told herself cheerfully. "Why, I've four separate, individual pieces of money, and absolutely nothing to spend them for."

A statement which promptly provided its own contradiction for it came to her with a sharp pang that she had not eaten since breakfast. So excited had she been over her departure from Kelsey that she had politely declined lunch at Mrs. Pritchard's, and had not had time to think of eating since.

But now she knew, beyond all question, that she was hungry, that she was hungrier than she had been in . . . oh, months. Years, maybe.

"Two roast turkeys, waiter," she mused whimsically, "and a side dish of lobster, tenderloin steak, and pork chops. Bring me a dishpan full of fried potatoes with a few pounds of any other old vegetable you have lying around. And after that . . ," she laughed lightly at her own nonsence . . ," and after that waiter, I'll have four quarts of chocolate ice cream and a pound of angel food cake."

The several streams of unhurried humans flowed up and down Broadway, occasionally swelling before the great show windows of the Simmon's Department store, gently buffeting the lonely girl who, unrounded by thousands of her fellow beings, struggled to get her bearings.

For all the sympathy and aid she could expect from these people, she might as well be back in Kelsey. They simply didn't know she was alive . . . didn't care. They had their own troubles, and their own lives to live. Their code was, "Every man for himself and every woman for her man." At least that is what Mollie had once written her, and she was inclined to believe it now.

This morning she could have said "yes" to a certain young garage foreman and this would never have happened. With no more effort than was required to walk to the minister's house, she could have been Mrs. Phillip Baldwin, with a reasonably large, able, attractive and unreasonably loyal and loving husband to fight her battles.

But she had laughed at him. Before she settled down, she had told him, she wanted to live . . . wanted a little adventure.

Well, she was getting what she had asked for. Within an hour of night, she was in the middle of New York without a job or a friend, and with exactly 22 cents to sustain her for . . . only heaven knew how long!

The hunger pangs again. She had to go see if the waiter had brought her order. What had she asked for? Two roast turkeys . . .

Smiling, she edged into the crowd found a narrow place in the current and was swept slowly away from the one port to which she had looked for relief, and been sadly disappointed.

A thin young man of angular features, the visor of his gray cap pulled well down over his eyes, bumped into her gently.

"H'lo, Good-looking . . . "

Jean stared at him in silence. His type was unmistakable. Insuit he would not recognize. To repulse his confident advance required something more than a sharp retort. Silence, Jean suspected, was the most effective rebuff.

"Pretty big week-end bag you got there," he observed with a smile that left one side of his face immobile. "Wouldn't like to crawl into a taxi now, and save the walk?"

She sought to escape him by drifting deeper into the throng, but drifting was slow and he found it no trouble to drift with her. At first merely irritated, she was now rapidly growing angry. If she could see a policeman . . . But, no. She didn't want to create a scene, and it was just possible that she might find herself summoned to court as a witness. No, she had to settle with this young beast alone.

Just how she would have settled it had the young man not unexpectedly brought affairs to a head is a matter of conjecture. But settle it she did when, as they stepped from the curb to cross 42nd Street and the crowd thinned out, he suddenly stepped in close to her and put an arm about her waist.

Her movements were so fast that he hardly knew what had happened. He saw her leap away from him and swing the suitcase high over her head; but its descent was so swift and violent that his hands were barely half way to his face when the cumbersome thing struck him full across the eyes.

He stumbled back, blindly, steadied himself, and with clenched fists plunged towards her.

Jean thought to dodge him, but she knew immediately that it was useless. Instinctively, she closed her eyes and covered her face with her arms.

There was a sharp crack as of fist on bone, a low groan, and many excited voices.

Untouched, Jean opened her eyes. An inert figure lay at her feet. A tall young man in a dark suit and gray felt hat, held her suitcase in one hand, and was taking her arm with the other.

"Quick!" he said. "Get out in the crowd. They'll have the police here in a minute."

Jean asked no questions. She let him guide her to the opposite curb and hurry her into the leisurely throng.

A loud voice behind them was raised above the general noise of the street: "He went that way! With a girl! Yeah, that's right, with a big red suitcase!"

They both heard it distinctly. He looked down at her quickly. "Is this valuable? I mean it's contents, of course . . . ?"

Valuable? Jean thought, slightly confused. It was all she had in the way of clothes.

But she understood what he meant. The suitcase would identify them.

She reached for it. "Let me have it. You go on, quick!"

He merely grinned. "No, thanks."

"All right," she cried at him, "drop it. They're coming after you. Everything in it didn't cost more than twenty dollars."

She saw him pull the suitcase up, jerk the little white card bearing her name from its handle, and casually let it down to the sidewalk.

Behind them a man cursed. He had fallen over the suitcase. Jean could not resist the temptation to look back. The man sprawled on the sidewalk was in policeman's uniform.

A hasty appraisal of her companion was reassuring. He was noticeably tall with shoulders that mildly suggested football shoulder-pads under his coat, and was more good looking than handsome. That is to say, he was good looking in a strictly male way, with sandy hair, brown eyes that appeared to be laughing constantly, a mouth quite adequate to his broad face, and a chin quite distinctly aggressive.

"Close call, that one," he remarked cheerfully when they were well away from Broadway. "Our friend the policeman was out for pelts."

"Did you mean to trip him up when you threw my suitcase on the sidewalk?" Jean asked, laughing.

His laugh was soft, but genuine and infectious. "Pure luck," he declared. "By the way, is it any of my business why your friend set out to maul you in the center of New York?"

She told him what had occurred. "When he put his hand on me after I had done everything to discourage his attentions, I lost my temper."

"Shame, shame! I saw you. You have a most effective temper. I hope you don't lose it often." And, abruptly changing the subject, "I'm fearfully sorry about the suitcase. Dropping it saved me an ugly experience with the police, of course, but . . . Anyway, I'll see that you get another and duplicate its contents to-morrow."

But Jean's thoughts were moving more slowly. "Why did you hit him?" she asked seriously. "I mean, why did you step in to protect me when you know nothing about me. You might have been interrupting a domestic quarrel."

He nodded, grinning. "Yes, I know. I did once, and barely escaped a load of buckshot. Now, don't ask me if I make a practice of this sort of thing," he laughed. "It just happens that when I see an extremely pretty girl being annoyed by, well, by practically any one at all, I get mad. I shouldn't, perhaps, but, I'm that way."

"I've taken it for granted," said the young man, "that you're letting me see you home, or to some place where I can feel that you're safe.' He half shut one eye and gazed off toward Broadway.

"However," he told her, "it looks as if we're coming back to where we started. You don't live down here, do you?"

Jean shook her yellow head. "I've been in New York only since about four o'clock. My home's in Connecticut."

"Oh—' Visiting?"

"No. I came to work . . . until Christmas, anyway."

"I see. May I ask where?"

Jean might have resented this half an hour before, but now she only smiled and told him of her plan to surprise Mollie Wilder and of Mollie's greater surprise and departure from the city.

He was instantly sympathetic. "Say! That was a disappointment, wasn't it? What do you propose to do now?"

An electric sign three stories high and about two feet wide on which the word "Restaurant" was spelled vertically provided Jean's answer. She was starving.

"In about thirty seconds," she told him, "I expect to walk into that restaurant and demand food."

"All in favor, signify by saying Aye! You don't mind if I go along!"

"No, certainly not. You understand, of course, I'm to pay for my own supper?"

He nodded as if he had never considered anything else. "Mine, too, if you like." And as they are about to enter the revolving doors of the restaurant: "Say, as a matter of convenience while we're in here, it might be a good idea if we attempted some sort of introduction first. My . . . "

Jean said: "You took my only card from the suitcase handle. That was the landlady's idea; she would have it on there."

"Oh, that's right." He fished the tag from a vest pocked and read it aloud: "Miss Jean Melba, 24 Fairview St., Kelsey, Conn.' That give me everything but your telephone number and your favorite movie actress."

Jean waited, smiling.

"Oh, yes . . . my name." He removed his hat and ran his fingers through his long, wavy hair. "My closest friends call me Sandy."

"Appropriately enough," Jean agreed. "But not being one of your closest friends, you'd better tell me your last name . . . "

"You won't laugh?"

"Why, of course not!"

"My last name . . . ", he hesitated. "My last name is Clause."

"I knew it," he declared, pretending to be annoyed. "No one believes in Santa Clause any more, so when they run into a real, live Sandy Clause, they think it's funny."

"But I don't," Jean assured him. "I mean I don't and I do. I do believe in Santa Claus, and I don't think it's funny. That's why I'm laughing; I'm delighted. You see, I've already sent my Christmas order to Santa Claus, and you're a good omen."

AUTO MECHANICS CLASS PROVIDES FINE OPPORTUNITY FOR YOUNG MEN

Training is Being Conducted in Conjunction With Vocational Evening School.

ENSURE SKILLED WORKMAN.

With the object of providing an opportunity for men who are already employed in garages and who might desire to improve themselves in the vocation which they have chosen, a class known as Auto Mechanics 2, is being conducted at South Central School in conjunction with the Vocational Evening School.

James Dutton, chairman of the Advisory Vocational Committee, Board of Education, with whom an Examiner representative had the oppertunity to visit the motor mechanics class on a recent occasion, stated, "when the inspectors of the vocational schools visited the school in the spring of this year, they made the recommendation that classes be started for garage employees."

Mr. Dutton was of the opinion that the establishment of the classes will relieve the garage owner very largely from the necessity of training his employees.

The Motor Mechanics course, in which twenty-two garage employees are now registered out of a total attendance of eighty men, is a very intensive course for which a Diploma or certificate is awarded at the end of the course, to those pupils who have met all the requirements as laid down by the Department of Education.

Ensure Skilled Workmen.

"Such a course will ensure to garage owners a skilled workman and to the man who sends his car to a garage, the assurance of expert attention which the delicate mechanism of an automobile demands", said Mr. Dutton.

A. M. Moon, B.A.Sc., under whose supervision the classes are being conducted, explained that the course aims at turning out thoroughly competent motor mechanics. The length of the course depends on many factors, but it is quite probable that it may extend over a period of three years.

"One man is placed to work on a car, and no one else is allowed to touch that car", stated Mr. Moon, referring to the work of the garage employees class.

"The pupil is required to carry out the necessary repairs, reassembly and adjustments, after which the automobile is tested and if it is not mechanically perfect in the defect for which it was brought in no marks are awarded for the work."

"I am thoroughly satisfied with the manner in which the class is progressing," said Mr. Moon, "and also with the equipment and accommodation which has been placed at our disposal."

Auto Mechanics class I, is under the capable supervision of Instructor J. Carroll, who takes three groups, each group having one night per week allotted for instruction.

Instructor R. A. Wilson takes the garage employees class on Tuesday and Thursday nights each week. He also, is a thoroughly skilled mechanic, and in common with his fellow instructor holds a proficiency certificate, evidence of their qualifications to teach the subject.

Classes Transfered.

In the transference of the Motor Mechanics night classes, from the Collegiate and Vocational Institute building, which was effected three weeks ago, is conclusive proof of the widespread interest which is being taken by young men— and older men who wish to gain a thorough training along this line.

Auto mechanics classes were instituted over two years ago, to the curriculum of Peterborough's vocational schools and were conducted entirely at the Collegiate Institute. It was found advisable to remove the motor mechanics class to South Central School, in order to make better provision for the machine shop work.

No better accommodation could have been secured for the motor mechanics classes than, that at South Central School, where rooms which have remained empty and unused for three years are now alive with activity.

Slight alterations were necessary to the property and heating installation and these were carried into effect at a total expenditure of from $350-$400. Tools and equipment were also purchased at a cost of $400. Alterations to the property include the construction of large double doors and a ramp, necessary to facilitate the incoming and outgoing of automobiles.

The two school rooms, which are now in use by these classes were formerly divided by sliding doors. These doors have been removed, and can of course be replaced in their original position at any time.

A large number of additional lights, and plugs necessary for the supply of electric energy to several of the tools were installed by the pupils of the Electrical Construction Class 2 Vocational School, several slight alterations to the tool room were carried out by the Building Construction Class, who also made the vice benches, while the tools were arranged by Class 3 Electricity, day school class.

Orderliness Exists.

In connection with the tool room it may be mentioned, that great orderliness exists, and a unique system to prevent the loss of tools has been instituted. On the opening of each class the tool room is placed in charge of one of the pupils, who issues a small metal disk for each tool that leaves his care. When a tool is taken from its place, the man who is loaning the tool leaves his metal disk in its place. The disk bearing the man's class number thereby provides a clue as to the identity of the borrower.

Besides ample scope for practical work, there is a neat little lecture room, complete with desks and blackboards where complex theoretical problems may be solved with the aid of the lecturer instructor. Many of the desks in this room, are part of the schools regular equipment, while six of the desks were transferred from the Collegiate.

Virtually the classes are free, although an initial fee of $2 is demanded which is refunded to the pupil on the completion of 80 per cent attendance at lectures and classes.

MEETING TO REMAIN CLOSED

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5. (CP)—Efforts of Mayor Bert S. Wemp to have all meetings of the Board of Police Commissioners open to the public except when police officers appear on matters of discipline, failed yesterday when the board refused to pass a motion to this effect tabled by the mayor. The motion is regarded as an aftermath of the recent action of the commission in passing new regulations effecting taxi-drivers.

France will give $4,000 to the National Tourist Office, organized to induce outsiders to visit the country.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 11 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Scarcely had Tarzan landed on the sleek hide of the deer with a force that sent the animal to its knees, than he grasped a horn in either hand. With a single powerful wrench he twisted its neck before the animal was even aware of its merciful fate. Now the lion was roaring in baffled rage close behind him. Like a flash, Tarzan swung the deer across his shoulders and leaped for the tree.

He caught the limb in his mighty grasp and, at the instant Numa sprang, drew himself and his prey out of reach of the lion's cruel claws. There was a thud as the baffled cat fell back to earth. From the safety of a higher branch, Tarzan looked down with grinning face at the gleaming yellow eyes of the other wild beast which watched him so hungrily from the ground.

At length the ape-man tired of his sport and swinging into the branches of a nearby tree climbed to a dead fork in its trunk. Here, with some twigs, he rubbed up a small fire and cooked himself a juicy steak. Never in the choicest of his exclusive London clubs had food tasted better. Could his fellow peers in the House of Lords have seen Lord Greystoke thus!

When he had finished, he left the balance of the carcass in a high fork of the tree where he had dined. And with Numa trailing below him, still keen for revenge, he made his way back to his tree-top shelter. Here he slept until the sun was high the following morning. The next few days he spent in completing his weapons and exploring the jungle.

IN MEMORIAM

CHAMPION.—In loving memory of F. P. Champion, who passed suddenly away Dec. 4, 1928, at St. Catharines, Ont.

Dear Dad:
In our hearts your memory lingers
sweetly tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear father, we do not think of you.
Friends may think we have forgotten, when at times they see us smile;
But they do not know the sadness that smile hides all the while.

FOUR FIRES IN TWELVE HOURS

The Fire Department experienced a busy twelve hours commencing with a fire at 430 Sheridan Street yesterday at 5.52 p.m. The cause is attributed to spontaneous combustion in some rubbish in a shed. At 9.28 p.m. an alarm was sent in for a car on fire at the rear of 167 Hunter Street, West. The worst fire was that at the house of J. S. Walsh, 317 Margaret Avenue, at 4.38 a.m. today. The flames started in two boxes in the cellar, spreading to burn the joists and to fill the house with a dense smoke so that the occupants were obliged to leave in their night clothes. The damage is considerable but is covered by insurance. The King Edward School sent in an alarm for a chimney fire at 5.47 a.m.

Barthou To Form New French Ministry

BACKED BY PARTY AS MOST LIKELY TO SOLVE CRISIS

Plans Immediate Conference With Poincare, Briand and Tardieu.

STRONG SENATE SUPPORT.

Radical Members Will Enter Cabinet Provided Certain Posts Are Given Them.

PARIS, Dec. 6. (A. P.) — Louis Barthou to-day accepted an invitation from President Doumergue to form a ministry in succession to the defeated government of Andre Tardieu.

The Radical Socialist former Minister of Justice, leaving the Elysee Palace, after half an hour's talk with the president, told the newspapermen he had accepted the task in principle, and that he would confer to-night with political leaders to that end.

To Meet Tardieu.

The Presidents of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate, Raymond Poincare, Aristide Briand and Andre Tardieu, he said, would be the first statesmen to be consulted. He added that he expected to be able to report progress to the President to-morrow.

M. Barthou has been backed by the most influential elements of his party in the Chamber as the man most likely to clear up the recent banking scandals and place the Bourse once more upon a firm footing.

Barthou is strong in the Senate where he is prominent in the Left Group and is expected to have equal support in the Lower House.

Former Premier Herriot's Radical group met in the Chamber this afternoon and decided in principle that their members would enter the new Cabinet provided certain posts were given them. A report that the Radicals gave up a demand for the Ministry of the Interior—a post they generally considered their own before the advent of Tardieu—was expected to make Barthou's solution of the crisis much easier.

The fact that he announced he would consult Briand as well as Tardieu and Poincare appeared to indicate his desire for Briand to continue as Foreign Minister and that France' foreign policy therefore would not change.

BRITISH PUBLIC LEFT TO DECIDE

ALLOWS THEM LEEWAY.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6. — Let the British public size up Premier R. B. Bennett and Premier G. Howard Ferguson for themselves.

This is the effect of a brief comment given here by Right Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party.

When asked if he had any comment upon the speech of Mr. Ferguson before the Technical Services Council on Thursday night, Mr. King replied he thought it advisable to adopt towards Mr. Ferguson and his utterances the same attitude he had taken towards Mr. Bennett, and what he had been saying, namely, for the present to allow each in the matter of speeches, as much leeway as possible. He added that he thought nearly everything said made only the more self-evident the purport and significance of their remarks.

Mr. King's final word was: "I do not think anything will be lost by the opportunity which has been given to the British public of sizing up Mr. Bennett and Mr. Ferguson for themselves.

COURT CONSIDERS SENTENCES.

MOSCOW, December 6. — The Soviet Court Extraordinary, which has been sitting in trial of eight Soviet engineers charged with conspiracy to overthrow the Moscow Government, adjourned at noon today to consider their sentences, which will be returned about 6 p.m.

Thankful Bandit Writes to Victim

LINDSAY, December 6 (Examiner Correspondence).— Although the authorities have no clue which would lead to the apprehension of the bandit who robbed the Dominion Bank at Brooklin of $1,000 the bank manager has received an interesting epistle from the thief. A letter was received at the village post office the other day in which the writer declared that he was the party who robbed the bank. He thanked the manager for the sum of money taken, and expressed the latter would not be too hard on him in case the authorities rounded him up

POISONOUS FOG MELTED BY SUN LEAVES NO CLUE

Doctors Too Busy Answering Frantic Calls, to Solve Riddle.

VICTIMS CHOKE AND DIE.

Simple Belgian Folk Behind Locked Doors Refuse to be Reassured.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, December 6. —Slowly, as it had come, the suffocating pall of poisoned fog which had choked the life out of more than three score dwellers in the Meuse valley, began to disappear this morning, as the sun bored through the mist.

Carries Secret Away.

If it had gone, however, it had taken with it the secret of its mysterious menace. Doctors in a dozen villages were too busy answering frantic calls to confer with the authorities seeking an answer to the riddle. They knew only that as the fog rolled in the victims coughed, choked and died.

No more deaths were reported today, and as reports came in from the stricken districts it began to appear as though this terror had passed.

Government medical authorities were on the ground to begin their investigations, and they had all the cooperation they needed.

The simple folks who fled their village homes in panic, or remained inside behind locked doors, could not be reassured, however, and persisted in the conviction that this death had come in waves of poisoned gas whose origin they did not attempt to explain.

Ship Runs Aground.

The fog which struck terror to the Meuse Valley, brought inconvenience to other sections of Belgium also. At Hoboken an Antwerp ferryboat went aground a hundred yards from its pier and the passengers waded ashore through two feet of mud. At Appert a French army airplane made a forced landing and was wrecked although its occupants were not injured. Near Courcelles a cyclist lost his way in the fog, fell into a canal and was drowned. Traffic was tied up in the River Scheldt.

CONFIDENCE VOTE GIVEN BRUENING

Communist Motion to Revoke Emergency Finance Decree Defeated.

RESULT 293 TO 253.

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—Chancellor Bruning to-day obtained a smashing vote of confidence, a Nationalist and Communist motion to revoke his emergency financial decree being defeated 293 to 253.

The vote came after 7½ hours ceaseless speeches in the Richstag. By unanimous consent Finance Minister Dietrich's budget was referred to the Ways and Means Committee and President Loebe then announced the roll call vote would be taken on the motion to revoke the highly important emergency decree.

The galleries were crowded to their limit as the vote was held.

Because talking pictures threw him out of employment, W. W Houghton, a movie musician, of Hull, England, has committed suicide.

PORTSMOUTH IS DEFEATED 4-2 BY SHEFFIELD

Manchester Teams Win and Lose in First Division of English League.

ARSENAL CALLED OFF.

Leading Teams of Various Loop Sections Stage Scoring Bees.

LONDON, Dec. 6 (C.P. Cable). — When Sheffield Wednesday defeated Portsmouth to-day they crept closer to the leading position in the First Division of the English Soccer League as Arsenal, the pace-setters, were not able to complete their match with Grimsby Town owing to fog. Portsmouth, who have been making a plucky bid for leadership in the championship table, were not quite the equal of The Wednesday, and were beaten by four goals to two. Arsenal were leading by the only goal scored when a halt was called fifteen minutes after the interval.

Derby County, another of the leading teams, administered a terrific beating to Chelsea, winning by six goals to two. They take third place in the averages.

Everton Leading.

In the Second Division, Everton piled up six goals while Oldham Athletic were getting four. Everton are leading the pack in the championship averages, though they were not able to increase their advantage as West Bromwich Albion had a fine victory over Burnley and held second place.

Notts County just held on to their unbeaten record again, though they had to fight hard to get their draw with Crystal Palace in a Southern Section, Third Division, fixture. Lincoln City went out ahead once more in the Northern Section when they beat York City. Tranmere Rovers, tied for first place before to-day's game, lost to Doncaster Rovers by the rather large deficit of six goals to nil.

In the Scottish First Division games Rangers maintained their lead. They just beat Hibernians. Celtic, who have played one less game than the leaders, got the odd goal out of three against Airdrie. Motherwell showed class when they came off victors against Cowdenbeath. Partick Thistle had a good win over Hearts. Thus there is no change in the relative positions of the first four clubs in the division.

LINDSAY MAN IS FOUND DEAD

Mystery Surrounds Death of Edward Malone in Central Hotel.

ROOM IN DISORDER.

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 6 (Special to The Examiner). — This morning, shortly after seven o'clock, the dead body of Edward Malone of this town was found in a room on the top flat of the Central Hotel. The body was warm when discovered and Malone was fully dressed. There was a mark on the side of his head and, according to the statement of Chief of Police Lawler, there was glass about the room and the dresser was also turned over. County Crown Attorney Anderson was called for an investigation into the cause of the man's death, and Coroner Dr. Logan will conduct a post mortem.

Malone is unmarried and has a brother and two sisters residing in Lindsay. He had been employed in a local mill.

EASTERN CANADIAN CHAMPIONS TAKE EARLY LEAD OVER REGINA AND WIN GAME 11 POINTS TO 6

Western Outfit Are Badly Outplayed in First Two Periods.

TOUCHDOWN IN THIRD.

Roughriders Have Tried Four Times to Capture Championship.

VARSITY STADIUM, Toronto, December 6 (C.P.). — Regina Rough Riders, mighty monarchs of Western Canadian football, clashed here this afternoon with Balmy Beach, Eastern champions, for the Canadian crown under decidedly adverse weather conditions, and went down to defeat by an 11-6 score.

The contending teams kicked off on a sea of mud. A drizzling rain was falling at the time, but some 7,000 fans braved the elements for the farewell game of the popular fall pastime in these parts.

Regulars On Bench.

Balmy Beach left several of their regular players on the bench. Teddy Reeve, middle wing extraordinary, remained on the bench to leave a large gap in the old gold and blue wing line.

This was the fourth time a team from Regina has travelled east in quest of premier gridiron honors. Coaches of both squads at the start of the game expressed confidence as to the outcome, but it was the breaks of the game that decided the winner, considering the conditions.

The Line-Ups.

BALMY BEACH—Harris, flying wing; McKenzie, Box and Foster, halves; Kickpatrick, quarter; Commins, snap; Reid and Taylor, insides; Hendry and Trimble, middles; Snyder and Keith, outsides; Kirkland, Jones, Knowles, Northam, Stewart, Mays and Reeve, subs.

REGINA—Grubb, flying wing; Traynor, Bloomfield and Currie, halves; Mitchell, quarter; Campbell, snap; Thompson and Patrick, insides; Urness and Meyer, middles; Busch and Brown, outsides; Grassick, Garluk, Williams, Gilhooly, Jackson, Barber and Goodman, subs.

First Quarter.

Balmy Beach kicked off with Currie running the kick back 15 yards. Grubb tried to crash the Beach line but was nailed right there. Bloomfield kicked and Box ran it back 20 yards. Campbell was penalized for high tackling. He grabbed Kirkpatrick around the neck when the latter seemed away. Box's kick was partially blocked and Regina got possession on their 50-yard line.

Bloomfield's kicks were short compared to those of his rival, Box. Beaches recovered on a Currie fumble on the Western 25-yard line and Harris kicked to Bloomfield, who was promptly rouged for Beaches' third point.

Bloomfield kicked again and McKenzie fumbled but recovered the ball. It was on Beaches' 20 yard line. Box booted beautifully to the 50-yard line where Keith downed a Regina ball carrier. As in the junior game which preceded the senior tussle, the mud was an important factor in the play. A bad snap to Bloomfield caused him to decept the ball.

Beaches recovered at centre field. Hendry crashed through the Riders' line, and was over for yards

Kirkpatrick tried an onside kick and Harris fell on the ball for little gain. Beaches could not get through the Riders' line. But Box kicked to the deadline for the first point. Bloomfield booted a short one, which Beaches caught on the Regina 30-yard line. An end run by Harris gave the Beaches yards and play was brought to Regina's 15-yard line. Box promptly kicked for a touch in goal and the Easterners were two up

SECOND QUARTER.

In the second quarter a bad snap to Bloomfield gave Balmy possession on the Western 15-yard line. The Beaches tried two bucks and then an onside kick which went to the deadline for another single point. McKenzie slid through the Riders' defence for yards and play had reached the Western 20-yard line.

Harris added another point by hoisting the ball to the deadline. The Rough Riders didn't seem able to stop the aerial attack at all, and Beaches pressed continually. Regina made yards on a series of line plunges.

Balmy tightened up and when the West in turn tried to get through the line didn't give at all. Hendry got away for a 35-yard run and play reached Regina's 40-yard line. Then, on a fumble, Balmy reached the Western 2-yard line. Beach bucked but were held, bucked again, but were stopped one yard out. On third attempt Beach plunged over for a touchdown which was not converted. Reid broke through for the major score.

At half time the score was 10—0 in favor of the Beachers, and the Western team had been outplayed from the star.

Third Quarter

Regina kicked off to Harris, who ran the ball back 20 yards. Both teams were covered with mud. Two line plunges failed and Harris kicked to Bloomfield on Regina's 50-yard line.

Currie then plunged for yards to Beaches' 50. Balmy were penalized 10 yards for offside. Regina smashed through for eight yards and Grubb moved the yardsticks to Beaches' 30. Regina hit that line again and had only one yard to go. Bloomfield kicked to Mays who was downed for a rouge. It brought the score to 10 to 1 for the Beaches.

Riders broke through to block May's kick and recovered on the Beach 20-yard line. Regina scored a touchdown when Brown went over for the major score. The tally came as the result of an onside kick. The Western team had assumed a terrific offensive and maintained the pressure. Bloomfield kicked to Mays, who fell, the ball bounding to Harris. Campbell came up fast and began to dribble the ball down the field. The play was called back for offside, however. Foster broke away for 30 yards and went down in a swarm of Western tacklers. On a kick the West got possession. A line plunge was stopped short and an onside kick met the same fate. Balmy got the ball and gained about five yards. They lost the ball in turn, failing to get yards. Balmy lost two men for penalties and the Riders pressed. However, the period ended before they could take advantage of the two men edge.

FOURTH PERIOD.

There was a haze on the field and the players were barely distinguishable in the fourth period. Harris kicked off to Bloomfield on Regina's 25-yard line. On an exchange of kicks Box was downed on the Beach 35-yard line. The Western line held on the first down, but on the second McKenzie made 8 yards on an end run. Then Regina blocked Harris kick on the Eastern 40 and the ball rolled into touch giving the West possession. The Rough Riders plunged for yards, carrying play to the Beaches' 30-yard line. Bloomfield tried a kick over the goal line, but Box ran it back. Beaches tried to buck it out of the danger zone but failed, and Box kicked to his 40-yard line. Bloomfield promptly ran the ball back to the Eastern 20-yard line, and the Riders plunged for five yards. Teddy Reeves came into the Beaches line amid cheers

CROWD AT DANCE TURNS ON POLICE FOLLOWING RAID

Over 100 Men and 4 Women Arrested and Placed in Hollywood Jails.

GAMBLING IN FULL SWING.

Four Divisions of Constables Called Out When 500 Men Resent Interference.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 6 (C.P.). — Five hundred men fought 150 policemen here early to-day when officers raided an alleged immoral dance and the spectators turned upon the raiders.

More than 100 men and four women were arrested and bundled off to jails in Hollywood and Los Angeles.

Vagrancy charges were lodged against those jailed. The entertainment took place in the loft of a storage building.

Pitched Battle Follows.

When 14 officers of the vice squad attempted to place performers and members of the audience under arrest, a pitched battle resulted. Every available officer in four divisions was called to the scene. Several persons were injured in the fighting that followed. Bottles were hurled and used as clubs.

The women arrested, charged with performing the dances, asserted their clothing had been torn from them by intoxicated spectators.

Police said liquor was in evidence, and gambling games were in progress when the raid was made.

Frontenac Is Leader In Special Cheese

KINGSTON, Ont., December 6 (C.P.). — Frontenac County produced 97 per cent. first or special grade cheese during the past season and beat the average for Ontario of 96.45 per cent. This also beats the average of 95 per cent. established by the county in 1929, it was announced by H. B. Sandwith, addressing the annual Frontenac District meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association at Harrowsmith.

NATIVE SONS COME WITHIN TWO YARDS OF TOUCHDOWN IN LAST MINUTE OF FOURTH

But Tallies in the First and Final Periods Win For Scullers.

OARSMEN EXTENDED.

Victors' Backfield Performs Like Trojans on Slippery and Muddy Gridiron.

VARSITY STADIUM, Toronto, December 6 (By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Sports Writer). — Argonaut Juniors of Toronto to-day are Junior rugby champions of the Dominion of Canada. On a mud covered gridiron, under terrible rugby conditions, the young Scullers defeated a gallant band of Westerners, Native Sons of Winnipeg, by a score of 7 to 1, but not before they had been extended to the utmost.

Sliding and slipping in the uncertain footing the Argo backfield of Taylor, Bell, and Chalkley performed like Trojans, their aerial attack accounting for the defeat of the invaders.

The mud ruined the game from a rugby standpoint but it certainly added many a spectacular feature. On every tackle the player tackled slid many feet. The ball was greasy and only sure hands could handle it safely. At that there were few fumbles.

Whenever a player was downed that player could be depended. He arose so covered with the clammy mud that his identity was veiled in a mass of slime. The lower portions of the field were almost watercovered, and the mud was ever waiting for the unwary. But through it all the gallant little squads fought, they kicked, caught, ran and passed on style as faultless as any teams could, conditions being what they were. Before the game was half over both teams were so covered with mud that their uniforms which had appeared so resplendent early in the game had assumed the same color as the field, a dirty drab dark brown.

Despite that, however, there was no hesitation, no uncertain blundering on the part of the teams. They snapped their plays into action just as quickly and as confidently as though conditions had been ideal.

The line-up:—

First Quarter.

Argos kicked off and the ball went into touch at Sons' 15-yard line. It was taken back, and on the second kick Moore ran the ball back 25 yards. Winnipeg failed to make yards, and on a kick, Bell made 30 yards around the end. There was an exchange of kicks and then Taylor of Argos broke through for a beautiful 50-yard run. Argos had lost ground on the kicks, but certainly gained on the running. Argos jumped into the lead when Taylor tossed Morris over the Winnipeg goal-line for a safety touch and two points.

Native Sons booted on the third down to Taylor, who ran it back 10 yards. Bell then kicked poorly to the Winnipeg 35. Stewart kicked to Taylor, who was sloughed in the mud. Argos made first down when Sibulash found a hole in the Winnipeg middle.

Penalties Offset Gains.

Taylor featured with two neat 20-yard runs through the broken field but penalties to the Argos offset these gains.

After three successive penalties Argos, through fine line plunging and two penalties to Winnipeg, forced play to the Native Sons' 35, from where Bell kicked to Olander, who was rouged for the double Blues' third point. As the quarter neared its end the players presented a sorry spectacle; their colors and numbers be-

Legion Will Care For Own Destitute

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 6. (CP)— A veterans' shelter to take care of destitute and unemployed ex-service men of the district was opened to-day by the Canadian Legion of Ottawa. Seventy odd veterans were early registered at the hostel.

The Legion President simultaneously issued a formal request to citizens that no man purporting to be an ex-soldier be given charity while begging from door-to-door. The Legion would take care of its own people, the President said.

COUNTY COURT OPENS TUESDAY

One Criminal Action is Also Set Down on the Docket.

TWO JURY CASES.

Six civil actions and one criminal appeal have been listed on the docket for the county court and general sessions of the peace which opens before His Honor Judge E. C. E. Huycke here on Tuesday. Two of the actions are jury cases. The appeal is being brought by Patrick Walsh, convicted in August last by the Police Magistrate for being drunk in charge of a car. V. J. McElderry, K.C., will appear for the Crown in this appeal.

Arising out of an accident on the Lakefield-Peterborough road on Aug. 19th, in which an automobile and a team of horses and a grader was involved, Evans Blewett, a farmer of Smith township, is defendant in an action for damages amounting to $300 and costs.

The plaintiff, J. J. Bruce Bickell, also a farmer of Smith township, alleges that defendant's son was operating a motor car owned and licensed by the defendant, nad proceeding in a northerly direction on the Lakefield road, in a reckless and careless manner. He collided with the grader from the rear, knocking down one of the horses and injuring them both; also inflicting injuries upon the operator of the grader, and damaging the grader itself.

The mare was seriously injured, the plaintiff claims, and was wholly crippled and disabled, and may yet have to be destroyed. Since the day of the accident the mare has required a great deal of attention on the part of the plaintiff, in addition to requiring the services of a veterinary surgeon. The other mare was unable to perform any work until October 15, and is still suffering from a swollen leg, which will reduce the selling value to the extent of 50 to 60 per cent.

Defendant Blewett alleges that plaintiff's horses were slightly injured by the accident, but that plaintiff in order to enlarge his claim for damages, took his horses from work when they were actually able to work, and also alleges greater damage than actually existed

He denies that his son was his servant on the occasion in question, or was driving his automobile with the owner's consent. He submits that the action be dismissed with costs.

R. R. Hall, Q.C., is solicitor for the plaintiff, while Gordon and Elliott have been instructed to act for the defendant.

Seeks $1000 Damages.

Another action in which the defendant Wellington Tate, farmer, residing in the township of Harvey, requires that the issue be tried by a jury, involves a claim by Peter Graham, also

County Team Wins 3rd at Ottawa

RENFREW TEAM WINS 1ST PLACE AT OTTAWA FAIR

Peterborough County Boy, Frank Dench, Coaches Winning Team.

FOURTEEN TEAMS.

Three junior farmers, have recently returned from Ottawa Winter Fair which drew to a successful conclusion last evening bringing with them the honour of having gained the second highest standing ever made by Peterborough County at this show. The young farmers in question are Stewart Tedford of Indian River Sherwood Payne of Lakefield and Hugh Buchanan of Havelock, who competed in the live-stock judging and grain judging competitions.

The boys who made the trip to Ottawa in the company of J. B. Nelson, local representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, were chosen as being the three boys who performed the best work in the county this season. The competition was open to teams of boys from Eastern Ontario 23 years of age and under.

The standing of the Peterborough County team in the Livestock Competition for which there were thirteen entries was third place, while in the grain competition their standing was also third place, among the fourteen teams competing.

In the livestock competition Lanark County took first place, while Renfrew took first place in the grain contest.

A great deal of credit for the success of the team must necessarily go to Mr. Nelson who coached the boys in the work. "I am very well satisfied with the results of the competition" he stated, "and all of the boys did very creditably."

In connection with Renfrew County's success, it is interesting to note that this team was coached by Frank Dench the only Peterborough County man on the agricultural representative service.

OTTAWA WOMAN DIES OF POISON

Mrs. F. Rogers Lingers Week After Taking Fatal Tablets in Mistake.

PROMINENT SOCIALLY.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6. — Mrs. Frankford Rogers, eldest daughter of Senator and Mrs. A. C. Hardy, and a leading figure of the younger social sets in the Capital, died in hospitla early today of poison she took in mistake.

Last Sunday morning, Mrs Rogers, seeking relief from a headache, swallowed two bichloride of mercury tablets in the belief they were aspirin. The rank taste of the poison drew her attention to the error, and she was immediately rushed ot the hospital.

Gathered at her bedside when she died were her husband and her parents. In addition to her husband Mrs Rogers is survived by a young son.

County Captures Oats Competition

Three of the first four prizes in the field crop competition for oats, at Ottawa Winter Fair, were won by Peterborough County men, as follows: 1, Edgar Clarke, Norwood; 2, Robert Armstrong, Ida; 3, W. G. Barrie, Norwood; 4, R. E. Drummond, R.R. No. 8, Peterborough.

"This rather outstanding showing," states J. B. Nelson, Agricultural Representative, "is all the more creditable in view of the unusually large entry list in this class open to competitors in the whole of Eastern Ontario.

MYSTERY FUMES LIKE OLD PLAGUE SAYS SCIENTIST

Belgian Epidemic Which Took 60 Lives Similar to Black Death.

FOG TO BLAME.

Famous Britisher Does Not Believe War Gas is Cause.

LONDON, Dec. 6 (C.P.). — The startling suggestion that the mysterious epidemic which has taken nearly sixty lives in the fogs and Meuse Valley of Belgium is "something like the 'black death'," was made here by Professor J. B. S. Haldane, one of Great Britain's most eminent scientists.

"I don't believe the epidemic can have been caused by war gas," he said, "because deaths have occurred in different villages. They have been having floods in that district lately, and it is possible that may have something to do with it."

The "black death" was the name given in the middle ages to a mysterious plague which caused deaths which some historians say amounted to a third of the population of Western Europe. It is believed that wet and, above all, foggy conditions are particularly favorable to spread of the disease.

CHILDREN PERISH TRAPPED IN FIRE

Father, Rushing From Northern Home, Clothes on Fire, Unknowingly Locks Door.

MOTHER BADLY BURNED.

THE PAS, Man., December 6 (C P.). — Trapped behind a locked door two young children were burned to death, and their mother, Mrs. W Jenks, probably fatally injured when fire destroyed a little northern home at Mile 412, on the Hudson Bay Railway, late on Thursday. The children were 3 months and 3 years old.

A special train is speeding to The Pas bringing Mrs. Jenks to the hospital, in an effort to save her life.

The fire started when the father was filling a gasoline lamp The fumes caught fire from a nearby stove, and as the kames spread to Jenks' clothes he rushed from the house to roll in the snow. He put out the fire in his clothes, but when he returned to the house he found he had slammed shut the lock on the door, trapping his wife and children.

MAN WHO HAS SAVED FRANCE IN MANY POLITICAL CRISES REFUSES TO FORM CABINET

Poincare Tells President Health Will Not Permit Him to Act.

MAY RECONSIDER.

Louis Barthou, Veteran of Many Ministries, To Be Asked By President.

PARIS, France, Dec. 6. (C.P.)— Raymond Poincare, who has saved France in many another political crisis, to-day declined to step into the breech opened by the resignation of the Tardieu government, and President Doumergue cast about for another man willing to assume the difficult task of forming a new cabinet.

The wartime president pleaded ill health but in the chamber lobbies the gossips were saying that if Doumerge should fail to find his man Poincare might be willing to reconsider—might be prevailed upon to accept the post of premier next week and reorganize the government.

Louis Barthou, veteran of many ministries, was regarded as another possibility for the post surrendered by Tardieu. He is a member of the "left" group in the Senate, but his conservatism, particularly in foreign policies, is well known and it was believed possible that he might be acceptable in this crisis. "I told the president," said Poincare this morning, "that I did not yet feel strong enough to assume such a heavy task and that I feared I could not fulfill my duty as I would wish."

This was an allusion to an operation which the former premier underwent some months ago.

JURY RETURNS OPEN VERDICT IN LAD'S DEATH

Whose Hand Tied Halter Rope About Smithville Youth's Neck is Unsolved.

12 WITNESSES CALLED.

Foster Father Breaks Down in Relating Details of Finding Body.

SMITHVILLE, Dec. 6.—"Hanging by reasons unknown to this jury," was the only explanation of the death of Charles Royal Grant arrived at at the inquest late yesterday on the 12-year-old victim of Smithville's strangest tragedy, which occurred on Nov. 10—and the mystery remains as deep as ever.

Whose hand it was that fastened the halter rope about the lad's neck on his foster-father's farm near here—whether it was a case of murder or suicide—remains officially unsolved, and only the excited countryside has any theories to offer, since the police are reported to have abandoned the investigation.

The inquest was held under the direction of Coroner Gordon A. Sinclair of Grimsby and Major E. A. Lancaster, K.C., crown attorney of St. Catharines.

Twelve witnesses in all were called. Inspector Albert Ward, C.I.D., and Provincial Constable Embleton of Grimsby were in attendance.

Lampman Testifies

James L. Lampman, foster father of the dead boy, was the principal witness. He told of incidents at home prior to the departure of the lad to get the cows.

"I had earlier in the day refused him permission to ride one of the horses down for the cows," said witness. "Around five o'clock, one hour after he had left, I began to wonder what was keeping him, so I went to look for him. After watering the horses and attending to the hogs and hens, I started down to find him. It was very dark; I could see nor hear nothing. I went back home, hollering for him as I went. Supper was ready and I went in and had a few mouthfuls. I felt worried. Arthur Swayse, a neighbor came in and we went in his car and called on the neighbors.

"A search party in the meantime had been formed, and on my return Lyle Fawcett yelled to me to 'Come here.' I said 'Have you found him' He replied, 'Yes.' I ran as fast as I could and saw him in the tree. I lifted his body and said, 'Untie him quick.' I laid him on the ground and started to work his hands and limbs. He was very cold, I saw it was no use."

At this point Mr. Lampman broke down. He was asked to identify a rope.

"I had one something like it," he said, "but if this is it, it has been changed here."

The Crown showed him the rope and he replied, "I think that's the rope." He said he was on good terms with his neighbors. When asked about one neighbor named Cwik, he said, "I know nothing about them. They have only been here two months."

Cotton Mill Worker Must Attend 8 Looms

MANCHESTER, England, December 5 (C.P.). — Lancashire cotton mill owners to-day served one month's notice on employees that the "-more looms per weaver' system will be inaugurated at the beginning of the New Year. The move was regarded as giving tangible form to the threat of a crisis in the industry which would involve 200,000 workers.

The proposed system would put eight looms into the hands of the worker who now operates four Employees have protested against introduction of the system despite an offer of increased wages, on the ground that it would throw many men out of work. They have refused to negotiate with employers on this issue.

BEATTY FAVORS FEDERAL HELP FOR WESTERNERS

Suggests Government Might Assume Portion of 1929 Crop Obligation.

RELEASE PROVINCES.

Provincial Funds Then Might Be Used For Direct Relief of Those in Need.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 4.—The Federal Government ought to offer assistance to the West, probably in the form of assuming a portion of 1929 crop obligations of the Prairie Provinces, allowing the later to use this release of their credit to permit them to assume the burden of relief to their citizens, said Edward W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, speaking here last night.

Mr. Beatty suggested, also, the formation of an Agricultural Credit Corporation to provide live stock for farmers.

Farmers' Difficulties.

After touching on difficulties of the Western farmer — particularly the fear of want during the coming winter, and the fear of inability to finance another year's operations—Mr. Beatty said:

"To me, an unprejudiced and unofficial, but not disinterested observer, it seems indisputable the Dominion Government should not hesitate to intervent with an offer of assistance as a national public duty. In recent years assistance has been given in one way or another for the removal of disabilities of manufacturing interests, of the dairy and fruit farmers of the East and British Columbia, and of the Maritime Provinces. More recently, direct financial aid has been provided for unemployed workers. Special provision for the farmers of the West, suffering from difficulties which they could not foresee nor avoid, should be regarded by other groups in the country as a simple act of justice.

"The Governments of the three Prairie Provinces, owing to their intimate knowledge of local conditions, are best adapted to provide relief, but owing to their pledging of their credit as security for bank loans to the Wheat Pool, they may need Federal assistance in the matter. If the Dominion Government were to agree to assume a portion of the obligations regarding the 1929 crop, and the Provinces were to use this release of their credit to permit them to assume the full burden of relief to their citizens, the aid of the Dominion Government would be given in a useful direction, and the operation of relief measures by those best equipped for the task would be assured. These obligations should be assumed by the Dominion Government only to an amount equivalent to actual relief expenditures by the Province in aid of farmers. Since it is inevitable that some critics will assert that this is specific aid to members of the Wheat Pool, it may be well to point out that the reverse is the case. The guarantee of the Pool loans by the Provinces might be so regarded, although even in that case the Provinces were unquestionably moved by a desire to save a collapse of the wheat market that would hurt Pool and non-Pool farmers alike. The suggestion that the Dominion Government now assume those guarantees is made solely to enable the Provinces to direct their best efforts to the relief of all their farmers, Pool members or not.

NORANDA BOARD TO PASS DIVIDEND

Decide Best Policy is to Preserve Strong Liquid Position.

COPPER PRICE UNCERTAIN.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6. — At a meeting of the directors of Noranda Mines here yesterday, it was decided to pass the regular dividend, according to an official statement issued late last evening. The statement was issued by James Y Murdock, President of Noranda, at the conclusion of a meeting that lasted the greater part of the afternoon and evening. It read as follows:

"At a meeting of the directors of Noranda Mines Limited held in Montreal to-day the directors decided to pass the dividend which would ordinarily have been met on January 2 next. The amount paid to shareholders this year totals $5,599,943, of which $1,819,829 was from 1929 earnings, and $3,919,601 from 1930 earnings. While it was estimated that the earnings for the last quarter of the current year would considerably more than make up the amount paid out of this year's earnings, it was apparent it would be necessary to draw on surplus account to pay any reasonable dividend.

"In view of the uncertainty as to price of copper in the near future, and considering the fact that the company was committed to heavy expenditures during the next few months in connection with the recent purchase of a substantial interest in a large Canadian copper fabricator, and the completion of the refinery being constructed in the Town of Montreal East by its subsidiary, Canadian Copper Refiners Limited, and in connection with the bringing into production early in 1931 of such refinery, the board considered it to be in the interest of the shareholders to preserve the present strong liquid position of the company, which is considered ample to protect the shareholders' interests. It is the policy of the board to resume dividends as soon as it feels conditions justify such a course."

Correct Answer Unknown

To prevent the Contest Department, the artist or anyone else from knowing the correct answer to this puzzle, certain figures were erased by the contest judges: Messrs. E. A. Williams, Toronto Star Weekly and H. M. Sandison, Regina Leader-Post.

Neither of these gentlemen know what figures the other erased, but after the Contest closes, they will announce what those figures were and when these figures are subtracted from the total of the figures used by the artist, this will give the correct answer to the figures in the puzzle.

There are no tricks to this Contest. It is merely a matter of skill in finding all the numbers shown and then adding correctly. We wish it clearly understood that there are no hidden figures. Every number can be plainly seen. The degree of your care and skill will determine the prize which you will win.

The ONLY requirements for entry to contest are those listed here. You will note their extreme simplicity and a careful reading now will avoid any possible confusion later.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR EVERYBODY.

Both young and old will enjoy solving the Christmas Tree Puzzle. Its educational value will readily be seen; the children will find it interesting and helpful in improving their addition. The older folks, too, will enjoy the hours spent in trying to solve the puzzle.

Everybody will, of course, have their own way of working the problem, but as a suggestion we would suggest cutting the tree in dozens of small pieces. You will find it easier to check the figures if you number each clipping.

NOTE
At an early date Goblin Magazine will be changed to a weekly publication which will appear under the name The Montreal Record. Present Goblin subscribers who enjoy this feature are requested to write "Renewal" on their entry forms which will prevent two issues of the same date being mailed. New subscribers will kindly write "New" in the margin on coupon.

Secure Correct or Nearest Correct Total

The problem is to add together all of the numbers shown above. Each figure is clearly indicated, and they run from two to nine; the chart here a curved comes the nine; a straight comes all are plain numbers, there are no complications, and there is if each figure placed one above the other in a single column. Every figure in the picture is necessary. If in doubt about any of the figures, consult the chart with a figure marked, to the contest department, which will gladly tell you what it is.

GENERAL RULES

(1) Contest is open to everyone except (a) Employees of this firm and their immediate family; (b) Prize Winners in former Goblin contests who won more than $100.

(2) To enter contest it is necessary to enclose at least a $1 subscription to The Montreal Record.

(3) All solutions must be accompanied by a cash subscription, otherwise they will not be accepted. All solutions are recorded and cannot be changed once they are received at the contest office.

(4) It is not necessary for a competitor to send in the entire number of subscriptions permitted at one time. Answers received later, and every time a competitor sends in a subscription, another chance will be added to the previous answer which a contestant has to his credit.

(5) Contestants can send in a different answer to the puzzle each time they make a remittance, but not more than one prize and answer will be paid to one family living at one home address.

(6) EXTRA PUZZLE FORMS MAY BE OBTAINED FREE BY WRITING TO THE CONTEST DEPARTMENT.

(7) All money orders, cheques, or postal notes must be made payable to The Montreal Record; acknowledgments will be made immediately upon receipt of solutions.

(8) If the correct answer is not sent in by any contestant, the prize will be awarded for the nearest correct solution.

(9) In the event of a tie, a second puzzle will be mailed. The puzzle will be a child's problem requiring accuracy in addition and subtraction. Only those doing well be permitted to solve the second puzzle.

CLOSING DATE

(10) The last day for mailing solutions to this contest is December 22nd, 1930. Solutions mailed and having the postmark of not later than December 22nd, 1930, will be accepted. Contestants are advised to send in their answers as soon as possible.

(11) In entering the contest, contestants agree to abide by the rules of the contest and to accept the decision of the judges as final. The Montreal Record reserves the right to amend or add to the rules of this contest, if necessary, in the interests of the interests of both the contestants and this publication. The right is also reserved to refuse subscriptions and to disqualify any contestant whom the judges or contestants' representatives deem undesirable.

Your Radio Tells the Truth about BATTERIES

YOU can't fool your radio by the size or shape of a battery. It soon tells the inside story of economy and service. Hear it speak up in gratitude when you connect it to Eveready Layerbilts—the batteries that give better results, for a longer time, at lower cost. Birthday Cards

ON entering the Workshop of John Plane I found him taking a breathing spell. Those who have learned the art of indulging in such spells are as fortunate as those who can take 'forty winks' during the day! Both forms of indulgence are real investments of time and strength—and only the foolish and the thoughtless fail to see this.

Well, John was standing, in true orthodox fashion, before an open fire. It was such a fire as drew you to it and at the same time suggested that you had better not come too close!

There are great differences in open fires! I have seen fires so sickly that they made me want to draw up my coat collar about my neck. Instead of giving out warmth they only seemed to make me more conscious of the cold that gave their half-hearted efforts a look of frigid disdain. As I looked at them I was made to think of a life strangled at its birth. Others I have seen which made me think of some lives in their closing stages—mostly ashes and dust and dying embers!

PICTURES IN LIVE COALS.

When a lad, I have sat, many a wintry night, on the end of the fender and gazed into the glowing coals and seen some of the most beautful pictures ever beheld by imagination's eyes. Indeed I think the things seen in an open fire have a great deal to do with the creating of that roving disposition which drives so many Scotsmen to the ends of the earth.

You may be able to get lots of warmth from a radiator, but you will be smarter than I have been if you are able to get much inspiration from it. I have drawn up my chair before one and tried my hardest to see anything approaching to the things I have seen in an open fire, but all I could get was a metallic stare which seemed to say, "Try your hardest, I refuse to yield!"

GOOD BURNING MATERIAL.

"Good evening, John," I said. "I suppose you are busy while you are resting!"

"Yes, I am!" he said. "I was thinking of a story I heard a few days ago. It went something like this:

"A lady went down to the wattrfront to see if she could purchase a parrot. She learned that a certain sailor had one for sale. Calling upon him she said that she really wanted a parrot that could talk.

"'Can this bird talk?' she inquired.

"'Well, no! I can't honestly say that it can talk much—but it's a devil to think!'

"The fact is," said John, "I was thinking about certain things—but I am not sure whether I should give them to you or not for publication. However, I'll give you a rough sketch of what was running through my mind, and if you are willing to run the risk of being censured by 'the powers that be' you can go ahead and use them as you may see fit."

THE CANDID MAN.

It might be a parable! It might be fiction! It might be fact! Or it might be pure nonsense! Take your choice, and think what you like. The wise will see some value in it, the otherwise will think it was not worth their time reading it if you dare to use it on the Church Page. Both kinds use the page, although they are not always willing to admit doing so.

I was passing a certain building which sometimes shortens its name by making use of four initials. It is a building which is thought by some to be nothing more than "a hang-out" for young men, or a gathering-place for "lounge-lizzards." That's not what I think of it! Personally I have a very high regard for this institution and believe that it has done and can still do a great work among young men.

This building has what is called a gym! I was attracted to this section of the building by sounds which seemed to be coming from the direction of the gym.

HOT WORK.

Thump! Bang! Thump! Bang, bang, bang! Thump! Smack!

Charlie looked round.

"That you, Ted?" he said.

"Correct, son."

"Hot work, this," remarked Charlie fervently pointing to the punch-ing-ball he had been battering with terrible seriousness.

"What are you doing it for?" asked Ted.

"To get fit."

"Fit for what?"

"For every emergency."

"Better tell me your story, Charlie: it'll help to cool you down. Sorry I can't offer you an ice-cream," said Ted Smiler.

"At this point," said John Plane, "I thought it would be no impertinence to wait on and hear the whole of the story. It had got me interested."

Charlie continued: "I launch my campaign next Monday morning at ten sharp."

"What's that?"

"I have decided, Ted that for the next six months I'll tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

"Sorry I'm so dense, Charlie. Please elucidate."

"Well," said Charlie as he donned his coat, "we are one big gang of hypocrites—you know that as well as I, Ted? We say things to each other that we know aren't true. For example, the usual thing would be for me to say to you just now, that I am glad to see you. But I'm not. You've come to borrow money, and you have some rotten excuse ready to explain why you haven't re-paid the twenty dollars I gave you three weeks ago. Now, Ted, old chap, you needn't look so mighty huffed and belligerent. I am only giving you an illustration of my point. You needn't take any notice of it, for the campaign doesn't start till next Monday morning."

HOW DARE YOU?

Smiler smiled.

"You'll jolly well need to keep fit, son, if that's what you mean to be at," he said with conviction. "You'll get bashed."

"I can take a bashing, Ted," answered Charlie cheerfully. "And I can give one."

"Six months, did you say, Charlie?" queried Smiler. "Does your campaign last six months?"

"That's the figure, Ted," replied Charlie with flashing eye.

"Six months of candour, sincerity, straight-from-the-shoulder speech. What a time it'll be! Old humbugs squirming: hefty young men sparring and spitting: gentle maidens blushing and saying 'How dare you!": spinsters as old as your mother turning purple: carpenters throwing their hammers at me: blacksmiths chasing me with the tongs: and all the rest of it."

And Charlie sent out a peal of joyous and boyish laughter.

"Your campaign won't last that long, Charlie," predicted Ted. "You'll be dead before the time is up, or a helpless cripple, or a bad hospital case. Better make your will."

"Fear not, Teddy! Faint heart ne'er won a fair lady. All hail—next Monday!"

WAIT AND SEE.

"Mr. Preacher," said John Plane to me, "I'd be greatly interested to see the effect of such a plan of action on this or any other community. It sure would stir things up! And, do you know, I believe it would do good to many who are simply fooling themselves as things are allowed to go on now. Few people can hear the truth about themselves, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and be pleasant with those who have the courage to tell it. What slaves men are! And the same might be said of women! It is the truth that makes us free—yet, most of the time, we do not want to hear the truth! Pleasant things, no matter how far removed from the truth they may be, are more to our liking. Therefore, whether we realize it or not, most of us prefer bondage to liberty. I'm going to keep both my eyes and my ears open to discover, if I can, how Charlie's campaign gets on. If I were a cub reporter, I'd camp on his trail and get some news that would sell the paper and give men something to think about.

IS SHE ENVIED?

"There is a certain young lady who spends part of her life in writing for the press. I often read what she has written. What wonderful times she must have! The musicales, concerts and plays that she attends are all given by artists who are the last word in perfection. So far as I can remember in all the reports I have read she has never seen or heard a second-rate performer. What glorious singing and playing she is privileged to hear! It almost seems too good to be true!

"Now, Mr. Preacher," said John Plane, "I know this young lady; and I can assure you that she is no fool, although she may seem to come dangerously near being a faker—in a perfectly legitimate sort of a way, of course—at times! She is a capable critic and could, by her constructive criticism, help lots of people in our midst if they weren't so terribly thin-skinned and touchy!

"If she only dared say what ought to be said, what a howl would go up! Her dismissal would be demanded by those who lustily sing, 'Britons never, never shall be slaves.'

"How foolish it all is and how stupid many of us can be in spite of our culture! The result is, of course, that we are held in bondage to our undeveloped resources because we lack the courage and good sense to hear the truth. There is something of the cat about many of us! We love to be stroked in a way that is pleasant to our feelings—and if you dare to touch us in any other way we are ready to scratch and spit and squeal!"

RELIEVED FEELINGS.

"John," I said, "I must tear myself away from your fine fire and stimulating conversation! I hope you'll excuse me for having taken up your time and kept you away from your work!"

"Oh, that's all right!" said John. "It has relieved my feelings to get that off my mind. If you are reckless enough to use it I shall be surprised if you don't stir up a hornet's nest. There will be those who will say, 'It's me he's thinking of—and I like his cheek!'

"Besides, I feel rested now! The job I was at has not suffered by the breathing spell I have had. And I have an idea that you'll do better work yourself, sir, by having come in here for a little while. I hope most of your calls are done for the day and that you will have a pleasant and a profitable night with some really great book."

"Thank you," I said, "it was the saying of an heathen, though no heathenish saying, That he who would be good must either have a faithful friend to instruct him, or a watchful enemy to correct him. Should we murder a physician because he comes to cure us, or like him worse because he would make us better? The course he takes to help us may not be to our taste, but let us be wise enough to blame it on the disease rather than on the man or woman who has diagnosed our true condition."

Yours till skins are thicker and folks are less touchy.

Allan Fairbairn.

The Hour Of Prayer

O LORD, how like a little flower am I! So much of my life is under ground and out of sight. All my struggling and groping only meets the darkness and the stern resistance of rock and root. But, flower-like as I am, teach me to know that all the pressure is but prophecy, and all the darkness is but the urge up toward sun and shower and the breath of heaven. Sun of my soul, help me to rise to Thee, and make me sincere in the welcome I give to the Word that cometh as the rain from above and the Spirit that breatheth where He listeth. Surely I can get grace to bear the darkness, though I am but a tiny flower, if I may have these, and by them grow to bear some little beauty and breathe some little fragrance. Make me wise to rejoice in the darkness that drives me to the light. This I ask in the name of Him who is the Way, the Truth and the Life. Amen.

COMPENSATION

THOSE who have drained their own wells dry, in order to fill the poor man's cistern, shall never perish for want of water, to quench their thirst. Those who have blessed others, shall be blessed themselves.

AN INSPIRITING THOUGHT

THERE is no more inspiriting thought than that of the Lord Jesus living out His life of ministry in a ministering Church, the Church carrying on the work which He inaugurated in the three and a half years of His testimony upon earth, and going on now in the very service for which He opened the way. Works of philanthropy which do something to benefit this poor world are not to be despised: but works done in fellowship with Jesus, and having a distinct reference to Him, must surely occupy a higher platform. Oh, for grace to live a life in Christ, a life for Christ, a life with Christ!

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1930

A FALSE ALARM.

Apparently that Vancouver story as to the flooding of Canada with Australian butter was as much exaggerated as the report of Mark Twain's death.

Official advices from Sydney, Australia, declare that Canadians need have no fear of having their market swamped with shipments of Australian butter, inasmuch as the available supply in Australia is limited and does not exceed the local demand.

The news will be received with satisfaction by those interested in the dairy industry in this country.

As pointed out by The Examiner yesterday, conditions in that industry have shown a distinct trend for the better in recent months, and there is every reason to look forward with confidence to developments next year.

The bogey of bonused Australian butter as conjured up by the alarmist story from Vancouver was therefore rather a startling apparition to Canadian dairymen, and there will be general relief throughout the country to learn that Australia is not in a condition to upset the milk cart, as it were.

Added assurance is given, too, by the statement of the Minister of Revenue that the Federal Government does not propose to have the Canadian dairy industry jeopardized by competition from outside.

OVERDOING THE THING.

North Monaghan's rules and regulations in regard to the administration of relief and the providing of work for its unemployed citizens are the most drastic announced by any municipality in the Province, and there will be many people who will question the wisdom of some of the restrictions.

According to an official announcement, applicants for assistance from the municipality must turn in their liquor permits, stop driving motor cars, submit their home conditions to official inspection, and get rid of their radios and similar luxuries.

It is difficult to avoid the feeling that North Monaghan is rather overdoing the thing, especially in deciding that the possession of a radio shall disqualify a citizen from obtaining municipal assistance.

It must be remembered that for many of those who are at present in need of help it is a new experience, caused by economic conditions over which they have no control, and it must be realized, too, that such people are not asking for charity but for a chance to earn a living.

To ask them to get rid of a radio set that they were able to purchase in more prosperous days and to get rid of it at a fraction of what it originally cost them in order to get an opportunity to work is to inauguratee an economy policy that will strike most people as over cautious to say the least.

And if radios are to be scrapped, where is the line to be drawn when luxuries are being defined?

CHRISTMAS RELIEF.

The fine spirit shown by members of the city fire department in deciding to assist in relief work by making the fire hall the receiving station for provisions and clothes and by undertaking to renovate and repair the toys sent in for Christmas distribution will be generally appreciated.

The fire fighters have on previous occasions rendered very useful assistance, and there is no doubt that their services now will be of splendid use.

Their offer is but another evidence that the heart of Peterborough is sound, that this community is alive with people who have the will to help, and that is generosity enough to ensure that no one here will go cold or hungry this winter.

All that is required is the harnessing up of all this willingness and kindness of heart into effective teamwork that would prevent overlapping and guarantee a systematic distribution of assistance that would overlook no one.

The Examiner has reason to feel that if the relief work can be placed on anything resembling a business basis there need be no worry as to the developments here during the next few months.

Recently we have appealed for help for some especially distressing cases that came to our attention, and the reply has been so prompt and so generous that our previous conviction as to the kindliness of Peterborough citizens has been appreciably strengthened.

There are hundreds of people just waiting to be shown where they can help to the best advantage.

JAMES STEVENSON PARK.

Considerable discussion took place at the baseball banquet the other night as to the alleged lack of official attention for James Stevenson Park during the past season, baseball authorities claiming that the civic ball park had been neglected.

In reply, Ald. Walter Stocker, chairman of the city parks committee, explained that the appropriation for the care of the city's parks was not large enough to permit of a great deal of work being done at James Stevenson Park unless other beauty spots were skimped.

The chairman's explanation calls attention to the necessity of more money for park purposes.

The trouble in regard to James Stevenson Park is that that athletic field has been more or less recently dumped on the city's doorstep in the guise of a foundling that requires attention.

Senior baseball in Peterborough for a decade paid enough rental for the use of James Stevenson Park to more than pay for its maintenance.

But senior baseball has passed off the map, leaving the city treasury short of the revenue it used to produce.

The upkeep of the park, in other words, must be financed by the city, and that point was apparently overlooked when the park appropriations were being drawn up early this year.

The mistake should not be repeated.

The city's athletic ground must not be treated as a Cinderella—it should be kept in proper playing condition and its fences in a decent shape, and there should be a sufficient vote in next year's park appropriations—no huge sum is required—to ensure at least that James Stevenson will be fit to play on.

THOSE MANSLAUGHTER SENTENCES.

At the latter end of the week we commented on a case disposed of by Mr. Justice Logie, in which he suspended sentence on a young woman convicted of manslaughter of an old man by running him down with her car. In doing so, the judge said the knowledge that she had killed a man would be sufficient punishment, and that retributive punishment, therefore, was unnecessary.

The following day Justice Logie had three other manslaughter cases before him. Two were automobile cases, the accused in one instance being a youth of 18, and sentence of one year's imprisonment was pronounced on both the guilty parties. One man admitted having had a few drinks, but no mention was made in the case of the youth, that he had been drinking. The third case was that of a man who was engaged in a fatal fist fight, and he was given seven years.

Manslaughter may be very near to an accident, or it may be close to wilful murder, and the sentences must vary accordingly. From the information available here it is not possible to obtain a comprehensive grasp of the circumstances of these cases. But an automobile killing and a brawl, resulting in the death of some person, seem to come nigh the category of an accident. No one deliberately runs down another person, and when there is a fist fight, two men decide to "have it out" without either having felonious intent in his mind.

His lordship having, according to the report, practically given the girl an acquittal on the ground that the tortures of conscience would be hers for the rest of her life, does not seem to have extended that consideration to the crimes of the three men. They were given retributive punishment without any reminder that the knowledge of having killed some person would be a punishment in itself. They have to spend one to seven years in prison, during which, in the loneliness of their cell, they will have much more cause to brood over their killings than the girl who was given her liberty.

This is not said by way of claiming that the men did not deserve some retributive punishment. But, on the face of things, it looks as if the woman got off free because of being a woman.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EINSTEIN PLANS A TOUR.

Professor Albert Einstein, the German scientist who developed the theory of relativity, is going on a tour which will take him as far as Pasadena, California, and the learned professor and his wife are described as being in a state of frenzy already. The day after announcement was made of the impending trip a score of invitations arrived at the Einstein home in Berlin inviting him to address universities and scientific bodies, and of course the mails will take another deluge.

It is New York which in anticipation causes the greatest alarm. Professor Einstein has no intention of providing a gala occasion for the typical Broadway crowd which welcomes swimmers, golf champions and Balkan queens with a prodigious if indiscriminating enthusiasm. He goes into a panic at the thought of "explaining" relativity to the reporters of the tabloid press in a running interview, at the necessity of going into the conventional ecstasies over the celebrated sky-line, at producing on a moment's notice his views on prohibition, women's dresses and the cause of industrial depression.

Frau Einstein, a resourceful soul, thinks she has solved the problem. She announces that since the professor's peace of mind must be preserved she will not permit him to leave the boat at New York. There, in the seclusion of his cabin, she thinks he might pursue his formidable mathematical computations without disturbance. We fear she under-estimates the ingenuity of the New York reporters and the terrifying hospitality which New York offers its distinguished guests. He might escape the Broadway parade, the official welcome, the inevitable photograph with Mayor Walker, but we strongly suspect he would find cameras poked through the port-hole, brisk young men standing guard at his doorway to ask him impertinent questions, lion-hunting hostesses going in for everything but kidnapping. The more impenetrable his retreat the greater the challenge offered reportorial resourcefulness and under such circumstances we should predict for Professor Einstein a most uncomfortable time in port.

The professor had better make up his mind to acceptance of the inevitable. If he will go through the routine, make polite gestures of delighted amazement, describe his first impressions in glowing phrases, utter a few platitudes over the radio to multitudes who do not know whether Einstein makes automobiles or is a leader in Soviet Russia and who know consdierably less about relativity than they do about the social customs of the mastodon, then he can go back to his ship in peace and New York will forget him with gratifying haste.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Christmas shopping period is rapidly decreasing. Don't put yours off any longer—and remember to choose gifts made in Canada.

Judging by current prices, the big butter and egg men in Chicago are not as big as they used to be.

Doubtless the Soviet Government feels duly chastened at the rebuke it has had from the British authorities.

Peter Veregin is said to be negotiating for land in Russia for Canadian Doukhabors. This country will be quite willing to say good-bye.

After all, the northern lights are not the only nuisance associated with the radio. There's Rudy Vallee, for example.

According to Sault Ste. Marie reports, information about Algoma is in demand in the schools of Ontario. Must be those wolve stories that the children want to read.

The editorial, "Forgive Us Our Meanness," which appeared in last evening's issue, was re-published from the Brockville Recorder and Times, the credit line somehow or other having got lost in the shuffle.

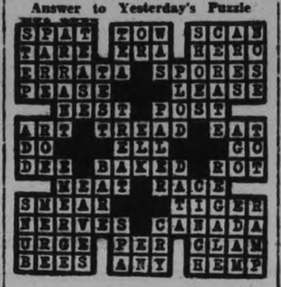
HOCKEY PLAYER DIES SUDDENLY.

KITCHENER, December 6 (C.P.).—A. B. Conron, aged about 40, an accountant at the Kitchener branch of the Bank of Commerce died suddenly at the Kitchener Auditorium late on Thursday, while playing in a Financial Hockey League game.

Conron had skated into the penalty box and sat down after a strenuous few minutes on the ice, when he collapsed into the arms of a spectator.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER FOUR

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters:

Thinking it over, Jean decides to accept Mollie's invitation and go to New York. She leaves that afternoon. On the train she takes stock of her finances and discovers she has $1.22 left after buying her ticket. Oh well, she'll be with Mollie in a few hours. Arriving in New York she taxies to the store and Jean generously tips the driver the remainder of her dollar bill. One of the girls in the store informs Jean that Mollie had been married that morning and started for Missouri on a wedding trip.

Jean is accosted by an insulting stranger but saved from an embarrassing situation by an attractive young man who introduces himself as Sandy Clause. He invites her to dinner but she insists on paying for her own meal.

Now go on with the story.

Roast turkey Jean never seriously considered. But for one fat fried pork-chop she would gladly have given the proverbial shirt. Hungry? A French fried potato would have looked like a meat loaf.

"Pork chop (fried)..... $.40".

So she compromised on an egg sandwich and a cup of coffee. Sandwich, 15cents; coffee, 15 cents; total 20 cents.

"I'm not really hungry," she lied. "A late lunch . . ."

The sentence died meekly. She was suddenly struck with a vague recollection that in a thoughtless moment before they entered the restaurant she had told him she had not eaten since breakfast. She raised her eyes slyly, but he was looking steadily at his menu.

"Same here," he said easily. He gave the waitress the order, "Two egg sandwiches and two cups of coffee." The girl looked at him as if she thought he must be joking, but after a moment she went off, writing on her pad.

"Now," said Mr. Clause, "we'll get down to business."

"Right," said Jean. "If you don't mind I'll open the conference."

She took her purse from her lap and, after a humiliating delay, she fished out the two dimes and the two pennies. The 10-cent pieces she laid by his plate the pennies by her own.

"All right, Mr. Clause . . . I've said my piece. Now it's your turn."

He rested his clasped hands on the edge of the table and gazed at her in silence for a moment. Then: "May I pry into your private affairs . . . Miss Melba?"

"You can try."

He hesitated, apparently afraid of offending her. "When I told you my name, you said you had already given Santa Claus your Christmas order and you accepted me as a good omen. . . ."

"Yes. . . . I may as well tell you now; however, I begin to wonder if I knew what I really wanted."

"Isn't that a fairly common feminine trait? You know what you want until you see some prospect of getting it; then you aren't so sure. . . . Was it . . . clothes?"

"No."

"A car?"

"Don't be ridiculous. My name is Melba, not Morgan. But why guess? I don't mind telling you, if it matters."

"I'm curious. . . . What was it?"

"Adventure. . . ."

He stared at her, incredulous. "You mean that?"

"Of course. . . . You don't know what it is to grow up in a small town and never have anything happen to you."

He was laughing softly. "I was a favorable omen, wasn't I? Favorable for adventure, at least."

The laughter in his brown eyes was a little disturbing. She didn't know just what to make of it.

"Question two," he said quietly. "You came to New York expecting to be with your friend. She's away. What are your plans now?"

She shrugged her shoulders gently. "Get a job, I suppose. Until Christmas, anyway."

"You're going back to Connecticut?"

"I'm not sure. . . . That depends on what happens between now and Christmas."

The waitress came up, rested her tray on the edge of the table and put their supper before them.

"I'm sorry," he apologized, "but I promised to call the house at six, and it's 10 after now. Don't let your sandwich get cold; I'll be right back."

But Jean asked abruptly: "Why are you coming back? You've been awfully nice to me, but . . . there isn't anything else you can do now."

He put his hands on the table and leaned toward her. "You mean you'd rather I wouldn't come back. . . .?"

He held his questioning gaze steadily. "I mean nothing of the kind, Sandy Clause. . . ."

She saw the laughter come back into his eyes, saw a smile on his lips, and knew vaguely that in that moment they had by common consent dispensed with the conventional barrier that had stood between them until now.

"Not more than 10 minutes," he said quietly, and was striding toward the door.

When, all of 15 minutes later, he had not returned, Jean grew uneasy. Her sandwich was gone, her coffee cup was empty. His sandwich and coffee were cold.

The suspicion that he had taken the easiest means of getting away from he eased her fears none. Strangely, she felt as if she had lost her last anchor in a rough sea. This was New York. In her purse were two cents. Very soon she must find a place to sleep — on credit.

Suppose he didn't come back . . .? Suppose . . .

A little laugh from deep in her throat was her answer to her fears. She was no worse off than before he came. In fact . . .

He came up so suddenly that she was startled.

"We're in luck," he said gaily, dropping into his chair. "She wasn't at home, but I finally located her. She's going straight to the apartment. . . ."

Jean stared at him, deeply puzzled. After a moment she asked quietly: "What are you talking about?"

He pushed his sandwich and coffee to one side, and folded his arms on the table. "Now listen a moment. I want you to do something for me." He spoke in a low voice, slowly, deliberately. "I was the cause of your losing your suit case. Without it, you can't get into a hotel without having to answer some embarrassing questions. But even you will admit you must have some place to spend the night. Yes. . . ."

"Yes," said Jean, "but I don't understand. . . ."

"You will in a moment. While I was out I called Marcia White. She's a very dear friend of mine and a good sport. I told her frankly what had occurred. Before I could get to the point of it all, she interrupted to ask if you wouldn't spend the night with her. I told her . . ."

Jean's yellow head was shaking firmly. "I'm sorry. . . . But don't you see I couldn't do that? You . . . you don't know women. She'd do it . . . for your sake, but . . . Oh, no; I couldn't, really!"

"Don't say that . . . please." His eyes were pleading. "I'm asking you to do this for me, Miss Melba. You're not in your little Connecticut town tonight. You're in a city with no more heart than a cement slab. You've got to have some place to stay and by staying with Marcia you're relieving me of a responsibility. You see," he added, smiling, "if I hadn't thrown your suitcase away, you could go where you pleased."

Jean smiled, too, smiled at his innocence. Suitcase or no suitcase, she hadn't but two cents to her name; and where could one get a room for two cents?

Gradually she understood that she hadn't any choice but to do what he proposed.

She heard his voice pleasing earnestly. "I wouldn't take you to Marcia's if I wasn't so sure of her," he told her, persuasively. "Two minutes after you've met her, you'll wonder if you haven't known her for years. Really. She's that kind. Intelligent, and human. . . . Spend the night with her. To-morrow morning I'll replace your suitcase and its contents and. . . . You're free to do and go where you please after that, of course."

Jean said quietly: "But you won't replace the suitcase. It wasn't your fault, and if you hadn't come along when you did. . . . I don't know what that man would have done to me. . . . Besides, I don't need it."

"Don't you?" There was no laughter in his eyes now, only admiration. "All right. We'll not argue that now. But you will go to Marcia's with me . . .?"

Jean's eyes met his, helplessly. What else could she do?

"All right," she said after a moment. "I only hope you don't regret what you're doing. . . ."

He jumped up quickly and held her coat for her. "Is it likely?" he grinned, and hurried her out, apparently afraid lest she change her mind.

It was not a short ride and the taxi could make but poor progress in the heavy traffic, but to Jean it was ended all too soon. She dreaded meeting Marcia White.

"To-morrow," she told him, as they entered the big building, "I'm going to walk somewhere and see if I can't find a job."

They left the elevator at the second floor and walked along a broad corridor. A door stood half open. Clause knocked loudly.

From somewhere inside a woman's voice called: "Sandy?"

"And friend!" he called back, cheerfully. "We're coming in."

He pushed a door wide. They passed through a little hallway and entered a big, luxuriously appointed living-room. Jean felt miserably small and out of place.

And then Marcia White came from an adjoining room, tall and darkly beautiful. She gave Jean a slim, firm hand. "I'm sorry I couldn't get to the door," she smiled. "I was tidying your room. Sandy'll take your things. . . ." She suddenly moved forward, took his face in her hands and kissed him- "after I've rewarded him for bringing you," she finished, and kissed him again.

CHAPTER FIVE.

The relation between these two — between Sandy of the laughing eyes and this quiet beauty, Marcia White — Jean could not grasp. And even had she known, her irritation at their intimacy would have been no less. She resented Marcia's confident caresses. Even more she resented Sandy's easy acceptance of them.

"I've no end of work yet to-night," Sandy observed presently. "If you ladies will excuse me. . . ."

The thought of being left alone here with this strange young woman caused Jean's heart to pound against her ribs. She wanted to reach out and grasp Sandy's arm and cling to him. She wanted him to stay, or to take her with him.

But when, as he stood in the hall doorway, Marcia once more slipped her arms about him and kissed him, Jean turned her back on them and stood by a front window from which she could look down into the street.

She heard Marcia's voice: "You'll have breakfast with us, dear. . . . Not before 10, now; we shan't be awake before nine."

Sandy's voice was a low, pleasant rumble. But a moment later she heard him call, "Good night!" and knew that he was speaking to her. She turned slowly and nodded. "Breakfast here at ten," he said then, and she nodded again.

Marcia came back into the room, gliding softly across the thick rug. She smiled at Jean as she turned on a table lamp, then stepped back and snapped off the bidden ceiling light.

"Isn't he a darling?" she asked, almost disappearing in a deep overstuffed chair, obviously comfortable despite its eccentric design. She took a cigaret from the silver casket on the black cylinder table beside her and held it idly between her fingers.

Jean asked quietly: "Could I get you a match . . .?"

Marcia turned to her quickly. "I'm sorry. I'm so much alone I forget. . . . Will you have a cigaret?"

"No, thank you."

"You don't smoke? My dear; however do you manage to think without smoking?" From the cylinder table she lifted what Jean had taken for a decoration, a small black cup not unlike the mouthpiece of a telephone. Jean saw that it drew a thin wire with it and knew that it was an electric lighter.

Jean left the window and dropped to the end of a couch of the same modernistic design as was Marcia's engulfing chair.

"I suppose the answer to your last question is that I don't think."

Marcia's black eyes lifted in surprise. "But you must, my dear. You've thought yourself out of an uncomfortable situation this very night." And then, a note of sympathy in her soft voice: "Why did you say that? Aren't you at ease here?"

"Yes . . . yes, of course," Jean stammered, embarrassed. "But . . . This is an imposition on you. You're awfully good to take me in, but if I had thought . . . at the right time, it wouldn't be necessary."

Marcia smiled wisely. "You're regretting your desision to come to New York? . . . But you shouldn't. It is here, in New York, that life is really lived. Everywhere else . . ." her slim hand performed an indefinite arc . . . "everywhere else it is . . . endured."

She dropped her head on the back of the chair and blew a little cloud of blue smoke toward the ceiling.

Jean watched her curiously, but remained silent.

Presently Marcia sat up, dropped her cigaret through a small black hole in the cylinder table, and leaned slightly forward, her black eyes searching Jean's. She asked quietly: "Do you mind if I give you a little advice?"

Marcia returned her smile. After a moment she said: "I have been in New York almost five years and it would be difficult to conceive of more experience packed into that period than I have had. And yet, summed up, it has revealed to me but three really important facts of life. . . ."

Jean was listening intently.

"The first," said Marcia, "is that it is a man's world. You can't get away from that. The woman who thinks she can make her way in competition with men and without their help is simply shutting her eyes to the truth. . . . The second: The man never lived who could not be wrapped around some woman's little finger. Not every woman's, mind you, but some woman's. The woman must choose her man, the sort of man who is susceptible to her own particular charm. . . ."

Marcia settled back in her chair once more and proceeded to light another cigaret.

Jean stirred uneasily. "You said there were three . . . facts of life . . . didn't you?"

Marcia, lowering the lighter to the table, nodded thoughtfully. "The third," she said, "is the most important of all. If we were not blind, we would see it before we were out of high school. But we do not. From infancy we are filled with the 'sublimity of love,' and the 'power of intellect' and the 'force of character.' No wonder we are confused. . . . The third, my dear, is that woman's power over man is her physical charm. Not love, remember, nor intellect, nor character . . . but her ability to make herself physically desirable in his eyes."

The blue pools of Jean's eyes revealed all too plainly her utter amazement. It seemed to her impossible that a woman so beautiful as Marcia could so calmly discredit everything that was fine and noble in life.

She was still struggling with her outraged feelings when from somewhere came three sharp rings of a small bell. She saw Marcia glance at her quickly, then rise languidly and saunter toward the hall door.

"There's a valuable rule that I might throw in for good measure," Marcia said quietly from the door. "Never be content with one man, for . . ." she smiled wisely . . . "there is safety, in more ways than one, in numbers."

Alone, Jean got up quickly and ran to the door through which Marcia had first entered. Marcia had said she had been tidying up Jean's room, but the room Jean looked into was obviously a miniature combination of library and study, for the walls were lined with books and a large flat-top desk at one end was literally covered with writing paper and open books.

Voices came to Jean from the hallway. She hurried back to the chair she had been occupying and tried to appear comfortably settled.

HIGHWAY HOLD-UP.

Norwood, December 4.

Dear Editor,—I was greatly surprised when I looked at the headlines in your paper of recent date to read of the hold-up that a few farmers staged against the Government. We have heard of many hold-ups lately, but the one described by Mr. Lancaster is a greater one. Will Mr. Lancaster please tell what reason he had for making such a false statement through the press, accusing honest people of demanding exorbitant prices for their land, when he had not consulted any of them as a true representative of the people of the County of Peterborough would have done. There was not a farmer in the district, which Mr. Lancaster has so much to say about, who ever tried in any way to hinder the building of the highway. They only asked that reasonable judgment be used and men sent out who knew the value of land, what it was to cut through land under cultivation and to cut farms in half, and not think that it was worth no more than unused land. They asked for men who were willing to play fair and who did not come out to study economy at the expense of the farmer.

Mr. Lancaster states that the work on the highway would have been started before had it not been for this terrible hold-up. Will he tell us why it was left until the winter and then blame the farmers when the surveyors have been travelling through the country all summer, and was not held up by these terrible farmers east of Norwood. As a rule the farmers have not much to say—they generally have to take what they get. I would also like to know why the farmers did not stop the Hydro towers from being built on their farms, and why they have not been settled with before they come through with more towers without any consideration whatever for them. These farms have been dug up, taken possession of, and still no pay. Most of the farmers believe in paying for a thing as soon as they get it, or as soon after as possible, or else they would be classed with those exorbitant priced fellows east of Norwood.

Would Mr. Lancaster please explain what he meant when he stated that the Government positions might have been prejudiced. To me that is a silly statement, for a man who has been chosen by the people to represent them. If Mr. Lancaster is willing to act honestly with all the people regardless of politics, let him come to the people to study their needs and see for himself whether they are exorbitant in their dealings, and not to make such absurd, untruthful statements in large headlines through the press. He need not fear prejudices either against the Government or the one who is chosen to represent them.

Now, Mr. Editor, we did not want to do this, and we tried to refrain from answering these untrue statements from one whom we expected to say better things, but a continual write-up has caused these terrible farmers to resent such misrepresentations, and we invite anyone to look into the situation. Let them decide for themselves from arbitration or through law.

Trusting that you will find space in your paper for this letter,

Yours,

A FARMER.

LOST IN WOODS MAN LOSES MIND

Jesse Ryme Found After Wandering Days on Shores of James Bay.

MAY HAVE HAD PARTNER.

COCHRANE, Ont., December 6 (C.P.). — Driven out of his mind by the hardships he suffered when lost for days, possibly weeks on the shores of James Bay, Jesse Ryme, whose home is believed to be in Quebec Province, was brought out this week by Constable Cavell of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and taken to an institution in Montreal. Ryme was found wandering in the vicinity of Rupert's House on the Hudson Bay and taken by a band of Indians to Moose Factory. His wanderings are largely a mystery as when last heard of he had joined a gold rush in August to go to Chibougamau, in Northern Quebec. How he got to Rupert's House is a mystery. It is suggested that he may have had a partner, but if so he has disappeared entirely.

The Mounted Police are investigating this phase of the affair.

CHARITY CONCERT LEADS TO ARREST

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 6.—The first arrest in connection with the campaign instituted here to check charity concert campaigning has been made. Charged with obtaining money by false pretences in the presentation of one of these concerts, W. E. Harold Gledhill was committed for trial before Judge and jury by Magistrate Robert Browne in Police Court. Bail was set at $2,000.

DOWN TREND CONTINUES ON WALL STREET

Rail Issues Again Conspicuously Heavy in Light Trading.

5 POINT LOSS.

Erie Sags 2 Points to 25¾, the Lowest in Six Years.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (C.P.).—The stock market ended the week with a further downward drift of prices today.

Trading was in light volume, but rails were again conspicuously heavy, several penetrating further into new low ground and elsewhere in the list. Losses of 1 to 5 points were common, although few declines exceeded two points.

Selling was not inclined to swell in volume. However, the day's sales aggregated only about 650,000 shares.

CANOE UPSETS ONE IS DROWNED

Sectionman Hearing Cries For Help Saves Two in Cedar Lake.

HEADED FOR LUMBER CAMP.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Dec. 6.—A man believed to be Alexander Proulx was drowned in Cedar Lake, about two miles west of Brent on Friday afternoon while attempting to cross the lake with two companions. The three men left Brent to go to a camp of the Gillies Brothers Lumber Co. While attempting to cross the lake on the ice, the latter gave way and Proulx was precipitated into the ice-cold water. His two companions were able to make their way to shore with the assistance of Sectionman Thomas, who heard their cries for help. Every effort is being made to recover the body and Provincial Officer Small left for the scene of the tragedy today.

Proulx is a man of 45 years and leaves a wife and family of small children at Braeside.

CHRISTMAS TREES FOR SALE TO-DAY

Business on Local Market Brisk This Morning Despite Drizzling Weather.

Despite a persistent drizzling rain, business on the open market was brisk this morning and a large variety of produce saw sharp trading. The near approach of the Christmas season was signalized by the advent of two loads of Christmas trees, which were not however in great demand. The prices being asked for these trees was 35 to 50c each, although if sold in loads the price would work out proportionately less.

There were large supplies of dressed poultry on hand. Turkeys were fetching 30c a pound, ducks 25 to 28c a choice chickens were going at 20 to 25c.

Vegetables, fruit and other garden and farm produce was plentiful. Apples were selling at $1.75 a bushel, with potatoes at $1 bag. Eggs had a good demand at 50-60c a dozen while dairy butter was 30-35c lb.

Pork was selling at from 15 to 17c, and lamb at 18 to 20c lb.

NATIVE SONS COME WITHIN

came indistinguishable from the slimy mud.

Second Quarter

The second session started with play on Argos' 45, but several fine plays from scrimmage and Bell's good punting quickly carried play to the Westerners' 20-yard line. Olander's kick was called back and Morris promptly hit the Argo line for 10 yards and first down.

Olander hoisted the ball to centre where it rolled into touch at centre. Bell kicked to Stewart after two scrimmages failed and Moore, who took the catch, was nailed in his tracks.

Morris plunged for seven yards, but Argos held on the next play and Olander punted to Taylor, who ran five and then passed to Bell, who gained 15. Argos lost ground when Bell kicked into touch on Native Sons' 35. The Westerners ploughed through for eight yards, then Olander punted, but his kick was almost blocked through a bad snap. He managed to get it away, however, but the kick was short.

The Westerners made eight yards on two downs, then Olander kicked a low bounder across the field to Taylor on the latter's 20. Winnipeg broke through to block Bell's kick again, to gain possession on Argos' 20. The Westerners tried mightily for a touch but Argos held on two downs and Olander then tried an onside, which Bell took behind his line, for a rouge and Winnipeg's score.

Half time arrived, with play on Argos' 25, and the score 3 to 1 for the locals.

THIRD QUARTER.

Olander kicked off to Chalkey to start the deciding half. The Argo half ran it back 15 and Bell made eight more on an extension. Sibulash then completed the distance for first down. Bell kicked and a Winnipeg player reached up to touch the low punt and McKelvey recovered to give Argos possession on their opponents' 40. Bell punted to Stewart who was downed in his tracks. Olander hoofed the pigskin on the second down to Taylor who made a wild pass to Bell. The latter luckily recovered on his 45. Native Sons forced Argos back to their 35 by superior kicking, but Bell and Haugh made up for this by gaining 25 on an extension run. Bell then kicked to Moore on the latter's 36 and on the first down Winnipeg were set back 10 for offside. Olander's kick was almost blocked. Taylor took it for a 35 yard gallop to Winnipeg's 20. Argos were penalized 10 on the next play and Bell dropped back for a kick which Native Sons blocked and recovered on their 45. Gain took Olander's short kick on Winnipeg's 45 and the latter were penalized for no yard to put play on their 30. An offside penalty set them back to 10 more. Abbott then kicked to Morris who ran it out to his 20. Olander booted on the first down to Taylor who was not given yards and the Westerners were set back 10. Abbott then kicked to Stewart who was downed on his one yard line. Winnipeg tried one play from scrimmage before Olander booted to Bell on the Native Son's 35. The quarter ended with the score still 3 to 1.

Fourth Quarter.

Abbott kicked into his own scrimmage to start the final quarter but an Argo middle recovered on Winnipeg's 30. The local punter then kicked to Morris for a rouge making the score 4 to 1 for the Eastern champions. The Westerners made yards from scrimmage right after the setback but the Argo line held on the two downs, and Olander punted to Bell. The latter returned to Winnipeg's 20 after two line plays failed to get Argos anywhere. The Westerners fumbled on their 25 and Argos got possession. Abbott promptly hoisted the pigskin to dead line for another single.

Score: Argos 5; Winnipeg 1.

Native Sons tried two plunges then kicked to Taylor who ran it back 20 to the visitors 20. Abbott punted on the first down to Moore who ran it out from behind his goal line. Olander kicked to Abbott after the Native Sons' plungers failed to make headway, and then Bell kicked to Moore for a rouge. Immediately afterward the Westerners tried a forward pass which was intercepted and Argos got the ball on the Winnipeg 30. Bell then kicked to Moore for a single, making the score 7 to 1 for Argos.

Winnipeg tried a forward pass from their 25 and it was completed for a 20 yard gain. Olander then kicked to Argos 20. An interference penalty set the Scullers back to their 15 and Bell then hoisted the ball out of danger to the visitors 45. Olander kicked to Taylor who fumbled on his 35. He kicked again and Bell fumbled on the Argos 15 and Winnipeg were in a fine scoring position. Two bucks carried the Westerners to the Argo one yard line and they were all set foat last smash for a touchdown and possible victory, when the full time whistle blew, crowning the Argos Dominion champions.

Long Terms Meted Out For Serious Offences

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 6—Sentences totalling 37 years and 36 strokes of the strap were meted out to two men and three boys by Mr. Justice Raney in Assizes Court for serious offences against girls under 14 years of age.

William Marcus, 30, was sentenced to 15 years in Portsmouth Penitentiary and Sam Richmond, 20, was sentenced to ten years in the same institution.

Archie Stewart, 16, Russell Reid, 16, and Arthur Palmer, 17, all of Toronto, were sentenced to 2 years less a day determinate and a corresponding period indeterminate in the reformataory and each of them will receive twelve strokes of the strap after two weeks in jail.

Lindsay-Whitby Line To Be Discontinued

LINDSAY, Dec. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The C.N.R. authorities have notified Lindsay and other municipalities that it is the intention of the management to withdraw the passenger service on the Lindsay-Whitby line because it has been operated with an annual loss of $35,000. This line was constructed in the early seventies and was known as the Lindsay, Port Perry and Whitby Railway until taken over by G.T.R. Very little money has been spent on its upkeep. Large grants were being made to this line by the different municipalitis, and this fact is being used as claims for continued service.

MILD WEATHER PREVENTS BLOCKADE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 6—Milder weather has stemmed the increase in the thickness of ice below the Soo, and with prospect of navigation closing in a few days, it appears unlikely "last trippers" will face an ice blockade. There are only half a dozen boats in the Upper Lakes to pass the Soo downbound this year.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BAKED POTATO.

After Uncle Wiggily had that adventure about rolling himself in molasses leaves, to make a sort of fuzzy coat to keep warm, his wife and Nurse Jane were careful to see that the rabbit gentleman always wrapped up well before going out.

"Winter is almost upon us," said the muskrat lady housekeeper, "so you must not again go out, Mr. Longears, without your extra fur coat."

"No, indeed!" said Mrs. Longears. "And rolling in sticky, molasses leaves the way you did, made you look so funny we thought you were a tramp dog coming to the bungalow."

"And you locked me out! Ha! Ha!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "You locked me out! Oh, it was funny!" and he giggled until he felt quite warm.

"Well, where are you going now?" his wife asked as she saw the rabbit gentleman putting on his extra fur coat and his tall, silk hat.

"I thought I would go over and play a game of checkers with Mr. Twistytail my gentleman pig friend," Uncle Wiggily answered.

"Oh, if you are going there, take some potatoes over to Mrs. Twistytail," exclaimed Nurse Jane. "I borrowed some from her the other day, before the grocery cat came with the potatoes I had ordered."

"All right. I'll take the potatoes," promised Mr. Longears. "Just put them in my fur coat pocket, Nurse Jane."

A little later Uncle Wiggily was on his way, hopping over the field and through the woods toward the pen house of the jolly, fat gentleman pig. And as he hopped Uncle Wiggily looked up at the sky and, seeing the gray clouds, he said:

"I think we are going to have a snow storm. Well, let it come. It will make Thanksgiving seem more like Christmas."

In a little while the white flakes began sifting down out of the sky as if Mother Goose was plucking her gander.

"Ha! I must hop fast or I will get a lot of snow on my pink nose and that will turn it white!" said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh as he went through a patch of woods. This was on the way to Mr. Twistytail's pen.

At first the snow came down slowly and softly, but, after a while, the wind began to blow hard and the snow came faster until, in a little while, the ground was covered with a blanket of white. Suddenly the snow came down so thick and fast that the rabbit gentleman couldn't see where he was going.

He stumbled and hopped this way and that, and at last he said:

"I believe I am lost!" Which was quite true. Uncle Wiggily didn't know which way to go to get to Mr. Twistytail's house, and he didn't know which way to go to get back to his own bungalow. But the rabbit gentleman was brave. He knew it would stop snowing some time and then he could find his way out of the woods.

"And I can make a fire to keep myself warm," thought the bugny uncle. "I can also bake one of Mrs. Twistytail's potatoes to eat. It isn't so bad as it might be. I'll bake a potato."

He found a sheltered place under a big rock and there he built a fire. When it was hot he thrust into the embers a potato, which soon began to bake. But, as you know, if you have ever baked potatoes in a bonfire, the outside skin was burned quite black.

"The inside will be clean and white when I break it open," said Mr. Longears. "Who cares about the black outside?" He poked his baked potato from the fire with a stick, and, with another stick, which made him a knife and fork, the bunny broke the potato open, to let it cool before eating. And just then something jumped out from beneath a snow-covered bush. It was a little white animal with a black tip on its tail. As soon as Uncle Wiggily saw this creature he cried:

"Oh, it's a weasel!"

"Yes, indeed, I'm a weasel and I'm going to bite you!" the animal squeaked. Its coat was so white, like the snow, that Uncle Wiggily had not seen it sneaking up on him. In summer a weasel has brown fur, but in winter it turns white, all but the end of the tail, which is black. And this is ermine fur worn by kings and queens. Seeing how white the weasel was, and knowing how proud it was, Uncle Wiggily quickly took up a piece of black potato skin and cried:

"Run away or I'll make you all smudgy black!"

And the weasel was so afraid of having his clean, white fur made black that away he ran. Then Uncle Wiggily ate his baked potato, and soon it stopped snowing so he could see his way and all was well. He played checkers with Mr. Twistytail and then hopped home.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

KENNEDY FAVORS FARM SCHOOLS

Three-month Vocational Courses to be Available in Every County.

PROMISES ACTION SOON.

BRAMPTON, Dec. 6.—Early establishment throughout Ontario of vocational schools in agriculture, administered and operated along lines similar to those of vocational schools in the cities of the Province, was forecast here last night by Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, speaking at a banquet tendered in his honor by the Conservative party of Peel County.

"I expect," said Mr. Kennedy, "to have these schools in operation in every county before long. We can do it, and we are going to do it."

Colonel Kennedy said the Women's Institutes could, and would, play an important role in the scheme in contemplation. With the aid and instruction they could supply to the girl students in the proposed schools, any girl would readily be able, with the three months' tuition offered to her, to cook, sew and minister home nursing.

"As for the boys," said Colonel Kennedy, "we are going to show them what farming means."

Every effort would be made, he amplified, to teach them, for instance, to grow potatoes and wheat at less cost, and to improve farming conditions generally. Decreasing production costs, said Colonel Kennedy, was one of the major problems now before his department, and one for which he hoped to have a solution before long. In "beating down" these costs, the co-operation of all County Councils was earnestly solicited.

"There is no reason," said Colonel Kennedy, "why we can't make more money for the farming man."

R. B. P. ELECTS 1931 OFFICERS

MEETING WELL ATTENDED.

Royal Black Preceptory held their regular meeting with a very large attendance, followed by the election and installation of officers. R.W. E. F. Reid, P.G.M., conducted the election and installation. The following Sir Knights are the officers for the ensuing year:—

W. Preceptory, F. Sanderson; Dep. Preceptory, F. Millard; Chaplain, A. Gillespie; Registrar, T. Sarginson; Treasurer, R. Ritchie; 1st Censor, R. Pilling; 2nd Censor, A. Holden; 1st Lecturer, A. McDonald; 2nd Lecturer, R. Manley; 1st Std. Bearer, G. Sexsmith; 2nd Std. Bearer, T. Cunningham; Pursivant, T. Brien; Tyler, E. F. Reid; Dep. Reg. F. Cornwall; Committeemen: 1st, J. Welsh; 2nd, C. McGee; 3rd, J Childerhose; 4th, C. Luffman; 5th, F. Gardiner; 6th, J. Wilson; 7th, C. Porter.

Short addresses were given by Sir Kt. F. Sanderson and R.W. E. F. Reid, P.G.M. Light refreshments were served by the committee at the close of the meeting.

HALLS BRIDGE.

Mrs. Harry Shearer has returned from Toronto, where she has been staying the last two weeks visiting relatives.

Mrs. W. H. Pearson has returned from Hamilton, after a visit to her sister.

Dr. Ed. E. Wittis and the Rev. E. C. Moore, were recent visitors to the city.

Mr. Fred Calvert of the Sixteenth Line, whilst working for the Peterborough lumber company, sustained a nasty accident on Saturday last, while using a canthook.

He struck himself on the back of the head and neck, almost severing the left ear and seriously bruising the muscles of the neck. He was attended to by Dr. E. Wittis, of Hall's Bridge and is still incapacitated from work.

The Rev. E. C. Moore was in the village Wednesday evening on his way to Dear Bay to conduct a service.

Jury Is Completed For Shepard Trial

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (C.P.). — There has been some talk of hard times and Magistrate Henry Sandusky was in a sympathetic mood when Mrs. Vera Dungill hailed her husband Stanley into court, charging non-support.

"But I lost my job," Dungill pleaded.

"Haven't you any money?" asked the Court.

"A little," Mrs. Dungill replied.

"How much?"

"$33,000."

"Congratulations," said the Court. "Case dismissed."

NEW BUSINESS OPENING HERE

Operating Under the Name of Mendelson Herbal Remedy Company.

IN KRESGE BUILDING.

Mendelson's Herbal Remedy Company, operated by the Mendelson brothers was opened for business here to-day. At this time a 50c package of system cleanser will be given away free to every adult visitor, and Mr. Mendelson will welcome all friends and acquaintances at Suites 21 and 22, Kresge Building. He has had 2 years' training in medicine at the University of Toronto and has had previous experience in the herbal remedy business. The brothers were formerly in the employ of the Thuna Balsam people, but owing to a new unsatisfactory contract, sent in their resignation, which was accepted.

They are selling herbs, herbal remedies and other proprietary medicines in powder, liquid and tablet forms. Every remedy is purely herbal, non-poisonous, non-habit-forming, and made from roots, barks, berries, etc. The different ailments treated will be bronchitis, asthma, constipation, kidney, liver, bladder troubles, nerves, overweight, rheumatism, tonsils and adenoids, skin diseases, blood disorders, and many others. Some of the preparation are compounded in their own laborwtory; others are made up from their own prescriptions. It is a great law of the universe that for people living on the earth can find things in it for their maladies. Thus the Mendelson brothers ought to be given every consideration in the work that they have undertaken in giving natural treatment to several ailments.

OBITUARY

DONALD HENRY LEE.

The very sad death of Donald Henry Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee, 627 George Street, occurred this morning. Mr. Lee was twenty-two years of age, and died after an illness of six weeks. He was born in Peterborough and has lived here all his life. He leaves to mourn his demise his mother and father, three brothers, Kenneth, Allan and Gosdon, and a sister Dorothy.

The funeral will take place from his late home on George Street on Monday, at 2 p.m. Rev. J. E. J. Millyard will officiate, while members of the late Mr. Lee's Sunday School Class will act as bearers. Interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

Lightnin' Bill Jones

REMEMBER the line in the lovable play, 'Lightnin',' when Bill Jones received his pension-cheque from the Government? "See all them names on there—Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of War, and so on? This cheque ain't any good unless I sign it!" said Bill with an air of importance.

And he was right. Without his little endorsement, the cheque was a mere scrap of paper.

The little things of life, as you have often heard, are tremendously important. The small advertisements in this paper have messages for you that are just as important as the messages in the larger advertisements. Read the small advertisements as well as the larger ones.

Not only the so-called "want" ads, but the little "display" ads. Read them. Let them guide you to real merchandise values, real savings. Don't overlook them because they are small. Without the tiny detonator, or fuse, the big guns that shoot a distance of miles become merely tons of useless steel.

Be sure to read the small ads as well as the larger ones. They have something important to tell you of which their size is no indication.

ARTICLES OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

HARD WORK, PLANNING AND SAVING ARE THREE SECRETS OF SUCCESS SAYS NORTHUMBERLAND FARMER

S. B. Moir, Campbellford, From Modest Start 22 Years Ago. Had Model Farm.

ALL MODERN EQUIPMENT.

Believes Compulsory Accreditation of Herds Would Be Good Scheme.

"There's a successful practical farmer in Northumberland County—S. B. Moir, Campbellford—whose story I would like to see in Farm and Dairy," a well-known agriculturist said to the editors one day last spring. "With little or no money at the start he has turned a farm that was next to being a wilderness into one of the best farms of the county. Why not run out there some time and get the story?"

That was some months ago but only recently did Farm and Dairy have an opportunity of visiting the farm. But to get the story—the inside story—of that farmer's success was another matter. Mr. Moir was quite willing to give information on his methods of cropping, feeding, etc., but "backed up" when it came to answering questions on his methods and achievements in financing. Nevertheless, when reminded that some account of his successes and troubles might help others, especially beginners in farming, to succeed, he hesitatingly related a part, at least, of the story.

The Secret of Success.

"When I took over the farm some 22 years ago," said Mr. Moir, "it contained about 100 acres. There wasn't a field that did not contain six or eight or more big piles of stone and there was scarcely a fence on the place. The soil was in poor condition. The house and barn were small and 'on the ground.' As time went on I cleaned away the stone piles, built fences, improved the land, raised the buildings and either added to them or built new ones. I installed labor-saving equipment in both the house and the barn, and otherwise put the place into useful and liveable condition. I started with only small capital, but managed to make money every year, and besides having some money in the bank"—just how much Mr. Moir did not impart—"I bought an adjoining farm of about 150 acres last spring."

When asked what the secret of success in farming, Mr. Moir said: "Hard work, careful planning and saving." The greatest of these was the last, he contended. "Most farmers have too much expense," he said. "When they want something done—something repaired or something easily made or built—they pay some one to do it instead of doing it themselves. Concrete work, for instance, if it is not too big a job, and sometimes even then; carpentering, even horse-shoeing, and lots of other things could be done by the men on the farm as well as by others. In the 22 years that I have been on this place I have never taken a horse to a blacksmith shop. Another way in which a farmer may save is by paying cash for things instead of buying on credit. I myself have never bought a thing that I could not pay for in cash."

Compressed Air Water System

Twenty years ago the dimensions of the house on this farm was 18 by 24 feet. It is now 34 by 34 feet, and is as nice a general farm residence as one could wish to see. Outstanding among its features is a unique water system that provides running hot and cold water for the kitchen, bathroom, etc. The system was installed about six years ago. The water comes from a 12-foot well that is 380 feet from the house and at the surface some 15 feet lower than the house. The well is curbed up with 2½ foot tile, which, with an impervious covering and a good distance away from the farm yard, eliminates all chance of contamination.

Pressure is supplied by compressed air. A Milwaukee air power tank, attached to a 3 h.p. International gas engine, located in an outbuilding near the house, furnishes the power. Pressure in the water pipe is maintained automatically at 40 lbs. The system furnishes water also for the stables, where water bowls are installed for the cows. The presure is so strong that a hose can be used, and is used twice a year, for washing off the stable walls and ceiling, and can be used for washing a car or anything else in the barnyard. The engine is used also, with proper belting to the outside of the building, for running a saw which Mr. Moir uses for repair work, for ripping out his own whiffle-trees and for other jobs. Air from the tank is carried outside or to a nearby garage for pumping up car tires.

"Putting in a water system is one of the best things that we ever did for the farm," said Mr. Moir. "In the house it is a great comfort and convenience, and in the stable it saves labor and helps to keep up the milk flow in winter, for the cows do not have to be turned out in cold or stormy weather to get chilled or to stint themselves on the amount of water they drink. With a well that is deep enough and properly protected, with pipes carried at least four feet under ground and with compressed air for pressure, a system of this kind cannot freeze as do some other types. Now that we have such a convenience, we feel that we could not do without it." In the house there is also running soft water furnished by a cistern and pump.

In the same building as the air tank and the engine there is a 1000-lb. De Laval separator which has been on the go for five years. This is run by a 2 h.p. De Laval gas engine. When asked why he needed so large a separator for 14 cows, the number which he was milking at the time of the visit Mr. Moir replied: "When buying a separator, you might as well buy a big one as a small one—for you do not know when the larger size might be needed."

Originally the barn was only 50 by 30 feet. It is now 75 by 47 feet, with an L 40 by 20 feet. Attached is a poultry scratching shed 30 by 24 feet. The roosting and laying house is in a corner of the L. Other outbuildings include a garage; a well-house, distinct from the well that supplies the running water system; and, at one corner of the barn, a silo, which is not now in use and about which something more will be said later.

The barn has a Council Standard roof and similar metal sheeting on the sides and ends. The walls of the stable are of stone, smoothly plastered on the inside. The floors throughout are of concrete, as are also the mangers, which Mr. Moir made himself and which experts would call "a very fine job." The mangers are nicely rounded inside and the frontage along the feed passage slopes inward toward the bottom. Superior stanchions and water bowls add to the comfort of the cows. A Superior manure carrier, with 250 feet of track, is used for cleaning out the cattle and horse stables and nearby hog pens. The stables are well lighted by windows totalling 88 square feet of glass. Stock comprises 32 pure-bred Holsteins, 6 horses and about 20 hogs.

Herd Fully Accredited

The Holstein herd is fully accredited. "It would be a good thing if accreditation were made compulsory," remarked Mr. Moir. "It would improve the general quality of our milk and would make the buying and selling of dairy cattle less of a risk." The 14 cows of this herd that freshened since the first of the year produced 10 heifers and 4 bull calves. This large proportion of heifer calves the owner attributed to the prepotent inheritancy of the very fine herd sire which he keeps on the place and which is owned jointly by him and a neighbor. Heifer calves in high percentage are similarly produced in the neighbor's herd. Mr. Moir separates his milk and sends the cream to a creamery in Campbellford. The cans are picked up by a truck on its regular route through the district. "Custom trucking is a great benefit to the farmers," he stated. "It saves the farmers' time and labor. Milk and cream are delivered in quick time and in the best of condition." A truck calls at the farm also for his hogs, when ready for market. "One reason that I like the creamery as an outlet for my milk," he continued, "is that separating and selling only the cream leaves the skim-milk on the farm for the hogs, calves and poultry." He handles about 40 bacon hogs a year, raising two litters in spring and two in fall.

The poultry are looked after by Mrs. Moir, to whom a large part of the credit is due for success also in many other activities of the farm. About 150 layers, Barred Rocks, are kept, and eggs are produced the year around. "No farmer should have to buy eggs for household use," said Mr. Moir. "Spending money for eggs is not good farming. Every farm should produce all the eggs required by the family, and also have some to sell." Mrs. Moir does not hatch her own stock. The eggs are sent for hatching to one or more incubators of neighbors, by arrangement, and the young chicks brought home for raising. Chickens that were hatched the middle of April last were laying at the time of Farm and Dairy's visit in October. No layers over two years old are kept, and poor birds of any age constantly culled.

Implements Well Cared For

The implement shed, with metal roof and siding, is an implement shed in fact as well as in name. Mr. Moir believes in having good implements and making them last as long as possible. When not in use they are not left in the open to rust or decay. One driveway of the shed is left clear all the time for housing the equipment in current use—at seeding time, the drill is backed on the driveway each night; when plowing or cultivating, the drill, now in another part of the shed, gives place on the driveway to the gang-plows or the cultivator; at harvest, the binder has the right-of-way. In addition, each implement is kept clean and in good workable condition.

That it pays to protect and otherwise look after farm equipment is shown in the fact that Mr. Moir's binder—a Frost and Wood—has cut 22 harvests and still carries on its reel original blades. Other implements on hand include a manure spreader, which the owner considers a big labor-saver; an IHC. hay-loader, which lifted 110 loads of hay the past summer; and a four-horse cultivator, which is 11 feet from wheel to wheel.

"For covering the ground quickly," stated Mr. Moir, "you must have large machines and plenty of horse power. One man can handle a four-horse team as easily as a two horse team, and does a whole lot more work."

When asked what he thought of tractors for eastern farms, Mr. Moir stated that he preferred horses, but that many tractors were in use and doing good work. Even on the rolling land of his own neighborhood the tractor with some farmers has been found quite satisfactory. "The trouble is," he remarked, "that in some sections the tractor has become a 'craze.' Because one farmer brings in a tractor, and has a farm on which it is adapted and does good work, one or more of his neighbors think that they also must have a tractor, without first determining whether or not their farm can be economically worked with one. There's a place for the tractor—but not every place. I myself prefer the good old horse, because all the 'fuel' he needs is grown right on the farm; he doesn't need gas or oil or repairs, and is dependable all the time." He felt likewise, but not quite so strongly, about the automobile. A car was a great convenience and a need on most farms, but it was not necessary to have a high-priced car, just because some other man has turned in his smaller but serviceable car for a bigger, fancier one—a failing particularly with some young men, or beginners in farming—like, in many cases, "trying to keep up with the Joneses."

Cropping and Feeding

With the 150-acre farm acquired last spring, Mr. Moir now has 250 acres, of which he is working about 170 acres—50 acres in hay, the past season, 60 acres in oats, 18 in fall wheat, 2 or 3 in turnips, and so forth. He believes in crop rotation, because as he said, "you have to plow land twice in succession to keep it clean." The plowed land in fall is cultivated down immediately. He seeds down with mixed alfalfa, red clover and timothy, the latter to help the yield should one of the others fail to give a satisfactory catch. In the matter of alfalfa, however, he has had an interesting experience. At first he found it difficult to get a good catch of this very important dairy farm crop. Then for eight years he grew sweet clover instead. Following this with the alfalfa, red clover and timothy mixture, he has had no trouble with alfalfa. The bacteria which produce nodules on sweet clover will produce nodules on alfalfa. The sweet clover put the land in proper condition for the better crop.

Although there is a silo on this farm no corn has been grown for the past four years. "I now prefer turnips," said Mr. Moir. "They are easily handled and, in a proper ration, they give just as good results. If fed in the right way there is no danger of having bad odors from the milk. Some farmers feed too many turnips, and feed them at the wrong time. I know of farmers who dump a wagon-load where the cows can get at them, when still outside in fall, and where they can eat all they want. I pulp my turnips and feed just a good scoopful immediately after milking. In that way I have had no trouble with turnip flavor in the milk."

The cows when stabled for the winter are fed hay twice a day and grain twice a day. At noon the roughage is good clean straw—all the cows will eat, any left in the mangers being removed and used for bedding. The grain ration consists of a mixture of wheat and oats, with some bran and oilcake. The wheat and oats are ground fine in the proportion of two pails of wheat to a bag of oats. Wheat is fed only when the market price is less than a dollar a bushel; when worth more, the wheat is sold and other grains purchased to feed in its place. Salt is kept before the cows at all times, and the metal bowls, already mentioned, furnish a constant supply of good, clean water.

Blueberry Yield High in Northland

NORTH BAY, Ont., Dec. 6—This year about 140,000 bushels of blueberries were shipped from Northern Ontario to Toronto and other centres, where they found a ready market. During the height of the season as many as 1,100 baskets were shipped daily from North Bay by express.

BIGGER RETURNS AS HONEY PRICE SLIDES LOWER

Crop Brings Best Price in British Columbia—3 Year Average 2.5 Cents.

Ontario Biggest Producer.

Production Volume So Substantial Net Returns Show Nearly $500,000 Boost in 1929 Crop.

While the average wholsale price for honey in Canada has steadily decreased during the last three years the increase in production volume has been so substantial that the net returns to producers show an increase of nearly half a million dollars on a honey crop totalling 30,978,735 lbs. in 1929.

It is interesting to note that honey brings the best price in British Columbia where the average for the past three years has been 21.5 cents per lb. Production in British Columbia has remained almost consistent for the years 1927, 1928 and 1929. It was 986,719 lbs. in 1927, 985,709 lbs. in 1928 and 989,393 lbs. last year. The price in 1929 dropped to a 20 cents average and the net returns to producers in British Columbia on a slightly lower volume dropped from $217,078 to $197,878.

Ontario Largest Producer

Ontario is the largest honey producing province in Canada. Production in 1927 was 9,500,000 lbs.; this increased 4,300,000 lbs. in 1928 and another 4,200,000 lbs. last year. The average price in 1927 and 1928 was 9 cents, while last year it rose to 10 cents with a corresponding increase in net returns to producers.

Taking Canada as a whole, there has been a steady decline in the average wholesale price of honey of 1 cent per lb. in the last three years, the figure for the last year being 11 cents. Production increased in 1928 about 2,500,000 lbs. and in 1929 5,500,000 lbs. With a 13 cent price in 1927 the honey crop of 23,196,493 lbs. was worth $2,936,558 to producers. In 1928 the price dropped to 12 cents and the production increased as indicated, with an increase in the total value of producers of nearly $100,000 over the preceding year. In 1929 the average wholesale price dropped to 11 cents, and the estimated production at 30,978,735 lbs, gave a value of $3,402,837.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE
Prices

TORONTO, Dec. 6.—The week-end quotations to country egg shippers were, 53c to 55c for extras, 48c to 50c for firsts, and 28c to 29c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were quoted 60c to 62c for extras in cartons, 58c to 60c for extras loose, 53c to 55c for firsts loose, and 33c to 35c for seconds loose. Brokers were offering fresh supplies at 55c for extras, and 53c for firsts, though there were reports of transactions at 53c for extras, and 48c for firsts, graded, in free cases. Storage eggs were quoted at 32c for extras and 31c for firsts, candled out of storage.

Dominion Situation

Looking over the Canadian situation we find that signs of weakness are developing on a number of the principal egg markets of Canada and the general trend of values during the past week has been to somewhat lower levels. This condition is far from general on all markets, but is noted chiefly at those centres which are affected by interprovincial trading on both fresh and storage stocks.

Butter

The butter market was dull at the first of the week, but during the last few days trading declined to new low levels, and prices accordingly followed. Quotations receded to ½c to ¾c per pound, dealers offering No. 1 at 29c to 29½c, and No. 2 at 28c to 28½c. Retailers were offered stocks at ½c less, No. 1 being 33c to 33½c, and No. 2, 33c to 32½c.

Cheese

Cheese prices dropped considerably also, new large being down at 13c to 13½c; twins, 13½c to 13¾c, and triplets, 13¾c to 14c. Trading was slow, and even at the new low prices dealers found difficulty in disposing of any large amounts. Retailers were quoted new prices at 16½c for new large, 16¾c for twins, and 17c for triplets.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6. — Wholesale cheese was one-quarter of a cent lower and one grade of wholesale eggs declined 1 cent on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

On the cheese market, prices dropped one-quarter of a cent, Ontario being quoted at 12 cents, and Quebec at 11½ cents a pound. Receipts were 475 boxes.

Fresh pullet extras in carlots lost 1 cent, selling at 47 cents a dozen. Fresh extras were 60 cents, and fresh firsts 54 cents. Receipts totalled 254 cases.

Regraded grass—Eastern Townships No. 1, pasteurized, creamery butter, was quoted at 28¾ to 29 cents a pound. Receipts were 169 boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountains were 90 to 95 cents on the potato market per 80-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 6. — A last-hour slump carried Winnipeg wheat values to low levels again yesterday, and most of Thursday's advance was wiped out, net losses ranging from ⅜ to ⅝ cents a bushel.

Offerings were liberal in the final hour, and with buying on a limited scale, prices were scaled down from the day's high marks.

There was evidence of inter-market spreading on a limited scale in addition to short-covering and moderate profit-taking. Foreign interests did not show up to any extent, despite advices from abroad that a better demand existed for Manitobas.

Trading in cash wheat and coarse grains was very slow, and values were on the decline.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Enlarged receipts here and at other market centres gave a sudden tumble to corn values yesterday, but wheat received adequate support, ascribed to Government-sponsored sources. Besides, reports of poor wheat yields came from Argentina.

Corn closed heavy, 1⅛c to 2⅛c a bushel lower than Thursday. Wheat closed irregular, ⅞c off to ⅛c up, with oats at ⅝c decline to ¾c advance and provisions from 15c lower to a rise of 12c.

BRENNAN HEADS CHEESEMAKERS

Farm Inspectors Favored as Means of Combatting Rancidity.

FALSE BOTTOMS.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 5.— Officers were elected at the close of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' convention as follows:

President—W. E. Brennan.
Director—W. V. Drewry.
Vice-President—J. N. West.
Directors— E. I. Babcock, W. E. Cooper, Jno. Finnegan.
Sec.-Treas.—J. H. Dudgeon.
Creditor—R. J. Dulmage.
Auditor—G. W. Henderson

Resolutions were adopted as follows at the convention.

"That we respectfully recommend and request the Provincial Dairy authorities to enact by regulation that all the apprentice cheesemakers before they can become eligible for permits must possess the following qualifications:

1. Have served three consecutive seasons of not less than five months each in a cheese factory.

2. Have passed the prescribed examinations in either of the Ontario Dairy Schools.

3. Hold recommendatios of fitness from their employers and local Instructors.

"Whereas the practice of repairing milk cans by placing false bottoms in them is becoming more prevalent each year and whereas this method is at best short lived and likely to be productive of serious losses in manufacturing on account of the difficulty of detecting holes and leakages in cans so repaired.

"Be it resolved therefore that the method of repairing milk cans by means of false bottoms be absolutely prohibited."

Farm Inspectors.

"Whereas it is common knowledge that at least sixty percent of our Canadian Cheddar Cheese that are being undergraded because of undesirable flavours are being so placed on account of those obscure taints known as slightly rancid, rancid and off.

"And whereas up to the present time our dairy experts have failed to solve the problem of what actually causes rancidity.

"And whereas the members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers Association in annual convention here assembled are strongly and unanimously of the opinion that at least 95 per cent of the above mentioned objectionable flavours have their course or origin on the farms of many of our cheese factory patrons and are being caused by various unsanitary conditions thereon such as filthy stables, unclean conditions on and around milk stands such as whey barrels, etc., unsanitary milk cans, strainer pails and other tinware used in the production of milk intended for manufacture of all dairy products.

"And whereas we are most emphatically of the opinion that these said rancid and off flavours in our cheese would be practically eliminated were a number of properly qualified Farm Inspectors appointed to act in conjunction with out Dairy Instructors and visit the farms of our dairymen at regular intervals, demonstrate to the famers the proper method of producing sanitary milk and cream, and to enforce the Act relating to sanitary conditions at the dairy farms of this Province that will tend to greatly improve the quality of the milk produced thereon.

"Be it resolved therefore that we respectfully recommend the appointment of such officials with ample authority to establish the aforesaid standardized conditions and enforce the existing laws in respect to sanitary conditions on the farms or should the Government consider the present time an experience one to appoint the aforesaid Farm Inspectors.

Talkies have made such a hit in London that many box-office records have been broken recently.

PEDIGREED FOWL GOOD PRODUCERS ON LOCAL FARM

White Wyandottes, Fisher Strain, Prove Fine Layers and Brooders.

MODERN HEN HOUSE.

Careful Attention to Proper Feeds Shows in Egg Production.

A good idea of the higher class poultry farms may be gained from a visit to the Park Hill Poultry Farm, owned by George T. Reader and Sons, at the corner of Jackson Park Avenue and Smith street. The building has every modern convenience, and the birds are of pedigreed stock.

The hen house, 40 by 20 feet, was built this summer by Mr. Reader himself, with the exception of the concrete foundation. The cost of the cement and lumber was in the vicinity of $400. The walls are composed of two thicknesses of lumber between which is thick felt paper; the interior is finished with rock paper; thus the building is quite warm in winter. The feeders, dry mash troughs, nests and roosts are of the most up-to-date style. The several flocks are separated by wire netting, and there are fenced in runs for the poultry summer.

All of the birds are White Wyandottes, Fisher's Strain. In one section of the house there is a rooster and 10 seven-months-old pullets. The male bird was hatched on March 7, 1929, of a Government approved cockerel and record laying hen. His mother laid 241 eggs in a year, and he has seven sisters laying over 200. Mr. Reader bought him for $25. The pullets are of the owner's own breeding, and are indeed beautiful birds. In another section are three roosters and 20 hens. In the third part there are 15 pullets not pure bred but nevertheless of good stock. In the remaining section are a rooster and 10 pullets of Mr. Reader's own breeding. He is justifiably proud to say that this cockerel is practically as good as the $25 bird or another valuable pedigreed rooster he owns. From his hens and pullets the owner obtains an average of 25 eggs per day at present, but this number ought to increase as the pullets mature. Mr. Reader sells his eggs for 40 and 50 cents a dozen.

The Rations

The poultry are fed hot mash in the morning, scraps at noon, Pullo-Pep scratch feed at 4 and 8 p.m. Alfalfa cut up fine, soaked in water and warmed is also fed to the birds every day. In addition to this there are dry mash and grit troughs for whenever a hen is hungry.

Mr. Reader's program for next spring and summer is a very ambitious one. He of course hopes to sell hatching eggs and young chicks. To the present hen house he intends to add a 60 foot annex at a cost of approximately $700. He has expressed his intention of securing some good breeds of Plymouth Rocks to satisfy the demands of some customers, and his hope of obtaining a down town market for about one crate of eggs a day. In a nearby depression of the land, at the rear of which the earth wall rises perpendicularly, Mr. Reader intends to build a concrete foundation 8 feet high and a frame structure 20 by 30 feet on top of this. The lower part will be used for brooding and incubating purposes, while the upper unit will contain feed, straw, etc.

With such an excellent start with modern housing and high class birds, Mr. Reader may be assured of every success, and a thorough appreciation of the business can only be gained by a visit to his poultry farm.

LAYING CONTEST IN NEW QUARTERS

Ontario Enters 62 Pens in Twelfth Canadian Test at Ottawa.

LOCATION IMPROVED.

The Twelfth Canadian Egg Laying Contest conducted by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa has got away to a good start on its 51-week test of the laying performances and propensities of 800 representative of the best egg laying poultry in Canada, England and the United States.

Offical egg laying contests are rapidly growing in importance. This is because it is the one medium recognized as competent to establish the eligibility of a hen for registration and the advantages to breeders that registration brings.

Entered in the contest are 62 pens from Ontario, 7 from British Columbia, 3 from Saskatchewan, 3 from Quebec, 2 from New Brunswick, 2 from England and 1 from United States.

The breeds represented in the contest include 42 White Leghorns, 30 Barred Plymouth Rocks, 3 Rhode Island Reds, 2 White Wyandottes, 1 Australorp, 1 Light Sussex.

The new contest house is being used for the Twelfth Canadian Egg Laying Contest. It has an improved location with a southern exposure and the protection of a wind-break on the north making it much more favorable for the purposes of the contest than houses previously occupied. The total length of the new house is 354 feet, made up of a central house and feed room 30 feet by 30 feet with wings on either side 162 feet long by 16 feet wide. Each pen is 18 feet by 16 feet which accommodates four grouped pens of the heavy breeds (48 birds) and five grouped pens of the light breeds (60 birds).

PROPER VENTILATION REQUIRED TO KEEP POTATOES DOWN CELLAR

Doors and Hatches Should Be Left Open in Early Autumn.

BE SURE BINS ARE DARK.

A great many potatoes and roots will be stored this autumn in the Maritime Provinces. The question of ventilation for bins and storage cellars is a most important one. The potato tuber is a living unit and requires pure air for respiration. This was demonstrated in a glass preserve jar and sealing it for a few weeks. When the potatoes had used up the air in the jar they died and the vile odor that escaped when the jar was opened would convince anyone that potatoes must have air to live.

Pure Dry Air Needed

The essential requirements for good ventilation in the cellar are to provide sufficient intakes for pure dry air, to maintain temperature ranging from 38 to 40 degrees F. if possible, and to provide outlets large enough to carry off surplus heat and impure air. Potatoes also require storage in the dark. Provision should be made for cooling potatoes and roots rapidly when first stored by means of other than the regular ventilators. For this purpose the doors and hatches may be left open at night during the early autumn. Slatted ventilator shafts should extend along the floor of the cellar and up through the roots to an outlet. For potatoes double slatted partitions between ten foot bins provide satisfactory ventilation if outlets are large enough. The ventilators should be fitted with hinged doors so that the openings can be reduced or closed when the weather becomes severe.

Low Water Supply Worrying Farmers

The shortage of the water supply is the main topic of conversation among farmers all over the Province, according to reports of Agricultural Representatives. A large percentage of wells and streams are dry in practically every county and the danger of a water famine is causing a good deal of alarm among stockmen. It is possible that the rains of the past week-end will improve the situation slightly in some counties.

Fall work is reported in good shape Plowing in practically all counties is stated to be from 75 to 90% completed. In Eastern Ontario the bulk of the cheese factories are reported as closed for the season.

CREAM EXPORTS LOWER TO U. S.

Decrease Totals to $2,000,000 For Twelve Months Ending September, 1930.

FRESH MILK DROPS OFF.

The current news letter of the Daify and Cold Storage Branch of the Department of Agriculture contains some interesting information with respect to the decline in the export of milk, cream and milk products to the United States.

For the twelve months ending September 1930 the export of cream amounted to 1,465,115 gallons as compared with 2,495,207 gallons for the corresponding period last year. This represents a decrease of over $2,000,000 in revenue. The figure for the period concerned for 1930 being $2,885,103 and for the same period last year $5,067,876.

During the same period exports of fresh milk amounted to 1,936,523 gallons, or practically 50 per cent less than in the corresponding period in 1929. The selling value of fresh milk shows about the same proportion of decline. The total for this period under review for 1929 being $429,721 as compared with $848,153 for the same period last year.

Butter Exports Fall Off

With respect to milk products it is interesting to note that the exports of butter for the twelve months ending September 1930 were 1,163,300 lbs. as compared with 1,666,800 lbs. for the corresponding period in 1929. The exports of cheese were only 80,923,900 lbs. as compared with 102,200,700 lbs. for the same period in 1929. Exports of condensed milk were 14,500,000 odd lbs, as compared with 17,800,000 odd lbs., and the exports of milk powder were 4,495,800 lbs as compared with 5,343,700 lbs. last year.

The exports of evaporated milk

The exports of evaporated milk 714, as compared with 6,905,200 lbs., valued at $778,173, for the corresponding period in 1929.

BARLEY IS LIKELY TO REPLACE CORN

Lower Price Works Out to Advantage in Fattening of Capons.

HEAVY STOCK CAUSES DROP.

In an experiment in the flattening of capons conducted in 1928 by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa, greater gains at lower cost were made with barley than with corn meal, with barley priced at $2.10 per cwt. and corn at $2.55.

The present difference in price between barley and corn is very much wider than in 1928, No. 3 C.W. barley being currently quoted, F.O.B. cars, Montreal and Toronto, at approximately 75 cents per cwt. and No. 1, Argentine Yellow corn at approximately $1.34 per cwt.

This unusually low price on barley is partly accounted for by the present heavy stocks in elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur which are equal to the entire receipts of barley from the crop year of 1929, and on November 1st the quantity stored was about a third greater than for the corresponding date a year ago.

When it is remembered that barley as a fattening feed compares quite favourably with corn, which Canada has been importing for feed purposes from the U.S. and the Argentine at the rate of about thirteen millions of bushels annually, the more extensive use of home-grown barley in fattening rations, particularly at its present depressed price, would seem to be advantageous for feeders of both live stock and poultry.

A Basket Full of Eggs is a Bag Full of Nickels

An egg is worth five cents—an average winter price. A hen that lays eggs lays "nickels"—just like the machine in the mint at Ottawa. If your hens are not egg-machines, laying the equivalent of a five cent piece every day or two, you are not getting your money's worth out of them. Chop their heads off and eat them, or else put them on a daily ration of Pratts Poultry Regulator—the greatest guaranteed egg-producer ever discovered.

"Sure" WE'VE BEEN BUYING— we can't afford not to—"

"LOUISE and I feel quite satisfied with ourselves. We've just said goodbye to that ponderous old dining room set and bought a handsome new Hepplewhite suite. We've turned in our old radio and purchased a new one. Louise got herself a complete new outfit. I've just picked out a suit and a lot of furnishings I've been needing . . . even little Jimmy has new clothes to replace those he's growing out of . . .

"You see it all started the other evening. Out of a clear sky Louise laughed and said 'That old saying about a penny saved is a penny earned, ought to be changed to-day to a penny spent is a penny saved.' Of couse I bit and asked why. 'Come here and take a look,' she said. 'Did you ever see such low prices in your life? Everything you eat, wear or use seems to have hit rock-bottom.' Every ad played up new low prices!

"Well, that just got us thinking. A fellow put his money away to save against the future purchase of necessities and luxuries. If he has it in the bank he gets three or four per cent on his money; from investments he may get a little higher return. All well and good in ordinary times. But . . . Louise and I found by a check-up that commodity prices to-day are from twenty to thirty per cent lower than they were a year ago! We found that by buying NOW we're saving money . . . we're getting an average GREATER return of twenty per cent out of our dollar. It's like putting out money at interest!

"Well, we just got busy right away. For the next few days we kept our eyes peeled for ads in The Examiner featuring these new low prices. And then we all went on a shopping tour. Buy? I'll tell the world we did . . . we found that we couldn't afford to do otherwise in these times!"

NORHAM CHURCH CELEBRATE 60TH ANNIVERSARY SERVICE

Severn People Who Were Present at Laying of Corner Stone Attend Sunday Service.

REV. M. E. WILSON SPEAKS.

NORHAM, Dec. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Sunday, November 30 and the week following the people of Norham United Church celebrated the sixtieth anniversary. At the morning service seven people were present who had been present at the laying of the corner stone or the dedication of the church, Mr. and Mrs. George Evans, Mrs. Dingman and Mrs. Clausen, Norham, J.F. Cryderman, Toronto, Mrs. C. G. Smith, Consecon; and Mr. Baily, of Dartford.

A minute of silent prayer in memory of those who had passed on was observed and Mrs. W. Campbell and Mrs. D. Knight sang softly, "We Speak of the Land of the Blest." During the service the choir rendered two splendid anthems, "Break Forth Into Joy," and "Take the Name of Jesus With You."

The Rev. Marcus E. Wilson, of Havelock, a pastor of forty years ago preached from the text, "Knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel."

"The gospel," said Mr. Wilson, "means the story of God, and the Church is the instrument for spreading the gospel. The church of God has always had enemies, it had always been a fight between the material and spiritual. In the early days the makers of idols opposed Christianity because it took away their means of gain. To-day, the church has to fight against those who put the material things of life ahead of the spiritual."

He urged all to stand firm in the defence of the gospel.

Sunday School Rally

The afternoon session was a Sunday School Rally, Fred Huycke, assistant superintendent welcoming the guests and the first speaker, J. F. Cryderman, of Toronto. Mr. Cryderman was superintendent of the Norham Sunday School about thirty-eight years ago and held the position for thirteen years. He spoke of the Sunday Schools of long ago and the manifestation of Christian life as compared with the religious life among young people to-day.

Mrs. Scott, of Campbellford who is teacher training secretary for Seymour Township Association of the O.R.E.C. brought greetings from Campbellford and said each Sunday School worker should have three things—a purpose, a plan and a personality.

R. Walker, superintendent of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Warkworth, brought greetings from the Sunday School there while the pastor the Rev. Mr. Duncan gave an interesting message to the boys and girls.

Orval Kelly, superintendent of St. Paul's United Church brought greetings, speaking of the pioneer days existing when the church was built and of the wonderful privileges of the present day.

Greetings were brought from the Morganston United Sunday School by Clarence Massey.

Evening Service

The Rev. D. R. Clare, pastor of the church had of the evening service, with the Rev. M. E. Wilson leading in prayer and the Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, of Grafton as representative from the Cobourg Presbytery and chairman of the Northumberland Ministerial Association as guest speaker.

Taking his text from Jeremiah 18. 3, 4, "I went to a potter's house, behold he wrought a work on the wheel. The vessel was marred so he made it again," he said usually a preacher using this text spoke of the marred vessel, but he was dealing with the words, "He made it again."

"There are three divisions, the workman, the material and the instrument God is working, He is the workman; we, human nature, are the materials and it is sometimes very inferior. No workman can make a perfect vessel with imperfect material. The church is the instrument through which God works and can only progress when we, as individuals are good material in the potter's hands."

The anthems sung by the choir were "Praise the Lord," and "Tarry With Me," Richard Knight sang very sweetly, "Building for Eternity," and the Rev. Dr. Smith, of Warkworth United Church pronounced the benediction.

Supper and Concert

On Monday evening a fowl supper was served in the church hall and later a splendid musical concert was given by an octette from the Peterborough Male Voice Choir and Miss Parnell, elocutionist, of Peterborough.

During the evening the Rev. D. R. Clare read greetings from a number of pastors who were unable to be present: the Rev. W. Boyce, an old Norham boy; the Rev. Mr. Shier, Rev. J. Everson, Rev. E. W. Cafley, Rev. Mr. Horwood, Rev. Mr. Swayne, Rev. Mr. Smart, and Dr. Marvin.

Sixty candles were lighted by Mrs. Rev. M. E. Wilson on a beautiful four storey birthday cake donated by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Newman, and was cut by Mrs. Garbutt, of Peterborough, a widow of a former minister on the circuit.

Young People's Service

Supper was served to the Young People on Tuesday evening and following a sing-song led by the Rev. D. R. Clare, Mrs. Calre welcomed the guests. The program was in charge of Blair Huycke and consisted of instrumental numbers by G. Craig on the concertina; song by Misses E. Evans, Lucille Lean and Frances Lean and several solos by John Rintoul.

Lorne Mitchell and Wesley Clare gave interestings reports of the Boys' Conference held in Trenton on November 21 to 23, and Miss Dora Palmteer had charge of a geography match.

This closed the Jubilee activities until next Sunday when a Jubilee sermon will be preached by the pastor and a male choir will lead the singing.

Trent River

A shooting match for geese was held on Friday at Mr. Ward Glenns.

Mrs. Mary Inkster, of Bobcaygeon, is a visitor with her son, Mr. W. C. Inkster and family.

Miss Rebecca Harvey, of Trenton has returned home after spending a week with her sister, Mrs. Knowlton Waters, West Seymour.

Miss R. Marion Inkster won the Aladdin lamp for the contest put on by E. S. Hubble and son, Hardware, Havelock.

Mrs. V. Chaplin and daughter, Mrs. Simpson, of Hastings, are spending a few days with the former's daughter, Mrs. W. H. Farrow at Brighton.

The Rev. Dr. John Lennox, of Knox Church, Havelock made pastoral calls on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cook left on Saturday for Toronto, where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. James Doupe and daughter, Margaret of Bonarlaw are guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Doupe.

Mrs. Ridley Wood is confined to her bed through illness.

Mr. David Burgess, Cedar Lodge is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward entertained at a delightful dance on Wednesday evening.

The recent low temperature has caused the main channel of the river to freeze almost across.

FARROW—At Brighton, on Friday, November 28, to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Farrow, (formerly Leeta Chaplin, of Trent River), a son.

SEAWAY PARLEY SEEN ON RETURN OF R. B. BENNETT

Amendments on British North America Act Also to Come Up.

NO DATES SET.

Intention of Dominion Gov't to Confer With Provincial Gov't First.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 6— (CP) Conferences on the St. Lawrence waterway project and amendments to the British North America Act will follow the return to Canada in a week's time of Premier R. B. Bennett. Dates for the discussions have not been fixed but the probability is that the Prime Minister will take steps on reaching the capital for conferences in each instance early in the new year.

On the St. Lawrence waterway proposal, Premier Bennett may choose to have certain preliminary discussions conducted between the Canadian National Engineering Board and the United States engineering body, both of which were appointed by their respective countries in connection with the scheme.

Brings Copy of Bill

Premier Bennett, now on the Atlantic, is bringing with him a copy of a bill providing for amendments to the British North America Act in accordance with conclusions made at the recent Imperial Conference. The measure will form the basis of a resolution to be placed before Parliament at the coming session, expected to be called for the last week in January, it is the intention of the Dominion Government to confer with the various Provinces of Canada for the purpose of reaching a general understanding of the proposed changes and full agreement in the matter. The date for this meeting may be late this month or more likely in January.

TENDERED RESIGNATION.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Dec. 5.— (C. P.)— It is understood that Hon., G. Howard Ferguson has forwarded his resignation as representative of the Conservative party from Grenville riding to the president of the Conservative Association of that county. George Martin, Spencerville.

HOME TOWNERS

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

The choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were the guests on Wednesday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Watson, when a jolly evening was spent. Group contests were staged, games played, and singing indulged in, which helped to make the evening a very pleasant one. The hostess served a dainty lunch before the guests departed.

Miss Marjorie Harrington, of the High School staff, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Martin, of Stirling, last week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Craighead were visitors to Toronto on Friday, making the trip by car.

Stop and look in Bennett's wifidow at the Legion quilt that will be drawn for next Tuesday at the Community concert. It was made by the Sunshine Knitting Club, and is well worth the value of $25.00 that is placed upon it.

Visitors to town from Bridgenorth on Wednesday included Messrs Gordon Mann, Ernest Rosborough, Earl Rosborough and Clarence Mann.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Ironside were visitors to Peterborough on Friday, Mr. Ironside attending the hockey meeting there in the evening.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

SUDBURY, Ont., December 6. — H. Ekhalm, 40, was committed for trial yesterday on a charge of endangering life when he appeared before Magistrate Stoddard at Copper Cliff. The Crown alleges Ekhalm placed spikes in tamping used in Dynamite charges at the Frood Mine where he was employed. The alleged offence was committed on November 23.

CERTIFICATES PRESENTED TO MUSIC PUPILS

Large Audience Greets Musical Program in High School Auditorium.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Students Present Pleasing Appearance in Drills and Recitations.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 6 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—A feast of melody greeted the large and appreciative audience that assembled last night in the Campbellford High School auditorium to witness a musical recital given by the pupils of St. Joseph's Convent, Campbellford.

This event was featured by the performance of a large class of children of all ages with a variety of pleasing and entertaining selections. Well drilled and with the confidence of youth, the performers met with a splendid response from their parents and friends. The children were uniformly dressed, the boys in white shirts and blue pants and the girls in dresses which were alike in pattern but varied in colour and disclosed a fine blend of tints. These costumes showed the children to advantage, especially in the drills and marches.

At the conclusion of the evening Rev. C. J. Phalen presented the pupils with the Toronto Consevatory of Music Diplomas. These awards were received by Raymond Wragg, James Kelly, Lloyd Richardson, Ruth Farrell, James Robertson, Mary Hollings, Thomas Lee, Joseph O'Sullivan, Bernice Clark, Marie Hardy and Alice Tripp.

The program opened with a chorus by the class, "The Old Refrain." This was splendidly sung and showed real talent. The voices blended well together, the deeper tone of the boys' voices forming a musical background for the more delicate tone of the girls.

Pleasing Piano Solos

The piano solos were all well performed and showed that much practice had been given to the perfecting of their pieces. Time was good and with the exception of a few of the more difficult renditions, the playing was smooth and well balanced. Nerves did not seem to affect the performers, but a keen love of music inspired them to do their best. Piano solos were given by Frank O'Sullivan, Alice Tripp, Raymond Wragg, Lloyd Richardson, Joseph O'Sullivan, Angus Robertson, Jimmie Robertson, Lois Meyers, Mary Forestell, Dorothy Watson, Flossie Henson, and Thelma Hollings.

A violin number which was very well received and showed much credit on the teacher was the Beginners' Class playing, with Frank O'Sullivan at the piano. These boys, all at the beginning of their musical careers, did splendidly. First singing the notes of the first bars of their exercises, they then played them and showed much skill for their ages and experience.

Several piano duets were also featured. These were well presented and delivered with spirit, and in many cases showed ease of movement and perfect harmony. Expression was also good, the performers entering into their work with a desire that showed their appreciation of the art. Those taking pat in the duets were: Joe Kelly and Ross Richardson, Bernice Clark and Marie Hardy, Tom Lee and J. M. Kelly, M. Bateson and A. Buchanan, and M. Hollings and R. Farrell.

Several Readings.

Two readings were delivered with fine ability. Ruth Farrell gave "Much Ado About Nothing," and proved herself a real little artist in her presentation and interpretation. Full of humor and with a musical moral, she received a hearty applause from the delighted audience. Bernadette Jones entered the dramatic sphere in her presentation of "Spohr the Violinist." Word perfect and with fine interpretation and a grasp of the possibilities of her subject, she presented a splendid number, and one that was appreciated by the gathering.

The boys in their presentation of a marching song, covered themselves with credit. Performing a drill to music, played by Angus Robertson, they were quick and clean in action and performed the difficult figures of their drill with ease. The second half of this number was a chorus which was well presented. The boys featured in this with their time and diction and harmony of voice.

The violin solos were given by Paul O'Sullivan and Fern Weatherill respectively. Both artists proved themselves very able performers on their instruments and excelled in delicacy of touch and time. Both compositions were difficult, but were handled with ease and ability. In the violin class, a massed presentation, "The Turkish Rondo" was delivered, which proved to be a prime favorite with the audience. This was difficult from the standpoint of variation, and was well handled by the performers. Those taking part in this feature were: Fern Weatherill, Ronald and Billie Richardson, Paul O'Sullivan, and Angus Robertson.

The humorous touch to the program was given by presentation of "That Music Ghost" a musical sketch in which a young student suffers evil and musical dreams because of slackness in practicing. The performers in this act were Joe Kelly and Frank O'Sullivan.

Girls Drill Well

The presentation of a girls' drill was also featured and showed the artistic ability of the artists, done to music rendered by Grace Cairns, this act was pretty and precise and received a splendid ovation from the audience. The concluding number was a chorus, "Those Evening Bells" in which the whole class took part. This was well presented and showed to advantage the voices of the children.

In presenting the diplomas Fr. Phalen congratulated the children on their spendid performance, and the audience on the response that they had given. He also paid high tribute to Sister Mueria who was the teacher, emphasizing the fact that her work had been well done and that a great deal of credit was due her for her efforts, saying that it was a wonderful thing that one person could do so much.

A vote of thanks was moved to the Sister by G. O'Sullivan, which was seconded by Dr. H. O. Richardson. The evening concluded with the National Anthem.

Influenza Breaks Out Among Feeder Cattle

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 5 (C.P.)—An epidemic of influenza among the young feeder cattle is causing some concern among Waterloo County farmers, many animals suffering from the disease at present. The outbreak in its present form was introduced by bringing in feeder cattle from other districts. Home bred cattle are free from the disease except where they have come in contact with th cattle which have been shipped in. Stock losses so far have not been heavy and farmers are having their cattle inoculated against the disease in an effort to check the epidemic.

RESTRICT GAS IN WARFARE.

GENEVA, December 6 (C.P.). — The Polish delegation to the Preparatory Disarmament Commission to-day proposed a special convention to consider restriction of gas and chemical warfare. The proposal received the support of several other delegations.

RAM AND EWE CHAMPIONSHIP TAKEN BY ONTARIO MAN AT CHICAGO SHOW

Canadians Move Up Into Wheat Awards, Capturing 10 of 15 Places.

TAKE MANY GRAIN HONORS.

CHICAGO, December 6 (C.P.). — The entry of Charles J. Shore of Glansworth, Ont., yesterday won the champion ram and ewe class of the breeding sheep division of the National Live Stock Exposition here.

He also won the reserve award for rams.

In Durum wheat last year Canadians won six out of 15 places, the eighth taken by Alfred Wood of Glenboro, Ont., being the highest. This year the Canadians won ten of 15 places. George Avery of Kelso, Sask., who was not even ranked in 1929, won first place, and then went on to take the reserve wheat championship on his Durum sample.

In white winter, where no Canadian was ranked in 1929, Douglas Hart of Woodstock, Ont., this year took second place. In soft red winter, where no Canadian name appeared in 1929, Nagel Brothers of Fisherville, Ont., won 13th rank.

Canadians Move Up.

The moving up of the Canadians has been noticeable all along the line this year, with only a single stalwart, the grizzled C. Edson Smith of Corvallis, Montana, seeming to have the soil or the knowledge or the seed that can match the Canadian wheat results.

Some of the other improved Canadian rankings at the show were:

Rye, which was won by George Avery of Kelso, Sask., as compared with the ninth place taken by Canada last year.

Field beans, which was won by Mary E. Maycock of Milford, Ont. as compared with no Canadian placing last year.

Flax, in which Charles F. Holmer, of Dollard, Sask., won third place as against a 13th last year.

Soy beans, in which Hugh Jeffrey of Whitby, Ont., won the reserve championship, as against nothing last year.

Canadian placings in other grains were:

Field peas — Champion, Herman Trelle, Wembevy Alta. Reserve champion, Cecil Trowell, Saltcoats, Sask.

Barley—Ed. Thompson, Pathlow Sask., third in both two-rowed and six-rowed. George Avery, fifth in competition for all other varieties.

JURY SELECTION DIFFICULT TASK

Little Assurance That Testimony Stage in Shepard Trial Will Be Reached To-day.

ALLEGED POISON PLOT.

KANSAS CITY, Ks., Dec. 5.—Selection of a jury to try Major Charles A. Shepard, army medical officer formerly of Belleville, Ont., for the alleged poison murder of his second wife, continued in Federal court here with no assurance that the testimony stage would be reached at to-day's session.

Of eleven prospective jurors tentatively accepted yesterday, two were dismissed upon pleading ill health this morning.

Three of the thirty-six veniremen who appeared in answer to summons made by long distance telephone were released early in the examination when they stated they had formed opinions from reading newspaper articles.

Major General M. W. Ireland, surgeon general of the army, was in the court room expecting to be the Government's first witness.

The surgeon general is expected to be questioned regarding army medical reports on the death of Shepard's wife at Fort Riley, Kas., in June, 1929, in what the prosecution alleges was a poison plot to remove Mrs. Shepard so Major Shepard could wed Miss Grace Brandon, young stenographer of San Antonio, Tex.

QUEENSBORO UNITED CHURCH Y.P.S. HOLDS ANNUAL SERVICE

Rev. Manson Doyle, Secretary of Religious Education, is Special Speaker.

SPLENDID ADDRESS.

QUEENSBORO, Dec. 6 (Examiner Correspondence) — Anniversary services for the Young People's Union of the United Church were held on Sunday with the Rev. Manson Doyle, B.A., of Toronto, secretary of Religious Education, as the special speaker. In spite of the inclement weather there was a good attendance at both services. The speaker's text in the morning was taken from Proverbs, chapter 17 and verse 6: "The Glory of Children are their Fathers." And from this he pointed out that early in life children copied the example of their fathers, later they took advice from the hero of the gang and later still, sought reality by ascertaining facts and had grown somewhat suspicious of both elders and companions, and concluded his address by pointing out the opportunity of the parents and the responsibility of the church in the Religious Education of the young. The choir sang "Mighty army of the young," and "Stand up, Stand up, for Jesus."

In the evening Mr. Doyle spoke on "Decision," from St. Matthew, chapter, 27 and verse 22, "What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ." The speaker explained how Pilot was once on the lowest rung of Roman society but by industry had become a Roman Governor and now aspired to go higher. He had a hard question to answer. It was a question of whether he would be Caesar's friend or would he do what was right and offend Caesar. Would he bend to the clamour of the crowd and act against his own conviction with the hope of promotion from Caesar or would he follow his own idea of right at the risk of material loss. Although Pilot had been warned through his wife who was impressed by a dream, he fell before the temptation and released Barabas, which meant a choice of the evil. He fooled no one, said the speaker, when he tried to wash his hands of Christ's death. Mr. Doyle explained that every young person and older ones as well are frequently on the judgment seat where they have to choose between their own personal interests and material sacrifice for the sake of right doing. He said, that to choose against Jesus was always a bad bargain, while to make a choice of Christ was always a good bargain. He told of a young medical man in Canada who refused a position at a salary of $6,000 a year and accepted an appointment with the Foreign Mission Board at a salary of less than $2,000 and said he made a good bargain in doing so.

The music for the evening service was rendered by an especially trained choir of thirteen young people. The pieces sang were, "In the Morning of Youth" and "Yes the Lord can depend on me," Misses Marion Hamm and Jennie Sager sang, "Listen to the Voice of Jesus." In the afternoon Mr. Doyle addressed the congregation at Hazzard's Corners.

Society Meets

The Young people of the United Church held their meeting in the church on Saturday evening, with Rev. Manson Doyle, B.A., of Toronto, Secretary of Religious Education as the principal speaker. Miss Marion Carrie the president had charge of the meeting and opened it by singing, "Jesus Calls us o'er the tumult." Prayer was offered by Mr. Doyle. Miss Carrie read the scripture lesson and commented on it showing the gospel in its influence had elevated women and abolished much of the distinctions between races.

Albert Sager gave a paper on "How Christianity Equalizes Life." In this it was pointed out that primitive and defective religions had oppressed women but vital and genuine religious faith makes men ashamed of the oppressions that have been sanctified by tradition.

Mr. Doyle in his address presented the "Young People's Obligation to the World Kingdom," and stated that 53 cents from each member of a Young People's group throughout the United Church would meet the obligation assumed by that group to the work of world evangelization. Mr. Doyle referred to the Anglican communion as having in that church the youngest of the Young People's organizations and also stated that it was among the strongest of religious forces. The speaker stated that in the United Church there were many Young People offering their services as missionaries but could not be sent because of a lack of funds and urged the Young People present to be loyal and faithful and do their bit for the extension of Kingdom of God.

Mr. Bruce Leslie sang, "It was alone the Saviour died," and Mr. Herbert Brown, of Vancouver sang, "The Rugged Cross." The offering for missions amounted to three dollars. The closing hymn was, "The Day Thou Gavest Lord is Ended." There were forty-five present.

COUNTY COURT

a farmer of Harvey Township, for the sum of $1000 damages, the costs of the action and such further and other relief as the court may consider just.

J. A. O'Brien is solicitor for the plaintiff, with W. F. Huycke acting for the defendant.

The claim, which arises out of a destructive fire on plaintiff's property allegedly caused by defendant Tate setting out a fire on his premises adjoining the lands of plaintiff, in an unlawful manner, and contrary to the Provisions of the Forests Fire Prevention Act, and without having obtained a permit pursuant to the Act, contains an interesting angle apparently resting on a technicality concerning the interpretation of the Act.

In the alternative as to the whole action defendant pleads that while denying liability he tendered to plaintiff the sum of $115, and now brings to court the sum of $115 and says that that sum is enough to satisfy plaintiff's claim.

Plaintiff has filed notice of non-acceptance of the money paid into court in satisfaction of the claim.

Defendant, who is owner of part of lot 23, concessino 14 in the township of Harvey, admits that on or about May 8th, he set out a fire for the purpose of clearing his land, , and making it suitable for agricultural purposes.

Defendant Tate contends that in setting out the fire he did not act unlawfully and contrary to the provisions of the Forest Fires Prevention act, 1930, and says that by reason of an Order-in-Council approved by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, and dated about 30 April, 1929, certain parts of Harvey Township, and more particularly concessions 14 and 15, were removed from the Fire District, and that it was not necessary for defendant to obtain a permit He alleges that he watched the fire carefully and took reasonable precautions to prevent the fire from spreading to plaintiff's and says that if it did spread, which he denies, that it was the result of conditions which he could not have foreseen.

Non Jury Actions

Else Stillman farmer in the township of Seymour in Northumberland County, is defendant in two actions involving claims for damages amounting in all to $1,500 and costs. He counter claims for $200 damages and costs. The actions come as a sequel to a motor accident in which defendant's car and the vehicle driven by John H. Brown, farmer of Dummer township were in collision on the Peterborough-Norwood Highway on July 12th, last. Elizabeth McNulty of the township of Asphodel a relative of Brown's and who was a passenger in his automobile, is claiming $1,000 and costs for personal injuries suffered by her through the alleged negligence of defendant. Brown's claim is for $500 and costs for damages for personal injuries and for damages to his motor vehicle and for the loss of its use while it was away for repairs.

The defendant Stillman alleges that he exercised care and sought to avoid an accident. He further alleges that Plaintiff Brown continued driving at a high rate of speed and an accident resulted.

Claiming $500

Roy H. White, electrical contractor of this city, is claiming the sum of $500 and costs from the Dominion Stores Limited, as the result of injuries received on defendant's premises at 342 George street on the evening of July 5th, 1930.

White claims that in order to effect repairs he was required to go into the cellar on defendant company's premises. The cellar was poorly lighted, he alleges, and contained a trap in the form of an unguarded hole, which plaintiff fell into, sustaining injuries to his right ankle and leg.

Defendants, who are being represented by Osler, Hoskin and Harcourt of Toronto, in their statement of defence say that if plaintiff sustained the injury alleged, which is denied, such injury was not caused by any failure of duty on their part or by reason of any premises occupied by the Company. The plaintiff was on the premises several times before the accident referred to defendants allege, and was familiar with the conditions existing in the cellar. They further contended that the cellar was properly lighted and if plaintiff was injured it was the result of his failure to exercise reasonable care in entering the cellar in view of the conditions which he knew existed.

Motor Oil Purchase

John Douglas, trading under the firm name of Power Oil Company of Canada, in business at the City of Peterborough and at the village of Fraserville, has instituted an action against G. A. M. Davidson of Unionville in the County of York for the recovery of the sum of $873.50 (and costs amounting to $25), being the amount of an account for merchandise, namely 925 gallons of Texaline Motor Oil, allegedly purchased by defendant from plaintiff on March 4th, 1929, at 62 cents per gallon, for which defendant allegedly agree to pay and which he has failed and neglected to do.

In March, 1929, plaintiff claims he purchased from defendant a motor car, for the sum of $783, for which defendant agreed to take in exchange ten barrels of motor oil being 450 gallons at 62 cents a gallon, amounting to $279 and plaintiff gave to defendant his cheque in the amount of $504. Defendant also purchased, it is alleged by plaintiff, 20 more barrels of oil at the same price to be delivered at the rate of 3 barrels per month and at the same price.

Plaintiff has been ready to deliver the oil, but defendant refuses to accept delivery, except of the 425 gallons which defendant has accepted delivery of. Plaintiff has offered to make delivery of the balance of 925 gallons of oil and is ready to carry out the terms of the contract.

Defendant counter claims for the sum of $15.50 and alleges that the order for the oil was given on the guarantee by Power Oil Company per John Douglas, that the oil was equal to or better than any other oil on the market. Defendant further alleges that the oil delivered on or about April 18th, 1929 was not equal to or better than any oil on the market, and in fact was not as good as other oils that he had been selling. He contends that he is not therefore indebted to plaintiff, but on the contrary plaintiff owes him the sum of $15.50.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass
No envy hour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK

"We hear so much of the home-maker," declared a W.I. secretary, at a recent district convention, "but for myself I prefer the title "home body" at times, because it reminds me of my own mother whom those words literally described. Surely the wife and mother is the very chiefest part of the home picture; as someone said, 'Remove her and you have nothing left but the frame and the man' and I agree with him, don't you? Morning, noon, and night we look for the real mother taking her place in the home, or it isn't home at all; she is an inseparable part of our memories of home life, and it is really up to those of us who are mothers in this gathering to-day to put the question squarely to ourselves, "How will my family look back upon me in other years?"

"Mothers need a funny bone, as well as a back bone," was the comment of one member during the discussion that followed the visiting official's address; "I find my children demand that of me, and I just must not allow myself to become so absorbed in my cooking and cleaning to give them their proper share of attention. They must not come home to a good fire in the stove, or furnace, and mother so tired, or cross, or absorbed on other tasks, that she is nothing but a chill to them, or to her husband."

"I learned that lesson some time ago," was the contribution of another member, as the helpful discussion proceeded; "now I try to be 'a sunny first' to my small son, aged seven, put it to my family, even if to sustain that atmosphere I must smile when back aches, and I really long for rest, or let go things I would like to get done, in order to be 'fit' when the family comes in from school, or in time for the evening meal and the hours afterward."

"After all the atmosphere you are creating in your homes," the secretary said in closing, "is not alone for the time being, while your family is with you, but long afterward they will find it actually woven into the background of their lives, determining the set of their characters to an immense degree, and so carrying it on into their own homes when they set up in their married life, or when they go out in a business career. Only last week I heard a very sweet woman say, as in our own office in Toronto we were discussing this very matter, "It's dreadful, this responsibility, but very sweet, too, to be a homebody, actually deciding by our way of thinking and acting what shall be the atmosphere where any one of us fills the position of mother and wife."

BELMONT

Social Life Of Yesterday

(Paper given by Mrs. George Smith at Belmont Women's Institute)

The French Canadians home was small, seldom containing more than two rooms. Strong boxes and benches served as chairs. The rough loom, and the box-like cradle, were familiar objects in the home. Over the fire stood the crane, the brick oven being found only in the homes of the wealthier class. The house of the Seigneur although richly furnished, was seldom more than one storey high. In dress, the upper class followed closely the fashions of France, although perhaps neither so rich, nor as costly. With men it was the custom to wear the hair curled, powdered, and often tied in a queue. Upon state occasions their head gear took the form of a three-cornered cocked hat. Their wide frocked coats were made of costly material and gay colors. The waistcoat was frequently ornamented with gold or silver. They wore lace at the neck and wrist bands. The knee breeches were fastened with bright buckles, which served to hold the colored silk stockings also. Shoes adorned with broad buckles at the instep, completed the picturesque costume, which would be strangely out of place beside the modest dress of the gentlemen of today.

The limited resources of the habitant demanded a simpler garb. A black homespun coat, gray leggings, woollen cap, and moccassins of cowhide, produced a sombre effect, relieved only by a dash of color in his bright sash. The women also clad in homespun, indulged their love of colors, in their choice of bright kerchiefs for their neck and shoulders. The French Canadian was nothing, if not social. Contented in spirit, he gave himself wholeheartedly to his amusements. Winter was a season of gaiety. Sleighing and dancing were the common pastimes. Even the old people indulged in such youthful amusements as hide-the-handkerchief, and fox and geese. A baptism or birthday was welcomed as an occasion for festivity. May Day brought to the habitants special feasting and merry-making at the home of the Seigneur.

The habitant had a small home but comfortable; a simple yet wholesome diet of salt meat, milk and bread, varied in season by an abundance of fresh meat.

Even at this time, when the habitant was so very contented, the settlers were flocking into the other provinces. Most of these settlers were United Empire Loyalists, and food and clothing were scanty in these early days. For a year or two after his arrival, the Loyalist gentleman might be seen amid his primitive surroundings clad in the fine raiment of his more prosperous days. In wide flapping frock coat lined with velvet, white satin waistcoat, black satin tight knee breeches, white silk stockings, and silver buckled shoes. Soon however these relics of better days, gave place to humbler home made garments. The women learned the Indian tanning, and made clothing of deer skin. Stockings were unknown here. When leather was at hand every man made the shoes for his own family.

Transportation and communication in these early days were very difficult. The avenues of travel were the lakes and rivers, and narrow bush trails. Naturally schools and churches were unknown.

Fortunately a change soon took place. Improved roads, and more leisure, made mutual help possible. Frolics or bees, for chopping and building became common. Later with larger crops and finer buildings, husking and framing bees became the occasions of great festivity. Venison, turkeys, pies, johnnie cake, and pumpkin cake were everywhere in evidence. These delicacies were handled with dishes and spoons made of wood. At a later date, wooden utensils gave place to pewter, first brought into the country by the enterprising Yankee peddler.

WARSAW

The last area convention and the one which particularly interests Peterborough County Women's Institute women ended on Thursday afternoon. Many did not return after noon so missed Mrs. Laura Rose Stephens' description of her trip, when all Canada representative of Women's Institutes she attended the International Convention of Women's Institutes held at Antwerp, Belgium last summer.

Mrs. Walker, Ontario delegate had already described the convention which they attended, so Mrs. Stephens described the trip.

In speaking of points of interest she described the graves of four unknown soldiers. The one in England in Westminster Abbey among England's illustrious dead. Belgium's lies in Brussels, marked by a beautiful monument, France's is under the arch de Triumphe. Germany's lies in Munich, one goes down, down, and over the grave lies the figure of a soldier carved in cold stone and all is surrounded by a high wall.

They saw the Passion Play at Obergammergau and she described it very fully the description of the representation of the life and especially the last hours of Christ portrayed by a religious people with a religious motive. Six hundred and eighty-four took part in twenty-four scenes and between the scenes there were tableaux from the Old Testament, indicative of the scene to be portrayed.

Miss Appelle made a strong appeal in behalf of historical research that we should not let the traditions of the early settlers die out.

Mrs. Edwards from Komoka spoke stressing the need of buying Canadian manufactured goods as far as possible, and Dr. Helen McMurdy spoke on the need of care of children and of mothers. She stressed the necessity of the Baby Book going into all homes, and of the little blue one being read in all Canadian homes.

CAVAN

Laura Rose Stephen says:

"Nothing so forcibly shows the magnitude, importance and scope of work the Women's Institutes as do the twelve fall conventions held in different parts of Ontario. It used to be that one annual gathering sufficed; now the women of the north felt the need of getting together and the same with the members of the east and west and southern districts.

There are from 100 to 500 delegates at each convention, besides many who attend because they are interested in the work. It is a fine sight to see these intelligent, earnest women from our farms and small towns, gathered to discuss questions of such vital interest to the home and community life of our people. The standing committees have done much to systemize the work and to bring before the people the activities of the Institutes. There are the following standing committees: education, health, agriculture, home economics, immigration, legislation, community activities, relief, historical research, Canadian industries and publicity.

The various chairmen of the standing committees of local Institutes send their reports to the district chairmen and these reports are compiled and given at the conventions. In this way all the activities of the Institutes are brought to notice, and new ideas are given publicity. For instance in the health report, "Humidity and how to obtain it" (with special reference to our schools) was dealt with, also sanitation of halls and fair ground buildings. One Institute had a free health clinic; when 83 children were examined and troubles from adenoids to rickets discovered.

Dr. Helen McMurchy stressed the importance of proper health and advice, for the expectant mother. Death seldom comes when there is a doctor and nurse in attendance. Canada has lost in childbirth 5,000 mothers in the past four years. It is well for every Institute to have a layette on hand and to send one to the north country. The Institute maternity basket serves a good purpose when an emergency arises.

In the education section the value of hand work as well as brain work was beautifully brought out by a story illustrating how our necessities and luxuries were the product of manual labor and Christ the Master Carpenter as our example.

The Institute is being largely instrumental in having singing taught in our public schools.

THEATRE NEWS

"LIGHTNIN" NEW ROGERS PICTURE

Agreeable Role For Star of "They Had to See Paris."

HIS THIRD TALKIE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—Will Rogers's recollection of an unusually diverting evening in the theatre, enjoyed twelve years ago led to the production of his latest talking picture, "Lightnin'."

For three years, from August 26, 1918, to August, 1921, this successful play, "Lightnin'," held the boards of the Galety Theatre.

Following his two talking pictures, "They Had to See Paris" and "So This Is London," he announced that he wanted to interpret the role of Lightnin' Bill Jones as his next Movietone characterization. In this Winfield Sheehan readily concurred, with the result that Henry King's production of "Lightnin'" is now at the Roxy.

In the screen version of "Lightnin'" Rogers plays the role of a Spanish war veteran, a shiftless fellow with a flair for fantastic lies, witty observations and a considerable devotion to tippling for the sake of his "malaria."

The leading roles in support of Rogers are played by Louise Dresser as his hard-working wife; Helen Cohan, daughter of George M. Cohan, as his daughter; Joel McCrea has the role of the young man whose love for Milly Jones is furthered by her father, "Lightnin'."

STORM HITS STUDIOS.

Columbia Suffers Loss of $35,000 on Set.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—A terrific windstorm over the week-end caused plenty of trouble and considerable damage.

Columbia studio was set back about $35,000 on "Dirigible" when a prop airship, built on the First National Burbank lot, was completely wrecked. Three millions pounds of gypsum, to be used for a snowstorm on the same picture, was also blown away. Film has been delayed four days until repairs are made.

The roof of stage 3 at Fox Movietone City, was lifted off, demolishing an old "Sunrise" set, and the wind also ripped open several water tanks.

The top of FN's commissary, under reconstruction, was blown off and will have to be entirely rebuilt. FN's stage was also damaged.

Over at Universal, several stages were broken up and the giant electric sign in front of the studio was saved just as it was about to topple over.

For the second time in two weeks shooting of the land rush scenes in "Cimarron" were held up by bad weather. This time the studio shipped about 200 technicians and 5,000 extras to Bakers Field, but the baby tornado held up all action. The company is still there and expects to have the sequence completed by Thursday.

First attempt at shooting, two weeks ago, was spoiled by a rain storm.

ROCKNE TO MAKE SECOND SERIES OF GRID SHORTS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—Considering the comparative low cost to make the Knute Rockne football shorts, they have proved the biggest one-reel money makers on the Pathe program. Pathe is now negotiating with Rockne for another series of four for next year in which the grid coach will have a substantial cut.

In many houses through the country, during the current football season, the shorts have been billed above features. In one house on Hollywood boulevard the Rockne short got a play above "The Love Parade" (Par), despite the heavy yen here for Chevalier.

ANN HARDING'S $20,000

Ann Harding's $20,000 Bonus From Pathe—New Option Means $2,000 Weekly

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—Under her original contract as renewed on option with Pathe going into effect Jan. 1, Ann Harding will get $2,000 weekly for 40 weeks.

She started at $1,500. The contract is a joint affair and includes an engagement for Harry Bannister, Miss Harding's husband, for a similar period, at $1,000 per week.

A further option carries a boost to $2,500 for Miss Harding in the second year and $1,250 for Bannister during that time.

Pathe handed Miss Harding a check for $20,000, the difference between her current salary and the price paid by First National for her services in "Girl of the Golden West." The studio gave this in the form of a bonus, although not committed to do so by contract.

"HELL'S ANGELS" IN LONDON

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Biggest film in London in years is the current run of "Hell's Angels" at the Pavilion.

Picture is getting around $17,000 weekly. It means capacity afternoon and evening.

United Artists executives this side have set the ball rolling with the biggest blaze of lights along Piccadilly, dwarfing the other signs.

Film is booked in for 16 weeks and looks like the problem will be what to do with it when the next Cochran revue is due.

SCREEN AND STAGE NOTES

Metro has set the Broadway opening for Jack Gilbert's "Way of a Sailor" for December 12 at the Capitol.

Harold Lloyd turned down an $100,000 offer for a series of national radio broacasts.

Eddie Cantor opens December 27 for a fortnight at the Palace, New York, at a salary of $7,500 a week. He left Sunday (22) with Samuel Goldwyn for Broadway.

Mary Astor is set with Radio for another year from January 1 at $2,000 a week. Company held an option on her services which was taken up after completion of her last picture, "The Queen's Husband."

New contract calls for four successive yearly options at a sliding scale.

It is reported Jimmy Durante is going with Metro under the customary optional contract of six months, at a salary of $1,750 weekly.

Lloyd Hamilton, pictures, earned $27,328 since March and spent $27,544. His receiver asked the court to modify Hamilton's alimony of $250 a month.

Michael Arlen's "Cavalier of the Streets," originally intended for Maurice Chevalier by Paramount, will instead star William Powell. Richard Wallace will direct but no date set for production.

Harold Lloyd was ruled "unintentionally" guilty of plagiarism in the production of "The Freshman," because of its similarities to a magazine story by the late H. C. Witwer. Federal Judge Cosgrave held that Mrs. Sadie S. Witwer was entitled to an accounting of the picture's profits from the time of the story's copyrighting in 1927. Lloyd will appeal.

Alice Neilson, famed as the "Gypsy Sweetheart" in Herbert's "Fortune Teller," now retired and the grandmother of a 13-year-old child, was granted a divorce and $40,000 settlement from her husband, Dr. LeRoy Stoddard, plastic surgeon. Witnesses described a raid on the surgeon's apartment in which was found a woman in pajamas the doctor himself. The woman was identified in the testimony only as "A. H."

"Viennese Nights," the musical romance written for the screen by Sigmund Romberg and Oscar Hammerstein 2d, is filmed wholly in Technicolor and was directed by Alan Crosland. In the cast are Vivienne Segal, Jean Hersholt, Alexander Gray, Walter Pidgeon, Louise Fazenda, Alice Day, Bert Roach, June Purcell and Milton Douglas.

"Sin Take a Holiday" is an international romance, with Constance Bennett in the role of a New York secretary who marries her wealthy employer to avoid a breach of promise suit. The union being merely an arrangement of convenience, the bride sails for the Continent, where she becomes a fascinating creature under the hands of beauty experts and modistes. Kenneth MacKenna, Basil Rathbone, Zasu Pitts and Louis Bartels are also in the cast.

"Fast and Loose" is a comedy built around the antics of the flighty younger generation of a wealthy, tradition-bound Long Island family. Frank Morgan plays the head of the house, and the young people in the story are Miriam Hopkins, Carole Lombard, Henry Wadsworth and Charles Starrett.

"Madonna of the Street," is an adaptation of W. B. Maxwell's story, "The Ragged Messenger." Evelyn Brent assumes the role of a clever, wordly woman who wilfully degrades herself to gain a personal and selfish end. Miss Brent is supported by Robert Ames, Ivan Linow and Josephine Dunn.

Ruth Chatterton's next talker will be "New Morals", from a story written especially for her by John Van Druten, author of the play, "Young Woodley." Miss Chatterton will have the role of a society woman who builds for herself a bad reputation which she doesn't deserve when she finds her husband's good reputation is not what she thought it. Juliette Compton, the young English actress, will play the inamorata of Miss Chatterton's husband.

Ronald Colman's newest picture, based on the first screen play by Frederick Lonsdale, will be called "The Devil to Pay."

Don Marquis has written a screen story for Will Rogers, on which the comedian may begin work when he finishes "A Connecticut Yankee." Mr. Marquis's story, as yet untitled, provides Rogers with a new characterization—that of a country doctor.

The title of George Arliss's next picture will be supplied by the distinguished actor himself when he arrives in Hollywood. Booth Tarkington has written the dialogue for this production, which will be followed by a talking film version of "The Devil," by Frank Molnar, in which Mr. Arliss was seen on the American stage.

Tiffany is importing Edward Dean Sullivan, famous newspaper reporter and author of "Rattling the Cup on Chicago Crime," "Chicago Surrenders" and several plays. Mr. Sullivan is to write the adaptation and fill out the story. "X Marks the Spot," which James Whale is to direct. Whale has directed only one other picture for Tiffany, but that one was "Journey's End." If there are any unexplored and unexploited corners of the underworld left, we can depend upon their being brought vividly and humanly to the screen by the Whale-Sullivan combination.

After the Bath

ENJOY the refreshing, exhilarating thrill that comes with a brisk rub-down with Absorbine, Jr.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The 16 ounces thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

PHILCO GIVES $150,000

For the prestige of sponsoring the broadcast of the Army-Navy football game, December 13, for the benefit of the unemployed, Philco, radio manufacturers, contributed $150,000 to the unemployment fund.

Philco takes credit for sponsoring the broadcasts on both chains.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—City Hall figures show $529,894 in amusement tax paid last year, representing over $5,000,000 expended mostly in films.

Main stem houses claim better proportion of this sum went to the neighborhoods.

JOE BROWN'S PLAY

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—When Henry Duffy's production of "Elmer the Great" comes to the El Capitan from San Francisco, Joe E. Brown will be the new lead.

Brown may also do another one for Duffy if not given a picture by First National.

Brown is also to do an untitled original by Kalmar and Ruby ahead of "Tenderfoot" for FN.

People of Greece bought in 1930 more products from the United States than from any other country.

What To-day Means To You

"SAGITTARIUS."

If December 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to 11:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Astrological influences on this date, will not be dissimilar to those of the preceding day. There will be a tendency to delay and to fritter away the time. It is not the hours you put in that count; it's what you put into the hours.

Chilcren born on this December 6th will be their own worst enemies. They will be prone to indolence, vacillation, irresolution and indecision. They will be too open to the influence of others. They will easily become depressed and gloomy, or unduly pessimistic.

Although you are privileged, with other inhabitants of this plane, to attempt to be master of your fate, you, as an individual, do little to help yourself. You drift with the tide, whether it is carrying you in the desired direction or not. The road of least resistance which you are following, would be a boresome and unadventuresome route to many, but you enjoy its level monotony—rugged by-paths do not awaken your imagination or lure you to them. You do not always find dependable people on whom to lean, but you ar often left in the ditch.

You are somewhat lacking in candor, through the fear of exposing the truth. Your life is over-shadowed by fears, many of which are false, and most of which could be conquered. You always avoid open rupture or conflict, and you brood over your troubles instead of exposing them to the purification of daylight, honestly trying to surmount them.

You have a decided sense of motion or rhythm which you will express physically either in dancing or athletics, or mentally in music. It would help to take you out of yourself if you mixed more with society. Give all sides of your character a greater chance to express themselves.

"SAGITTARIUS."

If December 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The signs indicate a worried mental state on this date, and there will be more of a tendency to re-hash the perplexities of the past week, than to relax. "Every to-morrow has two handles; we can take hold of the handle of anxiety or the handle of faith."

The child born on this December 7th will have a positive, combative character, and it will not take its defeats lying down. It will have a ready tongue and will be slightly inconsiderate of others. It will be an indefatigable worker and a practical one.

It is not probable that you will fulfil the promises of your youth, or will ever reach the peak to which Destiny and Nature intended you to climb. You can do things, but you don't. You could climb, but it is easier not to. There is a price for every achievement—there is no discount, and you are looking for bargains which do not exist. It would be difficult to concede that you are mentally lazy. You talk big things, whilst you do little things.

You have excellent taste, pleasing manners, a hospitable nature, and can make a good showing out of very crimpy materials. You can appear like a millionaire, although your pockets be riddled with holes. Your pride and your spirits can never be pauperized. People love you for the sunshine of your soul, the gentleness of your words, and the kindness of your heart. You are not a failure in the bigger sense of the word, for you create happiness, and are the recipient of the blessings of contentment. You do not envy other people their affluence or wealth, and do not kick about your own lot. You are a friend worth having, a character worth knowing.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Are you planning a party for Christmas week? If you are you will be seeking some ideas for entertainment. Why not tell the neighbors about some of your suggestions, everyone welcomes new ideas for parties you know!

• • • • • • •

Christmas is a season of rejoicing in the home, a time when rich and poor alike gather their home circles around them.

• • • • • • •

No home at this time is complete without holly and mistletoe and whatever other decorations there may be, these should predominate.

• • • • • • •

It takes less trouble to wire large branches of holly together and festoon them across the arches and doorways than it does to make wiggling wreaths and fan shapes of the holly.

• • • • • • •

Though many use a great deal of paper decorations it is not recommended for good style. Paper may be used for covering lights in the guise of shades, taking precaution, of course, of fire, but garlands or colored paper draped across living rooms are apt to look tawdry!

• • • • • • •

This type of decoration is more suited to large halls not private homes.

• • • • • • •

Chinese lanterns are charming but remember to fill the bottom with sand so they will not sway about and catch fire as they do sometimes when placed empty in a draught.

• • • • • • •

Table decorations are most important, some scheme for a centrepieces should be thought of and the rest of the table decoration kept in harmony with it.

• • • • • • •

Delightful effects can be managed with large bowls filled with wet sand and set in the form of a scene. All that is needed are a few small figures, diminutive bridges and houses, photographic plates to resemble water and twigs.

• • • • • • •

Charming snow scenes are always possible with the aid of cotton wool and a little ingenuity.

• • • • • • •

Menu cards can be very dainty and original possibly inscribed with a jolly greeting to the guests. Some hostesses spend a great deal on crackers, but a better plan is to buy a good selection of paper hats or favors, and a cheaper cracker.

• • • • • • •

After all the main amusement of crackers is done when the pulling is over, and the cracker is of no more value.

• • • • • • •

If you want your party to stand out in the minds of your guests something original must be used.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

TREATMENT OF EPILEPSY.

As mentioned once before, if I had the time and money I would like to investigate the cause of epilepsy.

It would seem that despite the fact that this is one of the oldest known ailments, that it is just in the last few years that we seem to be getting near the cause.

Fifty five cases of epilepsy had a portion of the large intestine removed and every one of them was cured of epileptic attacks—for some time. Gradually the attacks are returning in one after another. Another group had the appendix removed and—for some time—they were free from attacks.

Another group were starved for eleven days, and not one had an attack.

I've mentioned before a case where I washed the stomach out two and three times a week for over a year and no attack occurred.

All this would indicate that food, eating, digestion, have some bearing in the cause.

And so lately two more methods of preventing or lessening the number of attacks has been brought to the attention of the public.

One is using fat in the diet-cream, butter, fat meat—to take the place of vegetables and bread. Instead of using a diet of 1 part meat or eggs to 2 parts fat, to 4 or 5 parts vegetables and bread, the fats are increased to 4 parts vegetables and bread decreased to 2 parts, to one of meat and eggs.

Dr. C. J. Barborka, Rochester, Minn., reports 100 adult cases treated by this "fat" diet. In 12 cases the attacks were controlled, and in 44 the patients were definitely improved; thus 16 patientse were benefited by the diet.

And the other method was that depriving the body of fluids seemed to lessen the attacks. Dr. T. Fay of Philadelphia reports that after two and a half years of observation on a group of patients treated by cutting down on the amount of fluid entering the body, he feels that fluids have an important part in bringing on epileptic attacks. Cutting down on the amount of fluids—tea, coffee, water, milk or others—has proven of great help in controlling the most violent seizures when all other methods have failed.

Ans so I am passing the above information along, as the number of unfortunate individuals suffering with epilepsy, runs into the hundreds of thousands

USEFUL ARTICLES AT CHURCH BAZAAR

Affair Held Under Auspices of St. James' Church Ladies' Aid.

The little store on Hunter street west, which is being used this winter for church bazaars, has been bright during the past two days with a lovely array of fancy and useful articles on sale by St. James' Ladies Aid. A constant stream of admiring visitors were in attendance both days, all day long.

The candy sale was very pretty with its dainty frilly paper boxes. There was a special note of attractive prettiness in the sale of home cooking, where many plum puddings in their Christmas wrapping were quickly sold. Preserved fruits and pickles, tarts, biscuits, pies and cakes were a few of the excellent articles on sale. Ladies in charge here were Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. Swanger, with a bevy of assistants.

Mrs. Cripps and Mrs. Church were in charge of the busy tea room.

Mrs. Sargent, the president, with Mrs. Wilson, were general convenors, while Mrs. J. H. Fry was the efficient treasurer.

The group leaders were in charge of their own separate sections. Mrs. J. Plunkett and Mrs. J. O. Fife (centre); Mrs. Pratt and Mrs. Atkinson (south, while Mrs. Sloan and Mrs. Davis had the north group. These sections boasted many lovely handmade quilts, luncheon sets and pillow slips, all daintily embroidered. Many fancy novelties were in evidence and everything sold at remarkably conservative prices.

A table of aprons, both fancy and utilitarian, drew forth much pleasant comment. Specially noted was a lace-edged linen vanity set with hand embroidery.

Although the ladies were somewhat handicapped for lack of space for display, there was not an idle moment, and this sale was accounted one of the best of the many annual bazaars held by St. James' Ladies Aid.

Caledonian Club Nominates Officers

The regular monthly business meeting of the Caledonian Club was held last evening in the Woodmen of the World Hall, with W. Petrie, president, in the chair. A very large representation of members were present and much business was discussed, also the nomination of officers for the ensuing year took place. An attractive program was drawn up for the balance of this month, including the children's Christmas tree on the 26th. A committee was formed to run this entertainment, with Mrs. J. Reid and Mrs. F. Castle as convenors. A committee was appointed to arrange a program and visit the Protestant Home and entertain the inmates some evening this month. Arrangements for the Burns' supper were also discussed. About ten new members were enrolled. The St. Andrew's Societies of Guelph, Ontario, and Richmond County, Quebec, sent greetings to the club, which were read by J. Wyllie, secretary.

After the business session refreshments were served and a social hour spent in dancing.

MAN BUILDS CHURCH ALONE

With no help whatever a man at Guernsey, England, has just completed the erection of a church. The work required five years. The edifice is believed to be the smallest in the world. It is 13 feet long, 16 feet high, 19 feet wide and has room for about a dozen persons. A tiny steeple contains a bell.

Western Champions Confident of Taking Titles

EVENTFUL GRIDIRON SEASON CLOSES TO-DAY WITH PLAYING OF DOUBLEHEADER AT TORONTO

Roughriders and Winnipeg Native Sons Expect to Win Dominion Titles.

MUDDY GRIDIRON.

Junior Title Game Will Start at 12.45 O'clock E. S. T. Sharp.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 6 (C.P.) — For the seventh time in Canadian football history, champions of Western Canada will line up on an Eastern gridiron to-day in an effort to crush the East's supremacy in the sport's Autumn pastime.

Regina Roughriders, pride of the Prairies, encounter Balmy Beach, double crowned champions, on a rain-soaked field at Varsity Stadium this afternoon in the season's farewell contest.

At the eleventh hour the elements relented, and instead of bitter cold the teams will probably play through occasional showers. This may prove a beneficial break for the Westerners, as one of the chief threats of the Beaches, both offensively and defensively is Ab Box, slimly built punter, who is seldom at his best on a muddy field.

Should Box fail to deliver the good in his kicking, the Roughriders will no doubt prove dangerous and there will be every possibility of the Grey Cup going west for the first time in history.

The old Gold and Blue will field the identical line-up that defeated Hamilton Tigers, "Big Four" champions, here last week in the Eastern Canada final. Al Ritchie will start the team that swept through the Prairie schedule.

Most of the Roughriders have been East before. Several of the squad represented Regina in the Canadian Junior final at St. Thomas, two years ago, when the Westerners won the crown. Nearly all of them journeyed East last Fall to tackle Hamiltons' Jungle Kings in a losing battle.

Junior Final.

Prior to the Senior contest Western Canada's Junior Monarchs will endeavor to capture the crown lost to St. Thomas last fall when Winnipeg Native Sons meet Toronto Argonauts.

It is the first time in the history of Canadian football that two champions have been decided on the same card, and according to the westerners the history making will continue when the breezy Lochinvars out o' the west chalk up a double victory.

Local critics, however, are somewhat skeptical. Beaches were good enough to capitalize on the breaks and beat Tigers. The latter trounced the Rough Riders on a pre-season tour; it is claimed Beaches should be crowned Canada's best at sundown.

The Junior situation is more difficult to analyze. The Native Sons undoubtedly have one of the best balanced twelves to reach the final, but then again, so have the Argonauts.

The latter have beaten better teams than the Winnipeg squad in reaching the final, and they have one of the finest read guards produced in the lower ranks in years.

Red Harper, efficient Hamiltonian will handle the junior title which starts at 12.45 E.S.T.. Hal Bailey, Ontario Rugby Union Secretary, will umpire, and Toots Lalonden, Toronto, will be head linesman.

JJJohnny McKelvey, Hamilton, will referee the senior tussle, with Reg. De Gruchy, Toronto, as umpire. Harry Hobbs, of Toronto, will be head linesman.

While the demand fro tickets earlier in the week indicated Eastern fans were placing too much confidence in the ability of the Beaches and Argos to score easy victories, the situation has changed somewhat with the arrival of the western outfits and the change to milder weather. If the rain holds off during the afternoon it is expected close to 10,000 fans will attend the championship doubleheader.

Tom Newman Takes Lead Over Clarke McConachy

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Tom Newman forged ahead again yesterday in the international billiards tournament, leaving his opponent, Clarke McConachy, far behind. Newman closed the day on the eve of the finish of the fifth match of the series with 33,004 points and in play. McConachy closed at 18,699 points.

Joe Davis, English champion, retained his lead over Walter Lindrum, the Australian "wizard." Davis closed with 22,418 and Lindrum with 21,470 points.

It is certain that Newman will have a victory to his credit, but the issue between Davis and Lindrum, who plays his strongest toward the end of a match, may still be in doubt. Lindrum, an almost phenomenal player, gives the other three porfessionals 7,000 points each at the beginning of each match.

TECUMSEHS BEATEN BY LEAGUE LEADERS

Roy Brothers' Men Defeated at London By Five to One Score.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 6. (CP)— As London Tecumsehs have failed to halt the winning streak of the league leading Buffalo Bisons, it now remains for Windsor Bulldogs to check the onward rush of the International League pace setters.

London went down before the well balanced Bison team by 5 to 1, at the Forest City last night and not only failed to gain in the point column on their opponents but also failed to pull away from their rivals for second place—Windsor. The Bulldogs meet Buffalo in the American city to-night and victory will place them in one van of the Tecumsehs.

COBOURG BOWLING OFFICERS.

COBOURG, Dec. 6.—Cobourg lady bowlers are all ready for the 1930 season ,and although their club has a large membership, are hoping to see it considerably augmented in 1931. At their annual meeting just held, the following officers were elected for the coming season: Honorary Presidents, Mrs. W. Jenkins, Mrs. R. K. Cooke, Mrs. Jas. McKennon, Mrs. H. Skitch, Mrs. Watson, President; Mrs. A. McKinnon; First Vice-President, Mrs. R. K. Cooke; Second Vice-President, Mrs. A. C. Melville; Recording Secretary, Mrs. C. W. Wilson; Corresponding Secretary, Miss E. Pender; Treasurer, Mrs. H. Hull; Games Committee, Mrs. Harvey Sproule, Mrs. F. Baker, Mrs. Melbourne.

The house that Jack built, they say, is going to the dogs. The afternoon that 93,000 people filled Boyles thirty acres gave Tex Rickard his food for thought that resulted in the final erection of Madison Square Garden. Tex was mighty proud of his massive temple of fistiana and the class of people that his attractions brought within its gates. Tex never closed a door on a newspaperman and that went even if he was in conference. The conference stopped until the inquisitive sport scribe was satisfied. That was probably the reason for the reams and reams of publicity that Tex got. But behind it all was a man that the masses couldn't get enough of, the Great Jack Dempsey. He and Rickard were a team. Now Rickard is gone, Jack is gone and the great arena on fifth avenue, New York, is having a tough time to make things go along smoothly. Not long ago the officials announced that they were going on a strict economy plan and as a result there is a very different atmposhere around the great arena. Not long ago I happened to be at a hockey game there and the general opinion around, was that if it wasn't for the game of puck chasing they would be forced to close it up. Yet surely when Chicago can spend $8,000,000 for a hockey arena, and Detroit $2,500,000 and Boston $3,000,000, there must be a lot of smart men who firmly believe that they can make a go of five months of hockey and come out with a profit. There doesn't seem to be any reason to prevent it being done in Gotham.

Paddlers-Collegians Reach Semi-final

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 6. (CP) Toronto Canoe Club and University of Toronto qualified for the semi-final of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association junior competition here last night. T.C.C., easily trounced Walkerville Tech by a score of 6 to 2, while Varsity beat last season's O.H.A. finalists, Niagara Falls, in a hard fought tussle, three to two.

VANCOUVER BEATEN

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 6.—In a last minute burst of power the Portland Buckaroos dislodged Vancouver from the top position in the Pacific Coast Hockey League standings here Thursday night, deefating the Lions 3—2.

CAMPBELLFORD TO MEET NORWOOD

First Exhibition Hockey Game of Season—Rink Opened For Skating Thursday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 6. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Campbellford commenced its official winter Thursday night when for the first time this fall Davidson's Arena was thrown open to the public and skating was indulged in.

The preparations for the rink were made early this year. The ground has been graded and levelled with the result that a fine sheet of ice is ready for the season's sport.

Several of the hockey teams were out and a practice was staged. Though the first time on the ice this season the boys showed to advantage. A full practice is scheduled for tonight however, when a line up will be chosen to travel to Norwood on Monday to clash in an exhibition game with that club. It is expected that Norwood will return the compliment on Friday.

Europeans have gained control of 920,000 acres in north Sumatra.

RANGERS MEET LEAFS IN QUEEN CITY TO-NIGHT

While Deadlocked Rivals, the Habitants Clash With Amerks in Manhattan.

MAROONS-SENATORS.

Blackhawks Likely to Increase Section Lead By Defeating Detroit Falcons.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 6 (C.P.) — Weakened by the loss of their youthful scoring ace, Charlie Conacher, Toronto Maple Leafs will be hard pressed to maintain theid leading position with Montreal Canadiens at the head of the Canadian group of the National Hockey League in this week-end's schedule of five games.

Toronto's rivals, the Flying Frenchmen of Montreal, encounter New York Americans in Manhattan on Sunday, while the second place Ottawa Senators meet the up and coming Maroons in Montreal on the Saturday night program.

Chicago speeding Blackhawks, boasting the best team record in the Calder loop, entertain Detroit Falcons and will probably increase their commanding lead in the American group, while the second place Boston Bruins battle the improving Quakers at Philadelphia.

The Leafs play the Rangers at Arena Gardens Saturday, and as both teams play fast, wide open hockey the fans are certain of a rare hockey treat.

It is the first meeting of the current schedule between the two teams, who are both showing rare form at present. Rangers were unlucky to lose their last contest against Canadiens in Montreal on Tuesday, and need a win badly to keep in the running for third place in the American group.

A close, rugged battle will likely develop in Montreal when the Maroons encounter the second place Senators. Victory for the latter plus defeat for Toronto and Canadiens will place the Ottawans on top in the Canadian group, but as the Maroons appear to be improving each time out they are expected to win and vacate the cellar position to the Americans.

Old Time Maroons.

In the opening game of the season at Ottawa the Senators proved masters of the Maroons at all stages, but at that stage the Montrealers were far from the team they have showed themselves to be to-day. Dunc Munro's old guard of Nels Stewart, Babe Seibert, and Hooley Smith have just about reached the peak of their form, and with the members of last year's Allan Cup winners fast acclimating themselves to professional company, the Maroons at last seemed headed for a definite objective.

It will be a case of a blasting offensive pitted against Stonewall defensive tactics when the Habitants clash with Eddie Gerard's Amerks. The latter, fighting to climb from last place in the group are certain to make matters interesting for Canadiens and it is unlikely Howie Morenz, league leading sharpshooter, will fatten his goal average to any large extent against the Worters-Dutton-Brydge defensive trio.

The teams have not met before this season, but it is certain to be a close struggle. Like all Canadian teams the Habitants find the heat of Madison Square Garden oppressive and it generally affects their play somewhat. In addition two of their players are on the injured list.

Boston's hard-hitting Bruins appear to have found a soft spot in the schedule in meeting the last place Quakers and they will no doubt take advantage of the encounter to consolidate their hold on the second run behind the Black Hawks. The Bostonians, after a mediocre start, have been improving steadily in recent games, but then again so have the Quakers.

SOCCER NOTES.

A special meeting of the local association will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, on Monday evening, Dec. 8, at eight o'clock prompt. All members of the executive are requested to be present so as to complete the arrangements for the concert on next Saturday evening.

In all probability Rev. Father Phalen will be present to present his new Charity Trophy to the association, to be played each year for charitable purposes. The old cup will be presented to him as a souvenir by the P. and D.F.A.

The same evening the members of the Canadian Packing soccer team will be presented with sweater coats as an emblem of their prowess on the field of sport and winning the soccer championship.

No award was made in the Whittier consolation cup.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the Cinderellas of football, the Balmy Beach outfit, has win themselves the Eastern Canadian honors, and while I had picked the Tigers all along to cop another title, I for I ain't sorry that the honors is being passed round. Them Balmy Beach boys deserve all the credit in the world for rising to the occasion and outscoring Mister Mike Rodden's crippled but still mighty machine. The Beachers has been playing to empty benches all season and attracting little attention, and it must be a wonderful feeling for them to find themselfs on top of the football heap.

At the same ime, don't overlook the Tigers when the bouquets is being handed out. When you read Mister Knut Rockne's laments about the long schedule his famous Notre Dame eleven has had this season and then stop and think that Mister Rockne has a squad of about 80 players to work with and their schedule is only 12 games, while the Tigers with only a score of players to start with has gone through a grind of 15 battles this fall, you gotta admit the Hamilton boys has worn well. 15 games in a season! Ain't dat sumpthin?

The Reginas is down east this Sat. to play Balmy Beach in the Canadian final, and while I'll string along with the Toronto outfit, I'm not going to be surprised if the lads from the west at last turn the trick. From all accounts the Regina gang is the best that has made the long hop, and while the Beachers at their best oughta take them, Mister Ted Reeves' playmates ain't always at their best. At times this season they've looked terrible, and if they pick Sat. p.m. for 1 of them displays it'll probably be just too bad, what I mean.

In the cash and carry hockey circuit, Mac, they ain't been a great deal to get excited over since last week, except the Chicago Hawks has at last been dropped, the Montreal Maroons doing the trick. Individual honors so far go to Mister Howie Morenz, the red-sweatered cyclone that burns up the centre ice area for the Canadiens, who has started out this year on a goal-scoring rampage that is going to keep the other riflemen in the circuit busy. You can take all your other forwards, but give me Mister Morenz for sheer sped, cleverness, gameness and durability. Up to Thurs. of this week Mister Morenz had driven the old pool-heel into the meshes 8 times, which, you gotta admit, is a nice start for the scoring honors.

Well, Mac, I hope you got your Christmas shopping, if any, well under way, and remember the boys that is out at work when you're doing your buying. They'll be out a long time if you don't buy home-made goods.

Sportfully yours,
A WISE CRACKER.

FORGER IN COURT PLEADS GUILTY

A. Ringer Trapped in Toronto Bank Through Clever Work By Accountant.

WANTED FOR THEFT.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 6.—Arrested in the manager's office at the Dominion Bank, Dundas and Richmond streets, here at noon yesterday, A. Ringer, Toronto, believed by local police to be responsible for a series of cheque forgeries in this Province during the last year, pleaded guilty to a forgery charge here to-day involving $34. He was remanded eight days for sentence. Ringer is also wanted by Toronto police on a charge of theft from His Majesty's mails.

A telegram was received by local police from Toronto headquarters last night to hold Ringer for Toronto, where he is wanted on charges dating during the past month and previous hereto.

Clever work on the part of G. K. Bryson, the accountant at the Dominion Bank, was responsible for the arrest yesterday of Albert Ringer, Toronto, as he attempted to cash a cheque with the name of A. J. Kearns affixed as the signature. Recognising the hand-writing on the cheque as being similar to one that appeared on a check about a year ago, Mr. Bryson went to the manager's office and looked up a circular with forged signatures.

Believing the writing to be the same he then communicated with R. B. Mannix, manager of the Bank, who in turn called the Detective Department. The man was called into the manager's office and the door closed behind him. Detective Inspector Thomas Bolton arrived in a few moments and placed the stranger under arrest.

WARSAW FARMER SUFFERS FIRE LOSS

Barn Owned By Patrick Condon Destroyed Together With Season's Crop and Machinery.

WARSAW, Dec. 6—(Examiner Correspondence)—A fire which had gained considerable headway before being noticed, destroyed the barn of Patrick Condon, together with the season's crop and most of the machinery, last Saturday.

Mr. Condon, who lives alone, was absent at the time of the fire and the building is so placed that it was not easily seen by neighbors. Mr. Condon had not been in the place where the fire started for some days and it is thought that someone dropped a cigarette butt on some inflammable place, while stealing gasoline.

The stable and house were saved. Some insurance is carried on the barn.

Production of airplanes and aero engines in England is near a record peak.

COMEDY SOUND NOVELTY NEWS

CHURCH CONCERT WELL RECEIVED

Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul' Church Performs Double Function.

TEA AND MUSICAL.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St Paul's Presbyterian Church had a double bill to fill yesterday—in the afternoon a tea, and from 6 to 8 o'clock they catered to many in the form of a cafetena dinner. A goodly crowd foregathered to sip tea and "ha'e a bit crack" during the two or three hours of mid-afternoon and the coffers were enriched to a great extent therefrom.

Cafeteria Dinner.

This form of service appealed to the ladies as a novel method to "raise the wind" financially, and the idea was carried out last night. The array of the dinner menu was temptingly appetising, and from "pratties" to pie was picked up by each as he or she passed on, to be stopped by the "cashier" and the contents of the plates "priced." The patrons proceeded from the Guild Room to the Primary Rooms, and there at tables, quietly and peacefully enjoyed their meal. Without exception the menu received 'par excellence' by all who partook of the good things.

The attention given by the willing band of helpers, who need not be named here as their work is remembered, was no mean part of the proceedings. On each table was a spray of small pink 'mums, and Japanese dress predominated since the atmosphere of the whole affair was Japanese.

About the Booths.

Following the dinner, the patrons proceeded to the Sabbath School Hall upstairs to while away the time of waiting for the concert, with a friendly chat, or paying a visit to the several booths located in the alcoves. Here were country produce, fancy work, novelties, home-made cooking, mincemeat, candy (Mission Band), and a Girls' Club booth — seven in all, and each did a fine business, almost every table being cleared of the articles specialized.

Japanese Concert.

Again the choir assisted in the task of the Ladies' Aid—this time, under the direction of Martin B. Chenhall, putting on the Garden Tea-house scene from "The Geishs," that tuneful work by Stephen Jones, so dear to the hearts of Old Countrymen especially. The hall was a mass of Japanese setting, with decorations of wistaria, sunshades, lanterns, 'mums, palms and ferns. In addition, artificial flowers and tall vases and equipment were loaned by Routley's and Jack McNabb; with native nick-nacks, tables, lamps and small furniture pieces from the land of the apple blossom kindly loaned by Mrs. James Dutton, Sr. These all gave a beautiful touch to the platform. The ladies in charge of the booths were dressed a la Jap fashion.

Then appeared the interlocutor Takomin (John Anderson), with "scroll," Martin B. Chenhall at the piano; with slow march the guide ascended the platform, took his seat, and by taps on the gong announced the various artists to appear in their allotted roles, vocally or otherwise. Thus was part one ushered in, and with quick and interesting manner the solos and choruses were rendered with marked ability. Takomin called on Kittie (Mignon Mayneord), Chaya (Mrs. Olive Dutton), and Kayo (Mrs. Grace Munro) for solo work. Three sailors rolled in (George Coleman, Fairfax; Bob Cobbold, Bill Salt; and Harold Coulson, Cunningham), and with patter and song entertained the audience.

The geishas were by this time on the platform, singing their chorus. "Geishas Are We," and Wun-Hi (Bill Grieevs) appears, to set matters right with his English, with an invitation to "an Asiatic spree." The tars are soon seated beside Juliette (Bertha Hill), Molly (Lily Kay), and Mimosa San (Mary Sedgwick). The favorite song, "Chin, Chin Chinaman," was rendered by Wun-Hi, with choir.

A lull, and twelve bells are sounded, and with short step an improvised high "chair" (advertising salmon week) is borne in upon the shoulders of Jack Clayton, Harry Chenhall, Adam Sands, and Dion Snelgrove, with Horace Hope and John Fowler as attendants, these bearers all in coolie garb. In the chair was Adam Sands as the Mikado, making his tour of the show. This ended part one, bringing a short intermission.

Second Part—Auction.

The second section of the scene depicts the failure of Wun-Hi's teahouse, and the sale of Mimosa San (for a song), Juliette (50,000 yen) and Molly (for 40,000 yen), with strong objections from the tars on their ignominious disposal at the auction block. It turns out all right in the end for everyone concerned.

Musical Numbers.

Several musical numbers are introduced: Bill Salt tells of travels in foreign lands; Nora and Dora (Mrs. Board and Mrs. Coleman) are heard in a duet; Miss O Hana San (Olive Cullen) sings of "Love, Love"; Molly and Fairfax exemplify the "Kiss"; Cunningham tells of "Dear, Dear, Dear"; "Flirtation" is explained by Wun-Hi and Juliette; and the choir, with lights low, "Sleep, Sleep, Sleep" with a "Lullaby."

The geishas are sold, and the sailors render "Jolly Jack Tars Are We," with chorus by the choir, who aided splendidly along this line. The dresses of the choristers were pretty and attractively Japanese in style, ladies and gentlemen. At the lantern, too, was Hurrell Dodds, giving the "spotlights" with great effectiveness. "The King" was the concluding number of an excellent performance.

The guiding mind of the afternoon and evening affair was that of Mrs Harry Morgan, along with a band of willing and courteous workers — and the co-operation all spelled success throughout a busy day, not forgetting Caretaker McKee. Mrs. John Anderson was treasurer.

Burnt River Hunters To Stage Wolf Drive

LINDSAY, Dec. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—Residents of Burnt River and district, aroused to the seriousness of the wolf menace, have organized to exterminate the pack which is causing so much uneasiness. Since the beginning of the week two large wolves were shot close to the village, while two more were snared. The hunting party is determined to exterminate the entire pack before Spring.

MOGULS HOPING FOR PEACE PACT

Non-draft Class "AA" Leagues Appoint Standing Committee For Negotiations.

NO PLAYER DEALS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6. (CP)—Minor league baseball clans were headed toward New York and the joint meeting of the National and American Leagues to-day. Some of them hoped to dispose of ball players they could not sell at the annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. Others were directly interested in a settlement of th troublesome draft question and hoped that a solution would be found at New York during the major league meetings.

It was understood that an informal conference between the majors and the minorsw ould be held Monday at New York on the draft question. The three non-draft class "AA" leagues, the American Association, International and Pacific Coast leagues, already rave appointed a standing committee of nine empowered to act for them should the majors evince a desire for further negotiations. The other classifications, A. B. C., and D. leagues, also were understoo dto have named representatives and all are expected to be in New York next week.

Just who would represent the majors could not be reached. In fact, there was no definite assurance that any formal invitation to a conference had been issued. It appeared rather sessions merely had indicated that a war between the majors and the non-draft minors was not to be desired, especially at this time, and that a further conference between the opposing groups might develop a compromise.

That a settlement was near was the consensus among the minor league officials. The non-draft leagues apparently are ready to accept the universal draft provided the draftp rice is fixed at around $16,000, provided that the minors are permitted to retain ap layer for two or three years before he becomes eligible for the draft, and provided that them ajors agree to abandon their policy of signing players from the colleges and the sand lots, the two sources from which the small minors used to be able to pick up their playing talent at a reasonable price.

Risko Wins Decision Over Jimmy Maloney

BOSTON, Dec. 6. (CP)—Johnny Risko, veteran Cleveland heavy-weight, became one up on an old-time rival here last night when he closely shaded Jimmy Maloney, Boston battler who surprised the world by outpointing Primo Carnera, in their rubber engagement at the Boston garden.

If draw decision were permitted in this state, such a verdict would have been rendered, so even was the battle. Risko staged a wild rally in the ninth, when he pulled up even with his rival and his better in-fighting tactics in the tenth and last round gave him the decision. The contest drew 13,000, the largest crowd that boxing has attracted here in many months.

Blues Defeat Reds In Carpet Bowling

The U-B-One Carpet Bowling League of Mark street were at their best on Wednesday evening. This was the second game of the series between the Reds and the Blues, the Blues coming out winners by a close margin. It would be hard to determine places on Wednesday night's game as both sides showed some very brilliant play.

Special not was taken of some very excellent shots by G. Record and W. Gamble. Another very noticeable shot by G. Tremaine at a critical stage of the game drew comments from both sides.

Among the topnotchers are S. Whittaker, Hugh McWha, Jim Hunter, Jim Ellis and Charlie Profit whose very able play at times saved the day for their teams.

CARS COLLIDE.

The icy condition of the pavement caused one motor accident yesterday afternoon in which a car driven by Wesley Kelly and another by Jack Gimblett collided at the corner of Brock and George street. Kelly was halfway across the George street intersection of Brock when Gimblett's car, proceeding south on George street, skidded into him. Damage was slight.

GIRL GUIDES COLLECT TOYS

The Girl Guides of the city are making an effort to collect toys for Christmas giving to needy children. These will be mended, if necessary, by the Boy Scouts, and distributed in time for the celebration of Christmas.

Anyone having toys to give away, old or new, is asked to telephone to Miss Isabel Connelly, Girl Guide Captain, at 585 King street; telephone 1290W.

CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND OPENED FOR NEEDY FAMILIES IN CITY

The Examiner Will Be Glad to Receive Donations, Food or Clothing.

TELEPHONE 1600.

The Examiner wishes to acknowledge with sincere thanks the kindness of several of the citizens in contributing to its relief work. Suits of men's clothes have been received, in answer to an appeal in last night's issue from W. Mantell, 608 Chamberlain street, T. Firth, 307 Frederick avenue and A. Hartshorn, 555 Bethune street. There is also a quantity of toys from a number of little girls in the West End who had a toy party yesterday at the home of little Betty Hughes, Weller street. (There will be sent to the crippled small children of the city). Also a quantity of vegetables brought in last night by an unknown and generous donor, and clothing from J. Donaldson, 174 Stewart street, J. Carter, 33 Lansdowne street, P. Pirie, 284 Lansdowne street, J. H. Rowe, 561 Bethune street, G. Barton, 480 Driscoll Terrace, and T. Crozier, 520 Elm street.

The Examiner will be glad to get any parcels or donations of food or money, to its Christmas Cheer Fund. This is a fund that is collected annually by The Examiner, and distributed equally between charitable organizations of the city, or given, in the case of individual need that is known to the paper. The need is great in the city this year and many men are walking around with unsuitable clothing, with no hope of enough work to give their family a comfortable Christmas, and, in many cases, with real, desperate want and sickness in the home. All organizations, including the city relief and unemployment fund, are making every possible effort to assist in every way, but the private individual in the comfotrable, secure home can do much to help by individual contributions, large or small.

Telephone 1600 and we will get what you have and see that the right people are benefitted by it.

W. A. PRESENTS MISSION PLAY

Pleasing Program Given in Parish Hall of St. John's Church.

ENACT PARTS WELL.

On Wednesday evening the Junior W. A. of St. John's church, presented a very successful little Japanese missionary play, in the Parish Hall.

The chairman of the evening was Rev. E. R. James, who made a few pleasing remarks congratulating the superintendent of the W. A., (Mrs. Stanger) and the assistants, (Mrs. J. D. Craig and Mrs. J. Colles.)

The play, "Alice Through the Post Card," was based on the well known story of "Alice Through the Looking Glass. Alice (Phyllis Pitchford), a rather thoughtless Canadian girl of a missionary, is asked by Mary (Rosamond Castle) to send a friendly greeting to a little Japanese girl by means of a post card. While writing the card she wishes she could travel with it and visit Japan. A post card fairy (Joan Eldred) tells her she may enter Japan through her card. Upon entering she finds herself in a strange Japanese room, where she meets some old friends, her former Japanese doll (Jane Turner), her fan (Grace Lundy), Japanese serviettes (Hazel Maxwell), her kimona (Nina Land,) the matting on the bedroom floor (Marcella Dorington), the lantern from the porch (Isobel Shurety), a chysanthemum from the garden (Margaret Lund)—all of whom she finds are native of Japan.

To soft music then comes a parade led by four guards carrying Japanese lanterns on slender poles (Pat Thompson, W. Barns, Edith Lowes and Luella Munroe), then the Lord Chancellor carrying his mace (Gertrude Leemings.) The tea cup queen (Daisy Castle) in elaborate costume, with gold crown and fan, her ladies in waiting (Phyllis Pink and Ethel Stabler) followed, carrying trays, and then a bodyguard of soldiers (Norme Gray, Dorothy Gibbs, Jean Coleman, Irene Donnly and Rose Worth, in fantastic Japanese dress and carrying broad swords.

The queen, after questioning Alice about her thoughtlessness, consigns her to a dungeon to which she is taken by the jailer (Gordon Pink.) Just then O'Hana San (Dot Graham) runs in to say she has not been thoughtless but has sent her post card. Alice is released and everyone is happy.

The play was followed by a short program consisting of recitations by Margaret Pitchford, and solos by Donald Perks and Gerald Perks which were much enjoyed.

At the conclusion of the program all were invited to the basement where dainty refreshments were served by a committee composed of Mrs. Leemings, Mrs. Budd, Mrs. Bridge and Mrs. Turner.

ALL SAINTS' W. A. PACKS 'CHEER' BALE

Women's Auxiliary Sends Clothing Annually to Lac La Ronge, Saskatchewan.

The bale which the Women's Auxiliary of All Saints' Church sends annually to Lac La Ronge, Saskatchewan, was packed by the ladies this week, in the Guild room of the church. An outfit for a little Indian girl is sent in this bale and much credit was given to Mrs. Justin, the Dorcas secretary, and her assistant, Mrs. Stanley Harris, for the excellence of the supplies provided.

The Rev. J. D. Paterson was present and the meeting concluded with a pleasant social hour and the service of refreshments. The meeting ended the society's activities for this year.

On January 6th, a Missionary meeting is planned, when the speaker will be the Rev. H. J. Wei of Kaifung, Honan, China, where a former member of All Saints Church Miss Greta Clark, is stationed. Mr. Wei is at present taking a post-graduate course at Wycliffe College, Toronto, and expects to return to China next summer.

MRS. J. BACON IS ELECTED PRESIDENT

Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church at Annual Meeting.

Mrs. J. Bacon was re-elected as president of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church at the annual meeting held on Thursday evening in the ladies' parlor.

The meeting was opened with a short talk on Church History, given by the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave. Mrs. F. M. Dela Posse, teacher of the class, spoke on the same subject, and it was decided to continue the study of the church history book.

Splendid reports were given by the officers and the treasurer stated that about $600 had been made in various ways during the past year.

Winter activities were planned, including sewing meetings for relief work and another dance for the same purpose, to be held on January 8th.

Officers of the class for the coming year will be: Mrs. J. Bacon, president; Mrs. T. Groombridge, vice-president; Mrs. G. Pakenham, secretary; Mrs. W. Hake, treasurer; Miss Lily Bacon, organist.

Convenors of committees were appointed: Mrs. F. Shurety, refreshments; Mrs. Stanger, visiting; Mrs. Bassett, sewing; Mrs. W. Davis and Mrs. J. Vollans, relief; Mrs. G. Collis and Mrs. W. Hake, friendly fund; Mrs. A. Pink, entertainment, and Mrs. F. A. Dainton, press reporter.

WOMAN'S YELL FOILS HOLD-UP

Toronto Youth Rushes From Store Into Arms of Mounted Officer.

PISTOL WAS USED.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 6 (C.P.). — An attempt to hold up a cigar store was frustrated yesterday when the wife of the proprietor ran screaming to the street, and the would-be robber emerged from the store into the arms of the law.

The prisoner gave his name as Carl Johnston, Toronto. He entered the store of Abraham Bonza and demanded money at the point of a revolver. Mrs. Bonza was in the back of the shop as Johnston herded her husband there. The bandit ordered her to give him the money. She said it was in the cash register, so together they returned to the front shop.

While Johnston was prying into the till the woman dashed to the street screaming and Mounted Officer Robert Harvey got off his horse and was on the scene in time to collar Johnston as he left the store.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

Marcia came in shortly after. There entered with her an extraordinarily fine figure of a man in middle age whose hair was as black as Marcia's and whose eyes and complexion were evidently the inheritance of the dusky face and the lean body under its small proportions.

He bowed politely when Marcia introduced him. His name was Fargeson.

The second man, introduced to us respectfully enough as Fargeson that Jean almost gasped. He was not more than two inches taller than Jean and would have weighed little more than half as much. His hair, his brows, his eyes were black as night. His nose was thin and hooked, his mouth a sharp slash. He carried a black derby in one hand and a cane in case under the other arm.

This Mr. Digger. Mr. Zelbo, Marcia said quickly, as if it didn't really matter.

Slim for short, Mr. Digger put in his vote. His smile was more like an attack of facial paralysis. His mouth drawing up on one side and the eyes on the same side almost closing. After shaking with Mr. Fargeson, he added pleasantly, "You'll be thinking Slim Big pers doesn't belong. But he can kill" confidentially. "Slim, the hard will deliver the goods. You don't see Mr. Fargeson bringing in nothing dry now? But look at the — He held aloft the leather case dramatically. "Ten bucks a point. That's what it costs, and . . ."

The patient smile Fargeson had worn at the beginning of this monologue faded slowly. Now he held up a big hand commandingly. "Shut up, Slim. Put the stuff down somewhere and beat it."

For a moment Digger bridled up at the big man before him scowling. But suddenly he wheeled about, set his burden in a chair and walked out of the room.

Marcia and Fargeson exchanged knowing smiles as the sharp click of the lock told them that the outside hall door had been opened and shut.

"The worm turns," said Marcia. "I'd keep my eye on Slim if I were you, Bill. He only bares his teeth now, but some day he may — bite."

Fargeson's low chuckle scoffed at the thought. "Why talk about nothing?" he asked. His green eyes moved appraisingly over Jean. "Is Miss Melba another of Claise's — protegees?"

Something in his manner angered Jean. She stared at him challengingly for an instant, then turned to Marcia. "I'm — tired," she said quietly. "May I go to my room?"

Marcia glanced at Fargeson quickly. But she was smiling again when she slipped an arm about Jean's shoulders and walked with her along the hall to a large bedroom at the back of the apartment.

When at last she was alone, Jean fell across the bed and covered her eyes with her arm. She was utterly, utterly miserable. Her brain was a maelstrom of confusion, suspicion, regret, loneliness, fear, anger — wonder. Who was Marcia White? Who was Fargeson? Who was that little viper, Diggers? Where did they fit into the world of Sandy Clause?

Her door was half open. She got up and closed it quietly, then felt her way across the dark room to the one window on the south side.

Instantly her eyes caught the gay flicker of a star low in the heavens, and her heart gave a little jump. "My wishing star," she said to herself, "I almost wish I could take that wish back."

If only she might walk out of the apartment without having to explain. If — but why couldn't she?

She opened her bedroom door and listened. Not a sound. She ran back to the bed, caught up her hat and purse, and returned to the door.

Softly she made her way to the door that would let her out of the apartment, and glanced nervously toward the open living-room door. What she saw sent a cold chill along her spine. Fargeson held Marcia in his arms, his lips pressed to hers. They were in plain view, but only Fargeson's face was toward her. A wave of relief swept over her as she realized that his eyes were closed.

Quickly she passed into the corridor. But she dared not close the door. A false click would give her away.

Breathlessly, she darted along the corridor and down the stairs. The elevator was coming up. She waited until it had passed and continued her hurried descent.

But when she came to the lobby and was about to open the door, she heard someone coming. She dropped down between a radiator and the door and waited.

A man came in, was about to punch the elevator button when he apparently changed his mind, and started up the stairs. When he came to the half-landing and turned, Jean saw his face.

It was Sandy!

Jean thought of the scene she had just witnessed in the apartment, of the door she had left partly open, of Marcia's three facts of life, of her incidental, "Never be content with one man."

Then she was running again, through the door, and out into the night.

CHAPTER SIX

Jean had no idea how many weary miles she had walked but when the clear gray dawn found it way into that corner of Central Park adjacent to Columbus Circle, she rose from an indescribably hard bench, stretched her limbs vigorously and waved a pleasant greeting to the new day.

Promptly she dropped to the bench again and with the aid of a small handkerchief, comb, powder puff and lipstick tried to make herself presentable. The result, viewed in the little compact mirror was ridiculous. But she felt the need of a hot bath and fresh clothes.

"If a miracle doesn't happen pretty quick," she told herself, "I'll be sending for Phil long before Christmas morning." At the moment Phillip could have had her for the asking. She wondered vaguely why, when she had had the opportunity of marrying a perfectly acceptable young man, he had preferred to go adventuring. Hunger and weariness take the romance out of adventure.

At 7 o'clock Jean stood in Times Square and wondered if one's feet could really drop off. She was painfully tired and lack of food had brought on a feeling of great emptiness. Since yesterday morning, she reflected, she had had an egg sandwich and a cup of coffee.

All about her newsboys screamed at the top of their voices. Gradually she realized that their cries were identical.

"Extra-extra! Bootleg King murdered! Read all 'bout de . . ."

Thought Jean: "They can't murder the whole royal family for all of me. What I'd like to know is, how many good jobs are listed in that paper?"

There was but one way to settle that point. With a little prayer, she took the two pennies, her worldly capital, from her purse, dropped them into the open palm of a newsboy, and took the paper he offered.

"Well," she mused, turning to the classified pages, "I've invested my fortune. May the market bear up under the strain."

GIRL wanted, for packing room must be strong and willing to work overtime when necessary. Quality Clothiers W. 38th St. near 8th Ave.

Because it sounded like the sort of a job that any girl could get, Jean marked it as target No. 1. There were countless ads for maids, cooks and housekeepers after that. Then:

STENOGRAPHER wanted, must know something of bookkeeping, not over 19, preferably new in the city, best of references required. Apply I.P.P. offices, Garner Building, Fifth Ave.

"Well," said Jean to herself, "cut, dried and laid out for Jean Melba in every regard, but . . ." she shrugged her shoulders gently "too good to be true. There'll be a thousand girls for that job and some of them real stenographers."

Nevertheless she marked this ad also and continued down the column. But there was nothing else.

A policeman directed her to 38th Street, and she found the Quality Clothiers to be housed in a narrow, yellow brick structure between countless other narrow, yellow brick structures.

A sharp featured, bald-headed man met her just inside the door. He said at once: "You answering the ad?"

Jean nodded, smiling hopefully.

"We got a girl two hours ago. What time you think we go to work round here?"

She got out as quickly as she could and shook herself as if to rid herself of the atmosphere of the place. "One narrow escape," she thought. "Think of working for a buzzard like that!"

Three policemen, a rubber-neck barker, and a newsboy contributed the total of information that finally brought her to the Garner Building on Fifth Avenue.

The elevator operator let her out on the fifth floor. On the glass of every door along the corridor were the three small, gilt letters, "I.P.P." A door at the very end of the corridor drew her attention by the attentional "Entrance."

She knocked cautiously. Almost instantly the door opened and a blonde young man asked politely: "Yes . . ?"

Jean said timidly: "You advertised?"

"Come in, won't you? You say we advertised for what?"

"For a stenographer." She took the paper from under her arm, opened it and indicated the advertisement.

His puzzled expression told her that he was hearing of it for the first time. But even in the face of a second failure within the hour she was conscious of the sturdy physique and clean-cut features of the young man before.

"I hope there isn't a mistake," he said presently, "but — You see, I'm in charge of personnel here and the truth is, we don't need a stenographer. Besides, I didn't put the ad in . . . I wonder . . ."

Jean said quickly: "It's quite all right. There must be a mistake but . . . I don't mind . . ."

"No, no. Don't go please. There's just a possibility that the Director ordered the ad. If you can wait just a minute, I'll call his apartment."

Jean dropped into a convenient chair and waited while he went into another room. Her heart was heavy. She simply had to have a job to-day . . . and money, or — or what? She wondered. As a last resort she could go back to Phil, beaten, and humiliated, and disillusioned . . . Oh, no! She knew in her heart that she would never do that. Somehow she would manage to hold on until Christmas. Phil would never know what she had been through. He would just come at her call . . . and take her back to Kelsey on Christmas Day.

Idly she turned the pages of the newspaper in which she had invested her wealth. The front page screamed the "Bootleg King Murdered" which had so excited the newsboys. She let her eyes wander casually through the startling headline:

GANGSTER KILLED IN UPTOWN APARTMENT OF PRETTY YOUNG ARTIST

The young man came back wearing an expression of deep concern. "I can't understand it," he told her quietly. "His man says he hasn't been to the apartment since early last evening."

Jean tucked the paper under her arm once more and rose to go.

The young man asked quickly: "Couldn't you come back later? He may be in at any time."

She nodded. "Yes, of course, but," The door, she saw, was opening slowly. She stepped to one side and waited.

She heard the young man behind her say suddenly: "Oh, here he is now." But it was a voice from a distance, for her whole being was focused upon the pale, drawn features of the tall figure in the doorway.

She drew back almost imperceptibly. "Sandy . . !" She hardly knew her own voice. "You're . . . you're ill!"

Sandy said quietly, "I was afraid you wouldn't come . . ." Then: "Miss Melba, Lionel . . Mr. Gilman, Miss Melba."

Lionel Gilman said, "Miss Melba came to answer an ad. Not knowing anything about it, I had just tried to get you at your apartment."

"Yes," said Sandy hesitantly, "I was called out of town last evening. See that the ad doesn't run again, will you, Lionel? It's in every New York paper; or ought to be . . . By the way, Miss Melba isn't coming in as a stenographer. She will work with me on the miniature baby distribution."

Jean thought: "Miniature baby distribution? What in the name of heaven . . . ?"

Lionel, equally confused, though for different reasons, nevertheless nodded acquiescence.

Sandy crossed the floor and opened a broad mahogany door. "Will you come in for a few minutes, Miss Melba?"

When he had closed the door behind them, Sandy gave Jean a chair and himself sat on a corner of his desk. Jean watched his worn, haggard face, and thought he had aged five years since the night before.

Presently he asked quietly: "What time did you leave Marcia's apartment last night, Miss Melba?"

"Why . . . I'm not sure. It couldn't have been more than two hours after you had gone," Jean told him. And after a moment "I suppose you're wondering why I left . . . I'm afraid I don't know myself, except that . . . Oh, I wasn't easy there, that's all. I preferred to be out in the street."

Sandy seemed not to hear her. "Were you there," he asked, "when Fargeson called?"

She nodded reluctantly.

"Then . . . you were in the apartment when . . . when Fargeson was murdered?"

"What?" She got to her feet slowly and put a hand on his arm. "Fargeson was . . . murdered? There, last night? Oh, no!"

He reached for the paper she held under her arm and opened it on the desk. "Haven't you read that?"

With blurred eyes she reread the headline:

GANGSTER KILLED IN UPTOWN APARTMENT OF PRETTY YOUNG ARTIST

And then, what she had not read before:

"Big Bill Sampson Shot to Death While Visiting Marcia White."

Jean said uncertainly- "Big Bill Sampson?"

"Alias Fargeson, apparently," Sandy nodded. "But Fargeson or Sampson, the police are trying to find the murderer and it's inevitable that they'll want to know who was in the apartment at the time."

The question he had asked a few moments before came to her now with all its significance.

She shook her head firmly. "No," she told him: "I wasn't in the apartment when Fargeson was killed. When I slipped out" she had been about to say that when she slipped out Fargeson was holding Marcia in his arms and kissing her; but she finished abruptly: "Fargeson was still there, alive."

"I see," He drummed on the desk with his fingers. "You understand, I'm trying to determine if you could prove an alibi in the event that the police should learn that you were there earlier in the evening. Could you?"

"You mean could I prove that Fargeson was alive when I left the apartment?"

"Yes," nodding.

Jean said very, very slowly: "I could . . . provided you could prove that Fargeson was still alive when you went back to the apartment."

She saw him start, nervously, saw the blood rush to his face. "I . . . I don't understand," he said quietly.

"I mean," Jean told him bluntly, "that I had just come down the stairs into the lobby when you came in from the street and walked up the stairs."

For a long moment he stared at her curiously, half angrily. But presently his expression softened and he said evenly: "But I didn't go back to the apartment after I left you and Marcia."

Jean said nothing, but she felt suddenly weak, and afraid.

ALBERT McILMOYLE RESIGNS POSITION

Municipal Council For Township of Smith Holds Meeting at Bridgenorth.

The municipal council of the township of Smith met at the clerk's office, Bridgenorth, on Tuesday, Dec. 2 when Reeve H. D. Coons presided.

A communication was received from Albert McIlmoyle, resigning his position as collector of taxes for Smith township owing to illness.

The resignation was accepted with regret, and the clerk was instructed to write a letter expressing councils appreciation of Mr. McIlmoyle's services in the past and hoping for his speedy and complete recovery.

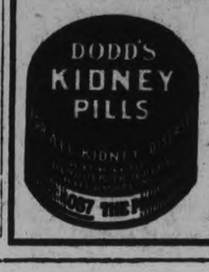
By-law No. 884 appointing a collector of taxes for Smith township for the balance of the year 1930 as from December 1 received its several readings and was passed. J. A. Middleton submitted the names of Messrs. W. C. Steinkrauss and Dr. J. E. Middleton as his bondsmen in his duties as collector of taxes. It was moved that Messrs. W. C. Steinkrauss and Dr. J. E. Middleton be accepted as suitable bondsmen for the tax collector and that the clerk prepare a new bond, and complete the same by securing the signatures of the above named bondsmen along with that of J. A. Middleton.

The clerk was instructed to have insurance Policy No. Bu. 11262, interior robbery, covering Albert McIlmoyle endorsed to cover J. A. Middleton for the balance of the term of the policy.

The clerk was instructed to notify the Royal Bank of Canada at Peterborough of the resignation of A. M. McIlmoyle as collector of taxes for Smith township and of the appointment of J. A. Middleton in his stead for the balance of the year's duties as such collector. The clerk was asked to have a notice inserted in The Examiner advising the ratepayers of Smith of the change in the office of collector.

Council adjourned to meet on Dec. 15, 10 a.m. or on the call of the reeve if necessary.

She Was Able to Resume Her Work
By Giving Dodd's Kidney Pills a Trial



"I work quite a lot out of doors and any heavy lifting seems to pull the backbone apart," writes Mrs. Boyles, RR. No. 1, Cavan, Ont. "About seven years ago I suffered terribly. I couldn't bend to pick up anything. Liniments did not seem to do any good so I remembered my father had used Dodd's Kidney Pills for his Lumbago and I tried them and it is hardly necessary to say I found relief. A few weeks ago I felt my back strained and could not do any work until I purchased some Dodd's Kidney Pills."

23 CRIPPLED CHILDREN EXAMINED BY DR. D. E. ROBERTSON, TORONTO

Rotary Club Hold Clinic in City in Aid of Crippled Children.

MANY WILL BE HELPED.

A tiny fair-haired boy, two and one half years old, sat on a cot in the Peterborough Medical and Surgical Clinic rooms yesterday afternoon, and looked aimlessly up at his mother as she told the doctor about him. Her patient, young face crumpled up slightly, but she didn't cry when the physician gave her the verdict after an examination. The child will never be better and in a few years, to safeguard the other children in the home, he should be sent to a Home for Incurables. He had whooping-cough when he was eleven months old and the resultant hemorrhage of a blood-vessel in his brain devastated his mentality and withered up his right arm and leg. Nothing can be done for him.

Then there was the little lad of nine years, whose chief ailment was too much solicitude on the part of his relatives. An anxious-faced young aunt listened, almost unbelievingly, when the doctor shook his head and said there was nothing wrong with the boy, except a desire to walk-pigeon-toed.

"It is the strong foot that turns in a little bit. It was only after I graduated in medicine that I knew that none of us should walk with our toes turned out. It isn't natural", the physician told her. So the smiling-faced boy walked out, freed from the fear that had brought him there.

They were only two of the twenty-three children who were brought to the Clinic yesterday for examination by Dr. D. E. Robertson, chief surgeon of the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto, who came down to examine the children that the Rotary Club is looking after here. A careful survey of the city has been made by Dr. A. Moir, a chairman of the Crippled Children's work for the Rotary Club, who was an attentive assistant to Dr. Robertson yesterday, while R. J. Kidd, who is also active for the club, in the same work, came in during the afternoon.

The Lucky Pigeon-Toer.

All afternoon the expert visitor looked these children over and asked questions and gave quick, careful decisions. Some, like the fortunate small Charlie, he of the pigeon-toes, were dismissed as being quite all right or else open to treatment which would mend them, almost as good as new, and others, like the little baby above referred to, were branded as incurable. For most of them, however, the kindly doctor held out hope.

They ranged in ages from nineteen months to over-twenty years, the latter a girl suffering from birth paralysis stretching on through the painful years from time when she was eighteen months old. For her, there is no promised cure.

Nor was there any hope for the tiny lad, one of five children, who will never be able to walk and talk and think as other little boys do, and whose life may go on in the same manner for many a long day.

Harry, just two years old, his litte face puckered up in manifest reproach of the humans who stood around and gazed at him, in all the chill of his birthday suit, had made the best of a bad job. Unable to walk because of spinal meningitis, he has developed a habit of sitting down and walking about in that fashion, bouncing along like a good one.

Ray, just four, is one of those strange children called Mongolians, whose little slant eyes and knob head, with an indent where the bridge of the nose should be, give his face a queer Oriental cast. He is a good, happy little child who will never be a nuisance and never care much about anything that goes on about him. His little tummy is distended constantly by the large amount of water he craves for and drinks in such quantites.

Little Mary, who walks on the ball of her foot, can be cured by a simple operation; Katherine, only five, is a pretty, bright little thing with a Coleen Moore bob and little crooked knees. She walks on the heels of her ice-cold feet.

Then there was the tearful little Tom, seven years old, who had diphtheria last September and a resultant paralysis that sends him scuttling over the floor in sideways fashion. He has big dark eyes and an active disposition that is the despair of his mother, who regards the doctor's advice of keeping him in bed as almost impossible of accomplishment. But he has a weak heart that races far too fast for his little bony frame, and something will have to be done with him, just like little Molly, who will have to go into a frame before her poor little bent back can grow straight. It went curved so suddenly, that tubercular spine, and this dainty little child will have to face an operation in six months.

She never complains, her mother says. In fact, none of the small suffering things made any protest as the quick fingers bent and flexed their small bones. They were probably quite used to it and then, there is always the hope that the expert fingers will do something for them.

The source of the milk given to Molly was a quick question from the examining physician. The tuberculous germs must come from some place.

There were club feet in tight little bandages and there were twisted sinews that made it like a claw in the hand of one sweet little girl with a pathetically cheerful small face. For two years of her ten she was quite normal. Then came the ravaging paralysis.

But for most of these comfort was held out. Modern science does wonders and modern wisdom, allied with the care and kindness of the Rotary Club a and its members, may accomplish miracles.

PRUDENTIAL MEN HOLD BANQUET

William McLaren and Walter Wright Are Honored at Banquet.

MARKS DISTRICT VICTORY.

William McLaren and Walter E. Wright, two of the "Old Guard", as John I. Allen termed them, of the Prudential Life Insurance Company's staff, were presented with emblems indicative of their service of ten and five years, respectively, at the dinner at the Empress Hotel last evening, when seventy-five members of the Prudential Company's staffs from the city and district, were in attendance. R. F. Sedgewick, superintendent at Kingston, with Mrs. Sedgewick, was here also for the occasion.

John I. Allen, the local superintendent, presided in jolly fashion, and put through a very brief program following the dinner, in speedy and concise fashion. The repast was served at tables laid in the main dining-room, and decorated with rose, pink and bronze dwarf 'mums, and music throughout the dinner hour was provided by Jack Marshall's orchestra, which also played for the dance which followed. Bridge was played in the upper parlor, where several tables were filled with the devotees of the elusive pasteboards.

The dinner was the marking point of the victory of Peterborough district over fourteen similar Prudential Life districts and was divided, for the purpose of a fortnight's intensive campaign for new business, into two divisions, which represented the whole of the Dominion, were St. Catharines and Peterborough districts, and the dinner last evening was given by the fourteen losing superintendents in this district, to the winners. Peterborough district comprises Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Oshawa Whitby, Barrie, Orillia, Midland, Havelock, Hastings, Campbellford, Lakefield, Millbrook and Peterborough proper, and many of these places were represented on the guest list last evening, the men bringing their wives along with them.

Old Guard Honored.

The main feature of the supper program was the presentation to the two members of the Company's Old Guard. The Prudential, explained Mr. Allen, recognizes the service of its employees of five years with an engraved certificate, a letter from E. J. McIvor of Newark, N.J., assistant secretary of the company, and a bronze badge. For ten years' service, a silver badge is substituted, for fifteen years a gold badge, and for twenty years, a gold badge set with diamonds. John Allen and R. F. Sedgewick possess the diamond-set badges.

William McLaren received the emblems for ten years of service with the company, while Walter Wright's award was for five years. The presentation of humorous gifts from the staff in the city was also made by Art Moffat, and Mr. McLaren proved that he "knew his onions" when he carefully and Scotchily tucked the gift into a convenient pocket, while Mr. Wright practised on a delicate musical instrument which represented his associates' remembrance of him. Both made suitable acknowledgements of their awards from the company.

Mr. Allen introduced the special guests of the evening: Dr. A. W. McPherson, Dr. G. Ray Scott, with Mrs. Scott, and H. C. Southeran, who was accompanied by Mrs. Southeran. He also extended a cordial welcome to the guests from the city and from a distance.

Mrs. Allen's dinner gifts were won by the holders of lucky tickets: Miss Ella Stanton of Port Hope, Miss Elsie Taylor and Miss Birdie Lang; Thomas E. Ross, Albert Wray and W. McLaren, all of the city.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 12 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

By this time Tarzan was convinced he had been left upon an island. Wandering his lonely way through the jungle, he felt strong upon him the desire for companionship. He almost regretted he had not cast his lot with the apes. They were better than no company at all. But he had seen nothing of them since that fatal day when he slew their king and fled to Akut.

Moving leisurely one morning, sometimes on the ground and again among the trees, Tarzan was attracted by the scent of Sheeta, the panther, upwind ahead of him. He wanted the great cat's strong gut for his bow and its hide for a new quiver and loin cloth. Swiftly he glided in pursuit of his beast. Sheeta, himself was stalking game and had taken to a large tree.

Beyond and below, Tarzan saw the tribe of Akut lolling in a small, natural clearing. And Akut was the closest to Sheeta. Hidden from the ape's view, the panther crouched. Tarzan cautiously gained a position in the same tree, a little above the huge cat. In his left hand the ape-man grasped his slim stone blade. Now with a hideous shriek the panther launched himself toward the great ape.

As the startled Akut looked up, he saw the panther almost above him, and already upon the beast's back the white-ape that had bested him that day near the great water. With one arm around Sheeta's fierce throat, Tarzan kept his firm grip upon the thrashing, screaming body. The other arm, which grasped a slender knife of stone, rose and fell in mighty blows above the panther's heart.

SALMON RETURN TO SAME RIVERS IN REGULAR CYCLES OF YEARS ADULTS DIE AFTER SPAWNING

Fish Are Caught in Sea Before Entering the Rivers.

ONE OF NATURE'S WONDERS.

Great Canadian Industry on British Columbia Coast.

The life of a British Columbia sockeye salmon is four or five years; and it ends where it began, in the identical stream or lake in which it was spawned.

In the first year, as little fingerlings or fry they venture out to sea, and for four years no man knows where they have gone. Then in the fulness of their appointed time they return to the fresh water which they had left four years ago, spawn their eggs and die.

For canning, they are caught in their maturity when they reappear from the sea, fat and in prime condition. They come in great schools. Millions of them are caught in the nets of the fishermen; other millions make their way up the rivers into the shallow tributaries. The female salmon hollows out with her tail and body a "rudd" or nest, while the male stands by prepared to fight off trout ot other natural enemies. The egg are spawned and fertilized and covered with gravel. The work of the salmon is done. Nothing remains but the inevitable course of their species. In a short time, usually a few days, these adult salmon die.

A Phenomenon of Nature.

This destiny of the British Columbia salmon, and the major habits of its life, comprise one of nature's bubbling wonders. The story as told by Richard Gosse, general manager of the company that produces "Clover Leaf" salmon seems incredible. It may be matter of fact to the people of the Pacific coast, but, to an inland audience knowing little of the sea and less of its denizens, it is a provocative phenomena of nature.

One of Mr. Gosse's trade epigrams, it might make an excellent slogan was: "The freshest sea fish you can buy is in "Clover Leaf" cans." The point in this statement is based on the "Clover Leaf" requisites that a haul of salmon must not be carried more than fifty miles and must be canned within twenty-four hours from the time the fish was taken from the water. That is why the company has some forty-five canneries along 700 miles of the British Columbia coast.

The sockeye or red salmon are generally speaking a four or five year fish. The Cohoe or medium red is also a four year fish; but the pink salmon, designating it according to the color of its flesh, is only a two year fish. So regular are these fish in their migratory and spawning habits, that the industry is guided in its seasonal preparations by the experience dating to 1876 when the first British Columbia sockeyes were packed.

Appear in June.

About June 20 the sockeye salmon are usually sighted approaching from the sea. Whence they have come and how far is unknown to the fishe men, some believe that they may not have been more than forty or fifty miles from the coast. By this time the fishing fleets are ready for their operations. By June 25, the main school of the sockeyes are in the tidewater fishing grounds off the mouths of rivers. Two of the principal locations are out from the Fraser and Skeena rivers.

Fishing is an ancient occupation. The boats are modern and powerful, seaworthy and capacious, but the nets are of the same essential pattern of patriarchal times.

The fish first appear in light numbers. Gradually he school ncreases off the months of the rivers, and within a week the run to the spawning grounds has started. Meanwhile th fi hermen are making their catch, for the salmon are caught only in salt water and before they have departed for the spawning beds, possibly one hundred or two hundred miles up the fresh water streams and into the calmer tributaries. This industry is strictly regulated by the federal government, not only for the ultimate benefit of he industry itself, but also for the nation's advantag .

When Salmon Leap.

Driven by the instinct that leads them back to their natal waters, he salmon swims against the rapid flow of the rivers, and if necessary can overcome the smaller falls by leaping through the air. Some of these flights are of six feet or possibly more.

The sockeye spawn of June 1930, emerges as an "eye" in March 1931, develops to fingerling size and moves down stream toward the sea. By the middle of August they have disappeared off to sea where no doubt they run the primitive dangers of the urvival of the fittest, many of them abruptly ending their young lives as provender for halibut and whales and seals. In June, 1934, they will return as suddenly as they went. By that time they will be fully developed to their average weight of eight pounds. Some of them will be caught in the fishing fleet's nets. The rest will reach their spawning grounds, and, their natural purpose accomplished, they soon die as did their parents of this year.

Cohoe Comes in July

The cohoe or medium red salmon averages ten pounds. It runs in July and like the sockeye is a four year fish. The pinks are caught in August. They spawn at that time also. In the following March they stir into life, move out to sea and return matured at four or five pounds, in midsummer of the succeeding year. The pinks are definitely two year fish; the sockeye and cohoes are regarded as four year fish, but it is understood that sometimes they come back in five years.

The packing of the pink salmon was begun only fifteen years ago. The sockeyes were preferred from the outset in 1876 because of their red color which did not fade in cooking. Another slight difference is that thay have a somewhat higher content of oil, but the nutriment values of all three species are the same according to Mr. Cosse's statement.

Equally Palatable.

In his brief address to the Peterborough grocers this week he also declared that they were equally palatable. He recalls an incident at a convention of American packers in which he had offered $1,000 as a forfeit if a blindfolded person could distinguish the sockeye by taste alone. The test or challenge was not accepted.

The red sockeye is at that the caviar of salmon, but the element of supply is a considerable factor. The proportion of a recent 'Clover Leaf" pack was 240,000 cases of sockeye; 70,000 of medium red and 510,000 cases of pink.

'Y' CLUB MEMBERS HEAR CITY CLERK

Interesting and Timely Address on "How City is Governed."

RUGBY SQUAD ENTERTAINED.

"The time is coming when some of you will have to take the place of the present members of the City Council and help to administer the affairs of the City," said Simon Armstrong clerk to the Corporation of the City, in the course of a timely and interesting address on "How the City is Governed", which he gave to members of the Y.M.C.A. Friday night Supper Club.

The Municipal Act is the charter of the municipal councils in Ontario, and there is one great difference between the authority of the individual and the authority of the Corporation. The difference is that the individual can do as he pleases, so long as the law says he must not do it, while the corporation can only do what the law says it must do. The City Council is the chief governing body of the Municipality and the Act requires that the city should ordinarily be governed by the Mayor and Alderman elected every year.

In Peterborough, Mr. Armstrong pointed out, the Mayor only is elected each year, while the aldermen serve for two year terms, and there are five aldermen to be elected each year.

Election Dates.

Mr. Armstrong dealt with the question of variations in the dates of Municipal elections in Ontario, and said it had been asked by several of the ratepayers on numerous occasions why the elections here could not be held on the first Monday in December instead of on New Year's Day. One of the objections was that on a work day, there is a tendency on the part of voters to rush the poles, such an eventuality was avoided by holding the election on a statutory holiday. Another objection, was that if the Council is elected in the first week of December, it means that they have a whole month before assuming office.

The speaker dwelt on the regulations governing voters at municipal elections and explained something of the method of conducting the complicated business affairs and administration of a city.

Other Bodies.

Speaking of other administrative bodies in this city, Mr. Armstrong referred to the Police Commission, under the control of the Mayor, who is the Chief Magistrate; the County Judge and the Police Magistrate. He mentioned also the Board of Health, the Board of Education, the Separate School Board, the Nicholl's Hospital Board and the City Trust. The latter body the speaker referred to as one of the most unique bodies he knew. It was created by law in the year 1861, and has control over property and real estate invested in the trustees. When the City borrows money by debentures the City Trust looks after the payment of interest. Five members were originally appointed to the City Trust for life, but since that time one member is appointed each year for a five year term.

The Central Charity Board is another of the City's administrative bodies, on which sits a representative from each of the churches, from the Salvation Army and other organisations. The Council pays to their credit a certain sum of money each year to be administered for charitable purposes.

Sources of Revenue.

Dealing with the city's sources of revenue, the speaker pointed out that the main revenue comes from the taxes, while other sources consist in police court fines, licenses and the issue of debentures.

The speaker was introduced to the gathering by C. A. Salmonsen, president, and was accorded a vote of thanks on the motion of Reg Sorby and Douglas Blagrave.

Last night's meeting at which the P.C.I. Rugby squad were present along with their coach Ernest Legon as guests, was held in the rotunda of the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Legon in a few words thanked the members of the club for their invitation to himself and his team, and decried the fact that the P.C.. team are not getting the recognition in this city which they deserve.

A Challenge.

Mr. Armstrong promised Mr. Legon that if his team can go one notch further next year and win the championship, they will be given sweater coats and possibly a banquet to be tendered by the Council. He pointed out that the Council is confining its recognition to those teams that have won Provincial Championships.

R. Killaly gave a short resume of his recent visit to Montreal Y.M.C.A. Convention, along with H. McLeod and Graham Eastwood, and brought with him the suggestion that it may be possible for the members of the club to form a hockey team and affiliate with one of the junior hockey leagues in the city.

OBITUARY

ABRAHAM LAIDLEY.

OMEMEE, Dec. 7. — (Examiner Correspondent.)— Abraham Laidley, very highly respected citizen, passed away on Friday evening in his 77th year. He was a lifelong resident of Omemee and a staunch member of the Methodist and United Church. In the year 1881 he married Mary Fair, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alec Fair of Ops. In 1884, the late Mr. Laidley became a member of Lorne Lodge, A.F. & A.M. and was Master of the Lodge from 1889-1891, also in the year 1916.

He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. George Langdon of Lindsay, Miss Maud of Toronto, two sons, Ross of Birch Falls and Stanley of Toronto, and four brothers, Leith of Omemee, William of Kingston, Dr. Laidley of Montreal, and Mr. George Griffin of Omemee. He also leaves four grandchildren.

The funeral, under Masonic auspices, will be held on Sunday at 2.30 form the family residence.

MRS. MARGARET LOUCKS

The death occurred very suddenly, last night, of Mrs. Margaret Loucks, at her home, 666 George street. The deceased was the widow of the late Colonel Loucks and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy. She was a faithful worker in St. Paul's Presbyterian church and last evening had assisted at the tea which was sponsored by the Ladies' Aid of the congregation. She was not feeling well so left prior to the concert, and passed away after reaching her home.

The deceased leaves one son, Donald of Chicago; one brother, Thomas Kennedy of Chicago, and two sisters, Miss L. Kennedy, of 666 George street, and Mrs. Addie Sollitt of 696 George street.

The funeral will be held on Monday from her late residence, 666 George street at 2.00 o'clock with the Rev. William Allan officiating. The interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

JAMES O'BRIEN

James O'Brien died at his home on 179 Lake street, Friday evening, at the age of 80. The deceased had suffered from a paralytic stroke and had been ailing for the past two weeks. He was born in Peterborough, living here all his life. He elaves to mourn his loss two brothers, John and Edward, and a large number of friends. The funeral will take place from the home of the late Mr. O'Brien's brother, John, tomorrow (Sunday), at 2.30 p.m. The cortege will proceed to Sacred Heart Church, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery, where interment will be made.

BIRTH

DRIFTING SHIPS SERMON SUBJECT

Dangers of Married Life Topic on Which Rev. Allan Dwells Sunday Night.

FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Possibly there is nothing so interesting to people of any age as the thought of romance. And, after marriage, what? That is the question that confronts the young who set their feet on the path of love. Is it going to be a success or a failure?

The pastor of St. Paul's Church takes this interesting subject and forms it into a series of special messages which are proving very popular with the large numbers of young people who gather to hear them.

"Drifting Ships," the danger of Married Life! will be the subject of another message, specially for young men and young women and for all prospective home-makers, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening. In an interesting panel which is part of the advertisement we have the following:

"Can anything be done to prevent the matrimonial wrecks which disfigure the shores of our modern civilization?"

"Some of the causes of failure in many marriage could easily be removed.

"The trouble with some is that they find it too easy to drift—and in drifting they drift into danger!

"How to embark upon a happy wedding trip and form an abiding alliance.

"A remarkable confession from a beautiful and popular actress."

Will Seek To Lift Liquor Export Ban

WINDSOR, Dec. 6. (CP)—Removal of the ban on exports of liquor to the United States was advocated here by Colonel S. C. Robinson, Conservative Member of Parliament, as a retaliatory measure for the action of United States immigration authorities in excluding some residents of the border Canadian cities from commuting to Detroit. Colonel Robinson's attitude was outlined in a statement to newspapermen.

Colonel Robinson for nine years the member from Essex West, declared he will seek at the next session, repeal of the liquor export ban which last spring stopped shipments of liquors to countries having prohibitory laws.

DIED

BALLANTYNE.—The death occurred at his home in Otonabee, on Saturday, December 6, 1930, of Arthur Ballantyne. Funeral announcements later.

Barthou Fails to Form French Gov't.

SENATOR LAVAL CHOSEN AS NEXT TO TRY HIS HAND

Radical Socialists Refuse to Sit Under Barthou With Louis Marin.

RELIGIOUS QUESTION UP.

Laval's Answer on His Success Be Given Doumergue Tuesday.

PARIS, December 8 (C.P.)—Senator Pierre Laval, characterized by Clemenceau as one of the most brilliant members of the Chamber of Deputies of the Tiger's day, to-day was given a mandate by President Doumergue to form a new French Government.

His selection to head a ministry was not made until Senator Louis Barthou, himself a man more of Poincare's type, gave up the task as hopeless when the Radical Socialist refused implacably to participate in a Government, which included a representative of the strong righters, Louis Marin.

M. Laval told M. Doumergue that he would do his best and give him a definite answer to-morrow morning. He proceeded then to the traditional visits to political leaders such as the Presidents of the Senate and Chamber, M. Tardieu, Briand, and Poincare.

Settled Textile Strikes.

The new Premier-designate is an Independent Socialist who as Minister of the Interior under M. Tardieu recently scored this points favor by cooperating with Louis Loucheur, in getting through the social assurance law of pensions for working people, and by settling the textile strikes in the north of France.

Senator Barthou's failure to organize a ministry of "wide republicanism," which would have included the Radical left and Republican group of the centre and right, is regarded as evincing the supreme difficulties in fashioning a cabinet with the Chamber and Senate of their present consistency. "It is regarded also as demonstrating that the religious question is not dead in France, the Radical Socialists at the last moment refusing by unanimous vote to sit in the Cabinet with a member of a group which advocates religious teaching in public schools.

Two other conditions laid down by the Radicals were that the new cabinet must adhere to Aristide Briand's Locarno peace policy and strive for "fiscal justice," the latter being an allusion to the Oustric bank scandal and recent irregularities in trading on the Bourse.

Radicals Explain Action.

After a new meeting of the Radical group to-day its leaders issued a communique calculated to clear their skirts of any responsibility for the breakdown of the Barthou combination. The statement emphasized the loyalty of the Radicals to the Republican idea and insisted that Senator Barthou's failure should be ascribed to the demands formulated by other groups when the Tardieu Cabinet was overthrown.

This referred to M. Tardieu's declaration that he would be glad to co-operate with M. Barthou if members of his majority in the Chamber were recognized. Friends of M. Tardieu to-day charged that the Radicals were secretly fighting to keep him out of the Cabinet. The opinion was expressed in some political quarters that if M. Laval decides to give M. Tardieu a portfolio he will again encounter Radical hostility.

SUSPENSIONS LIFTED.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.).—Suspension of the licenses of four Ontario breweries on November 24 last have been lifted by the Ontario Liquor Control Board. The breweries involved are Sleeman's Spring Bank Brewing Company, Limited; Lake Ontario Brewing Company, Limited; Hofer Brewing Company Limited, and Walkerville Brewery, Limited. The suspensions were all inflicted for breach of the Ontario Liquor Control Act in connection with the sale of beer.

Farmers Are Using Barley for Fuel

ROLAND, Man., Dec. 8. —(C. P.)—Farmers in this district are using their barley for fuel instead of coal or wood. They consider the grain cheaper than either although it will not retain fire all night. It is found quite satisfactory for daytime firing. One bushel of barley will keep in a good fire all day in a small heater.

Police Department Purchases New Car

The "-boys" will be riding to the police lock-up in a straight-8 now.

It was decided at the meeting of the Police Commission held on Saturday afternoon that the Department needed a new car. A Dodge straight-8 was the unanimous choice of the Commissioners. The Essex Six, which has served the police faithfully for several years, and which was cleaned up more than 35,000, was turned in on the new "-boat." The price of the new car was the old one and $800.

It is said that the eight trusty cylinders of the new car will work up a speed of 75 miles an hour.

20,000 CHINESE TRAPPED BY REDS ARE MASSACRED

Loss is Heaviest Suffered By Gov't Since Drive Against Banditry.

"SILVER BULLET," REVIVED.

Attacks on Foreign Shipping Upon Yangtse Continues Unabated.

HANKOW, China, Dec. 8 (A.P.)—Trapped between the towns of Kwangshui and Hwangan, less than 100 miles north of this important centre, nearly 20,000 Provincial troops have been massacred by a like number of bandit Reds, reports from Northern Hupeh Province said.

The loss yesterday was the heaviest suffered by the Government since the inauguration of its campaign against banditry soon after the end of the recent civil war.

Chiang Kai-Shek, Generalissimo and President of the Chinese Republic, to-day has taken command of the drive against Communism throughout North Central China. However, this seemed not to have deterred the hundreds of bands of roving Reds, for they continued attacks against shipping on the Upper Yangtse River with undiminished vigor.

All Nationalities Suffer

British, French, United States, Japanese and Chinese vessels suffered.

A Chinese seaman on a Japanese cargo carrier was the only fatality reported yesterday, although several ships were badly damaged by gunfire from Communist shore batteries.

President Chiang Kai-Shek declared the Government would send 300,000 troops, 20 gunboats and 30 airplanes against outlaws in the Upper Yangtse Valley, if necessary.

The President-Generalissimo yesterday again brought into play the famed Nanking "Silver Bullet." He announced that "those who surrender, bringing with them arms and ammunition from the enemy, will receive a reward and pardon, while those responsible for the capture, dead or alive, of any Communist leader, will be richly rewarded.

DRUG HABIT CURE BELIEVED FOUND

No Details of Important Discovery at Cornell University Given Out.

IN LABORATORY STAGE.

ITHACA, N.Y., Dec. 8 (C.P.). — A drug offering hope for curing drug habits is in the making at Cornell University.

The bare fact that such a compound has been "hit upon" in the chemistry department was disclosed to-day, but without further details.

It is not ready for use upon human beings, being still in the laboratory experimental stage under trial upon animals. Its authors, Dr. Wilber D. Bancroft and Dr. G. H. Richter, said details are not ready for publication.

The principals wherein their attack on drug habits are based upon a discovery by Dr. Richter that anaesthetics and blows which produce unconsciousness and alcohol and stimulating drugs all cause a thickening and whitening of nerve cells. Unconsciousness depends upon the degree of thickening, and consciousness returns when the cells revert to their normal, water-clear appearance.

When G. Urquhart Watt was asked to resign as organist, the entire choir of Elgin High Church, at Elgin, Scotland, struck in a body, and at last reports were still out while 30 volunteers filled their places.

MADRIGAL CHOIR HIGHLY PRAISED AT ROYAL YORK

Over 2,000 Toronto Citizens Hear Peterborough's Famed Ladies' Choir.

PROGRAM TRIUMPHANT ONE.

(By Jeanette.)

Over two thousand people, in an audience whose numbers, according to Harvey Robb, constituted one of the largest, if not the largest total, at any Sunday evening concert during this season, greeted the Madrigal Singers who went to Toronto yesterday to sing last night in the large Concert Hall of the Royal York Hotel. The program was a triumphantly fine one, from beginning to end, and the appreciative attention, combined with the constant and generous response of applause, demonstrated just how well these Peterborough singers are liked in the Queen City.

The singers, thirty in all, rose splendidly to the occasion, and the large audience. They presented a lovely picture as the curtains were drawn back, in their quaint, old-fashioned frocks of satin in gleaming tints of rose, pink, mauve, orchid, pale green and deep gold, with little golden slippers and white net fichus caught with floral breast knots.

Dorothy Allan Park, directing the group and making the announcements for their songs, was in white satin, with crimson flowers and slippers. The whole effect was attractive in the extreme and the partially lowered lights which accompanied the singing added the last touch to the pretty picture on the fine stage of that large, handsome hall. The Christmas note was in the festoons of real green laurel that hung from the wall brackets. The entire hotel, in its balconies and halls, was decorated in this manner.

The singers were entertained at a buffet supper, prior to the concert at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matthews, Warren Road, and were the guests of the Royal York Hotel at refreshments served in one of the private banquet rooms, after the program was over.

The program of singing was interspersed by organ solo numbers, played very acceptably by Harvey Robb, who has charge of the music at the Royal York Hotel. Announcements were made by Ronald Johnson.

Applause greeted every number on a fine program of choral numbers, and was continuous and insistent for several. The only encore allowed was a repetition of the final selection.

LINDSEY HEARING SET FOR FRIDAY

Former Jurist's Lawyer Claims He Will Subpoena Bishop Manning.

MAY START SLANDER SUIT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (CP)—Former Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, who was ejected from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday after he had interrupted Bishop William T. Manning, appeared in west side court to-day and obtained a continuance until Dec. 12 of a charge of disorderly conduct.

He pleaded not guilty and told Magistrate Dreyer he had several speaking engagements which would take him out of the city between now on Dec. 12.

Counsel for Lindsey, who was arrested after he tried to reply to the Bishop's attack on his companionate marriage theories, said he would raise the question whether a man has a right to speak out in church under sufficient provocation.

Detective William F. May, who signed the complaint against Lindsey after Bishop Manning refused to do so, objected to the continuance and said there was clear evidence of disorderly conduct.

Arthur Garfield Hays, the former jurist's lawyer, declared he would subpoena Bishop Manning and possibly other clergy. An attempt to obtain the services of Clarence Darrow as associate defence counsel failed, he said.

Lindsey told reporters after his court appearance that if he decided to bring suit for slander against Bishop Manning he would retain Samuel Untermyer, New York Attorney, as his counsel.

Recluse Kills Two, Wounds Another Before Capture by Posse in Oklahoma

PAWNEE, Okla., December 8. — Jess Powell, a recluse sought for the slaying of a youth and a deputy sheriff last night, was captured early to-day at Ralston, near here, but not before he had seriously wounded Louis Raba, a postman.

Sheriff Allen Jones of Pawnee County, told the Associated Press Powell admitted slaying Floyd Bell, 18, and Ed. Hartwick, Pawnee County Deputy, from ambush. Bell's companion, Marion Kendall, 20, was wounded by the 65-year-old farmer.

Powell shot Raba four times on the street at Ralston when Raba and several other officers alighted from a motor car to take him into custody. Powell previously had surrendered to City Marshall Hill and citizens at Ralston, and the Ralston officers were holding him awaiting the arrival of the group from Pawnee.

Powell was brought to the jail here and placed under heavy guard. Feeling was running high.

MORE SUPPORT FOR CANADIAN EFFORT URGED

Only in That Way Can Canadian Spirit Be Developed Rotary is Told.

TALK ON FAITH.

Rotarian Russell T. Killen Urges Members to Have Confidence in Canada.

The desirability of supporting Canadian music, Canadian art, Canadian literature, Canadian sport and Canadian industry if this country is to develop a genuine Canadian spirit, was eloquently impressed upon the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon today by Rotarian Russel T. Kelley of Hamilton, whose address on "Faith" was one of the most inspirational the club has heard.

Rotarian Kelley, who is an ex-Governor of the 4th Rotary District, and who was introduced by President Robert Abbott, brightened his talk with a number of inimitable stories that got him away to a happy start. His message, he said, was faith—faith in one's self, faith in the other fellow, faith in our jobs, and faith in Canada. The young man who had faith in himself and was ready to get out and go to work was bound to succeed, he said, in regard to the first point.

As to the second, a better knowledge of the other fellow led to a better understanding, and it was here that the Rotary associations were particularly valuable.

Faith in one's job was essential, Rotarian Kelley declared. The man who had no confidence in what he was doing would do much better to get out of it and try something else.

Finally, the speaker said, the most important thing of all was to have faith in Canada. This country with its vast natural resources, first in asbestos and nickel production, third and soon to be second in gold production, with more land still untouched by the plow than the wheat area of the United States, offered great possibilities. A better Canadian spirit was, however, necessary to counteract the influence of the millions of American publications that crossed the border every year, and the fact that 80 per cent. of the broadcasts listened to by Canadians and 80 per cent. of the films seen by Canadians originated in the United States.

GANG VENGEANCE DEMANDS DEATH

Bandit Who Turned State's Evidence Sending Two to Chair, Killed in Club.

POLICE ARRIVE TOO LATE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (C.P.).— The underworld to-day wreaked its wrath on Nicholas "Cheeks" Luciano, 26, who turned State's evidence in 1933 and helped send the Diamond brothers and another man to the chair for the murder of two bank messengers during a $43,600 hold-up.

Luciano was eating and drinking with a group of men and women in a downtown "social and athletic club" when two youths killed him with a volley of shots.

A policeman, attracted by the frantic barking of two Chow dogs in the resort's window, arrived in time to see all the customers flee.

In 1923 two messengers of the West End Bank in Brooklyn were slain and the $43,600 taken by six robbers. Morris and Joseph Diamond, brothers, and John Farina were executed and two others got life.

Danish Ruler Hurt In an Auto Smash

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, December 8 (C.P.). — King Christian was seriously cut about the face to-day as he returned shortly after midnight to Fredensberg from last night's opera in Copenhagen.

Shortly after leaving Copenhagen the Royal automobile dashed into a small car of sedan type driven by two women. The small car was crumpled. His Majesty, bleeding badly from the face, stopped to see that neither of the women were badly injured and then hurried on to his castle.

The King's injuries were received principally from broken glass which badly lacerated his face, but he was not injured otherwise.

REV CANON ALLEN WIDELY MOURNED

Veteran Millbrook Clergyman Passes Away on Sunday Morning.

FUNERAL TUESDAY.

MILLBROOK, December 8. — In the passing of Rev. Canon W. C. Allen, one of the senior clergymen of the Diocese of Toronto, and for 46 years in charge of the Anglican Church at Millbrook, this district has suffered the loss of a man whose kindly nature and broad human sympathy had won for him the deepest respect and affection of people of all creeds.

Rev. Canon Allen passed away in his seventy-sixth year, following an illness of three years' duration. He was born in Millbrook, where his father the late Venerable Archdeacon Allen, was the first clergyman. The parish has thus been in the care of the one family for almost a century.

Canon Allen was educated at Trinity College, Toronto, and when his father's health failed, took over the Millbrook Church as curate for three years, and on the death of his father, became rector. In that capacity he had served for forty-two years.

His widow, formerly Mary Linnecar; one daughter, Mrs. L. Winslow, Ida; and four brothers, John and Henry of Millbrook, Dr. Thomas Allen, New York, and Rev. Alex. Allen, Pittsburg, survive. His only son, Thomas, was killed overseas.

Messages of regret have been received from His Lordship, the Right Reverend James Fielding Sweeny, Bishop of Toronto, who has expressed his inability to attend the funeral, which is to be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

From noon until the time of the funeral, the body will lie in state at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Millbrook, when following the service, at which a large number of prominent clergy are expected to be present, interment will be made at St. John's Cemetery, Ida.

Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, Rector of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, a relative of the late Canon Allen, will conduct a private funeral service at the family home, assisted by Rev. A. T. Weir of Omemee.

It is understood that a delegation of clergy will be present at the funeral from Toronto, and also Archdeacon Davidson and Archdeacon Warren.

Sympathetic reference was made to the death of the Reverend Canon W. C. Allen of Millbrook by the Rector of All Saints' Church at the evening service on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Paterson recalled Canon Allen's work in the South-end Mission, over forty years ago. He was the oldest surviing minister who served in former years at All Saints' Mission and on the occasion of the Consecration of the Church he was placed in the rector's stall, as the place of honor.

PUPIL STRAPPED, CHARGE IS LAID AGAINST TEACHER

Byron Lad's Father Calls in High Constable on Seeing Son's Hands.

CASE HEARD SATURDAY.

Young Teacher Denies to Trustees She Strapped Boy 140 Times.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 8. (CP)—Miss Pauline Pollard, young Byron public school teacher, will be summoned to County Police Court on Saturday morning next to answer a charge that "she did unlawfully beat one Alex Turbine." An information charging the school teacher under section 291 of the Criminal Code was sworn out by Joseph Turbine, father of the boy, before Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw in County Police Court this morning.

According to the father's complaint, 12 year old Alex Turbine returned home from school on Thursday his hands swollen to almost twice their normal size. The boy claimed that Miss Pollard had beaten him across his hands with a strap 140 times. In a statement given to the school trustees of the section, however, the teacher denies this charge.

Doctor Called In

Dr. A. W. Gregory, of Lambeth, who was called to the Turbine home at Byron to attend young Alex, told a reporter that he found him in bed and in a "somewhat nervous condition." "The boy's hands were swollen, and black and blue marks appeared on them" Dr. Gregory stated.

When his son returned home from school with the story of his beating, Mr. Turbine called High Constable Arthur Wharton, who went to his home to see the young lad. The High Constable said the boy's hands were stiff and on the backs were bruises and ridges where a strap had apparently wound around them.

The teacher's version of the affair, as given to the trustees, was to the effect that young Turbine had placed a large piece of wood in the pump on the school premises, putting it temporarily out of order. She is said to have admitted chastising the child, but maintains she did so in a proper manner.

PLANS SHAPE UP FOR INDIAN GOV'T

Opinion Favors One Federal Parliament With Jurisdiction Over All India.

HAVE TWO CHAMBERS.

LONDON, Dec. 8 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent).—One Federal Parliament for all India is gradually assuming shape in the committee deliberations of the Round Table Conference on India.

There have been suggestions of a sort of double Federal system, one Parliament having parliamentary jurisdiction over British India, and the other having jurisdiction over a federated all-India, including the Native States. While no final decision has yet been reached, opinion seemed to favor one Federal Parliament with jurisdiction over all India, having two chambers. The present central Legislature has two chambers.

Minister For Law And Order.

Discussions in the Provincial field revealed a general view that law and order should be classified as a transferred subject; in other words, that law and order, with control of the police, should be within the jurisdiction of a responsible Provincial Minister. At present law and order is classified as a "reserved subject" in the Provinces of British India—it does not come within the jurisdiction of Ministers responsible to the Provincial Legislature, but is directly under the Governor and Executive Council.

The idea of establishing a second chamber in the Provinces of British India also received general favor today. It was felt a Provincial second chamber might serve as a useful check on legislation of the Lower House. At the same time the trend of discussion favored establishment of responsible government in the provinces, with the Provincial Governor being outside party politics.

'Tim' Ryan Fails To Heed Warning Of Train Whistle

Five Year Old Son of J. H. L. Ryan, 364 Brock Street, is Seriously Injured When Struck By the C. N. R. Passenger Train From Lindsay at Noon.

DOCTORS HOLD OUT LITTLE HOPE FOR RECOVERY
ENGINEER BLEW THE WHISTLE SEVERAL TIMES

Accident Occurred on the C.N.R. Right-of-way Near the Corner of McDonnel and Park Streets—Dr. A. Moir Attends the Case.

Failing to heed the shrill warning blasts of the train's whistle as it was repeatedly pulled by the engineer, Timmie Ryan, five-year-old son of T. J. L. Ryan, 364 Brock street, was critically injured at 11.30 to-day when struck by C.N.R. passenger train from Lindsay, near the Park and McDonnel street crossing.

The little lad was attended by Dr. A. Moir, and rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital. His injuries include a fracture at the base of the skull. Little hope is held out for his recovery.

Most of the morning the boy had been playing around Edgar Puttick's grocery store at the corner of McDonnel and Park streets. Twice the grocer had advised the little lad that he should go home. Finally he said "Goodbye," and left.

It is believed that instead of starting home he walked up the tracks, playing as he went. The C. N. R. passenger came around the bend, Engineer Allison, leaning from the cab, saw the boy. Frantically he yanked the cord on the whistle, and further reduced the speed of the train which was slowly approaching the crossing.

Apparently insensible to the piercing blasts of the train's whistle, the little boy continued playing on the tracks. The engineer could not stop the train in time to prevent hitting the boy.

The train was brought to a full stop a few feet farther on. Engineer Allison was the first to reach the boy as he lay bleeding beside the rails.

T. L. J. Ryan, the father, is assistant engineer of the Trent Canal.

BLAST SHATTERS SALVAGE VESSEL 14 MEN PERISH

Fearful Explosion Comes as Divers Are Working on Sunken Ammunition Boat.

SEVEN INJURED, SAVED.

Luckless Craft Had Only Recently Abandoned Work of Removing Gold From Liner Egypt.

LORIENT, France, Dec. 8.—(A. P.) — The Italian salvage ship Artiglio was blown up and sunk with 14 of her crew yesterday afternoon as she blasted the hulk of the munition ship Florence, sunk during the war off the Island of Houat.

The first word of the disaster reached here to-day from a signal station on the Island of Hoedic about five miles from the spot where the Artiglio went down.

1000 Feet from Wreck.

The salvage boat was 1000 feet away from the derelict when the mines her divers had planted in the hulk exploded, and the reperoussion of the blast sent her to the bottom.

The Artiglio herself carried a heavy cargo of explosives, and it is believed that these had been set off. Thousands of tons of powder were in the Florence, which had been condemned as a menace to navigation between the Islands of Houat and Hoedic.

COMMUNISTS ARRESTED.

TORONTO, Ont., December 8 (C. P.). — Three Communists were arrested here last night when police dispersed a crowd of 500 persons, when Tim Buck, Communist organizing secretary, attempted to hold a meeting on the street, using a trolley repair car as his platform.

The three arrested were: Tim Buck, Manuel Rosenthal, and James Ewen. They are charged with obstructing the police, and have been released on bail of $1,000 each.

Hoboes Given Blame For Crossfield Fire

CALGARY, Alta., Dec. 8.— (C.P.) —Two buildings and thousands of feet of lumber fell prey to flames in a $30,000 fire that swept a section of Crossfield, 30 miles north of here, early to-day. Awakened from their slumbers, volunteers rushed to aid the town brigade in fighting the outbreak.

Believed caused by hoboes smoking in the loft of the Pioneer livery stables, the blaze spread rapidly to the office building of the Atlas Lumber Company. The latter, with its large stock of lumber suffered heaviest loss.

FOUR MANIACS ARE RECAPTURED

Complain of Treatment Given Them in Mattewan State Hospital.

LOCATED IN BROOKLYN.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (C.P.).—Four maniacs, who made a sensational escape from Matteawan State Hospital last Thursday, were captured in a Brooklyn apartment Sunday.

Three maniacs are still at large. The four were captured in the home of Mrs. Mary Oschenfels, who was arrested and charged with harboring criminals.

Those captured were William H. Nelson, who had escaped previously, and who returned and liberated the other six; Harry Gordon, the "mad butcher" of Rochester, N.Y.; John H. Gambill and John Biggins of New York. They said they escaped because of "brutality and starvation" at the hospital.

The Weather

The rainfall of Saturday night while not particularly heavy, will help the farming community. The total was .51, or a trifle over half an inch. Sunday was another of those rare days when the thermometer fluctuated but little. The lowest point was 34 degrees, and the highest but 37 degrees. As usual the wind was in an easterly direction. This morning's temperature was 34 degrees. There is no decidedly cold weather anywhere at present, but at this season of the year changes are sudden.—W. P.

Poison in Food Kills 40 Students

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 8.—(C. P.)— Death of forty students of the London Mission School at Erode, Madras, is attributed to snake poison in their food.

The students, Exchange Telegraph Company dispatches from Erode say, had just finished their noon-day meal when 40 collapsed and died in quick succession.

It was stated afterward that a snake was found in the utensil in which the soup for the meal had been prepared, the soup as a consequence being highly poisonous. The cook was one of the victims.

FIVE ENGINEERS SENTENCED TO DEATH

THREE OTHERS ARE SENTENCED TO TEN YEARS' IMPRISONMENT AND PROPERTY IS CONFISCATED

Group Convicted on Charges of Conspiring Against Soviet Government.

TWO WEEKS' INVESTIGATION.

France and Britain Charged With Being Prime Movers in the Plot.

MOSCOW, December 8 (C. P.). — Five of the eight engineers who have been on trial for several weeks on charges of conspiring against the Soviet Government were sentenced to death last night, with the three others sentenced to ten years imprisonment and confiscation of all their property.

The men sentenced to death were: Leonid Ramsin, confessed leader of the conspirators; Victor Larichev, Nikolai Charnovsky, Ivan Kalinikov and the elderly Alexander Fedotov.

The three given imprisonment were: Vladimir Ochkin, youngest of the group; Sergei Kuprianov and Xenopon Sitnin.

All had confessed fully.

Trial Broadcast

The amazing and fantastic trial of the eight Russian engineers, charged with one of the most comprehensive plots on record for overthrow of the Soviet regime began Nov. 25. For nearly two weeks all Russia through the medium of the radio, listened to the abject confessions of the defendants, the rapid-fire denunciations of the prosecutor, and the shouts and comments of the spectators in the trial room.

From the first, both prosecution and defense charged that France and Great Britain were prime movers in the plot to bring about armed intervention in Russia and the downfall of the Soviet system of government. The names of former President Raymond Poincare of France, Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, Henri Deterding, the British oil magnate, "Lord Churchill" (believed to have referred to Winston Churchill) and "Lawrence of of Arabia" were brought prominently to the fore as active conspirators.

Belleville Woman Wins Fair Prize

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 8.—Because there was not enough tomato plants to fill her plot on a 55-acre truck farm in P. E. County near Port Milford, Mrs. Mary E. Maycock planted a patch of beans— and won the championship in the field bean class at the Chicago Winter Fair.

"Well! I never thought I would win, but I am glad," exclaimed the breathless Mrs. Maycock when congratulations were showered upon her. The prize-winning peck, she explained, was sorted out of a crop of beans which she had developed and improved for several seasons, and the seed for which she had originally borrowed from a neighbor.

MILLS RELEASED, AGAIN ARRESTED TAKEN TO COAST

Nationally Known Stock Broker Wanted By Ontario and B. C.

SERVED MONTH SENTENCE.

Expresses Concern For Physical Condition of His Partner, Solloway.

LETHBRIDGE, Dec. 8 (C.P.).—The Province of Alberta wrote finis to its case against Harvey Mills, nationally known stock broker, who on Saturday was released from jail here after serving 25 days of a month's sentence for conspiracy to defraud, while a partner in the now defunct Solloway-Mills brokerage firm.

Released from his prison cell, however, did not mean freedom from the law, for he was immediately taken into custody by Ontario and British Columbia officers, and is en route to Vancouver, where he will be given a preliminary hearing on conspiracy charges sworn to by the Attorney-General of the Coast Province. He will arrive in Vancouver this afternoon.

In fit physical condition himself, Mills expressed concern for his partner, Isaac W. Solloway, who is serving a four-months' sentence.

"I'd rather stay and let Solloway leave, if it could be arranged," said Mills, just before he was taken from the jail. "I could stand it better than you," he said to Solloway, as they shook hands in parting.

30 DAYS FOR ASSAULT.

BRANTFORD, December 8 (C.P.). —Wilby Gropp, ex-Chief of Police of Milverton, was on Saturday sentenced to 30 days in jail by Magistrate Makins for assault. Gropp was originally also charged with threatening to shoot his brother, but that charge was dropped, and Gropp pleaded guilty to the assault count. Acting Crown Attorney Leon Long declared that Gropp was the "terror" of the neighborhood, and should be taught a lesson.

Police on Hunt For Lone Bandit

SASKATOON, Dec. 8 (C.P.).—The entire police force is out in search of a desperado who shot Constable Lorne Braithwaite of the city police early to-day, when surprised by the officer in an attempt to break into a local theatre. The shot went wild, and only a slight wound in the side was suffered by the policeman, who sent three bullets after the escaping thug without results.

The shooting occurred near the city's main street, and is the third attempt on a police officer's life here within a month.

Seymour West Cheese Factory Holds Annual Meeting and Elects Officers.

YEARS DEFICIT $173.83.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 8 (Examiner Press Correspondent).—The annual meeting of the patrons of Seymour West Cheese Factory was held on Saturday afternoon, when a full attendance was registered to transact the year's business.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, R. Innes; secretary-treasurer, Marshall West; auditor, J. Watters; directors, R. Innes, Marshall West, Marcus Curle, Fred Hendy and J. Watters.

During the course of the business session, H. W. Lapp, manager of the Campbellford branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, occupied the chair. The year's report as given by the secretary, proved very interesting despite the bad season. It showed that there was a drop this year in cheese of 3.26, the average test of milk being 3.01. The total cost of milk drawing was $731.58 and the cost of standard for drawing milg was $3.04.

The report in its entirety for the season was as follows: Boxes of cheese, 678; pounds of cheese, 64,063; pounds of milk, 785,264; whey cream and butter fat, 20.74.

The money derived from cream was $500.86, and from cheese, $9,607.79. The number of pounds of milk to pounds of cheese was 12.27, and the average price per pound of cheese for the year was 14.99c.

Financial Report

The financial report as given by Mr. Watters, the auditor, showed a deficit balance of $173.83. The balance at the bank was $1,440.54; expenses, $1,677.51, with total amount of $63.14 collectable debts.

In the discussion of another loan from the bank, Mr. Lapp agreed to arrange for the sum of $200.00 to be advanced to the factory this, on motion, being decided upon.

In his address to the gathering the chairman thanked them for their patronage during the past year, stating that he would be pleased to handle their business for the forthcoming season. He stressed a note of optimism by saying that he thought that this district, although very hard hit, with cheese three cents below last year's price, was, however, more fortunate than some parts of the country and the world.

He saw in the future a brighter outlook for the industry, and looked forward to that time when the market would readjust itself.

SCHOONER SINKS SEVEN DROWNED

Child and Two Women Victims in Disaster Off Long Island Sound.

ALL WERE NEGROES.

WATCH HILL, R.I., Dec. 8 (C.P.).—Seven persons lost their lives when the coal-laden schooner Storm Petrel foundered in the chill wind-swept waters of Long Island Sound, seven miles off here. Because of the fact that officers of a coastguard fleet of destroyers and patrol boats which was despatched to the scene from the New London, Conn., base did not cease to seek survivors for hours after the tragedy, news of it did not become known until to-day.

The drowned were four men, including the captain, whose name was believed to be Dial; two women, one of whom was the captain's wife, and ship's cook, and a child. The names of the others were undetermined. All were negroes.

When Rev. T. S. Jones, rector of Middleton, England, was consecrated Bishop of Hulme at York Minster recently, he advised his son, a player on the Lancaster County football team, to play for his county instead of attending the consecration.

MINERS BAY GIRL IS FATALLY SHOT BY HER BROTHER

Lad Playing With Weapon, Scolded By Mother, Flings it Upon Table.

JAR DISCHARGES SHELL.

Sister, Wounded in Abdomen, Rushed to Lindsay Hospital in Vain.

LINDSAY, Ont., December 8 (Examiner Correspondence). — Edith Birmingham, 19-year-old daughter of Mr. James Birmingham, of Miner's Bay, 35 miles north of here, who was accidentally shot on Saturday morning by her young brother, died in the Lindsay Hospital on Saturday night at ten o'clock.

A younger brother found a rusty old gun and was playing with it. When admonished by her mother, the child placed it on the table, the bang causing a discharge. The shot entered the girl's abdomen. She was rushed to the hospital by Dr. Frost of Kinmount, and was attended by Dr. Gorman of Lindsay. An inquest will be held on Monday morning.

This is the second recent shooting accident in Haliburton County. On Friday Lloyd Smith, aged ten years of age, of Haliburton, was killed when a gun handled by his cousin, Vernon Parish, was accidentally discharged.

REV. DR. OLIVER VISITS COBOURG

Moderator of United Church Pays Tribute to Rev. Dr. W. T. Gunn.

A GREAT MAN.

COBOURG, Dec. 8 (Special to The Examiner).—Great tribute to the late Rev. Dr. W. T. Gunn, whom he succeeded in office as moderator of the United Church of Canada, was paid by Rt. Rev. E. H. Oliver, D.D., LL.D., in Trinity United Church on Sunday morning.

"Nearly three months ago" the Moderator said, "in the City of London there was given to me at the hands of a great man, a great office. How could anyone know that in less than a fortnight he would stand crowned and glorified in the presence of the Great King, the Head of all his churches. I salute his spirit and recall Plato's account of the execution of Socrates, 'The sun is still upon the hill tops.' I am sure that wherever Dr. Gunn has gone, the sun is still upon the hill tops."

Rev. Dr. Oliver then quoted from Pilgrim's Progress, "And he passed over and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side." The Moderator concluded by explaining how tragedy sweetened rather than soured Dr. Gunn's later years.

"Two of his sons lost their lives by drowning" Dr. Oliver said, "but his own loss only deepened his love of children. It was characteristic of him that he was always asking his friends how their boys were.

"This office," the Moderator concluded, "will always be sacred to me because of the triumph of him who passed it on to me."

Because of the revival of religious music more organs were imported into Britain in 1930 than in several previous years.

Fear Fog Malady Is Spreading To England

GROSMOUNT, Yorkshire England, Dec. 8 (CP)—Fear that the mysterious fog-borne malady which has taken a toll in men and beasts in the Meuse valley of Belgium, may be spreading to England, was caused by the inexplicable death of 10 cattle on a farm near here.

Neither the veterinary surgeon attending the cattle nor the district veterinary inspector ever encountered a similar outbreak although they have definitely concluded the symptoms are not those of any noticiable disease.

A certain amount of fog has prevailed over the Yorkshire region the last few days, but none of the other farms have been similarly affected.

SUSPECT MURDER IN GORMLEY CASE

New Canadian Found Beside C.N.R. Track Shot Through Chest.

NO WEAPON FOUND.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.). — Suspicions of foul play are held by Provincial Police in connection with the death of Stefan Baytalo, new Canadian of Toronto, whose body was found in a swamp near Gormley on Saturday with a bullet wound in the chest.

The body was seen lying near the Canadian National Railway tracks by the engineer of a freight train, who notified the station operator at Mount Albert, who in turn informed the police of that place. When the police arrived it was thought at first he had been struck by a passing train and thrown into the swamp, but an autopsy revealed death was due to the revolver bullet penetrating his chest. The body was then removed to Aurora, and Provincial Police called in. No weapon was found near the body.

Baytalo recently left here for Sudbury in search of employment. He was unsuccessful, however, and notified his wife he was returning. The man had apparently been "riding the rods" home.

Baytalo had no money on his person, it is understood, when leaving Sudbury, so that police have obviated the robbery motive. Because of the number of hunters who ramble through the district where the body was found, it is thought possible he was the victim of a stray bullet while walking along the railway track.

Thieves Are Thieves In Great Northland

KAPUSKASING, Ont., Dec. 6.—(C.P.).—L. Beaugelas is no piker. When he decided to steal something he did it in a big way and purloined a house. Arraigned before Magistrate Tucker he was adjudged guilty, but told he would be liberated on suspended sentence providing he returned the house to its accustomed location. He promised to do so. Beaugelas, a settler in Williamson Township, had cast envious eyes on an unoccupied house, on an adjoining farm, for some months. When he found his own domicile too cold this fall he proceeded to dismantle the vacant house, cart it over to his own place, and re-erect it inside his own. Naturally the owner objected to the wide open spaces in his house.

HARDY ADVISES PARTY TO IGNORE THREATS OF DRYS

Has No Wish to See Liberals Saddled With Impossible Load.

NO QUARREL WITH IRWIN.

Statement Urges Convention Delegates to Vote For Best Interests of Country.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.).—In reply to the recent ultimatum of the prohibition forces and "the less than veiled threat" that a third party will be formed in Ontario unless the Liberal Party, at its coming convention holds to a prohibition platform, Senator A. C. Hardy, president of the Ontario Liberal Association, in a letter to a local newspaper from Ottawa, expresses the sincere hope that delegates to the convention will utterly disregard the "threats" levelled at them in advance, and vote as they think best for "the country in general and the wishes of the Liberal party as a whole."

Senator Hardy expresses this wish "in the light," as he put it," of our experience with prohibition for ten years, of the overwhelming declaration of the people, including tens of thousands of ardent prohibitionists, in 1929, and of the utter insincerity of such a great mass of 'drys'."

With Dr. A. J. Irwin, head of the Prohibition Union, he has no quarrel, he makes plain, and does not intend to question his sincerity. It is Dr. Irwin's duty, and that of his colleagues, says the Senator, to advance their principle of prohibition according to the best of their lights. "Personally," adds the Senator, "I am neither strongly for nor against prohibition. I am interested in the Liberal party, and do not want to see it saddled with an impossible load."

FIRST MATE LOST OFF FREIGHTER

Asa Lockhart Disappears From Steamer F. D. Squire on Lake Superior.

BLAME HEART ATTACK.

SAULT STE. MARIE Mich., Dec. 8. (CP) — Captain Tyler of the Steamer F. D. Squire reported here that Asa Lockhart, first mate, disappeared from the ship while the boat was on Lake Superior late Friday night. The Squire docked down from Duluth with a cargo of grain for South Chicago.

Lockhart, who comes from Merino City, Mich., was last seen late Friday night, making his way forward to his room. When he was due to go on duty at midnight, Lockhart was found to be missing and a minute search of the vessel disclosed the fact he was not on board.

Lockhart is known to have suffered from heart trouble and it is thought he had a sudden seizure and fell overboard.

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND COMMERCE
OTTAWA, CANADA

December 6th, 1930.

To Canadian Citizens,
Everywhere in Canada.

Suppose Everybody Rocked the Boat!

One of my friends, who has what he considers a refined taste in cheese and is particularly partial to imported brands, tells me that he thinks I am overstepping the bounds of good taste in keeping this "Produced in Canada" agitation up so long, and elaborating it from so many angles. In effect he says to me: "So long as the importation of cheese is lawful, whose business but my own is it if I gratify my liking for imported cheese? I pay what the law demands in the way of customs duties. Then why lecture me for doing what I have a perfect right to do?"

Whose business but his own? I am going to try to show him, in this my public answer to him, that it's everybody's business!

As an easy and effective way of doing so, an old lesson from school days comes aptly to mind. In proving his theorems, you all remember how often Euclid used to employ the "reductio ad absurdum" method—assuming the opposite of what he wanted to prove, and then showing how absurd were the deductions it involved. So let us try the same thing on this business of importing cheese, remembering always, of course, that any one of a hundred other products would serve equally well as an illustration.

First we must admit that if it's all right for some Canadians to restrict their purchases of cheese to imported cheese, it's all right for every Canadian to do the same thing. Now if not one single Canadian were to purchase Canadian-made cheese, most of the Canadian cheese factories would have no alternative but to close up, for there isn't nearly enough export trade in cheese to keep them all going.

Next, we must concede that if there is no question about the propriety of those people, who prefer imported cheese, buying imported cheese, we must likewise concede that there can be no question about the propriety of these people who prefer imported biscuits, jams, hats, shoes, motor cars or what not, buying such articles. And as before, if there can be no objection to some Canadians buying such articles, there can be no objection if every Canadian should decide to pass up every Canadian manufacturer, and buy only articles that had been made by some foreign manufacturer, employing foreign labour and using foreign materials. Result—Every Canadian factory of every kind whatsoever (excepting only those manufacturing wholly or mainly for export) closed up, hundreds of thousands of wage-earners left stranded, tradesmen deprived of the great majority of their cash customers, landlords clamouring for rents and professional men clamouring for fees that could not be collected, empty houses, empty stores, tax sales, people moving away—all for the simple reason that nobody had any income because nobody was producing anything.

Nobody, that is to say, except the Canadian farmer. But why should we assume that he would still be producing? If Canadians unanimously chose to buy imported manufactured articles in preference to domestic manufactured articles, why should they not also choose with equal propriety to buy imported farm products in preference to domestic farm products? Many Canadians already do it regularly in the case of early fruits and vegetables. So if it's all right for some of them to do it part of the time, why isn't it all right for all of them to do it all of the time?

Of course by the time we got round to the point where nobody in Canada was producing anything, due to the fact that no Canadian was willing to buy a made-in-Canada product, none of us would have the wherewithal to buy the next meal. "Which is absurd," as our friend Euclid would say. Hence we are forced to the conclusion that our original assumption was incorrect. That being so, my friend should seriously consider trying to curb his appetite for imported cheese, and endeavour to satisfy it with Canadian cheese.

So to those who think that perhaps I am going a bit too far with this agitation, all I feel called upon to say is that I would rather be held guilty of overstepping the bounds of good taste in order to help my country keep within the bounds of common sense, than be given credit for keeping within the bounds of good taste when it meant letting the common sense side of the question go hang!

Very sincerely yours,

H. H. Stevens

Minister of Trade and Commerce.

A very successful community bridge party which was followed by afternoon tea served at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. P. McNulty, was held on Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Peter's Cathedral. A very large number were in attendance for the card games, thirty-eight tables being played, and for the tea hour which followed. At the conclusion of the games, prizes were drawn for and were won by Miss May Donoghue and Miss Maida Conner. Those who acted as hostesses included Mrs. A. J. MacPherson, the Misses Helen Carson, Kay Doyle, Jean Duffus, Doreen Sheehy, Marita Collins, Hilda Sullivan, Myra Hickey, Mildred Archambault, Helen Lynch, Lillian Hurley, Margaret Kirby, Gladys Costello. Miss Marcelle McNulty offered her home for the tea and the large, handsome rooms were very cosy in the rain-swept afternoon, with grate fires burning in the drawing room, the library and the hall, which were decorated with vases of rose and orchid feather-edged 'mums. The guests were received by Mrs. McNulty, Miss Geraldine Collins, prefect of the Sodality, and Miss Marcelle McNulty. In the tea-room, the table was done very attractively with a cloth of net and Battenberg embroidery sprayed with embroidered pink roses. In the centre, festooned with smilax and delicate green fern, was a silver mirror reflector holding a cut glass vase filled with roses in two shades of pink. Candles in the same soft pink shades were lighted in silver candelabra. Tea was poured by Mrs. R. M. Glover and Mrs. Frank Hickey, assisted by Miss May Sullivan, in charge of refreshments, and the Misses Helen Archambault, Veronica Scollard, Marcelle Tobin, Margery McNulty, Agnes McCarthy, Margaret Kirby, Mary McCarthy, Helen Lynch and Margaret Conners. Miss Helen Carson and Miss Madeline Henry were in charge of the tea-room and Miss Kay Doyle acted as treasurer. The Misses Loretta and Florence Murray took the ladies up to the cloak-rooms. Among those who played bridge were the following: Mesdames M. C. Goodwin, T. J. Ryan, J. J. Southern, E. Riley, J. T. O'Connel, R. Carson, L. D. Letellier, M. LaPlante, E. Finn, T. The booths were decorated in Japanese fashion, with Japanese parasols, lanterns and cherry blossoms. Mrs. W. McKee had charge of the Country Store, Mrs. F. J. A. Hall had the novelty booth, Mrs. A. McLeish, Senior, the sale of Fancy Work, Mrs. F. Rowan, the sale of Christmas cakes and mincemeat, Mrs. S. Taylor the sale of home made cooking, Miss Simpson's girls of the Mission Band, sold novelties and fancy work, and the members of Mrs. J. McNabb's C.G.I.T. group had a sale of mystery parcels. The pretty tea-room was arranged with ferns and palms and the tables were decorated with chrysanthemums and yellow candles in silver holders. Mrs. W. Curry was in charge and tea was poured by Mrs. R. H. Fortye, Mrs W. H. Heal and Mrs. Stewart. Assistants were Mesdames T. H. Gilgour, D. W. Clark, J. J. Craig, Cochrane, Leroy, Sherwood, McElroy, Chanhall, W. Taylor, W. L. Ferguson. The decorations were in charge of Mesdames W. Burrell, J. McNabb and F. J. A. Hall. The guests were received by Mrs. H. Morgan and Mrs. W. Allan, assisted by Mesdames J. Marsh, J. Garbutt, C. Blewett. Mrs. Savigny, Senior, ushered the ladies to the tea room. Mrs. John Anderson acted as treasurer. The cafeteria dinner served downstairs, was in charge lor, assisted by Mesdames A. Craig and McGregor, in charge of refreshments, also Mesdames Metheral, lor, assisted by Mesdames Metheral, McCaw, Riley, Savigny, Senior. For the booths and cafeteria dinner, a large number of ladies gave assistance to these in charge.

The Madrigal Singers, who motored to Toronto yesterday, accompanied by several friends, were entertained very hospitably at a buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matthews on Warren road. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews welcomed the Peterborough group with great cordiality and entertained them delightfully. The handsome rooms were decorated with bowls and vases of large yellow chrysanthemums and the table was lovely with runners and d'oylies of Italian lace on the polished dark wood. A central basket of pierced silver held yellow 'mums of the dwarf and button varieties, with fine green fern, and there were light green lighted candles in twin candelabra of crystral glass with sparkling crystal prisms. Lighted candles of green and rose were on the buffet and side tables. Mrs. Matthews was assisted in the dining room by Mr. and Mrs. James Matthews of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Somerville, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Gliddon. Mrs. J. Forbes Allan voiced the appreciation of the guests, numbering fifty three. After the concert the visitors from Peterborough were entertained by the Royal York Hotel, when refreshments were served in one of the handsome private banquet rooms. The group of Madrigal singers, with their directress, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, and their accompanist, Miss Gwen Mary Donley, included: Mrs. C. H. Crowe, Mrs. James Matthews, Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, Mrs. R. A. Wainman, Mrs. F. Saltman, Mrs. F. Free of Campbellford, Mrs. A. Barton, Mrs. Gerald McClelland, Mrs. L. Spriggs, Mrs. Ross Williamson, Mrs. G. A. Richmond, Mrs. C. Kitney, the Misses Alma Blanchard, Marion Rannie, Margaret Wolstenholm, Emma Meiklejohn of Campbellford, Freda Allison, Margaret Dickson, Daisy Davidson, Mildred Magree, Mae Jory, Geraldine Collins, Isobel McKee, Bertha Hill, Isabel Connelly, Helen Lytle, Elva McIntyre, Ethelwyn Dix, Jean Cameron and Jean Dickenson of Port Hope. Friends accompanying the group and several gentlemen who provided motor cars for the journey, included: Mrs. R. Gliddon, Mrs. J. F. Allan, Miss M. Ross, Miss Marita Collins, Miss Cathleen McCarthy, and Messrs. T. H. Gillespie, E. H. Howson, C. Kitney, G. A. Richmond, R. A. Wainman, W. Craw, James Matthews, P. Whyte, L. Mitchell, J. Sparrow, J. Wolstenholm, Dr. J. J. Craig and Dr. E. M. Crougn. Mr. Deane Miner also accompanied the party, to assist in playing violin obbligato. Among the many former Peterborough people now living in Toronto who heard the local singers were Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Reynolds and Aileen Reynolds.

Mrs. W. H. Morton, Sophia street, entertained Group F of the W.M.S. of George Street Church, a large number being present. After a short business session a pleasing program was rendered, consisting of a reading by Mrs. J. W. Hales, a duet by Mesdames Morton and Girvin, and a chapter of the study book, "The Christ of the Indian Road," taken up by Mrs. Morton. Mrs. J. Spencer, the group leader presided. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess at the conclusion of the meeting, after which Santa Claus came in with a gift for everyone present.

FASHION SERVICE

When you study this smart model, you'll see it's really very slenderizing.

It's full of charm and so thoroughly wearable.

To be certain, it has the best known slimming feature — the deep V-front that reaches to the waistline. Then there's the softly fallin jabot revers that detract so beautifully from breadth.

The hip yoke of the circular skirt is the smartest depth to give the matronly figure slenderness.

There are many lovely materials that adapt themselves admirably to this model. Black canton crepe with white as sketched is extremely chic.

Crepe marocain, crepy woolens and velvet are ideal selections.

Style No. 2859 may be had in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust.

Size 36 requires 4 yards 39-inch with ¾ yard 35-inch contrasting.

Our large Fashion Book shows how to dress up to the minute at very little expense. It contains most attractive Paris designs for adults and children, embroidery, Christmas suggestions, etc.

Be sure to fill in the size of the pattern. Send stamps or coin (coin preferred).

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

From now on, I suppose our topics will be mainly about Christmas, but then it is such a delightful occasion, we do look forward to it, don't we?

• • • • • • •

There isn't much time left now, to make an Christmas articles, but I have found a few that can be made in a short time, and cost very little.

• • • • • • •

To-day I am going to discuss with you the making of a smart design pattern. The design is an amusing interpretation of the old Mother Goose verse.

• • • • • • •

It can be used in several ways, chief of which is for ornamenting kitchen towels and kitchen accessories. For towels one section, or "repeat," as this is called, can be outlined in the centre of one end of the towel.

• • • • • • •

Use outline or chain stitch as preferred to embroider the design. From one to six of these towels so worked make a welcome gift for a young or older homemaker, and is just the thing to give a girl for her hope chest.

• • • • • • •

An embroidered set of three articles, namely, a dish towel, a hot dish holder, and a spoon case, is novel. For the hot dish holder use, the dish design only.

• • • • • • •

Have the dish appear to be running away from the heat rather than from the spoon. For the spoon case use a spoon design only and make the set of towelling.

• • • • • • •

You may make the holder of any of the several styles and shapes preferred. First make the design of a dish on a piece of paper and then when you have one that suits you, trace it on the towelling, putting a sheet of carbon paper between the drawing and the textile.

• • • • • • •

Run a pencil with a rather dull point over all the lines. Remove the paper and the design is ready to embroider. After it is worked, line the top portion and interline with thicknesses of outing or canton flannel.

• • • • • • •

• • • • • • •

The spoon holder is made from a strip of towelling folded into an envelope shape with a straight flap. Transfer a spoon design to the flap of the case and work it.

• • • • • • •

Bind the edges to match the holder.

• • • • • • •

I wonder if you have ever seen kitchen curtains with such designs on them? I have seen them and I think they are really attractive.

• • • • • • •

A set of gay kitchen curtains in a solid color with a border of the Mother Goose design makes a gift that will be appreciated by the young bride.

• • • • • • •

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

WATER AND RAW FOODS NOT GOOD FOR EVERYBODY

It is not always recognized that many of the healthful acts of a people are not alway' healthful to all members of a community.

One of these is the drinking of a large quantity of water daily.

The average individual can quite properly drink a glass of cold water on arising, another during each of the three meals, two or three glasses at 11 o'clock in the morning, and two or three glasses during the afternoon.

For many overweight individuals this is a mistake because their tissues have a tendency to hold more water than others and their overweight continues or actually increases.

Similarly with thin underweight individuals with a "dropped" or low stomach, too much liquid so distends the stomach that it loses some of its elasticity, some of its muscular tone, and is slow in emptying its contents.

And this same thing applies to raw or rough foods. Most individuals should try to eat some raw food every day—fruit or vegetables. The rough parts, the skins are very useful in rubbing against the sides of large intestine, and thus making it move the wastes along and out of the body.

But this rubbing, this roughness is most unwise where the individual has a tender lining of the stomach or intestine, and can actually start or increase an inflammation of the lining.

Further, although in a normal individual these rough foods can be carried along, and actually help the intestine to carry them along, in one who has a weak stomach and intestine, in whom the muscles in the stomach and small and large intestine are weak, or are tired from the use of drugs to stimulate them to action, raw coarse foods may actually be too "heavy" to be moved along properly.

And so in these particular cases raw coarse foods are a mistake, and fine foods or liquids should be used for some time.

In other words instead of stimulation of the digestive tract these cases need to have the whole tract rested and food that is easily absorbed should be eaten.

My point then is that while drinking plenty of water, and eating raw foods are healthful acts themselves, they can really cause harm in some individuals.

Just a little common sense is needed here, as of course, it is needed every where when these "general" ideas about health are being considered.

Trinity Church W.A. Meets In The Hall

The regular meeting of the Trinity Church Women's Association was held in Reid street hall on Tuesday last at 3 o'clock with a very large attendance. The president, Mrs. R. Kidd, presided.

The society made plans to give their Christmas cheer in conjunction with the Sunday school, 'White Gift Sunday,' on the afternoon of December 14, in Reid street hall.

Mrs. Forbes Allan was the speaker of the afternoon and gave a most inspiring and interesting address, choosing as her subject, "Music." Vocal solos by Mrs. Braund and Master Orville Wainman and a violin solo by Keith Wightman were very much appreciated.

Refreshments were served and a pleasant half hour enjoyed.

BISHOP VISITS PARISH CHURCH

Sixteenth Anniversary of Church of Immaculate Conception.

SERMON BY BISHOP.

Rev. Dean O'Sullivan and the congregation of the Church of the Immaculate Conception solemnly celebrated yesterday the sixteenth anniversary of their parish and of the dedication of their church. In the evening they were joined by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, and Bishop O'Connor, who preached the anniversary sermon.

"On this your feast day, I bring to your pastor and his assistant and to the parishioners my greetings and felicitations," said His Lordship. "I offer my prayers that your work may go on successfully together, pastor and people, to many anniversaries for the glory of God, the salvation of souls, and unto the praise of Mary, God's blessed mother."

Referring to the Immaculate Conception, Bishop O'Connor said: "On the authority of God and the church we believe that the Blessed Virgin Mary was by the privilege of God preserved exempt from all stain of original sin. From the first moment of the existence of our Blessed Mother she was the child of promise, foreknown in the designs of God from all eternity and predicted from the moment of man's original fall. She was the child of prophecy whose privilege was to give the world its redeemer."

God in His infinite goodness decreed the way of man's salvation, Bishop O'Connor said. It was His design that the second person of the Blessed Trinity should assume our human nature with His divine nature that He might be the intermediary of the world's redemption. If the Word was to be made flesh, then the first step was the preparation of a mother of God.

As the Blessed Virgin was to give the world its Redeemer, she was preserved from the first moment of her existence from that otherwise universal curse. She was excepted from the universality of original sin. The victory of God must be as complete as the victory of the evil one had been. The very exigencies of the holiness of the Redeemer demanded that His mother should not have been for a moment under the domination of the evil one. This is her greatest privilege. Her wondrous glory that she was the mother of God. Because she was the divine mother she was free from the stain of original sin and also from actual sin as well.

"It is for us on this day of her feast to endeavour to imitate her virtues while we venerate her sanctity. We cannot be free from sin as she was. Had we died in our baptismal innocence heaven would have at once been ours, but now the baptism of tears is our only hope. Jesus Christ is no less the son of God than the son of Mary, and we shall commit our cares into her hands, for she is the mediatrix with the one mediator, her living Son. Ask her to teach us the way over which she walked to heaven."

MRS. S. L. TERRILL ELECTED PRESIDENT

Women's Missionary Society of Wooler Elects Officers at Annual Meeting.

WOOLER, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. S. L. Terrill was elected president of the Women's Missionary Society at the annual meeting held on Tuesday.

Lunch was served to a large number at noon, by Mrs. Roy Futman, Mrs. Nesbitt Haggerty, Mrs. W. J. Lawson, Mrs. John McIntyre, Mrs. Henry Richards, and Mrs. W. A. McColl.

The meeting opened in the usual manner, followed by the devotional period, in which Mrs. Vardy, Mrs. Down and Mrs. Terrill took part. The nominating committee was named and its report received. Christian Stewardship and Temperance items of interest were read.

Mrs. Clarence McMasters gave a most inspirational address on the study book which was enjoyed by the members.

Rev. A. Poulter took the chair for the election of officers which was conducted after a few remarks. The officer for 1931 will be as follows: president, Mrs. S. L. Terrill; Mrs. C. R. Terrill, first vice president; Mrs. L. H. Rome, second vice president; Mrs. W. J. Lawson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. J. Way; Mrs. A. W. Clarke, treasurer; Mrs. Waite, secretary Christian Stewardship; Mrs. W. A. McColl, secretary Missionary Monthly; Mrs. E. McMasters, secretary, associate helpers; Mrs. Clarence McMasters, strangers' secretary; Mrs. Caleb Cole, literature secretary; Mrs. J. J. Way, supply secretary; Mrs. C. F. Wessels, press secretary; Mrs. H. Richards, secretary of envelopes; Mrs. W. A. Smith, temperance secretary; Mrs. W. J. Lawson, superintendent Gospel Sanders Mission Band; Mrs L. W. Rome, superintendent of Golden Rule Mission Band.

THE CHRISTMAS FUND.

The Examiner's Christmas relief campaign is under way once more, with the need this year greater than it has been for some time.

While it is true that Peterborough has weathered the storm of depression in much better shape than the majority of Canadian communities, it was too much to hope to escape unscathed.

There are many families with greatly reduced incomes, some with no incomes at all.

There is urgent need in some cases for clothing, boots and stockings, rubbers, food and fuel, and in many more cases, where there is enough spending power left to keep body and soul together, there is a lack of the things that usually make Christmas a gladsome season.

As was pointed out in this column on Saturday, there are hundreds of people who are waiting to be told how they can help.

To them The Examiner offers its services: gifts of food, clothing, toys, etc., or money will be gladly received at this office and distributed to the best possible advantage, either through social service agencies or directly when The Examiner comes into contact with cases in which help is urgently needed.

Under the unusual conditions prevailing this year the urgency of the call cannot be gain said, but The Examiner has every confidence in the generosity of this community to arise to the occasion.

Citizens who are anxious to help are asked to communicate with this paper.

SOUND ADVICE.

The retail merchants' division of the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce has been giving its members some sound advice that is worth repeating for the benefit of retailers everywhere.

"Stop wondering why customers do not come in to buy," says the Chamber. "You know what you have for sale, but the man outside with the money does not. Increase your advertising and maintain a sustained pressure."

There is common sense in every word of that advice.

The merchant who does not advertise at all is usually the merchant who suffers the most in times of depression, and the retailer who advertises only spasmodically does not have much better success.

The consistent advertiser whose message every day is looked for by the buying public can count on increased business and steady sales; advertising is not an experiment with him—it is as much a part of his business as dressing the store windows.

And the wise retailer does not reduce his publicity work in a period of economic distress, for he realizes that with the total volume of business reduced the merchant who is going to do business is the one who goes after it vigorously.

The Oshawa Chamber of Commerce suggests the only practical policy in times like these: "Increase your advertising and maintain a sustained pressure."

MAKING A BAD START.

Premier Ferguson's speech the other night in which he pictured himself as a new St. George who proposed to save the Mother Country from the modern dragons that assail her, was unfortunate to say the least.

There may be some conditions in the British Isles that need amending, the dole system is undoubtedly a demoralizing influence, and it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that the Labor Government in many respects has failed lamentably, but these things are the business of the British people themselves, and the last person who should attempt to advise them, The Examiner would suggest, is a High Commissioner from one of the other parts of the Empire.

Mr. Ferguson's job is to represent Canada at the heart of the Empire, and he should stick to that task and not strive to assume the role of a man with a mission to save the Old Country from itself.

If the British Commissioner to Canada had made a speech in similar vein before leaving England, declaring his intention of improving Canada's liquor laws or other legislation, there would have been such a chorus of protest from all parts of Canada at this attitude that the British Government would probably have decided to annul his appointment and send somebody else.

The British reaction to Mr. Ferguson's hasty remarks may not be so marked, but at least the people of the Old Country will come to the conclusion that the new Commissioner has got away to a bad start.

SHOULD BE VIGOROUSLY PUSHED.

Avoiding the building of anything so old fashioned as a swing span in a bridge on the route of a provincial highway is so desirable that there will be general satisfaction that, following The Examiner's editorial reference to the matter, the Chamber of Commerce has called the attention of provincial and federal authorities to the wisdom of considering the construction of a high-level bridge above the Peterborough lock instead of the swing type structure proposed by the Federal Department of Railways and Canals.

This is a question that should be vigorously supported by both our federal and provincial representatives.

It is manifestly to the interest of the federal authorities that the expense of operating a swing span should be avoided, and it is equally desirable from a provincial standpoint that traffic on a provincial highway should not be interrupted as it necessarily would be if the swing plan is pushed through.

The Examiner suggests to Mr. Peck and Mr. Strickland that they continue their representations to their respective Governments until this whole matter has been given the consideration it deserves.

It is pointed out that the construction of a high-level bridge at this point presents few engineering difficulties; in that case the expense involved should not be excessive, especially in view of the obvious advantages of such a bridge as compared to a swing span structure.

MACHINES, MEN, UNEMPLOYMENT.

Is the mechanization of industry, agriculture and commerce displacing man-power? Causing workless workers?

This challenge, heard before, is uppermost now in debate on unemployment.

Whether labor-saving machinery actually means fewer jobs is debatable. Yet it is worth while to consider the following information, carefully compiled, believed to be authoritative:

In Saskatchewan there are 41,104 farm tractors; practically one for every three farms. In addition to the tractor there is the combine harvester. In 1926 there were 148 combines in Saskatchewan; in 1927, 382; in 1928, 2,679; and, in 1929, 2,279. Each of these machines will, at a conservative estimate, displace from four to six men.

Figures for Manitoba and Alberta are not available, but it is safe to say that there has been a comparative increase in the use of these machines on the farms in these Provinces.

One power shovel to-day can excavate as much dirt on a city street as it required 200 unskilled laborers to shovel 30 years ago.

Twenty years ago all glass tubes were made by glass blowers. To-day one machine makes as many as did 600 of these skilled men then. The bottle-making machine increased the output per man from 45 to 950 bottles per hour.

Ten years ago an automatic machine for the making of electric light bulbs was invented which produced 73,000 in 24 hours; formerly one man could make 75 in a day. Recent improvements so increase this productivity that each machine displaces 2,000 workers.

The strip mining of coal has produced a power shovel that lifts a ton at a time, dumps it in cars and returns for a second bite in three-quarters of a minute.

A dough-mixer and one man do the work of 20 bakers.

One girl with a rib-cutting (clothing) machine does the work of 25 cutters; with a button-hole machine that of 50.

The lasting machine enables one man to do the work of 10 shoemakers; machines now do 90 per cent. of the work of making a shoe.

The carton machine does the work of 10 hand wrappers.

One operator on an open hearth charging machine does the work of 40 workers.

A pig-casting machine with seven operators took the place of 60 workers.

With a cigar-making machine one man does the work of 15.

Two men do the work of eight, helped by an automatic stoker.

An automatic conveyer enables 12 men to do the work of 150.

The Boston and Maine Railway has installed a mechanical device by which two or three men will switch as many cars as 400 previously set about the yard.

The dictaphone makes it possible for two typists to do the work of nine stenographers.

A cheque-writing machine that does the work of six clerks is in successful use. It writes a cheque every minute.

The magnetic crane operated by two men replaces 128.

Twelve men, operating a crane, take the place of 37 in pouring molten metals.

An automatic butter wrapping and card printing machine will wrap in quarter portions and put cartons on more than six tons of butter in eight hours.

In modern steel making eight men turn out 100 tons where formerly they turned out 5½ tons.

A big excavating machine is now at work that will lift 15 tons of earth at a time and carry it a city block or even lift it to the height of a 10-storey building with no other help than two hands to pull levers.

The making of books is now done by machines. In one bindery 60,000 are bound, boxed and shipped in one day.

The dial telephone reduces the operating force to one-third.

It is estimated that under old hand methods it would require 1,000,000 men to make 10,000 Ford cars in the time now required, and they would cost $10,000 each.

While the above by no means completes the list of labor-displacing machinery, it will give a fair idea of the trend of modern industry, agriculture and commerce.

* * * * *

However, there is another side to the question, this: That somebody must be making all these labor-saving machines. They are made in factories, hundreds and thousands of factories, all giving employment. More than that, they use iron, steel, copper, nickel, paint; make for development of mineral and other industries, give jobs in other trades.—Ottawa Journal.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER SEVEN

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters:

Thinking it over, Jean decides to accept Mollie's invitation and go to New York. She leaves that afternoon. On the train she takes stock of her finances and discovers she has $1.22 left after buying her ticket. Oh well, she'll be with Mollie in a few hours. Arriving in New York she taxies to the store and Jean generously tips the driver the remainder of her dollar bill. One of the girls in the store informs Jean that Mollie had been married that morning and started for Missouri on a wedding trip.

Jean is accosted by an insulting stranger but saved from an embarrassing situation by an attractive young man who introduces himself as Sandy Clause. He invites her to dinner but she insists on paying for her own meal.

Sandy leaves, Marcia gives her some cynical advice on how to get on in the world, and two sinister men arrive. They are known as FARGESON and SLIM DIGGERS. When she sees Fargeson embrace her hostess Jean instinctively feels that the atmosphere is dangerous and she slips out of the apartment, unperceived. In the hall she observes Clause, evidently returning, but he does not see her.

Now go on with the story.

That she could have been mistaken about having seen Sandy pass through the lobby when she was running away from Marcia's apartment seemed to Jean impossible. She had seen his face as he turned on the stairs and had thought even then that there would be trouble when he came to the open apartment door and saw Fargeson kissing Marcia.

But murder! She tried to tell herself that it was inconceivable that Sandy could kill a fellow being, for any cause whatever. By sheer will-power she forced herself to accept his statement that he had not gone back to the apartment, that she could not have seen him in the lobby.

For several minutes now Sandy had been pacing the floor of his office, talking but little. But presently he sat in the chair before his desk and spoke to her.

"Until the police come looking for us, there's nothing we can do. Neither of us was there, so we can tell them nothing of importance. If Fargeson was Sampson, the gangster, there must have been a good many who had reason to murder him."

He leaned forward and rested his arms on the desk. "In the meantime," he continued, "it can't help to worry, and we've work to do."

"Pardon me," said Jean, "but being a woman, there is something I've got to know. When did you put the ad in the papers?"

He smiled gently. "Last night when I left you in the restaurant. I had to," he added seriously. "You see, I couldn't be sure that you would agree to go to Marcia's apartment, and . . . well, I didn't want to lose you. That is, I didn't want to see you lost in New York when it was evident that you had very little money. . . . You had told me, you know, that you had done stenographic work and a little bookkeeping, and I took the chance. But I was afraid then that you find another place, and not even answer the ad."

"I applied for another place," Jean admitted. "In the packing-room of the Quality Clothiers. But they turned me down with a bang."

"Thank heaven for that. It would have been bad enough to lose you, but to throw your suitcase and clothes away and then not be able to replace them would have been worse." He opened a desk drawer and drew from it a folder containing what Jean took to be a legal document. "And now," said Sandy, "we'll get down to business. This folder contains what we call the Miniature Baby Plan. It is to be your first job with the I.P.P. Read it through again and again until you are thoroughly familiar with every detail. Then sometime in the next few days we'll go over it together and lay our lines."

Jean took the folder and glanced at the typewritten pages within it. After a while she looked up, smiling. "Do I have to wait until I read this to know what the Miniature Baby Plan is?"

"Curious!" he charged. And then: "I'll tell you enough about it to satisfy you for the moment," he agreed. "It is the idea of a man who believes that woman's place is in the home, and that the best way to keep her there is to show her the importance and the beauty of motherhood."

"So," said Jean, "he starts a sort of anti-birth control campaign. Is that it?"

"Yes," Sandy agreed; "that's about the size of it. . . . And how do you think he goes about starting his campaign?"

"By getting out booklets on the aforesaid beauty and importance of motherhood," Jean suggested.

But Sandy shook his head. "No. He has more imagination than that. He thinks that the place to teach motherhood is in the kindergareen. By that I mean, to encourage the instinct in very little girls. Then, when they grow up, they will just naturally look forward to having children."

"But," Jean objected, "you can't talk motherhood to very little girls."

"You can't talk it, but you can teach it. Did you ever have a doll?"

"Lots of them."

"Then you had lots of early lessons in motherhood."

"Oh . . .!" Jean cried, suddenly enlightened. "Then his idea is . . ."

"There!" Sandy laughed. "You've got it. Having a great deal more money than he can use, his idea is to see that Santa Claus brings a doll to every little girl in New York whose parents can't afford to buy her one. Only he doesn't call them dolls, but miniature babies. All we have to do is to buy the dolls, find the little girls, and bring them together. Simple, isn't it?"

After a brief silence, Jean said: "It sounds rather ridiculous at first, but . . . there may be something to it. Anyway, it will make thousands of little girls happy, and that's worth while whether they get the mother complex or not."

"Exactly," Sandy agreed with enthusiasm. "And now . . ."

Jean's puzzled expression stopped him.

"Perhaps," she said, "you'll tell me to do what I'm told and not ask foolish questions, but . . . but what I don't understand is what of a business this is. I.P.P. is all over the place, but it doesn't mean anything to me."

Sandy was amused at her perplexity. "Some tim I'll tell you the whole story if you'd like to hear it," he promised. "I.P.P. stands for the Institute of Practical Philanthropy. I organized it last year right after leaving college. Our business is to advise and serve those who want to devote some of their wealth to helping those less fortunate than ourselves. . . . Will that serve for the present?"

Jean nodded, smiling. She understood that their discussion was at an end, and rose.

Sandy also got to his feet and came around the desk to stand beside her. "It's agreed," he said, "that until something happens, we're to think about the Fargeson affair as little as possible?"

"Yes."

"Then there's just one thing more," he told her, "and then you're free to spend the morning refurnishing your wardrobe." From a bill fold he took several crisp bills, rolled them up and, before Jean knew what was happening, had taken her purse and dropped them into it. "Call this anything you please, Miss Melba," he told her; "a loan or an advance of salary, I don't care. To me it is to replace what you lost when I threw your suitcase away."

"It's an advance of salary," Jean said firmly; "and I hope it isn't too much. . . . When shall I come back?"

"Drop in for a minute after lunch, will you? After last night I'd like to know you've a decent place to live and enough to eat."

Jean laughed lightly. "You're a fine one to be worrying about me," she told him. "You look like you'd been run over by a truck." And then suddenly serious: "Why don't you go home and take a nap, Sandy? You're all in."

He gazed into the depths of her blue eyes searchingly. Then: "It isn't a bad idea. I may do it . . . Jean." It was the first time he had used her first name, and he smiled at his own lapse from the little formality he had persisted in even after she had accepted him as the plain Sandy of their first adventure.

Jean's first objective was the nearest restaurant and when she found it, the menu looked decidedly meager. She felt that she could eat everything listed on it and still be hungry. But it was an illusion of the eye not shared by the stomach. A small steak, a variety of vegetables, a piece of pie and a cup of coffee were more than adequate.

Then, because it was the only store in New York she had ever been in, she made her way to Simmons Department Store on Broadway and began a tour that was to take her into practically every department in the enormous building. She needed clothes badly, and would get them, but woman-like she had first to see, and feel, and price and, having almost bought, to walk off to repeat the process in another department.

It was in the dress department that she came up behind a salesgirl and asked pleasantly: "Could you show me something in a one-piece woolen dress with a-a . . ."

The girl had suddenly faced about, given her one quick glance and thrown her arms about her.

"Jean! . . . Jean! . . . You darling . . .!"

"Mollie!" Jean cried weakly. "I . . . I thought you were married . . . and in Missouri . . . !"

"Missouri, your grandpappy. I haven't been off Manhattan. But I'm married, honey, and that's not the half of it. The boy friend went native about eight hours after the ceremony and I left him flat. . . . Why didn't you write me you were coming?"

Jean gave her a sketchy account . . . with numerous pertinent omissions . . . of her departure from Kelsey and experiences in New York since her arrival.

"Gosh!" said Mollie. "If I'd known you were coming yesterday, I wouldn't have married the brute. I'm terribly sorry I missed you. . . . Have you got a job yet?"

Jean said she had. "But I haven't found a place to stay," she added. "Could you suggest one?"

Mollie threw her arms about her, laughing happily. "Suggest? Why, honey, I've got the swellest double bed in New York and half of it's yours."

"What about your . . . husband?" Jean asked, confused.

"Don't use the word," said Mollie. "If that shrimp shows up, I'll throw him down the stairs. . . ."

It was after 2 o'clock when Jean returned to the I.P.P. offices and found Sandy out. But he had left a note for her with Lionel Gilman. She took it to a window, tore open the envelope, and read:

"Dear Jean: Marcia came in shortly after you left. The police had been questioning her for hours and she was in an ugly mood. She insists you were in the apartment when Fargeson was killed, and that in fairness to her you ought to be found and turned over to the police. I don't think she has implicated you as yet. She doesn't know you are employed here, so avoid her if you can.

"Whatever happens, know that I am with you and, if necessary, will prove an alibi for you. I only hope neither of us is drawn into it.

"If you have not already found a comfortable place to live, Lionel will help you. Come in to see me to-morrow afternoon.

"Your

"Sandy Clause."

So Marcia wanted to turn her over to the police. . . . And Sandy would prove an alibi for her if she did. But, Jean wondered, if Sandy had not gone back to the apartment as he claimed, how could he prove an alibi for her?

CHAPTER EIGHT

What a strange world. Moved in with dear old Mollie last night and talked until after midnight. I can't understand her attitude toward her husband. I have an idea, however, that she is still in love with him. She hasn't told me why they quarreled right after they were married, but it must have been something serious. Lionel Gilman asked me to dinner last night and I had to refuse because I had promised to meet Mollie. Lionel seems to be a nice boy, and I like him. The more I see of my new things, the more pleased I am with them. The jersey tweed suit is such a darling! I am trying not to think about the Fargeson affair, but I am finding it very hard to persuade myself that I didn't see Sandy going to the apartment as I was leaving it. He wrote me a note last night saying that he would prove an alibi for me if Marcia should tell the police about my being there. But if he didn't go back to the apartment, how can he prove an alibi for me? Must leave my diary now until to-morrow. Want to get a note off to Phil before I settle down to study the Miniature Baby Plan.

Though perhaps she did not realize it, Jean's diary was a direct result of Sandy's note. The thought of being involved in a murder—and the murder of a notorious gangster at that—seemed to chill her through. She wished fervently that she had never left Kelsey, that she had forgotten her silly ideas of adventure and married Phil when he had asked her the last time, after the Red Diamond Novelty plant explosion.

This sort of adventure she had never desired. New York, once the city of freedom and gaiety, now seemed to be closing in upon her, harassing her with hr3ats, suffocating her. She wanted to get out of it, and stay out.

When she had started to write to Phillip giving him her address, she had been strongly tempted to hint that he could come for her before Christmas morning. Only pride restrained her; pride and the fear that if she left New York now, she might ultimately be dragged into the Fargeson murder probe and ruin not alone her own life but Phillip's as well.

So she told him that she was having a delightful time and that on Christmas morning—if he had not changed his mind—he would find her with Mollie. She not only gave him Mollie's address, but drew a little diagram showing him where to take the subway, and how to proceed after leaving it at Madison Square.

When she went to the office after lunch, the Miniature Baby Plan under her arm, she wore the jersey tweed suit with the matching blouse of wool lace. Clothes may not make the woman, but it was plainly evident in Lionel Gilman's eyes that clothes played an important part.

"My!" he greeted her, smiling. "You have grown up overnight."

She knew what he meant. The plain little dress she had worn for two days after leaving Kelsey had been a relic of the short-skirt era. Her new frocks were longer, newer, finer, better fitting and naturally more becoming. She was pleased with his subtle compliment.

"Has the Director come back from lunch?" she asked him.

"Sandy? He hasn't been in at all. But he is coming in shortly. He said you were to wait for him. Have you had lunch?"

She told him, regretfully, that she had.

"Defeated at every turn," he smiled. "Would it be effrontery if I asked you to dinner again to-night?"

Jean laughed easily: "It might be," she said, "but I'd accept."

"Good!" He seemed to be genuinely pleased. "Night club, or . . ."

"Preferably not. Don't forget I'm a small town girl in the big city. I must get used to it by degrees."

He agreed amiably. "I know a hotel grill room where the food is excellent and the orchestra equally good. We can eat, dance, and forget there is such a thing as the Miniature Baby Plan."

Jean was suddenly serious. "But I don't want to forget it," she told him. "I've been over the plan again and again, and the more I consider it, the more enthusiastic I grow. It's wonderful, Mr. Gilman! You're a man; it can't mean much to you. But the thought of giving every poor little girl in New York a big, prettily dressed doll sends little shivers through me. Understand, I'm not particularly thrilled over the idea of teaching Mother hood, as Sandy puts it. It may work and it may not. But think of the happiness it will bring to thousand of little girls who might otherwise get nothing for Christmas."

Lionel smiled sympathetically. "Say, but you are strong for it, aren't you? And only last week Sandy was pulling his hair because there was no one in the organization enough in sympathy with it to take it in hand. Have you thought out a plan for finding the poor little girls and getting the dolls—I mean the miniature babies—to them?"

Jean said hesitantly, "Why, yes, I have . . . for my own amusement; That's all arranged isn't it?"

He shook his blond head. "Nothing's arranged. That is, as I understand it, is your job. First you have to select the doll, determine the number you will need, arrange for their purchase, and work out a plan of distribution . . . You see, the old gentleman came in with the idea only last week and we haven't had time to think much about it."

"The old gentleman?" Jean said, puzzled. "Who is he?"

Lionel looked at her in surprise. "Didn't Dandy tell you?" And after a moment: "Perhaps he doesn't want it known yet, if at all. If . . ."

Jean said quickly: "If it's a secret, I'd rather not know it. I've more secrets on my chest now than I can look after."

When at las Sandy arrived, he asked Jean into his office at once. He closed the door after her, waited until she was seated, then dropped into the chair by his desk. Jean saw that he was appraising her new costume and she was suddenly self conscious.

"You've excellent taste, Jean," he said after a moment. "Though to be perfectly frank, I suspect anything would look good on you."

"Blarney," said Jean in self defense. "I'm glad to see you're looking less haggard, Sandy. You were pathetic yesterday morning."

He gazed off toward the window thoughtfully. "One of these days I'll tell you how I spent the night before. Did you find a nice place to live?"

She told him about finding Mollie and of their temporary arrangement to occupy the same room. "We don't have much space to waste," she concluded, "but it's something to be with someone you know."

"Yes, of course. But if her husband should come back, or for any reason you wish to make a change, I can find you a comfortable little apartment somewhere. You'll be able to afford it, you know."

It was the first suggestion concerning her salary.

"I don't need much, Sandy," she told him then; "and I'm not interested in salary. All I want is enough o keep me going until Christmas and . . ."

"You're still thinking about leaving New York?"

She thought she saw something in his eyes beyond the casual question, but she said quietly: "I think so, Sandy. New York is all right, but I was born in a small town and I think I prefer it. But for the present I'm all wrapped up in your Miniature Baby Plan, and until that's disposed of, I can't think of leaving or anything else."

He was obviously delighted to find her so eager to put the plan into effect.

"Lionel tells me," she said, "that I'm to organize the whole thing."

Sandy nodded. "You'll need time, of course."

"Yes, I will. But I've already thought of a plan. It may be all wrong, but you can tell me where it's weak."

Sandy's eyes lighted up with admiration, but he said nothing.

Jean said eagerly: "We'll go to the city hall and get a complete list of girl babies from the birth records since, and including 1925, with addresses, of course."

"But a good many of them will have moved," Sandy suggested.

"Yes, I know. And some of them will not have survived the New York atmosphere. But we'll send out letters to every address with 'please Forward' on the envelope. The letters will be addressed to the girls themselves and will contain a return card. We'll just say that if they will have their mothers or fathers write their names and correct addresses on the cards and post them, Santa Claus will bring them a doll for Christmas. And we'll sign the letters 'Santa Claus' . . ."

Sandy's first came down on the desk sharply. "Say! You've got it worked out to a T. That's great, Jean. Really it is . . . But what about distribution?"

Jean laughed gaily. "Give me time. The first thing is to get a force busy on the birth records at the city hall. By the way, how much money have we to spend?"

"If I told you," Sandy replied, "you wouldn't believe me. We don't want to waste money, but the man behind this would duplicate the Chrysler building and convert the Leviathan into a private yacht, and not feel it. Don't worry about expense where it's needed."

It was when Jean had risen from her chair to leave the office, that Sandy leaned over his desk toward her and asked quietly:

"I wonder if you'd go to dinner with me to-night, Jean?"

"Why, I . . . I'd love to, Sandy, but, Lionel asked me before you came in. If I had known . . ."

Jean saw his disappointment and was puzzled by it. But it was not evident in his voice.

"Some other time, then, Jean. Lionel is a good sort, and square." After a moment, he told her: "Don't worry about the birth records. I'll have Lionel send as many girls as necessary to the city hall. You'd better look around for the doll. I mean," he smiled, "the miniature baby."

Leaving Sandy's office, Jean was not aware that someone was in the office with Lionel, until she saw him rise and say politely:

"Mr. Clause is free now, Miss White."

Jean turned slowly. Marcia White rose from a chair on her left. She was staring at Jean as if she could hardly believe her eyes.

But presently her amazement gave way to an enigmatic smile. "Well," she said softly; "I see you've turned my advice to good advantage." Her smile grew, then suddenly faded. "I hope you are here when I've finished talking to Sandy. I've a little more advice you might find helpful."

Jean met her sharp gaze challengingly. "I'm very sorry," she said, "but I'm leaving the office for the afternoon." And with a nod to Lionel, she crossed the office and went out into the hall.

GARBAGE TINS ON STREET

Dear Mr. Editor:

Since my arrival in Peterborough I have been very pleased with the beauty, the standard, and the governing body of this city. But one thing strikes me as marring the whole, at least to the newcomer or the visitor. This pernicious practice is the placing of ash and garbage cans on the outer edge of the sidewalk, so that passers-by may inspect the contents (or in the case of the poverty-stricken to select some article) or inhale the delicious odors proceeding therefrom. Undoubtedly this habit is with a view to aiding the collectors of the Sanitary Department, but the real place for refuse is the back yard "out of sight and out of mind." Some patrons of the Liquor Control Board have been known to overturn such receptacles, evidently annoyed by their presence. And I must confess that my attitude is much the same as theirs. So here's to a little more work for the garbage collectors, and a great deal more credit to our city.

Sincerely,
An Interested Newcomer

What To-day Means To You

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. The darkest hours will occur from 5 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. and from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Conflicting influences and conflicting events are prognosticated for this date. The debits and credits will perfectly balance — the material losses and gains will be equal, and the opposition from one will be offset by the assistance of another. Valuable lessons in experience will be stored up for the future.

The child born on this December 8th will have a sturdy, unimaginative nature. It will go after facts, not fiction, and will become a thorough master of its work. It will have an intense loyalty and will fight for friend or principle.

You have a guileless and at times a gullible nature. With almost childlike simplicity, you trust all humanity. With people you like, your lips are never guarded — that is your imprudent way. It is your charm and your danger. You are many times artfully tempted to make unfortunate disclosures to malicious ears. It is difficult for you to learn when to be on your guard. You like an emotional situation, and you like to be the pivot in a situation. You like to play with fire, and you will not go through life without being burned, and unfortunately others will be seared by the same fires.

You have a great deal of nervous energy and you are inclined to undertake more than you are qualified by nature to do—you abuse and over-estimate your physical strength. You run, when it is only necessary, and advisable to walk. You get excited when you should remain calm. In a time of real emergency, you become hysterical. You have, however, that force and determination, which makes for self-preservation, if not success in life. If you want a thing, or want to do a thing, you will gain your end, by hook or crook. You will flirt with love long before you will discover the real thing.

SEVERAL ISSUES AT LOW LEVELS

Wall Street Runs Into Liquidation at Beginning of New Week.

MONEY MARKET UNCHANGED

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (C.P.) — The stock market ran into sloppy weather at the beginning of the new week today.

The sprinkle of selling which appeared during the latter part of last week developed into a moderate downpour, and several of the rail, oil and specialty shares retreated to lower levels than those of November 10, when the market as a whole reached the year's minimum. Most of the pivotal shares, however, were well supported above their bottom prices.

Baltimore and Ohio dropped 5 points, and shares declining 2 to 4 to new minimum quotations included New York Central, Erie, 'Frisco, Great Northern Preferred, Rock Island, Southern Railway, Western Union, Case, Eastman Kodak, Sun Oil, and Prairie Pipe Line.

In smaller declines, Standard of California, Prairie Oil, Phillips, and American Republics reached new lows. Other shares losing about 2 to 4 points included American Can., American Telephone, North American, Atchison, Pennsylvania Railroad, Chesapeake Corp., Johns Manville, and Union Pacific. U.S. Steel sold off 1½ points, then rallied.

The money market continued about stationary, with call loans officially at 2 per cent. The best commentary of the week-end on the short term credit situation was in the 1¾ per cent. rate for the treasury's offering of six-month bills, the best rate the treasury has ever obtained.

Wholesale Price Drop Slackens Down Pace

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 8. (By the Canadian Press.—The long-continued fall in wholesale prices in Great Britain has slackened in pace if it has not been altogether arrested. Such reductions as have taken place recently are associated with a few commodities, notably wheat. This information has been received by the department of trade and commerce here from Harrison Watson, Canadian Trade Commissioner at London. Moreover, while the movement is mainly seasonal, the British overseas trade returns for October maintain the customary increase over those for September, to the extent of about $60,000,000 in the case of importa snd $30,000,000 in exports and re-exports.

TORONTO LIST OPENS LISTLESS

Raid Upon Rails in New York Brings Corresponding Decline in C.P.R.

DECLINES TO 41.

TORONTO, Dec. 8. (CP) — The market acted as a dead inanimate thing this morning, the week beginning in a most listless fashion. Sharp quick jabs at supposedly vital spots brought no show of life and volume was so low the ticker was silent the greater part of the time.

A raid upon the rails in New York brought a corresponding decline in C.P.R. locally, the stock dropping a couple of points to 41, the lowest in some weeks. There were no heavy offerings on the reaction, however, and the action of this stock failed to cause a ripple upon the placid surface of the market. Some of the other inter-listed issues eased fractionally, Brazilian, Ford of Canada, International Nickel, Practically all the oils, including Farm Implement stocks also were off, Massey-Harris and Cockshutt flow both dropping below last week's figures.

PEDESTRIAN IS INJURED BY CAR

Stephen McDonald Knocked Down at Corner of Dublin and Aylmer Streets.

CAR SLEWED ON ICE.

A pedestrian, Stephen McDonald Bethune street, received an injured leg when knocked down by a motor car at the corner of Dublin and Aylmer streets at 10 p.m. yesterday. McDonald was walking across the intersection when W. S. Elliott, 57 Arundel Avenue, Toronto, drove north on Aylmer street and turned west on Dublin street. The car slewed on the icy roadway, knocking the pedestrian down.

Dr. T. G. Loudon, attended the injured man. No bones were broken and his bruises are not considered as serious.

COCHET RANKS ALONE

PARIS, Dec. 8 (A.P.)—Henri Cochet, who shared the top position with Rene Lacoste in 1929, was ranked alone as the No. 1 tennis player of France to-day. Lacoste, weakened by ill health, did not engage in competitive tennis this year.

Jean Borotra, the famous "Bounding Basque, is rated second; Jacques Brugnon is placed fourth, behind the youthful southpaw, Christian Boussus.

LOSSES GAIN IN MAJORITY

Noranda Unchanged at $13.75 Following Easier Trend at Opening.

NICKEL OFF QUARTER.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 8. (CP)—Losses were somewhat in the majority at mid-day to-day following a dull opening session on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange.

Noranda turned slightly easier in early trade but recovered to stand unchanged at $13.75, but International Nickel was off a quarter to $18. Base Metals turned over at $1.20, off 20, due to nervotusness produced by further declines in the London metal market, and Newbec lost a fraction to 5. Lindsleys firmed, Sherritt Gordon, Sudbury Basin and Ventures selling from 2 to 4 cents above Saturday's close.

Teck Hughes strengthened 5 to $5.70 and Wright Hargreaves a point to $1.69, but other members of the gold movements were downward. Granada Rouyn declined 10 to $1.30, McIntyre a quarter to $18.50, Hollinger 5 to $6.40, Kirkland Lake gold a couple to 45 and Vipond a point to 90.

Acme Gas was holding at 28 and Home Oil and Nordon regained a couple each to $2.01 and 53, respectively. Imperial dropped 35 to $17.50, B. A. Oil 15 to $14.60 and Ajax Oil 5 to $1.45.

BLAST SHATTERS

The explosion took place yesterday afternoon, but first word of it reached here to-day through a signal station on Hoedic Island, not far from Houat.

Two of the men who were killed were found in full diving equipment among the wreckage of the vessel. Seven other men who were injured were taken to a hospital at Belle Isle.

Saw Blast 5 Miles Away.

The signal man on Hoedic Island said he heard a violent explosion about five miles to the south-west of his station, and at the same time saw water spout a thousand feet into the air.

Then there was a great billow of smoke, and he saw chunks of wreckage dropping into the sea.

Another Italian salvage ship, the Rostro, which was in the vicinity, scurried over to the spot where the Artiglio had been and picked up the seven members of the crew who were injured.

Details of the disaster were not available immediately, but the Artiglio was known to have been heavily loaded with powder and ammunition.

The Artiglio had temporarily abandoned work on the gold bullion in the wreck of the Egypt, which had been shifted by ocean currents after the first salvage operations.

Divers Examining Hulks.

At the time of the explosion she was sending divers down to examine the hulks of two munition ships sunk during the war. It was thought possible that she had shoved her nose into the wreckage of one of these, the La Florence, and in some way touched off her own cargo of explosives.

The two derelicts had been condemned as menaces to navigation, and the Artiglio and the Rostro had been ordered out to break them up. A warship had taken a group of French Marine Ministry officials out to the vicinity while the operations were under way.

Ferguson Optimistic For Argentine Trade

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 8. (CP)—"I am led to believe that we are on the eve of a new era in our relations with your people" Premier G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario wrote in a letter received over the week-end by Louis J. Skinitzero, Canadian trade delegate of the Argentinian Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Ferguson was commenting on the proposal of Mr. Skinitzero that a delegation of Canadian business men be organized to visit Buenos Aires during the British Empire Trade Exhibition being held in that city opening next March. The Ontario Premier, and recently appointed Canadian High Commissioner to London, expressed himself as highly approving the suggestion that a group of Canadian business men, travelling on a Canadian steamer, visit the Buenos Aires exhibition and further acquaint themselves with prospects for trade in the Argentine.

$9,000 FIRE DAMAGE

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 8.—Fire that last Monday swept through the Government Power Commission plant at Humbolt caused damage of less than $9,000, it is stated by Commission officials. First reports estimated the damage at $100,000.

Yuletide Parcel is Messenger of Death

CHICAGO, Dec. 8 (C.P.).—An explosion of a powerful bomb, contained in an innocent looking package opened by a boy to satisfy his Yuletide curiosity, caused the death early to-day of Tony May, professional bondsman and money-lender, one time known as the "millionaire newsboy."

To-day was the 64th anniversary of May's birth, and it was generally supposed that he believed the package was a birthday present.

May, who was 63, died in a hospital to which his 15-year-old son Eugene, who opened the package, was also taken, severely injured by the blast which wrecked the May apartment yesterday. He suffered a score of wounds about his back and head. Windows throughout the entire 40-apartment building, situated on Lincoln Avenue, were shattered.

NATIVES SHOOT PRISON OFFICIAL

Marauders Run Amuck in Calcutta Jail, Then Take Their Own Lives.

ONE CAPTURED.

CALCUTTA, Bengal, Dec. 8.—(C.P.)— Three armed Bengals forced their way into the ofice of Lieutenant Colonel Normal Slimmer Simpson, Inspector General of Bengal Prisons, to-day, shot and killed him, seriously wounded another officer, and then while under pursuit in the corridors of the building turned their weapons on themselves.

Two of the three succeeded in committing suicide, but the third was captured by police and is under arrest, badly wounded.

J. W. Nelson, judicial secretary, was wounded in attempting to prevent the three from escaping.

Simpson was inspecting his letter file when the three men pushed away an office boy and opened the door of his office. He was killed instantly.

BRITAIN FEARS MENACE OF FOG

Ten Yorkshire Cattle Die—Have Symptoms Similar to Belgian Victims.

DOCTORS PROBING.

LONDON, December 8. — Great Britain feared the appearance here of the mysterious epidemic of death which last week spread through the Meuse Valley in Belgium under cloak of a heavy fog, and took 67 lives of humans and killed considerable cattle and livestock.

Near Grosmount, Yorkshire, ten cattle died on Sunday on one farm of a mysterious unidentifiable malady of which the symptoms, veterinarians said, were much like those of victims of the Belgian death fog.

Like Belgium Southern England has suffered from the intense fog conditions of the past few days, although none of the other farms in this territory report cattle losses.

The view of Belgian medical officials that the Meuse Valley deaths were due to fog alone has found considerable support among London doctors with a wide experience of fog effects. They cite official returns of several very foggy periods, in one of which the death rate rose from 12.5 per week per 1000, to 14.3, or an increase that week of 8,000 in the number of deaths.

SENATE PASSES BILL.

WASHINGTON, December 8 (C.P.). — The United States Senate to-day passed and sent to the House the $30,000,000 battleship modernization bill offered by Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, one of the delegates to the London Naval Conference.

FAVORS NEW PLAN.

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 8.—(C.P.) — The relief committee of the City Council has approved the action of R. J. Westgate, city commissioner, in recommending deportation of unemployed men seeking relief from the city. Residents of Canada for less than five years are affected by the plan, details of which have not been released.

FOLLOW IN DEATH.

OTTAWA, Ont., December 8.—Two brothers followed each other in death only six hours apart on Sunday. Edward McGillicuddy, aged 65, died at 4.30 in the afternoon. His older brother, John Emmett McGillicuddy, aged 74, died at 10.30 p.m., unaware that Edward had died before him. Both had been ill fro a long time.

RIOTERS REMANDED

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.) — Tim Buck, Manuel Rosenthal and James Ewen, Communists, who were arrested last night after the police had dispersed a crowd of people gathered on the street, were remanded until Dec. 11, on $2,000 bail each when they appeared in City Police Court to-day. The three men arrested were charged with obstructing the police.

PREDICTS GOLD PRODUCTION WILL EXCEED COPPER AT ROUYN

McCrae Is Optimistic Over Gold Production

TORONTO, December 6 -- Expectation that Canada within the next year will move up from third to second place among the gold-producing countries of the world, was expressed by Hon Charles McCrea, the Ontario Minister of Mines, addressing the Royal Canadain Institute on Saturday night

Over a period marked by a steady decline in gold production in the rest of the world, Canada has increased her output from $8,000,000 to $33,000,000, and Ontario was responsible for most of the increase, he said

"Here is one industry against which there is no cry of over production," said Mr McCrea. "The discovery of a new Kirkland Lake would mean the gravitation of new capital into the province, and a great step in the direction of solving the unemployment problem."

MORE SUPPORT

Rotarian Kelley urged more support for Canadian music, literature and art. Personally, he had adopted the rule that out of ever five books that came into his house, one had to be by a Canadian or about a Canadian. The fostering of Canadian sport was also pleaded for by the speaker, who suggested that Canada's national sport, lacrosse, should be backed by Canadians. On July 1st, Canada's national birthday, what do we do? asked Rotarian Kelley. "Go out and see an American ball game."

The desirability of a truly national celebration of Dominion Day was eloquently stressed by the speaker, who concluded his inspiring address by a forcible plea for the purchase of Canadian goods on a basis of quality and fair prices; in which he pointed out the vast sums of money that Canadians had been sending out of their country for goods that were produced or manufactured in this country. The responsibility, Rotarian Kelley declared, was an individual one and unfortunately about 97 per cent. of the Canadian people were "kidding themselves" in this respect; the speaker telling of personal investigations as to the number of people who inquired as to the origin of the goods they were purchasing.

Speaking of business conditions generally, Rotarian Kelley, in conclusion, said that generally speaking the Canadians who went after business in the right way were getting it.

Rotarian W. R. Morris expressed the thanks of the Rotary Club to the speaker.

At to-day's luncheon Rotarian Dr. Moir, promising a full report next week, reported that of the 23 children examined at the Crippled Children's Clinic last Friday it was hoped that something could be done for at least fifteen.

Soviet Grain Figures Show Big Increase

MOSCOW, Dec. 8.—Izvestia, organ of the Central Executive committee of the Soviet Union Government, stated to-day that during the past five months one and one-half times more grain had been collected than during the same period last year.

The sown area this year, the paper said, was almost 25,000,000 acres more than in the 1928-29 season. The total grain collection this year was estimated to be 86,500,000 tons against 71,700,000 in 1929, while the marketable figure th is year exceeds the figures contemplated under the five year plan by 32.6 per cent. On Dec. 1, it was said, the total grain collection program for the union was 84.8 per cent. completed.

Possibilities of Gold Ore Bodies Already Outlined Are Tremendous.

ENCOURAGE PROSPECTING.

TORONTO, Dec. 8.—Discussing the Rouyn camp in a local board room to-day, one of the well known mine operators of the district emphatically declared his belief that within the next ten years, possibly sooner, value of production of gold from that camp would greatly exceed that of copper. "Lengths and widths of gold ore bodies already outlined are tremendous," he stated "and large favorable sections of the properties have not been touched. In the majority of cases values and dimensions at depths reached so far are as good as, or better than those above, giving every promise of of deep sealed deposition."

Following recent announcement that production of gold in excess of last year would be bonused in Australia comes word that as one means of relieving the unemployment situation in New South Wales the state government has decided to encourage prospecting for gold and other minerals. Prospectors are not to be subsidized to the extent of 50 per cent of the actual cost of working and discoveries of gold and other minerals are entitled to peg out their own claims, their are reported to be more than 1,000 prospectors operating in various parts of the state.

According to London advices it is understood a provisional agreement has been reached for acquisition on the part of Rhodesian Congo border concession limited, of N'Kana Mines belonging to N'Changa Copper Mines, Limited, and Bwana M'Kubwa Copper Mining Co., Limited. Total issued capital of the companies involved is £4,025,106. A special meeting of Rhodesian congo border will have to be called to create new shares to be issued in exchange for assets of the other two companies. It is further understood that one group is opposing the scheme.

Engineering and Mining World reports Pend Oreille mines and metals has taken a lease on the 300 ton Grandview mill, in the metal in falls district of Washington, and plans shipping ore to the plant from its nearby properties by means of a cable tramway across the Pend Oreille river. Pend Oreille will pay $1,000 monthly for the use of the plant and will make any necessary enlargements. This lease will run two years.

Both Grandview and Pend Oreille have been engaged in developing low grade lead zinc deposits near Metaline Falls. For the last three the Grandview mill was built in 1928 and was operated by the company early in 1929, but was forced to shut down because of low metal prices. Pend Oeille announced ambitious plans in 1929 for construction of a 2,000 ton mill and clextrolytic zinc plant to treat ore from its own mine as well as the Reeves MacDonald Mine in British Columbia which it controls.

MANDELL OUT.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.).—Owing to his two recent defeats, the Ontario Athletic Commission has decided Sammy Mandell will not do for the Poppy Day Fund boxing show to be staged here Wednesday. Mandell had originally been matched with Jack Horner, Rochester. He has been replaced by "Pinky" Kauffman, New York welterweight.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

TORONTO, Dec. 8, (Special to Examiner.)—Brokers' opinions carried over the wires from New York to-day stress the fact that the wall street averages are close to the low of November10 and that this margin is so small it might easily be erased. Ahilw most opinions expect the market to slip off lower before a rally, Waldo Young in the Investment News, says he would not overlook that the very fact of general bearishness is often the best reason in the world for technical rally, and would be prepared to-day to witness at least the beginning of an over-crowded short position. For the reason that there is likely to be too much company in the bear ranks to-day. Mr. Waldo cautions against selling on weakness and expects a rally to develop not later than to-morrow. Whitney's letter speaks of the failure of the closing rally of Friday to carry through and Saturday's weakness as meaning we can expect a bad Monday and possibly Tuesday in the market, with little chance of a worth while rally being started until around mid week, the main point being that we can expect lower prices to come before the rally. Thomson and McKinnon say the gengral impression seems to be that there is little use to look forward to any decided change in the business outlook during this month and in speaking of the market state: there is likely also to be some shifting in investment portfolios, making for price readjustments and consequently a lack of uniformity in the nearby market trend." According to Laidlaw and Company, "the inability of the market to hold Friday's rally; the fact that the previous rally did not carry to the upper limit of the recently established trading range and the special weakness in the certain groups does not present an encouraging picture."

As no extensive liquidation has yet been drawn out, Laidlaw and Company would continue to watch the market around Friday's and Saturday's lows for supper. The announcement by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of what has come to be looked upon as the regular dividend and bonus of $6.25 a share, for the second half of 1930, will be of considerable benefit to the Canadian Pacific Railway, according to financial counsel, according to the last published figures, C.P.R. held 254,039 shares of smelters stock, The half year's dividend of $6.25 a share will amount to the very considerable sum of $1,587,725 on the stock held by Canadian Pacific Taking the two dividends, for the year 1930, amounting to $12.50, the total receipts by C.P.R., from its smelters stock will have amounted to $3,175,450 This amount will go into special income account, which is kept separate each year from the ordinary net earnings that accrue from railway operations on the mount of stock outstanding at the end of 1929, of 3,200,000 shares of $100 par, the smelters dividend alone would represent $1 a share, or nearly 25 cents a share on the present basis of the stock split 4 for 1, or 10 per cent of the total dividend.

Trading was extremely dull at the opening of the week on the Toronto Stock Dxchange with price changes small and no definite trend in either direction. Lack of volume is not only due to absence of large buying orders but to lack of selling as well. Liquidation apparently has been well cleaned up and what selling there is to-day represents stocks that are being sold by clients who want to realize and others who are shifting from one security to another. Some shred investors are taking advantage of the opportunity of changing their investment port folios with a view to increased income and general strengthening of position. Holdings are being greatly diversified by reduction quantities held into smaller lots and placing the balance of funds into other securities. This along with the usual demand for stocks is sufficient to keep the market on an even keel without sharp advances and wide recessions speculative interest is at the lowest ebb in years.

Margin committments have been well liquidated and there is not the selling from this source and as the market at present offers little in the way of trading profit speculators are not active in purchasing.

Directors of service stations meet to-day to consider dividend action for this quarter the street confidently expects that, in addition to the usual quarterly dividend of 85 cents a share on the class "A" and "B" common shares shareholder will receive special consideration. This may come in the form either of a bonus or increased dividend and the later is favorable. Dividends of $1.60 per annum were inaugurated on he "A" stock in January 1928. This was increased to 50 cents quarterly April 1, 1929, and to 65 cents quarterly January 11, 1930. The first dividend on the class "B" was paid January, 1929, on $1.60 annual basis; on April 1, 1929, this was increased to 50 cents quarterly along with the "A" and again to 65 cents quarterly in January, 1930 Bonus payments were also made in 1929. This year, in spite of generally reduced profits in the industrial field, service Stations has bettered its previous earning record. In a letter accompanying dividend cheques October 31, of this year, the management stated that "not withstanding the period of depression which has existed since October, 1929, your company will this year report increased sales and profits, and show a substantial improvement in liquid position." Net available for "A" and "B" stock for the first six months amounted to $889,719, compared with $671,965 last year.

COUNCIL MEETS AT HAVELOCK

Women's Institute Requests Co-operation in Relief For Destitute Families.

ACCOUNTS PASSED.

HAVELOCK, December 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—The regular December meeting of Havelock Council was held in the council chamber, with all members present. On motion by Councillors Spencer and Lowe, the minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Communications were read and ordered filed.

Tax Collector Kinnaird reported $9.163 collected, over and above the amount paid to treasurer under the 4 per cent prepayment discount by-law.

On motion by Councillors Gordon and Spencer, a rebate of dog tax was made to Mr. H. F. Mathison.

On motion of Spencer and Howe, the matter of an error in the assessment of Arthur Robertson, on his King street property, was left over for further consideration.

A delegation from the Women's Institute waited on the Council to discuss the question of relief of some destitute families, and to secure the council chamber for library and sewing class purposes.

The ladies suggested that the Institute undertake to provide the necessary clothing for the needy ones named, and that the Council attend to the matter of food. In the matter of the use of the council chamber, the ladies said that the Institute is forming a sewing class for girls, under a capable instructress who would give her time once or twice a week and that the council chamber is a suitable place for such a meeting. They also asked permission to have a library in the council chamber, which would be opened twice a week for the circulation of the books. The Reeve replied most courteously to the request of the Institute, and pointed out to the Council the advisability of supporting the Institute in the work undertaken, and in the greater operations is was about to undertake. He promised to give a definite answer to their request after the next meeting of Council, which will hold a special session on December 15th.

It is understood that the Council will give the use of the council chamber for the purposes asked, providing that the Institute activities will not interfere with any public use of the hall for concerts, dances, etc., and it is in order to adjust this matter that the answer is delayed. The committee from the Institute was composed of Mesdames Huble, Anderson and Davies.

On motion by Councillors Seeney and Spencer, the treasurer was authorized to collect from the Park Board the amount owing to the village, and to pay to them the amount still due on their requisition.

Moved by Councillors Seeney and Gordon that the following accounts be paid: J. J. Macnab, for tile, $157.80; H. E. Commission, street light, $1,620; John E. Anderson, taxes, gravel pit, $3.93; Clemens, tile forms, $51.76; Mrs. McWilliams, rebate re taxes, $5.62; J. A. C. Allan account, $28.67; Bruce Curtis rebate, $2.60; London Guarantee and Accident Co., $5.00; Geo. Davidson, blacksmithing, $31.20; G. Maryat, sawing, $20; C. A. Wilson, blacksmithing, $16.35; John Kinnaird, on collection, $50; George W. Chiles Hall, light bill, $8.18; Harold Mathison, rebate dog tax, $2; Mrs. Hogan, re Foley estate, $5; Provincial Treasurer, marriage licenses, $20; Unemployment pay sheet, No. 2, $87.60; Jos. Newton, hall, $4; Chas. Dewey, $5; Pay Sheet No. 4, $434.26; Chas. Dewey, building hall approach, $20; Amusement Fund, $4.60; Havelock Board of Health supplies, $10.80; Fred McAdam, posting notices, Board of Health, $1.50; Dr. J. Holdcroft, Board of Health, $150; Harrison Wing, Board of Health, $8; R. Sanderson, Board of Health, $8; Ed. Fennell, Sec. Board of Health, $15; Pay Sheet, No. 5, $97.10.

Moved by Councillors Howe and Spencer that unemployment pay sheet, showing a total expenditure by the village of material and labor, $3,098, be forwarded to the Provincial Secretary, J. A. Ellis, asking for a remit of 50 per cent of total expenditure. Carried.

Moved by Seeney and Howe, that meeting adjourn until Dec. 15th, or the call of the Reeve.

Bonarlaw W.I. Told Of Trip To Royal Fair

BONARLAW, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Lillian Anderson was hostess to the members of Rylstone Women's Institute for the regular meeting held at her home.

Reports were received from the concert held by the Institute last week.

Miss Gladys Simpson played a solo on the guitar and sang with Miss Evelyn Barnum with Bessie Meiklejohn accompanying her. Mrs. R. Mumby gave a short reading, "The Old Red Cow," also giving "our Neighbors."

Mrs. Gladys Simpson gave an interesting report of her trip to the Royal Winter Fair, representing the Girl's Institute of Seymour.

Christmas gifts were exchanged prior to the closing of the meeting.

MILLBROOK CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

C. C. Garside Chosen as President of Curlers For 1930-31 Season.

CUP PRESENTATION DEC. 17.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Millbrook Curling Club held its initial meeting of the season in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening, the retiring president, H. R. Scott, occupying the chair, the unusually large attendance being an omen of a good start for this popular winter's sport.

Officers elected for the current year include:

Honorary Presidents—J. Steel, R. H. Edmunds, and H. B. Allen; President, C. C. Garside; Vice Presidents, P. I. Bentley; Sec.-Treasurer, T. H. Collins; Management Committee—W. E. Ball; J. E. Allen, Joseph Lancashire, Harry Tait, and Howard Lancashire. Membership Committee—W. E. Ball, Russel Smith, H. Tait. Representative to the O.C.A.—Howard Lancashire.

After discussion, it was decided to present the cups which come up for local competition each season, to the winners for 1929, on December 17. These trophies number three: the H. B. Allen Cup for inter-rink competition; the Gillot Cup for the thirteen point games; and the Waddell Trophy for the Scotch Doubles. An unusual feature of the season's play for 1929-30 lies in the fact that R. H. Edmunds, veteran skip, holds top place in the competition for all three of the trophies.

LADIES AID OFFICERS GIVEN RE-ELECTION

Mrs. I. Lawson, Secretary for Many Years of Trent River Society, Presented With Lamp.

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The members of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church met on Wednesday afternoon for the annual business meeting with the president, Mrs. William Preston, in charge and Mrs. W. W. Redden opening with prayer. The scriptural reading was from St. John's Gospel, 1-5.

The treasurers' report from Mrs. John Scott gives the receipts for the year $445.17 with a balance on hand of $189.74. Mrs. Wood Sr. deaconess reported thirteen visits to sick members of the congregation during the year and $17.60 having been paid for flowers, etc.

The most important business of the afternoon was the expenses regarding the wiring of the church for Hydro. Donations had been already received towards the expenses and the Ladies' Aid had $130 to contribute to clear the expenses installing the electricity. All were pleased with the way the work had been done, the large chandelier suspended from the centre of the ceiling gives a pleasing effect, and the side lights have shades to correspond with the chandelier.

The Rev. Mr. Archer referring to the hardships prevailing in the western provinces, made a suggestion that the Society not decrease the funds towards home missions. The usual sum given was $20 and an increase of $5 was voted.

Mr. Isaac Lawson who has been faithful and painstaking in her duties as secretary for a number of years and the Society in recognition of her services presented her with an Alladin lamp. Mrs. Lawson also received other gifts from members of the Society.

The Rev. Mr. Archer asked permission to have a lantern attached to the electric power for use to show pictures at the Christmas entertainment. This request was granted. The motion was passed that all the oil lamps and fixtures were to be handed over to the Society to dispose of as it saw fit. The Society also voted that a letter of appreciation be sent D. A. C. Michell, for his generous donation towards the installing of the electricity.

All the officers were re-elected for the coming year.

MARMORA.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hemphill and daughters spent Saturday afternoon in Belleville.

Miss Hilda Phillips spent Friday evening in Eldorado.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. McNally visited Belleville on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lavender and sons Everett and Gordon of Wellington, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Manley Lavender.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jones of Wellington visited the former's mother Mrs. O. R. Jones on Sunday.

SURPRISE PARTY AT BYAM HOME

Over Fifty Friends Gather to Present Mrs. Arthur Martin With Dinner and Tea Service.

SOCIAL EVENING SPENT.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence)— A surprise party, numbering more than fifty guests, arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam, Bank street, on Tuesday evening, to do honor to their daughter, Mrs. Arthur Martin, whose marriage took place last August in Toronto, and who has been visiting her parents, her husband coming for the week-end.

A hearty welcome was extended the 'invading host,' music, games, and dancing providing entertainment until it was time to introduce the main feature of the gathering, W. I. Larmer acting as chairman and inviting the guest of honor to a central seat amid the company, when James Roddy, on behalf of a wide circle of friends, made an appropriate address and presented Mrs. Martin with a handsome dinner and tea service in fine English China, with pattern in gold and black on a cream ground, and also with a dinner cloth in pure linen, bordered in matching colors with the China, the gifts beautifully arranged on a tea-cart, being brought in by Mrs. Offa Williamson and Mrs. Harry Dawson.

The surprise was complete for the bride and groom, Mr. Martin making suitable reply for his wife, and expressing also his personal appreciation of the tangible and very beautiful tokens of friendship on the part of those who had known her from childhood in her home town. Brief addresses were also made by Reeve P. Stinson and by B. B. Dawson.

All joined heartily in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," and shortly afterward the committee in charge served supper, the time spent about the daintily laid tables giving opportunity for special emphasis upon the social side of the happy gathering.

It was well past midnight when the party broke up, the guests offering personal good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Martin for a happy married life as the years stretch ahead for the journey together, while they added to the host and hostess thanks for the hospitality extended, particularly as the large gathering was an entirely unexpected one.

MILLBROOK C.G.I.T. TO STUDY FIRST AID

Girls Plan to Sing Carols on Christmas Eve—Will Aid Santa Claus Fund.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—The weekly meeting of the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group took place on Wednesday evening, at the leader's home, the president, Marian O'Brian, introducing a number of business items for discussion including the annual contribution to the Star Santa Claus fund, which will be required in the near future, and to secure which a special effort will be made.

The matter of a new group "yell" was also given attention, and on motion it was decided to offer a small prize to the girl submitting the lines judged most suitable for this purpose. All members were urged to enter the competition.

Intervening events have prevented the girls beginning the course in "First Aid," planned at the beginning of the season, and for which competent instruction is assured. Considering all the circumstances, it was finally decided to make an effort to start this work immediately following the new year, or as early in January 1931 as possible, and the leader was instructed to inform Mr. Theobald of this intention.

The committee on Christmas Carols, Beatrice Jones, Mary Burnham, Phyllis Kidd, with the president and the leader, met immediately after the meeting and, with the help of the pianist, Dorothy McDowell, chose suitable hymns which will be practiced weekly until Christmas Eve, when the girls will visit the sick and shut-in friends of the community, bringing brightness and cheer appropriate to the Yuletide season.

A brief talk on "Deportment" was given by the leader, preceding the devotional period, for the opening of which the group has a special ritual, and during which each girl read a slip containing a motto well worthwhile working into the individual life, and all joined in the alternate reading of the scripture lesson.

The talk centred on the topic, "Leave the Miracle to Him," illustrated by the Saviour's turning the water to wine at the marriage in Cana of Galilee. The final prayer was one in which all joined, and was followed by the group benediction.

A pleasant social hour, with music and a contest, was enjoyed at the close.

YOUNG'S POINT W.I. PLANS SEWING CLUB

Ladies Favor Meeting Every Second Friday in School Room From 3 to 4 o'Clock.

YOUNG'S POINT, Dec. 8. (Examiner Correspondence).—On Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 3, the monthly meeting of the Woman's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Oscar Reed, with 18 members present. The roll-call was answered with the giving and receiving of names for Christmas remembrances. The treasurer reported a balance on hand of $25.09 and the Relief Committee reported no person sick, but spoke of a family in the village who have been helped individually.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. James Reed when the roll-call will be answered with New Year's resolutions pertaining to the betterment and welfare of our Institute.

The secretary was asked to write a letter of thanks to Mrs. Cameron for her kindness in coming as judge of the Girls' Sewing Class on Saturday last. After much discussion it was decided to commence a Girls' Garment Making Club for girls up to 18 years of age.

In place of the girls meeting on Saturday afternoon at the homes of the members of the Institute, as they have previously done, it was thought better to have them meet in one of the rooms of the local school on every second Friday afternoon from 3 o'clock until 4, with the permission of the school-teachers and school trustees.

Mrs. F. M. Young and Miss Jennie Kearney were appointed as a committee to wait upon the trustees of the School Board.

Mrs. Andrew Wilson gave an interesting report of the happenings at the convention of the Woman's Institute held in Toronto recently. The delegates to Toronto convention were, Mrs. Andrew Wilson and Miss Jennie Kearney.

Mrs. Reed was given a hearty vote of thanks for her hospitality.

Prize Winners

In connection with the Farm and Herd competition staged by the Ontario Cheese-makers' Association, prizes were offered in each of the ten dairy instructors' groups for the highest number of pounds butter fat per acre, divided as follows: 1, $25.00; 2, $15.00; and 3, $10.00. In the Peterborough district, W. J. Moore of Peterborough is Dairy Instructor; Bernal Harvey, 1; Earnest Harvey, 2; and J. A. Northey, 3.

Both Messrs. Bernal Harvey and Earnest Harvey are patrons of Young's Point cheese factory and Mr Northey is a patron of Buckhorn cheese factory.

SUM IS GRANTED FOR MISSION WORK

LIFFORD LINE, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—At the meeting of the Fleetwood Women's Association held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Victor Grandy, it was decided to grant the sum of $19 to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the church, to be paid out of the treasury at the earliest convenience.

The president of the association, Mrs. Tisdale, presided. After the usual opening excercises, the committee selected to choose the new choir books gave a report of the progress made to date.

A pleasing piano duet was given by Miss Marjorie Werry and Miss Ida Shea, while Mrs. Tisdale contributed a reading. "The Birthday of Our King" was the solo sung by Mrs. Scott, Miss Ida Shea playing the accompaniment.

Rev. Mr. Scott gave a much appreciated number to the program by contributing "The One-legged goose," by F. Hopkins Smith.

The election of officers by ballot was the next item on the program. When the ladies who had held offices during the past four months were unanimously re-elected. At this time the secretary took the opportunity to tendering a special vote of thanks to Mrs. T. E. Shea for the extra assistance she had given in connection with the autograph quilt. Mrs. Werry kindly offered her home for the January meeting of the association.

CHEERIO CLUB PLANS VILLAGE CANVASS

Proceeds of Quilt Go for Entertainment of Unfortunate Children.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—Under the caption, "Cheerio News from Cheerio," the Millbrook branch of the Cheerio Club extends it heartiest thanks to the ladies of the community who so kindly assisted with the making of the "Cheerio Quilt."

This quilt, shortly to be on exhibition in the window of the store belonging to T. J. Lang, will be disposed of by the "Lucky Name" method.

Cheerio girls will canvass the village in the near future, with the "Lucky List," giving everyone opportunity to help. December twentieth is the date set for the Christmas tea which the Cheerio Club is sponsoring, when the name will be drawn and the winner announced; the event will be in Mr. Lang's store, and publication of the winning name will be made in the press as soon as possible afterward.

The Cheerio Club proceeds are sent to "Mr. Cheerio," of radio station CKGW, Toronto, and will be used for the entertainment and healing of sick and unfortunate children. Listeners in at this station each Sunday, at 6.30 p.m., may hear of the fine work being carried on by at least twenty thousand boys and girls of the "Cheerio Clubs" of Canada and the United States, and the local members invite assistance in making theirs a worth-while contribution to such a worthy cause.

Rev. A. and Mrs. Poulter and family spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill.

Mr W. J. Lawson was a visitor to Brighton on Monday.

The members of the Women's Institute held a dance in the Town Hall on Friday evening.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8. — Corn poured into primary markets Saturday much faster than at this time last week. In dismay, holders of future delivery contracts made haste to stop losses and a quick plunge in corn resulted. Prices fell to about 5c a bushel lower than were obtainable at one stage heretofore this week. Contributing to corn weakness was an official forecast of generally mild and fair weather conditions throughout the week, indicating a further liberal movement of corn from farms and pointing also to a let-up in feeding demand.

Corn closed unsteady at almost the day's bottom level, 1½c to 2c a bushel under Friday. Wheat finished irregular, 1¼c off to ¾c up, with oats ¾c to 1 1-8c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 8—Egg prices to retailers were one to three cents lower, while wholesale butter, cheese and potatoes were unchanged on the produce and dairy market.

With the exception of fresh specials and extras, all retail egg prices dropped. Fresh specials and fresh extras, all retail egg prices dropped. Fresh specials and fresh extras were unchanged at 66c to 68c and 63c to 65c respectively. Fresh firsts and fresh pullet extras both lost one cent at 56c to 58c and 52c to 54c. Storage extras dropped 2c to 40c. Storage firsts and seconds declined 3c, selling at 36c and 32c a dozen respectively. Carlot prices for fresh eggs were unchanged, extras being quoted at 60c, firsts 54c and pullet extras 47c a dozen. Receipts for the week were 5,385 cases.

Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter, grass-make, regraded, was unchanged at 28¾c to 29c a pound. To retailers, solids were 32c and prints 33c. Last week's receipts were 1,613 boxes.

Ontario cheese was quoted at 12c and Quebec at 11½c, both being unchanged. Receipts last week were 2,415 boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountains were quoted at 90c to 95c per 80-lb. bag on the potato market. Prince Edward Island potatoes were $1 for Cobblers and $1.10 for Mountains, per 90-lb. bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 8.—Declines of 1⅞ cents to 1 cent below Friday were marked up on the wheat market on Saturday. Heavy offerings, weakness at Buenos Aires and Chicago obliterated all bullish sentiment and the values fell.

December wheat closed at 58½ cents; May 63⅝ to 63¼ cents, and July at 65 cents per bushel. Cash wheat figures were unchanged to ¼ cent easier and coarse grains failed to move up or down to any great extent.

MADRIGAL CHOIR

The ladies sang with their usual skilful attention to every detail. Under the watchful baton wielded by Mrs. Park, their voices rose and fell in cadences of a program of light, attractive numbers chosen with an eye to variety and to effects gained by delicate, well-modulated tone. They have a grasp of shading and of control in the use of their concerted voices that is remarkable and bespeaks constant and consistent practice. To hear these thirty throats unite in singing expressive music with a feather edge to its attack and instant release, is to hear the result of meticulous and expert training. The Madrigal Singers certainly gave a splendid account of themselves and their city and their director, by the manner in which they presented their attractive program last night.

Numbers Sung "a Capella."

Three numbers sung in unaccompanied, or "a capella" style, were extremely effective, and demonstrated finely the splendid training of the united voices. They included two new additions to the repertoire of the group and have not yet been sung here. These were a lovely bit of Purcell's quaint music, "In These Delightful, Pleasant Groves"; a 16th century sacred carol arranged by Healy Willan, and entitled "Regina Coeli Laetare," with the Latin words as a refrain to an old English setting. They sang another 16th century bit of quaint music, also arranged by the same composer, in the bright, unusual, fascinating swing of "Tyrlee, Tyrlow." This piece had a superb handling of fine pianissimo shading, and was greeted with continued and loud applause.

Other new selections were a Staines-Morris dance, with a bright lilt to its Maypole gaiety, which formed the opening number; a contrasting companion in pathetic mood, "In Lonely Wood," with its recurrent memory-haunting refrain. "I can no longer bear the day"; and a notable effort in a difficult and beautifully rendered thing called "-The Snow," by Elgar. This was a piece of delicate, artistic charm, with a finely toned opening that swelled to a smooth, round crescendo, then sank again in diminishing cadences, and softened into silence in a sustained, echoing finale.

It was remarkable as a combination of finely-attuned women's voices, of fine, smooth accompaniment at the piano, and of finely-played vibrating strings, for it had a double violin obligato by Deane Miner of the staff of the local Conservatory, and Fred Winfield, of the violin department of the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

The last new addition was a member of a brisk and happy trio that concluded the program. It was called "Whither Going, Shepherd?" and was one of those bombastic, dramatic efforts that bring out in faintly humorous style all the etched, staccato force of a thwarted love. The gentleman of the piece spoke his thoughts forcefully and entertainingly when he vowed to kill his victorious rival. This was a Hungarian folk song, and has as companions two very entertaining bits of robust, profound, swinging music, the swift stanzas of "Rantin', Rovin' Robin" and the cute jollity of the rollicking "Twenty-Eighteen," that brought so much applause as to cause a repetition of the jaunty piece.

Portamento Music.

Then there was Arne's "Lass With the Delicate Air" lightly touched in its dainty, portamento lines, and the exquisite, legato singing of a Brahms "Lullaby."

The accompaniments were capably and skilfully handled at the piano by Miss Gwen Mary Donley.

During the supper hour which followed the concert, many compliments were showered upon the Madrigal Singers and their directress, Dorothy Allan Park.

Harvey Robb spoke of "the improvement manifested in the range in dynamics and in fortissimo passages, and in the full tone or ground coloring of the choral music" and also mentioned the remarkable memorizing of so many varied selections. He thought that the time had come when this skill by the Madrigal Singers should be capitalized and regarded them as distinctly of the professional class. He thought a large concert in Toronto might be easily promoted and concluded with the remark that "the program to-night was simply sunning."

Captain J. S. Atkinson, director of the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music, also repeated the congratulatory references, and said that Dr. Fricker, who was present for a portion of the program, had remarked on the splendid technical ability and general brilliancy demonstrated by the singers.

M. M. Stevenson, one of the vocal teachers at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, also added his mead of generous praise, as did Charles Peaker, organist at the Rosedale United church in Toronto, and formerly a member of the musical group in this city.

Mrs. Park made a suitable acknowledgment and thanked Mr. Robb and Captain Atkinson for their kind interest, also adding a word of thanks for the assistance rendered by the two violinists, Mr. Miner and Mr. Winfield.

W. I. OF NORHAM HEARS REPORTS

Ladies Decide to Pack Bale of Clothing For Haliburton District.

MEMBERS EXCHANGE GIFTS.

NORHAM, Dec 8.— (Examiner Correspondence). — At the regular meeting of the Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. David Evans on Wednesday afternoon, interesting reports of the 5th division of the Women's Institute held in Belleville in November were given by Mrs. J. Greenley and Mrs. Nelson.

Mrs. Munroe of Demorestville said Institute members should help by being ready with the roll call when a subject is given. They should be interested in temperance; should welcome the newcomers to the country and make them feel at home.

Another speaker said the Canadian system of Women's Institutes was the greatest in the world. Belgium had sent representatives to Canada to study it. An objection was voiced regarding school fairs as they are held today that the child exhibiting often did not do the work himself. Many suggestions were given for roll calls and subjects for interesting meetings.

Two letters were received asking for clothing. One from Mr. Putman for Northern Ontario and the second from the Teacher's Association of Haliburton. It was decided to prepare a bale for Haliburton and each member to contribute at least one article. A volunteer committee of Mesdames Harper, Potter, Walker and Armstrong will pack the bale.

Mrs. L. Isaac reported that a play had been planned and that practice would commence at once. It is hoped to be ready by the middle of January. The secretary, Mrs. Black, reported donations of $34 for the cemetery fence. A committee of Mesdames Potter, Shaw, Evans, Gummer, S. McNutt and J. Greenley was appointed to arrange for a social evening for January 9.

Miss Edna Evans gave an instrumental and Mrs. W. Grant sang very sweetly the Scotch song, "Lochnagar."

An exchange of Christmas gifts among the members followed and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

KEENE.

Mr. James Fitzgerald wishes to deny the report that he has purchased a farm on the Twelfth Concession.

Mr. Will Dickson, of Toronto, had the misfortune to break some ribs while wrestling last week.

Mr. Frank Brown commenced to flood the skating and curling rinks on Monday morning.

Mrs. Campbell has returned home from Trenton, arriving at Keene on Tuesday afternoon.

Millbrook

Mrs. Richard Bragg, of Bowmanville, is the guest of Mrs. J. J. Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Darling and daughter Betty were guests of her grandmother, Mrs. (Dr.) E. L. Burnham, on Sunday.

Mrs. L. S. Clarry leaves on Thursday for Ottawa, where she will spend the winter with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Max Cameron.

Miss Aileen Russell, of Port Hope, visited her grandmother, Mrs. J. J. Russell, last week.

Mrs. Maud Hetherington is visiting relatives in Peterborough over the week-end, leaving on Thursday.

Miss Margaret Lang, of Toronto, is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight. Miss Lang's many friends will regret to learn that she in not in good health owing to a nervous breakdown.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Brown have moved into the village and reopened their home on Tupper street for the winter months.

Miss Gertrude Clarry, who spent the fall months with her mother, Mrs. L. S. Clarry, returns to New York this week, where she will resume her profession as a trained nurse.

Ernest L. Burnham, of Toronto, was home for the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham, returning on Sunday with Russell Howe, who had motored from Toronto on Friday, joining his wife and family who are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Nattress.

Miss M. E. Needham, of Toronto, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Needham.

Chicken thieves have apparently been active in the vicinity of late, all the season's pullets, numbering between twenty and thirty, being recently stolen from A. J. Brown's farm, north of the village, the theft occurring while Mr. and Mrs. Brown were absent from their home. On the Zion Line also, farmers have been losing their fowl through night visitors to their hen houses. At the farm of W. Husk a double loss was sustained, the hen house being robbed one night, the marauder evidently returning the next evening, and this time a good-sized pig was carried off. Provincial police were in the village on Saturday in connection with the alleged raiding of chicken coops.

Several householders reported a drop in the mercury to twenty below zero on Tuesday morning, according to the reading of their thermometers, the sudden lowering of temperature making it difficult for cars to be started. During the afternoon more than one automobile was noticed being towed round the short block on King street before the motor was humming satisfactorily, and it was possible to proceed under the car's own power. The advent of winter weather led to activity at both the curling and open-air rinks, and continued cold will probably mean both these popular sport centres will be in use within a comparatively short time.

E. A. Summers, agricultural representative for Durham, took his Inter-County Judging team from the Junior Farmers' organization, to Guelph on Thursday morning, where they will compete with other teams at the Winter Fair. Judging does not begin for these boys until Monday, but Mr. Summers thought it best to give the boys the opportunity to view the Fair, and become familiar with their surroundings before the actual competition takes place. The members of the Durham team are: George McKnight, Millbrook; Earl Smith, Bruce Beer, and George Neals, of Bethany.

The Millbrook Continuation Glee Club intends holding a musical evening on Friday, December 12, at 8.00 o'clock, in the Assembly Hall of the school, to which the public generally will be cordially welcomed, the proceeds from which will go toward the piano fund.

Among those from Millbrook and vicinity who went to Toronto on Tuesday and attended the banquet to Premier G. Howard Ferguson at the Royal York hotel, were: S. E. Eakins, J. R. Eakins, Reeve G. H. Hootan, Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Gibson.

More automobiles are being received into Norway than a year ago.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

ESSAY CONTEST PRIZE WINNERS

Lila Allen, Jean Bower and Lillian McCleary in Percy Township Finals.

McDONALD AT HASTINGS.

Percy Township and Hastings Village held their oratorical contest in the Town Hall, Warkworth, on Wednesday evening, November 19.

Lila Allen, S.S. No. 5, won the Percy Township finals. Her subject was "My Homework." Jean Bowen was second and Lillian McCleary third.

Sandy McDonald of the Separate School won first prize for Hastings Village. His subject was "The automobile Fire." John Coughlin won second and Billy Field and Kitchener Smith won third and fourth.

Other brilliant little speakers were Ruby Brenton and Earl Clare of Norham, Jean Anderson and Verna Doxtator of S.S. No. 6, Eunice McCurdy, S.S. No. 1 and 25, Basil Towns, S.S. No. 13, Myrtle Pulfer and Irene Oliver, S.S. No. 9, William Wilson, S.S. No. 7, Kathleen Morrow, S.S. No. 10, Billie McKenzie, S.S. Nos. 3 and 29.

LITERARY SOCIETY OPENS FOR SEASON

Reading of School Paper by Martha Earle Outstanding Feature of Program.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Assembly Hall of the Millbrook Continuation School was the scene of an interesting gathering on the occasion of the initial meeting of the Literary Society for the current year, the president, Marian O'Brian, occupying the chair, and the opening chorus, "O Canada," being sung with true patriotic fervor.

The president's address of welcome contained also an urgent appeal for publicity for the school, interest in its activities and undertakings being stressed for the pupils, with the intimation that their duty was not fully done until the community at large has been made aware of what is going on at the local Continuation seat of learning, and the advantages obtainable.

The secretary, Dorothy McDowell, read the minutes covering the election of officers, with the constitution of the 'Lit,' and the principal, H. W. Jordan, responding to the request for an address, laid special emphasis upon the meaning of the school motto —"Age Quod Agis"—"What you do, do well." Seconding also the message of the president he pointed out that the pupils' co-operation with the officers of the Literary Society was absolutely essential if success is to crown its efforts.

Community singing, led by the Glee Club under the supervision of the president, Jean Stinson, followed, and readings were given by Bryar Edmunds, Gordon Davis, and Sadie Rowland, all of which were very much enjoyed.

An outstanding feature was the reading of the school paper by Martha Earle, congratulations being extended to the editor-in-chief, Kathryn Donnelly, and her assisting staff, for the very creditable production.

After full discussion, the objective for the society for the year was set at one hundred dollars, so far as finances are concerned, this amount to go toward the purchase of a new piano for the assembly hall. All Literary and Glee Club undertakings this year will be directed toward this worthy purpose. Donations from former pupils, pupils now in attendance, or friends in the community will be deeply appreciated.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Campbellford Choir Holds Social Evening

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church choir spent a most enjoyable evening on Wednesday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan G. Watson, Saskatoon avenue. Some of the choir were absent on account of illness, but there were about thirty present.

Games were played in the early part of the evening and two contests were staged under the capable direction of Miss Annie Parks and Mrs. W. A. Newcourt which proved very interesting. Mr. W. A. Newcourt, L.C.C.M., A.L.C.M., organist and choirmaster took his place at the piano and all joined in singing some of the old favorites. Refreshments were served at the close by the hostess and hr assistants and the happy folk sang "Auld Lang Syne" and "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

On motion of Mrs. Roy McGee and Mr. W. A. Newcourt, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Watson for their kindness in opening their home to St. Andrew's choir.

WOMAN PERISHES VICTIM OF BURNS

Mother Lingers Half Day After Blaze in Cabin Takes Two Children.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL.

THE PAS, Man., Dec. 8 (CP)—The third victim of a northern fire tragedy was claimed late last night when Mrs. W. Jenks, whose two young children were fatally burned when flames destroyed their little home at mile 412 on the bay line, died in hospital here.

Brought to hospital late Friday afternoon after a fast run by a special train, Mrs. Jenks failed to respond to medical treatment.

Trapped in the house when the only door was inadvertently locked by Mr. Jenks, Bay Line pumpman at Mile 412, as he dashed from the structure to beat out flames which had swept to his clothing when a gasoline lamp exploded, the woman and her children were found unconscious on the floor. Their clothing was afire, when the husband and neighbors succeeded in breaking down the door.

ENNISMORE FREE FROM DISEASES

Dr. F. P. McNulty Reads Report at Meeting of Board of Health.

ENNISMORE, Dec. 8.—At a meeting of the Board of Health of Ennismore, held recently, Dr. F. P. McNulty, M.O.H., reported the township to be free from all contagious diseases at the present time.

The Board voiced much satisfaction with the very successful way in which the case of infantile paralysis of a child of Lindsay Academy visiting in the Township of Ennismore was handled. All the children associated with the child were treated with serum and no further outbreak occurred.

All the members of the Board were present at the meeting, which was held in Dr. McNulty's office at Peterborough: Timothy Murphy, chairman; Reeve Thomas Cavanagh; C. A. Perdue, secretary, and Dr. P. F. McNulty, M.O.H. The Council adjourned to meet again at the call of the chairman.

Leafs and Canadiens Still in Lead Deadlock

BOTH CANADIAN N. H. L. TEAMS REGISTER WINS OVER WEEK-END; INJURY TO JOE PRIMEAU COSTLY

Goals By Blair and Bailey Give Leafs Early Lead Over Rangers.

MAROONS BEAT SENATORS.

Blackhawks Maintain Splendid Record By Nosing Out Detroit 3-2.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.) — Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs continue to set the pace in the Canadian group of National Hockey League. Both the Leafs and Habitants registered victory in the five game schedule over the week-end. Toronto beat New York Rangers, four to two, on home ice Saturday, while Canadiens beat New York Americans in Manhattan on Sunday to remain in a deadlock for the top rung.

Montreal Maroons defeated Ottawa Senators on a fluky goal by one to nothing to chalk up their fourth straight triumph after a bad start. In the American group, Chicago Blackhawks maintained their splendid record by nosing out Detroit, 3 to 2, while Boston needed a last minute marker to squeeze out a victory over Benny Leonard's Quakers at Philadelphia.

Primeau Breaks Hand

The Leafs suffered another casualty against Rangers. Joe Primeau, playmaker of the "Kid" front line, collided with Frankie Boucher, tricky New York centre, in the final period and suffered a broken right hand. The injury is expected to keep him out of the game for weeks. Last Tuesday the Torontonians lost the services of Charlie Conacher, youthful sharpshooting right winger, who sustained a broken wrist against Boston. Primeau's fracture therefore, puts the Kid line out of commission just when the Leafs were prepared to fight it out with Montreal's Flying Frenchmen for the top rung.

Goals by Andy Blair and Irvin Bailey sent their team to the front in the first period against the smooth-playing New Yorkers, who tallied once when Bun Cook brought on the red light following an individual thrust.

Harvey Jackson, third member of the Kid line, increased the Leafs' margin when he scored on a three-man attack. In the final 20 minutes Bailey netted his second marker on a pass from Hap. Day, while Boucher got the Rangers' second goal on Bun Cook's pass.

Canadiens Forced to Fight

Canadiens did not find the going easy against the Americans, but they were full value for their victory, scoring a clean cut goal in each period. Aurel Joliat, lightweight left winger, put the Red Devils in the van half-way through the opening period Larochelle made it two to nothing just after the half-way mark had been reached in the middle frame by scoring on Howie Morenz' assist. Day Lead N.H.L.

Vernon Ayres recruit from a Toronto City League team making his first appearance in the Major League put the Amerks back in the running when he notched a pretty counter unassisted six minutes later.

Gagnon gave the winners a two goal lead again in the third session but Frank Carson former Windsor forward cut it down to one near the end of the game by converting Massecar's pass into a goal.

Maroons Play With "Luck."

The Goddess of Fortune assisted Maroons considerably in vanquishing the surprising Senators. The teams had fought on even terms for 58 minutes when a sizzling shot suddenly broke up the torrid affair. Babe Seibert got credit for the freak goal when he blazed a smoking shot at Alex Connell Ottawa net minder from 30 feet out. The puck travelled high and struck the screen behind the Ottawa cage. As Connell turned about to locate the rubber it bounced back struck him in the face and to the great joy of the Maroons and the disgust of the Senators dropped into the cage for the winning tally.

Bruins Hold Own.

Cooney Weiland enabled the Bruins to keep within striking distance of the American group leaders when he took a short pass from the one and only Eddie Shore to hammer the puck into the Quaker net with only 50 seconds to go and the count deadlocked at three goals apiece.

The Philadelphians showed unexpected scoring punch against the Bostonians. They took the lead in the opening session only to have Weiland tie the score a few minutes later. Two clever combination plays in the middle frame netted the Bruins a brace of markers and the game appeared clinched. From the start of the final session, however, the cellar occupants displayed flashes of splendid team play and they quickly tied the count. Overtime seemed a certainty until Shore and Weiland did their little act.

Chicago Downs Falcons.

A brace of smart goals by Frankie Ingram in the first 20 minutes put Chicago in the driver's seat against the Detroit Falcons and they stayed there to the finish. There was no scoring in the second frame, but the Falcons netted a pair in the last period. These were sandwiched, however, by Ingram's third counter and the Falcons' late rally was stemmed by the Blackhawks speedsters.

A small clock incased in colored glass and illuminated by means of a pocket battery in the base has appeared in Germany.

S. CALIFORNIA BOWS TO IRISH

Brilliant Corido Leads Notre Dame to Nineteenth Straight Victory.

90,000 SEE GAME.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., December 8.—Notre Dame's football team from South Bend, Indiana, closed its season here on Saturday before 90,000 spectators, when a brilliant collection of backs directed by Frank Carideo galloped to four touchdowns with ease, to crush Southern California, 27 to 0.

Going into the game with all the supposedly psychological advantages an underdog enjoys, Notre Dame cut loose with a ripping attack, full of surprises and the Trojans, rated as the strongest team on the Pacific Coast, were utterly routed. This marked the nineteenth straight triumph of Notre Dame.

Southern California, pre-game favorites, never got started. Their best plays were smothered and they were slapped to the ground with hard tackles, which taxed their stamina.

Frank Carideo scored first for Notre Dame on a forward pass from Schwartz early in the first period, which was good for nineteen yards and a touchdown. Paul O'Connor in the absence of his brilliant predecessors at full back, Joe Savoldi and Larry "Moon" Mullins, dashed eighty yards to a touchdown on the final play of the first period O'Connor later in the third period took a short lateral pass from Marchmont Schwartz to circle his left end for his second touchdown. Again in the final period Notre Dame's shock troops were good for a touchdown when Lukats galloped from the 12-yard line through the fast-fading Trojans.

Even in scoring four touchdowns, Notre Dame passed up numerous opportunities to score. It stormed down the field in the second period down to the three-yard line, where a 15-yard penalty set it back and a forward was grounded in the end zone and three times in the final period Notre Dame was within twenty yards of the last line, only to see passes intercepted in a wild orgy of aerial work.

Syracuse Stars Win From Windsor Team

SYRACUSE, Dec. 8.—The tail-end Syracuse hockey team in the International League defeated the second-place Windsor outfit 3 to 1 here last night, scoring twice in the third period to win.

Markle and Brown scored the deciding goals for the Stars, the former 15 minutes of the third period on a pass from Holmes, and Brown a minute before the game ended. Syracuse outskated and outfought Windsor in the first period, but neither team could score.

Less than 2,000 fans were on hand to watch a greatly strengthened aggregation of Stars battle the Bulldogs. "Red" Hughes, recently acquired from Detroit, proved an excellent defense player, and Fisher, former Pittsburg goalkeeper, proved a worthy guardian of the Syracuse net.

MADOC

The new Dominion Store is now in the hands of the painters, and it is expected will be opened next Thursday, 11th, with Mr. William Hawthorne as manager. Mr. Hawthorne has been with Whytock Bros. for the past eleven years, so brings a long experience in the grocery business to his new post.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Ludbrook and family have moved into the Dale House, on Elgin Street, recently vacated by Mrs. W. Ross.

Mrs. Lorne McConnel has returned to her home in Cannington after spending a few weeks in Madoc with her mother, Mrs. Wellington.

Mr. Clarence Carswell of Niagara Falls has been spending a few weeks at his home in town.

In painting the outside of an ocean liner being constructed in England the men will cover an area of nearly three acres.

LEADERS SCORE TWELVE POINTS

Scoring Statistics in National League Shuffled Around the Week-end.

CLAPPER-COOK IN TIE.

TORONTO, December 8. (C.P.) — There seems to be some kind of a feud or rivalry, or something, between the Maple Leafs and the Canadiens, and it is all rather strange. All the fuss hangs around the teams' standing in the Canadian section, National Hockey League. On Saturday night the Maple Leafs won from Rangers. That gave the locals two points more than the Canadiens. Sunday night Canadiens won from Americans, and tied the standing all up again. Both teams have now scored 12 points and seem to have all the edge over the other Canadian section squad.

And then, in the American group, Chicago won again. That's getting to be a habit with the Black Hawks, for they have lost only one game since the season opened, and are three full games ahead of Boston, their nearest rivals. As a matter of fact, the Hawks are also one and a half games ahead of both the leading Canadian teams.

Scoring Shuffled Up.

The scoring statistics were all shuffled around over the week-end too. Howie Morenz, of Canadiens, who usually goes places and does things every time he puts skates on, is still heading the Canadian group with a total of 11 points—nine goals and 2 assists. Howie had hard luck last night He didn't score a goal, which was rather unusual. He did manage to get an assist, which counted just as much though. His team mate, Mr. Joliat, did all the damage. He got one goal and one assist, and is now just two points behind Mr. Morenz.

In the American group, "Dit" Clapper of Boston, is even-Stephen with William Cook of Rangers. "Dit" was one point behind, after William had scored a goal on a night when Boston was holidaying. Last night however William couldn't even get close to the twine, while "Dit" sank one.

The leaders:

Canadian Section.

Team: Toronto — Won 5, lost 2, tied 2, 12 points.

Canadines—Won 6, lost 3, tied 0, 12 points.

Most points: Morenz, Canadiens, 9 goals, 2 assists, 11 points.

Most goals: Morens 9.

Most assists: Joliat, Canadiens, 5.

Most shutouts, Toronto 5, (Chabot 3, Grant 2.)

Most penalties: Joliat, 30 minutes.

American Section.

Team: Chicago, won 7, lost 1, tied 1, 15 points.

Most points: Clapper, Boston, 6 goals, 2 assists, 8 points

Cook, Rangers, 7 goals, 1 assist, 8 points.

BALMY BEACH AND ARGONAUTS WIN FROM INVADING WESTERN CREWS TO CAPTURE DOMINION LAURELS

Grey Cup Remains in East Despite Roughriders' Rally in Second Half.

REEVES CHECKS RUSH.

Argonaut Juniors Outplay Native Sons—Easterns Superior on Half Line.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 8 (C.P.) — Two Western Canada football squads are en route home to-day, minus the Dominion titles they fought for in an epic double header at Varsity Stadium on Saturday, but covered with glory and the well wishes of many Eastern fans.

Regina Roughriders, Senior champions, lost to Balmy Beach, 11 to 6, after a gruelling struggle on a mud-covered grid-iron. They provided the stoutest opposition that any team from the West has shown against an Eastern twelve in the final. Not only did the Roughriders cross the Beach goal-line for a touchdown in the third period—a feat never before equalled by Western representatives against the East, but they were also the victims of the "breaks" of the game, which would have meant victory had Dame Fortune favored them.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union champions clearly outplayed their opponents in the first half and chalked up five singles and a touchdown for a lead of 10 points to nothing. The single counters were the direct result of fumbles and bad snap-outs by the Westerners, while the Beach try also came about through a fumble on the Regina half-line.

Visitors Fight Hard

From the start of the third quarter the visiting rugbyists played seemingly inspired football and hammered incessantly at the Beach line which finally cracked. Thrice the Roughriders moved the yardsticks, then they broke through to block Claude Harris' kick on the Old Gold and Blue team's 25-yard line. An on-side kick proved successful when Freddy Brown secured the ball behind the Torontonians goal-line for a try and the Prairie Monarch were once again in the picture. Previously they had kicked for a rouge.

Regina almost got another touchdown shortly after their initial success when Sol Bloomfield, their star punter kicked a short twister to Doug. Mays, local backfielder. The latter let the pigskin hit the ground. Bloomfield, following up fast, fell on the ball and then slid in the slime right off it and Campbell, the Western snap-back, picked it up and dashed for the Beach goal-line. He was tackled a short distance from his objective, but the officials called the play back, claiming Bloomfield had made a forward pass and penalized Regina 15 yards, from the point where Bloomfield fell on the ball.

Reeves Saves Day

In the final frame more dramatic incidents and hectic football were plied into the brief space of time than in the majority of games here this season. The Roughriders continued their hammering at the Eastern line and at one time had but one yard to go for another touchdown, when Quarterback Mitchell called for an onside kick which failed. This did not daunt the visitors and again they hurled the Beach line back. The ball was on the locals' 25 and they appeared a beaten team, when Teddy Reeves, one of the greatest of middle wings, who had been kept on the sidelines through injuries, trotted out on the field as a mighty cheer went up from the Beach supporters. Reeves made his presence felt in rather startling fashion for in three plays after he joined the fray, play was carried from the shadow of the Toronto goalposts to the other side of centre field. Reeves then blocked a kick to give the Old Gold and Blue possession on Regina's 30 and the locals promptly booted for a single, the final score of the game.

The dismal weather kept the attendance down to 4,000 paid admissions. Rain fell throughout the morning and continued most of the afternoon. In addition a light fog enveloped the field and the players, after crashing into the mud, soon became indistinguishable to the spectators.

Despite the meagre crowd the Canadian Rugby Union succeeded in meeting expenses with a small profit left over.

Native Sons Outplayed.

Just as Beaches almost met their match in the Roughriders, Toronto Argonauts were extended to the limit to beat Winnipeg Native Sons 7 to 1, to annex the Canadian junior crown. A safety touch and five singles constituted their scoring efforts for they slightly outplayed their opponents until the last quarter.

At this stage Native Sons, who had garnered one single point in the second quarter, rallied strongly to take advantage of Argo misplays and carry the ball to the double blues' one yard line. Two bucks failed and the Winnipeg youngsters were preparing for a third onslaught at the Argo line when the final whistle blew to the great relief of the locals.

The game, which was played as a preliminary to the senior tussle, was productive of some good football, regardless of the unfavorable conditions. Argos had noticeable superiority on the half-line where Clarke Bell and Taylor combined for numerous substantial gains in running back kicks and on extension plays. There did not appear to be a great deal to choose between the rival wing lines, and if the Winnipeg outsides had been a little more accustomed to the heavy going they might have succeeded in stopping the Bell-Taylor duo that would have meant victory.

PEARCE HAS FORWARDED HIS ENTRY FOR DIAMOND SCULLS

Famous Ex-Australian Says That He Will Row For Canada in 1931.

ENTRY ALREADY SENT.

(By Lou E. Marsh)

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 8. (Special to The Examiner. Copyright, 1930)—Irrespective of what Young Joe Wright and Jack Guest do, Canada will—barring accidents—have a stout representative in the Diamond Sculls at Henley next year.

"Bobby Pearce cannot represent Canada in the sculling events at the Los Angeles Olympiad in 1932—he will have to go there, if he goes, as a member of the Australian team—but he is a real Canadian now and will go to England next year to compete in the Diamond Sculls as a Canadian and a representative of Hamilton, which is now his home town," said Walter Obernesser, well known Hamilton sportsman, who has handled Pearce ever since he came to Canada for the British Empire games last summer.

"That's right," briskly asserted Pearce who was right at Oby's elbow. "I'm a Canadian now and will be more a Canadian than ever after Dec. 10 when I marry Miss Reita Hendon of Sydney who arrives at Vancouver from Australia that day. I know I cannot represent Canada at the Olympic games but there is nothing that I can see which will now prevent me from going to the English Henley as a Canadian. That is what I want to do and I will go right back into training after the new year with that idea in view".

"How about your entry?" I asked. "Will there be any more trouble like there was in 1928?"

"Well, I don't see how there can be" replied Obernessor. "I have already sent in his entry as a member of the Leander club of Hamilton. I don't see how they can pull the obsolete 'gentleman clause' on Bobby this time. Pearce is not a manual worker which seems to be the pinch.

Just why Pearce's entry was refused in 1928 was never clearly established, and direct information is hard to obtain. The semi-official reason advanced at the time was not received within the time limit. However, a chance remark of Pearce's yesterday may cast a little light on the matter. He said: "I wasn't refused entry because I was a manual workman. I think it was because my grandfather and my father before me were professional oarsmen, boat builders and coaches of rowing clubs."

"But your entry must be endorsed by the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, the governing body of rowing in Canada," I pointed out to Pearce and Obernesser.

"That is right—I never thought of that. I'll make the necessary application right away and forward a new entry."

"The matter of securing the endoresement of the C.A.A.O. should be only a formality for Pearce's eligibility as an amateur oarsman here in Canada has already been established by his title as British amateur champion senior single sculler and by his race at the C.N.E. against Joe Wright which was under the sanction of the C.A.A.O. They are hardly likely to do anything else than endorse his entry—and if it is so endorsed how could the English rowing association do anything else but accept it.

The articles of affiliation between the British and Canadian bodies call for a recognition of each other's endorsements on travelling oarsmen.

Davis of England Leads International Cue Meet

LONDON, Dec. 8.— (C.P.) — Joe Davis, professional billiards champion of England, went into undisputed lead in the present international tournament at the conclusion of the fifth pair of matches in the series Saturday night.

Davis defeated Walter Lindrum, great Australian expert, by a narrow margin, while in the other match Tom Newman, England, overwhelmingly defeated Clarke McConachy, of New Zealand.

The standing is now as follows: Davis, won four, lost one; Newman, won three, lost two; Lindrum, won three, lost two; McConachy, lost five.

Lindrum is allowing each of his opponents 7,000 points in each game of the series.

KILREA WILL REMAIN.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 8. (CP)—Leo Bourgeault, high scoring defenceman of New York Rangers, has been purchased by the Ottawa Senator club of the National Hockey League. The deal, a straight cash proposition, was announced to-day by William Foran, Senator president.

Coincident with the announcement of the new rear-guard acquisition, there were unofficial reports that the Ottawa club was negotiating the sale of Art Smith, big defenceman sent here by Toronto Maple Leafs in part payment for King Clancy. Mr. Foran said there was nothing definite to announce with regard to Smith. He let it be known, however, that the ex-Maple leaf might be sold if a suitable offer was forthcoming.

Another report that the Ottawa club was considering the sale of "Hurricane Hec" Kilrea, star Senator wing to New York Rangers, was denied by Mr. Foran.

Bourgeault will report to his new owners in New York Tuesday morning and will line-up against his old team-mates when Senators meet Rangers in Madison Square Gardens to-morrow night.

Peden-Crossley Fight In New York Bike Race

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The Italian team of Franco Georgetti and Paul Brocardo won the forty-ninth international six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden Saturday night before about 15,000 people. Bill "Torchy" Peden, of Toronto, and his team-mate, Al Crossley, of Boston, finished in fifth place three laps behind the 2,666 miles and nine laps covered by the winners. Georgetti and Brocardo jumped in the lead in the early hours of the final day and despite many attempts of the rival teams to dislodge them, managed to stay in front to the finish.

Going into the final hour of the grind the Canadian rider and Crossley were five laps behind the leaders but during each of the fourteenth and twenty-first sprints stole a lap after some desperately exciting jamming which had the Garden in an uproar.

Peden made a great showing for one with so little experience in six-day racing, and it was predicted by many experts that he has a wonderful future in this line of sport.

GOVERNMENT IS CO-OPERATING WITH B. C. SALMON PACKERS

Authorities Much Alive to Importance of Salmon Fisheries as Industry.

75 PER CENT. EXPORTED.

The Dominion Government has contracted to co-operate with the British Columbia salmon packers in telling the people of Canada the story of salmon and urging its more frequent use as a staple food, said W. P. Brown, representative of the Clover Leaf Salmon packers, in an interview with The Examiner this morning.

"Our Federal Government is alive to the importance of the salmon fisheries as a national industry, and has undertaken during the coming year to give substantial assistance to the salmon packers in their campaign to popularize salmon on Canadian tables," said Mr. Brown, who is here in connection with the introduction of the new varieties of Clover Leaf salmon, red, medium-red and pink.

Health Aspect Vital.

More vital than the economic side is the health aspect involved, stated Mr. Brown. He pointed out that whole districts in certain parts of the Dominion were subject to the menace of goiter due to the lack of iodine-containing foods, while in others thyroid troubles were rampant from the same cause. A more liberal use of canned salmon, which is rich in iodine, would do much to prevent a development of these conditions, as government experiments had shown.

"In this country we have been slow to realize the importance of fish as a health item on the daily menu," said Mr. Brown. "In England the consumption of fish annually is at the rate of 44 pounds per person. In Canada the consumption of fish is just 22 pounds per person, and more than 75 per cent. of our salmon pack is exported. So the Government and the canners have plenty of scope in their campaign to educate Canadians to the health value, the economy and the palatableness of salmon dishes."

Mr. Brown also quoted the opinions of health authorities that the virility of nations with a comparatively long extent of short line, notably the British Isles and Japan, was partly due to the abundant consumption of fish, which proximity to the sea encouraged.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER NINE

After a brief encounter with Marcia at the office yesterday I can hardly wait for Christmas morning and Phil with his promised marriage license waiting at the front door. . . . All Phil's good qualities stand out now that I'm in this more of intrigue . . . I'm not sure that I love him, but I could learn, I think. . . . I wonder if anyone marries for love any more? . . . If Marcia hadn't spoiled it with her quiet threat at the office, I could have had a glorious time with Lionel last night. . . . He took me to a grill room for dinner and afterward we danced until almost midnight. . . . The orchestra was wonderful and Lionel was painfully attentive. . . . I like him tremendously and I'm quite sure he likes me. . . . He was angry with Marcia for the way she behaved at the office yesterday afternoon, though he hadn't an idea what it was all about. . . . Lionel asked me to go to the theater with him some time and I told him I would. . . . I hope he doesn't ask me the same night that Sandy asks me to dinner. . . . But Sandy probably won't. . . . Lionel says Sandy is quite mad over Marcia. . . . Sandy seemed pleased with my ideas about the Miniature Baby Plan, but I've found a lot of holes in the program since that I'll have to talk with him about to-day. . . . I wonder if he really is so desperately in love with Marcia as Lionel thinks. . . .

Jean's diary was more circumspect than most. For one thing she omitted her conversation with Mollie after Lionel had taken her home the night before. Mollie had been curious about Jean's work, and Jean had told her about the Miniature Baby Plan and the theory of the unknown philanthropist who had conceived it.

It was a great joke to Mollie. She had been reading in bed and smoking when Jean came home. Now she rolled over and laughed loudly.

"Just one more nutty coot," she declared, still laughing. "What's the idea of teaching or encouraging motherhood, I'd like to know. The big bum! I'll bet he wouldn't be so hot about his plan if he had to bring a few kids into the world." She brushed a spark from her pongee pajama pants and snuffed the cigaret in the smoking-stand tray by the bed. "You don't mean to tell me you think it's a sensible idea, do you Jean . . ?"

"I don't know," Jean said uncertainly. "I'm not so sure that giving a little girl a doll will make her want children when she's grown."

"What if it does?" Mollie demanded. "Why should anyone argue that it's a woman's duty to have children? It isn't. No more than it is a man's."

"Oh, but . . ."

"I know. A man can't have children. But because a woman can, I don't see that she's obligated to have them. The woman gets the small end of everything in the world. The man causes all the trouble, but it's the woman that pays for it. . . . And then this sap has the nerve to talk about the importance and beauty of motherhood. It isn't motherhood the men are interested in, if you know what I mean. . . ."

Jean didn't know what she meant, nor did she ask. All her life she had taken it for granted that some day she would get married and have children. She didn't know how a girl could expect anything else. But then Mollie had always been different. Jean decided that she would not again introduce the subject in Mollie's presence.

The newspapers were still filled with the mysterious slaying of Big Bill Sampson, alias Fargeson. At first Jean had tried to ignore the daily alarm in big black type, but she was too much interested. Thus far, however, the reports had been much alike. The police were working on the case but had made no progress. Miss White was being constantly questioned. The logical theory was that Sampson had been killed by rival bootleggers. There was an unmistakable hint that his murderer had done the city a service.

But this morning there was a new note in the headlines of the paper Jean thought. The police commissioner was called upon to solve the mystery or get out of office. And on the editorial page Jean found an editorial, a part of which read:

"It does not enter that Sampson was a bootlegger, racketeer, gangster, gunman. The facts are that he was murdered and that the law of the land does not countenance murder. A young woman was in the apartment where Sampson was killed. She has given no satisfactory explanation of the shooting, but she has not been held. No one is held. The police talk and do nothing. Are we to keep men in office who wink at murder because the victim was a criminal?"

Jean saw the handwriting on the wall. The newspapers were putting pressure upon the police for their failure to make an arrest. It was obvious that this particular paper felt that Marcia should have been arrested before now, that she should have been held as a material witness, if not upon suspicion of having committed the crime. And — Jean thought — when Marcia should be taken into custody she would lose no time in implicating her, Jean Melba.

Jean spent the morning working at a desk Lionel provided for her in his office. Sandy came in at about nine-thirty. He sat on her desk for a few minutes, discussing her program, then went into his own office.

But before noon he came out again to ask if she had any plans for lunch.

"Not a thing," she told him, "unless some handsome young man comes along with an invitation."

"He's here," Sandy smiled. "Afterward, we might go slumming. I'd like for you to see some of the children you're working to make happy and the sort of places in which they live and grow up. . . . I'll be ready in about five minutes, if you will."

He took her to the Club Wallingford, barely a block from the office, on Fifth Avenue.

It was while they dallied over demi tasse that Sandy said suddenly: "I wish you weren't planning to leave New York after Christmas. . . ."

Jean looked up in surprise. "But why, Sandy? The Miniature Baby Plan will be history after Christmas Eve."

"The Miniature Baby Plan," said Sandy, "is but an incident with the I.P.P. Our work goes on from one end of the year to the other. And as long as we are in business, there will be a place for you."

A wave of gratitude swept over Jean. "That's nice of you to say that, Sandy. But . . . just having a job isn't enough. You remember that first night I told you about my wish . . . for adventure? Well, I'm getting it. But a month ought to be enough. After that . . ."

Jean toyed with the handle of the delicate little cup before her, avoiding his eyes. But after a time she looked up, smiling.

"I've told you about everything else. You may as well know the rest."

And when she had told him about Phillip and of her impulsive promise to marry him if he appeared at her door Christmas morning with a marriage license, she was prepared to hear Sandy burst into laughter.

Rather he stared at her, unbelieving. Presently he said: "Do you love him so much, Jean . . ?" But before she could answer: "no, don't answer that. I don't know why I asked it. . . . Shall we go now?"

The taxi took them through streets where the sunlight was rare. Older children were making their way back to school. Younger ones sat on the curb, played in the street, or hung from dark windows.

"There'll be very little Santa Claus in most of these houses," Sandy observed in the course of their ride. "Your Miniature babies will represent the whole idea of Christmas to a majority of them."

"Yes," said Jean, sadly; "but dolls aren't enough. What about the little boys? Lord! If I only had a million dollars! Every child believes in Santa Claus, Sandy — and think of the thousands who will wake up Christmas morning to find — nothing. . . . If they could only hang up their stockings with the assurance that they would get something . . anything! Or if they could have a Christmas tree, and get some little present from it. . . . It's tragic, Sandy. We think we have our troubles, but they're nothing when you think of the sorrow of the little boy or girl who sees what Christmas means to other children, and to other grown-ups — and then discover that Santa Claus is the saint of the rich, not the poor. . . ."

"Yes," said Sandy, "it's tragic. But . . . what can you do about it? That is life. . . ."

But as they rode back toward Fifth Avenue, Jean wondered if there wasn't some way to bring Christmas to all these people, children and adults alike.

When they entered the office Lionel was talking to a short, dumpy man of perhaps forty whose head was rather too small for his body. Jean went to her desk. Sandy was about to pass them with a pleasant nod, when Lionel spoke to him.

"This gentleman wants to see you."

The man said shortly: "He ain't a girl. I said I wanted to see a girl, not a man . . . I'm from headquarters," he added gruffly.

Sandy asked pleasantly: "Who is the girl, please?"

"Her name's Melba. . . ."

Sandy said evenly: "I'm sorry, but she won't be available before to-morrow some time, if then."

"What do you mean, available? Ain't she here?"

"No," said Sandy, "she ain't here . . . to you." Suddenly he put a hand up and pulled the man's coat open. A large, ornate badge read: "Private Detective."

The man drew back sharply. "Look here! I'll have you . . ."

"You'll have me for a witness to the fact that you're an impostor," Sandy snapped. "Now get out!"

The man glared at him from beneath drawn brows. "You're a wise guy, ain't you? Well, I'm on this case, and I'm going to find that girl. You can't bluff me out."

"Lionel," said Sandy suddenly, "call police headquarters and tell them to send a man here at once!"

But before Lionel had the receiver from the hook, the outraged detective was hurrying out the door.

Jean, in a cold perspiration at her desk, had heard the entire conversation. Now she bit her lip to keep from crying.

Sandy went to her and put a hand over hers. "That's Marcia's doing," he said softly. "The thing I don't understand is why she hires a private detective instead of simply telling the police about you. . . . She's afraid of something, Jean, and I mean to find out what it is."

CHAPTER TEN

I'm too busy trying to give 300,000 little girls something to be thankful for to take time out for myself. I'm weary of New York. Adventure is all right in its place, but one trouble after the other gets on the nerves after awhile. Marcia has a private detective out after me. Sandy thinks it funny she has put the police on my trail. If Phil would only come here to-day and hold out his arms I'd dive into them. This feeling of forever being watched and hunted and suspected is making me jumpy. Sandy took me slumming yesterday. The heartache in those dreary streets! Poor little old kids looking forward to Santa Claus. Wonder if Marcia's told Sandy about Slim Diggers being in the apartment that night. Could I have been mistaken about seeing Sandy going back to the apartment that night. Lionel has promised to see that I have at least a piece of turkey to-day. He thinks I should have taken a holiday, but why? The whole office is working and there's so little time. Lionel is closing in. He asked me yesterday how many times I've been in love. I wonder if I've ever really been in love? But bless his heart, Lionel's a sweet boy. Sometimes I think he's almost as sweet as Phil. I suppose Sandy is having dinner with Marcia. But what do I care?

Christmas comes early in New York. by the last of November you feel it in the air, hear its gay note in the laughter and idle chatter of the crowds on the streets, see it in substance in the show windows and in the eager expectant faces of small boys and girls.

Jean felt it, heard it, saw it, and was infinitely thrilled by it as she and Lionel made their way from toy department to toy department. Everywhere there were dolls, little dolls, medium-sized dolls, big dolls, life-size dolls and dolls a good deal larger than the little girls who were destined to have them. There were blonde dolls and brunette dolls, red-haired dolls and dolls whose hair was just painted on their china skulls. There were stiff-legged dolls and jointed dolls, dolls whose eyes opened and shut, and some whose eyes were as fixed as the stars, dolls that said "mama" and wept, and dolls as silent as the Sphinx.

"Dolls", said Jean contemplating a particularly beautiful little composition girl, "are like real people, Lionel. In a way they are caricatures of you and me. There aren't any two alike and their characters are in their faces."

"Dolls have no character," Lionel said brutally.

"Oh, but they have," Jean declared. "Look at this one. Is she like that one on the box, for example? Of course not. There's a lot more to her, and it isn't all in externals. Her face suggests something inside. If it isn't character, what is it?"

Suddenly Lionel took the doll from her arms and held it off thoughtfully. Then he put its head to Jean's head, and laughed softly. "I've just seen it," he cried. "So you know what it is about this particular doll that makes her different? She's almost an exact replica of you, Kean."

"Be your age," said Jean, nevertheless curious.

"I mean it," Lionel declared. "Look at her hair. Look at those great big blue eyes. Look at the color in her cheeks, and . . . ."

"Don't be afraid to say what you think," Jean encouraged.

"Oh. Are you trying to be gallant?"

"I'm simply trying to tell you," Lionel said eagerly, "that here's your miniature baby. You can't beat her. She talks, cries, sleeps, and walks, and, she's beautiful."

Jean nodded. In spite of the personal comparison she saw that he was right. This doll was in truth the ideal miniature baby.

So after hours and hours spent in visualizing the sort of doll she would ultimately select, in the end it was not Jean who picked the miniature baby, but Lionel.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Eczema On Hands

Couldn't Put Them In Water

Mrs. Soloman Behkopf, R.R. No. 1, Neustadt, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with eczema for four years, and it was so bad I could not put my hands in water. I found Burdock Blood Bitters the only medicine that would give me any relief, and after taking four bottles the eczema had all left me. I can now do my own washing, and wish to give thanks to B.B.B. for what it has done for me."

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MEETS IN HAVELOCK

Ladies Decide Against Holding Benefit Tea at Present Time.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 8. — The December meeting of the Havelock Women's Institute was held in the council chamber, with the president, Mrs. Huble, in charge.

Roll call was responded to by each member telling "What I first remember." Quite a number responded and some of the replies were most amusing.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Business to be attended left from last meeting, was read.

The Masons' hall as a place for the meeting was discussed. The boys of the Agricultural Class were not in favor of holding their meetings there, and while the Junior Institute would be in favor of doing so it was thought to be too expensive for them. The matter was left over for discussion. Mrs. Huble told of an idea she had from the convention last week. This was that the institute fix up a part of the Council chamber as a kitchen, and to use another part of it for the library. This would also serve as a meeting place for the Girls' Sewing Club, if the Council members were favorable.

Moved by Mrs. Davies, seconded by Mrs. W. Johnson, that a committee be appointed to interview the council in this respect.

Mrs. Davies, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Huble were appointed on that committee.

Communications were read. Moved by Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Wright that communications as read be filed.

The letter from Mrs. Smith re the library was read, and the secretary was instructed to advise the department of the receipt of the books.

The Dental Clinic was again discussed. Moved by Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Armstrong that the institute proceed with the arrangements for the same. The secretary was instructed to write for information regarding the same, and then to notify Dr. Gardner to proceed with the clinic.

Some cases of need were reported. Moved by Mrs. Davies, seconded by Mrs. Wes. Johnsone, that the matter be left for the Relief Committee to investigate, with full power to act.

Mrs. Huble explained that Mrs. Lancaster had offered her home for a benefit tea again this year. After some discussion a vote was taken and was found unfavorable to holding the tea at the present time. It was moved by Mrs. Anderson, seconded by Mrs. McQuigge that this be left over until the New Year. The secretary was instructed to write Mrs. Lancaster, and explain.

Mr. Allan offered the Institute a radio at a great reduction if they cared to sell tickets for a lucky draw, to replenish the treasury for relief purposes. A vote was taken on the question of whether or not to accept the offer, and was found unfavorable at present.

It was suggested that the institute send an invalid some Christmas cheer and it was moved by Mrs. James and Mrs. Heard that this be attended to by the Relief Committee.

Having heard from the northern districts that relief is being carried on by district institutes there, it was decided to confine the relief work to the district in and around Havelock this year.

The delegate to the Institute convention at Toronto, Mrs. Huble then gave her report. First of all Mrs. Huble thanked the Institute for the honor conferred on her by the Institute in sending her as their deligate, and she expressed herself as greatly taken with the work the Institute is doing. She said it was wonderful the work that is being done. Every department is being covered very thoroughly. She gave a splendid report of the convention, session by session, which was greatly appreciated by the members. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and a social half hour was enjoyed over a delicious cup of tea, sandwiches and cake. The hostesses were Mesdames Hoffman, Buchanan, Cross, Smith, and Wes. Johnstone.

THE PIED PIPER TODAY

THE false music of the wicked Pied Piper of Hamelin lured the children who followed him to disaster.

Shall the children of today be lured away from true musical appreciation by the false Robot of Canned Music in the Theatre?

Pansies In December

Harry Young may be a night watchman, but he is something of a gardener too. He proved that to-day when he walked into The Examiner office sporting a button-hole of pansies. Harry made a record that may stand for some time when he picked those pansies this morning out of his garden at 535 Albert street. "Sure," he said, "That cold snap last week didn't seem to bother them at all, and there they are, healthy and gay. I could have picked more."

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them inserted.

THE MAYORALTY.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Of late years the administration of public business in Peterborough has taken an upward turn. There is a stronger feeling of satisfaction and confidence among those whose interests and occupations are dependent upon a continuance of the existing prosperous condition of the city. Such a state of mind is due in no small measure to the good conduct and government of public business.

There has been a perceptible gain in deliberate methods by the Council; hence their proceedings have become more and more interesting. On the whole the retiring Council has shown wisdom, public spirit and a consciousness of responsibility.

For this state of affairs the aldermen deserve high praise, but the highest credit is accorded Mayor Denne, for he has aligned the standards of public service with the ideals of an electorate that has many times proven to be discriminating in the choice of the citys' official staff. The judicious leadership of Mayor Denne has won the confidence of his colleagues and what is still more significant, that of the community at large.

Looking ahead, the responsibility of wisely guiding the development of the city must comprehend a far wider field than that of its corporate limits. The towns, villages and rural communities within an ever-widening area are interested in and will profit by, a more intimate relation to their urban centre with its commercial, cultural and social attractions. The up-to-date economic onrush has suddenly transformed the city, linking it more closely with the rural neighborhoods. That movement has imposed upon the city the duty of contributing the greater share in promoting and cultivating mutual well being.

No one has done more than Mayor Denne to cultivate that happy relationship through the Industrial Exposition and by reason of his wide personal acquaintanceship throughout Peterborough's rich agricultural district.

The ratepayers have been more keenly guaging the ability and dependability of those whom they call to public office, with due consideration for their increasing knowledge of public business; hence there is less inclination toward a clean-sweep at each election. Mayor Denne has learned much in the discharge of his high office. By reason of his experience and record he is better fitted than he ever was to face the problems of the city. If he is continued in office he will doubtless win distinction and honor accordant with his never-failing devotion to the welfare of this native city.

Why shouldn't the city do what business does and must do if it is to live and prosper? When business finds a man who proves fit for his job and who creditably stands the tests of intelligence integrity and personality, it holds him to that job by promoting him and raising his wages. From such a point of logic the interests of Peterborough would seem to speak and to indicate that Mayor Roland Denne may again be elected by acclamation.

Respectfully,
RYERSON RITCHIE.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE COLD WIND.

"What are you going to make, Nurse Jane?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he saw the muskrat lady housekeeper hopping around his bungalow kitchen one morning.

"I am going to make a molasses ginger cake," was the answer. "It is getting on toward cold winter weather now, and I think a hot molasses ginger cake will be very warming to the rabbit children."

"And to me, also, Nurse Jane," said Uncle Wiggily. "Don't forget that I like molasses cake as well as the children."

"You shall have some!" promised Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. Then, all of a sudden she squeaked: "No you shan't, either!"

"Why not?" asked Mr. Longears in surprise.

"Because I can't make the cake," answered Nurse Jane. "I have no molasses.

I just found it out. The molasses jug is empty!"

Uncle Wiggily made a hop to the closet where the molasses jug was kept and lifted it up.

"There's no use in you looking," said Nurse Jane. "I looked and I tell you there is no molasses."

"Well, there soon will be some!" spoke the rabbit gentleman with a jolly laugh. "For I am going to hop to the store and buy some. I'll soon hop back with the molasses jug filled. Then you can bake a ginger cake to warm me, as well as the children, when it gets cold; can't you?" he asked.

"To be sure!" said Nurse Jane. "All I need is molasses."

"Uncle Wiggily put on his tall, silk hat, but, as the sun was shining then, and as it wasn't very cold though it was getting to be afternoon he thought he wouldn't wear his fur coat.

Of course Uncle Wiggily always wore his regular coat of fur, which was fastened on him just as is your hair. But he also had another fur coat—an extra one—that he put on when the weather was cold in the winter.

"But I hardly think I shall need my extra coat now," said the rabbit gentleman to himself as he hopped away from his bungalow with the empty molasses jug.

Uncle Wiggily was happy as he hopped along over the fields and through the woods. He was happy to think of the ginger cake Nurse Jane was going to bake, and he was also thinking that he might have an adventure. Well, he did, and not a very jolly one, either.

For when Mr. Longears was on his way back to his bungalow, carrying the jug of molasses, the weather suddenly turned frosty. A cold wind came blowing out of the North, from the land of icebergs, and Mr. Longears began to shiver and shake.

"I wish I had worn my extra fur coat!" he said. "But perhaps if I hop fast I can keep warm that way." So he hopped fast but the North wind blew colder. "I wish I had a piece of Nurse Jane's hot ginger cake," thought Uncle Wiggily. "That would warm me. But she can't bake it without molasses, and here I am with the jug, out in the cold."

At last it got so frosty that Uncle Wiggily's legs became stiff with the cold and he could not hop fast any more. He was now in the woods, and he was so cold and tired that he sat down on a log, behind a sheltering rock, to rest a bit. There were many dried leaves near the rock and Uncle Wiggily set the molasses jug down in them.

After a while he thought he had better hop along, for it was getting colder and colder, and the wind was blowing harder and harder. And when Mr. Longears lifted up the jug he saw many leaves sticking to it. For some of the molasses had run out over the top and it was gooey like glue. The jug looked funny, with the brown, autumn leaves sticking fuzzily around it.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "It's just as if the molasses jug had on a fuzzy fur coat. I'm sure it can't be cold with all those leaves sticking to it. The wind can't get at the jug to chill it."

Then the rabbit gentleman had an idea. "Why can't I make myself a coat of leaves to keep me warm in the cold wind?" he thought. "If leaves stick to the molasses jug they'll stick to me, and when I get to my bungalow I can wash them off, as Nurse Jane will wash the jug."

No sooner said than done. The rabbit poured some of the sticky molasses from the jug on the dried leaves on the ground. Then he rolled over and over in them, until he was all stuck up and looked like a leaf bonfire before it has been lighted.

"Oh, how nice and warm I am now!" cried jolly Uncle Wiggily. "The cold wind can't blow through my fuzzy coat of leaves!" Then, picking up the molasses jug, also dressed in dried, autumn leaves, the bunny hopped on toward his bungalow. He was warm but he had a great surprise coming to him.

A Hundred Dollars a Month will be paid to you regularly free of any chance of loss for the rest of your life

Do you want a definite, sure income that will come to you even though all other sources of income fail? You can have it.

Picture what a hundred dollars a month would mean to some people you know—the totally disabled, the old unemployed man or woman, the widow struggling along on very small means. Resolve that you will take the simple steps we suggest and provide now against you or yours ever being in such a position.

For most people it is a very difficult task to build up a fund of thousands of dollars in order to provide an income for themselves. It takes years of self-sacrifice.

Why not adopt the modern way and by depositing moderate annual instalments let the Canada Life take over your problem?

We will guarantee you one hundred dollars a month income when you decide to retire at age 56, 55, 60 or 65, or it would be paid to you personally should you become totally disabled at any time or we would start paying it at once to your family if you should die.

Why not find out how it is done? It will mean no obligation on your part.

THIS COUPON WILL BRING YOU VALUABLE INFORMATION

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 12 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The weird, savage cries of the panther mingled with Tarzan's own blood-curdling ones. Akut had just time to leap to one side. The white ape clung tenaciously to the screaming, roaring, maddened beast. Relentlessly, Tarzan drove his knife through the glossy hide, until with a final lunge the great feline rolled over on its side and lay still.

Once again through the jungle rang the wild challenge of Tarzan's victory cry. Akut and the apes of Akut stood looking in startled wonder at the dead Sheeta and the lithe, straight figure of the man who had slain him. Tarzan was the first to speak: "Twice have I saved Akut's life. When Akut or his tribe is in danger again, let them call to Tarzan—thus!"

—And the ape-man raised the hideous cry with which the tribe of Kerchak had been won: to summon its absent members in times of peril. "And," he continued, "when they hear Tarzan call to them, let them remember what he has done for Akut and come to him with great speed. Shall it be as Tarzan says?" From Akut and his tribe there rose a unanimous assent of satisfied grunts.

Presently the tribe went to feeding again as though nothing had happened. The glistening body of Lord Greystoke mingled with the brown, shaggy hides of his companions as they hunted. He noticed that Akut, with a look of friendship in his small eyes, always kept close to him. Sometimes, when Akut found a particularly tender morsel, he would hand it to Tarzan.

DOOMED RUSSIANS ABANDON HOPES

Commissar Denies Broadcasting Under Gov't Control in Regard to Protest.

MOSCOW, Dec. 8.—Hopeless in the face of the bitter hostility of an entire nation, the five men who must die for plotting the overthrow of the Soviet Government, to-day were believed to have abandoned whatever intentions they may have had of pleading for clemency to the Soviet Afutive Committee, the only body with the power to save their lives.

Three co-defendants, sentenced to spend the next ten years in prison, were not expected to appeal at all, for the verdict in their case was believed to have been good fortune for them.

Newspapers Give Full Story

All the newspapers in Moscow came on the street late to-day, for they published the long verdict in full and devoted what was left of their space to editorials denouncing these men as the tools of foreign capital.

"The Proletarian Court has punished the bitterest enemies of the laboring class," said one newspaper "but the danger of war is not over. The wreckers have been caught and punished, but the danger of counter-revolution has not been removed. The class enemy has not yet been exterminated."

The Soviet law gives the condemned men seventy-two hours to appeal if they intend to appeal.

The Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, in his reply to the British Ambassador at Moscow, said that the references "to the possibility of participation of British circles in interventionist plans "Were made in written depositions by the accused persons, who confirmed them later in court.

The Public Prosecutor, it was explained, would naturally base his indictment upon the confessions which he was unable to ignore.

"However," the reply continued, "the court and public prosecutor at the time of the trial paid almost no attention to the reference to England nor did the prosecutor dwell on the accusations in his prosecution. Neither did the Government at any time express any views on those references to England."

No Control Over Station

With regard to the British complaint against alleged anti-British propaganda in broadcast talks in English from Moscow, Mr. Henderson said that the Soviet Commissar explained that the station transmitting them was not under Government control, but was run solely by the Central Council of Trades Unions.

Furthermore the Soviet Government did not consider the broadcasts anti-British in their nature.

Asked by a member of the House if he would accept the statement that this transmission was not under Soviet Government control, Mr. Henderson replied that he would have to do so until supplied with evidence to the contrary.

FORMER JUSTICE DIES

MONTREAL, Dec. 8.—Former Chief Justice Calixte Lebeuf, a former aide of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, died here yesterday at the age of 80. At the age of 75, in 1925, he retired from his position of Chief Justice of the Circuit Court, which he held for eighteen years, following fifty-two years of association with the law, both as a barrister and a judge.

He was born at St. Timothee, Beauharnois County, in 1850. He graduated in law at McGill University in 1873, and was called to the Bar shortly afterward.

American materials are being used in the construction of the new library and school buildings in Canton, China.

Postal Service

A letter addressed "To the Fur Store with the Bear in Front, Peterborough, Ont.," has been delivered to Wm. Lech and Sons, showing the postal service knows its stuffed animals. The communication was from a Cleveland tourist who had seen something displayed in the Lech windows during a visit last summer, and had decided to buy it as a Christmas gift. The name of the firm had slipped his memory, but the impression of the bear outside the store had registered and the clue was enough to bring the Cleveland customer into touch with the Peterborough firm, with beneficial results on both sides.

BISHOP MANNING SCORED IN PULPIT LINDSEY EJECTED

New York Cathedral Scene of Riot as Jurist's Book is Denounced.

BISHOP CONTINUES PRAYER.

Only Police Interference Saves Judge From Serious Injury.

NEW YORK, December 8 (C.P.). — The Cathedral of St. John the Divine echoed with riot and epithets yesterday as Judge Ben B. Lindsey, interrupting Bishop William T. Manning's prayer at the end of a sermon assailing companionate marriage, was seized by an angry crowd and thrown bodily into the street.

The challenge of the former Denver jurist, flung to the pulpit where Bishop Manning stood, touched off a strained, expectant atmosphere which ended in Lindsey's violent ousting and arrest.

Denounces Book.

Bishop Manning, who objected last week to Judge Lindsey's address before the New York Churchmen's League, had just finished a sermon in which he took the clergy of his diocese to task for hearing the address, and in which he called Judge Lindsey's latest book "the most filthy, insidious, and cleverly written piece of propaganda ever published in behalf of lewdness, promiscuity, adultery, and unrestrained sexual gratification."

Ending with the charge that Judge Lindsey "stands openly for legalized free love under cover of the term 'companionate marriage,'" the Bishop swung into the ascription, a sermon-closing prayer.

Judge Lindsey leaped upon a table just beneath the pulpit and in a high voice shouted:

"Bishop Manning, you have falsely misrepresented me. If this is not a house of justice it is not a House of God, and in justice I ask for five minutes to answer your unfair attack."

Two ushers seized the diminutive Lindsey and pulled him from the table. A hundred or more of the congregation left their places and rushed forward. He was dragged into an aisle. A man shouted "punch him!" Another struck him on the head. The aisle was a melee of pushing, struggling people, some of them shouting profane abuse.

Bishop Continues Praying

Bishop Manning, his face turned to the back of the pulpit, continued the prayer.

"He lied about me," shouted Lindsey. "He had no right to lie about me! This is neither a house of justice nor a house of God!"

Lindsey reached a side door. Behind him and around him surged the crowd. Several in it were women. At the top of a wooden stair leading to the ground four detectives broke through the crowd in time to save him from being pushed headlong down them.

A woman screamed, "Lynch him!" The detectives pushed the crowd back, threatening arrests. Thirty or more persons broke through and followed on a long walk to the police cab in front of the great stone church. They continued their angry shouts.

Finally Detective Lt. Flood turned and threatened to arrest the next man who spoke.

"But I am a decent citizen!" protested one. "You can't talk to me that way!"

Released Without Bail

Lindsey was rushed to the 100th Street police station and held there until the arrival of his attorney, Arthur Garfield Hays. The police at first were going to hold him for $500 bail. Hays persuaded them to release his client on his own recognizance.

Inside the church, order was quickly restored. Bishop Manning finished the Ascription and called for an unprogramed hymn, "Fight the Good Fight." The organist could not immediately find the music.

THE MADRIGAL SINGERS

(By Augustus Bridle)

TORONTO, Dec. 8. (Special to The Examiner).—An English garden of singing girls gave an exquisitely colorful program at the Royal York last night when the Madrigal Singers from Peterborough made their third appearance at the Sunday evening series. In gowns of pink, rose, lavender, russet and green they had almost as many colors as there are tones in the diatonic scale, and they sang with as much color as they were.

Clear diction, fine phrasing, beautiful cadence, infectious dance-like rhythms and a wonderfully varied dynamic in expression made this program much the best these singers have ever done here. The choir has improved in both body and quality of tone: especially in the second altos which are now a good balance for the sopranos.

Four old things made the first group, a Staines Morris dance song, arranged by Percy Fletcher, was the first, sung with delightful clarity and abandon in the crisp measures of the old English dance. A lovely adagio whose name was not distinctly uttered, brought out the fine quality of the altos and the limpid tones of the soprano section; against the allegro of the first number almost like an andante in a quartet. An old Purcell song was humorously done and the group ended with the best performance of the hackneyed "Lass With a Delicate Air" heard here in many a year because it was done at such excellent tempo instead of being a drowsy drag.

Four modern things displayed the more brilliant tones of the singers. A setting of a 16th century carol by Healey Willan and one by same composer of "Tyrlee Tyrlow" were little gems of pretty writting superbly done with all sorts of pretty nuances of rhythm in the latter, and always the clearest enunciation.

Elgar's "Snow" a rather difficult thing for intonation, brought out the exquisite blend of voices in varied colors against the pleasing duox obbligato of two violins played by Deane Minor and Fred Winfield, with piano accompaniment by the chorus pianist, Miss Gwen Mary Donley who did all her work so deftly.

Three of the most enjoyable things were the folksongs arranged by Deems Taylor: a Hungarian song, The Miska and Panni song used by Liszt in his Hungarian fantasia and brilliantly sung with splendid sonority; an old Scottish folksong to Burns' words about Robbie the Rantin' and best of all the old English one, Twenty-Eighteen so charmingly done as a humoresque of love and marriage that it had to be repeated.

Warsaw W.M.S. Hears Temperance Address

WARSAW, Dec. 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—The members of the W.M.S. of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. John Sargent on Thursday afternoon, when it was decided to hold the Christmas service in conjunction with the Women's Association on Thursday afternoon, December 18.

Mrs. Sargent read a very interesting discussion on temperance work which was followed by a discussion. The case of some needy ones was discussed at this time. Mrs. George Taylor sang a solo while Mrs. S. W. Payne, Mrs. W. Cooper and Mrs. Arthur Edwards gave temperance readings.

The treasurer reported a donation of $25 to the society. The allotment is fairly well up and no appeal has been made to the public. The society has also sent a bale away.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Sargent served afternoon tea to the ladies.

FARMERS PLANNING NEW ORGANIZATION

Education League to be Given Dominion-wide Scope Delegates Decide.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 8. (C.P.)—Self-styled Radicals, delegates to a two-day convention of the Canadian Farmers' Educational League Saturday decided to give their organization a Dominion-wide scope, and today a series of meetings to be held in western cities, started in Regina.

Confined to the three prairie provinces up to hte present, the League will endeavor to open branches in the east under the name of Farmers' Unity League of Canada, according to a resolution approved at the meeting.

A state guarantee of not less than $1,000 a year to farmers, cancellation o fall arrears in taxes, and organized opposition to evictions for non-payment of mortgage indebtedness, rent or arrears of taxes, were demanded in other resolutions passed at the convention.

Other resolutions urged free medical and hospital treatment for farm children, whose parents are unable to pay, and free text books up to grade ten, also were approved.

Organization meetings will be held in Saskatoon and Edmonton following the Regina gathering.

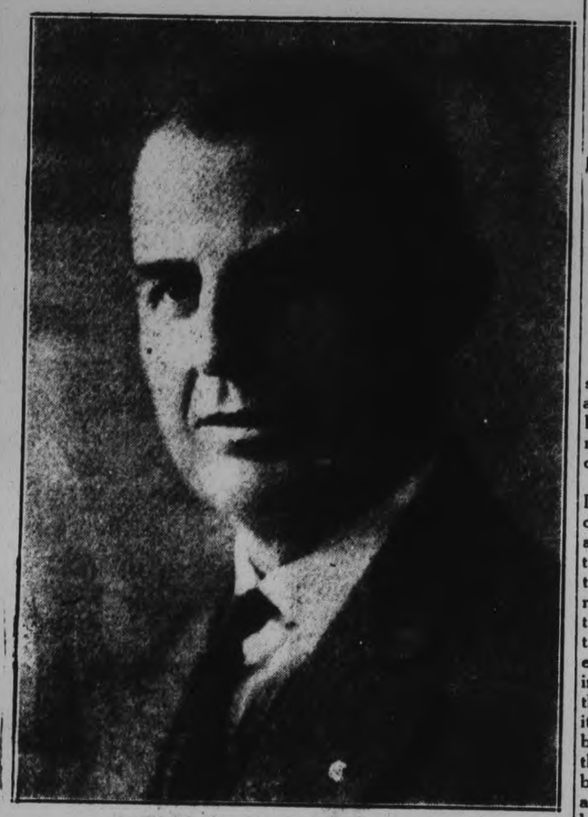
Mayor Denne Will Seek Fourth Term

Enters Mayoralty Contest



HIS WORSHIP MAYOR ROLAND DENNE,
Who announced last night at the banquet tendered by him to the members of the City Council and the heads of the Civic departments, that he would seek a fourth term as Mayor of Peterborough.

MAYOR IS HOST TO CITY COUNCIL AND OFFICIALS

Mayor Roland Denne Announces That He Will Seek a Fourth Term.

CITY NEEDS LEADER.

Fred Roy Entertains Those Present By Showing Several Reels of Pictures.

Mayor Roland Denne will seek re-election. He made this announcement last evening in the Empress Hotel at his annual dinner to the City Council and chiefs of the city's departments.

It was evident that Mayor Denne had not reached the decision to again offer himself as a candidate to the chief magistrate's chair without considerable thought. But having made up his mind he announced his intention last night with characteristic sincerity and briefness. He expressed the thought that having piloted the city's affairs through three years of prosperity, his experience in municipal business might prove valuable at this time when industry and business in general was suffering a slump. Not of his own desire, but at the urgings of countless citizens in every walk of life was he again placing himself at the will of the electors.

Three Years of Hard Work

First, he warmly thanked the Councillors for the co-operation they had given him during the past three years. His words rang true and there was a rich warmth in those few words of thanks to his fellow members of the municipal board. "They have been three years of earnest work and endeavor; three years not unmarked with success and during which time three new factories were brought to Peterborough," he said.

"Then recently has come the depression and the hum of wheels in factories across the continent has become dulled," Mayor Denne continued. "But I am hopeful; hopeful of renewed flow of orders to our factories. I see a better outlook than

"Still Loving Her Husband," Race Driver's Wife Seeking Separation

LOS ANGELES, December 9 (C.P.). — Declaring that she still loved her husband and that she was acting on his request, Mrs. Ralph de Palmc has begun suit against the noted automobile racing driver, for separate maintenance.

An attorney for the wife, Mrs. Clara de Palma, said she also intended to file a divorce complaint later.

In her lawyers' office she became hysterical while discussing the case.

"Ralph forced me to do this," she sobbed. "I don't know what is the matter with him. We were so happy for nearly twenty-three years. I still love him and want him back. But he called me by telephone a week ago and asked for his freedom, and that's why I am starting this action."

WOMAN POISONED COLONEL STATES IN SHEPARD TRIAL

Claims He Conducted Chemical Analysis After Mrs. Shepard's Death.

METALLIC MERCURY FOUND.

Chicago Doctor Testifies Sufficient Poison Found to Prove Fatal.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 9 (C.P.). —Col. Edward B. Vedder, attached to the Army Medical Corps laboratory in Washington, to-day testified at the murder trial of Major Charles A. Shepard, formerly of Belleville, Ont., that chemical analysis had revealed poison caused the death of the defendant's second wife, Mrs. Zenana Shepard.

Colonel Vedder said he made the analysis of Mrs. Shepard's viscera in Washington, following her death at Fort Riley, Kas., in June, 1929, in what the Government charges was a poison plot carried out by Shepard, an army medical officer, because of his infatuation for Miss Grace Brandon, 22-year-old stenographer of San Antonio, Tex.

"The final test showed globules of metallic mercury to the mount of two or three grains," Colonel Vedder testified. "Mercury in the body tends to eliminate rapidly, and it is extremely possible that much already had been eliminated. I think she died of mercury poisoning."

Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, Chicago chemist-toxicologist and assistant director of the scientific crime laboratory at North-Western University, said he made an exhaustive chemical analysis of samples of the viscera.

"I would judge," he testified, "there were two or three grains of mercury in the stomach, liver and kidneys."

The poison found was of sufficient quantity to cause death, he stated.

H. A. Gilroy Warns That Movement in Danger of Losing Efficiency As Medium Through Which the Organized Farmer Can Make His Influence Felt.

ONLY REAL SAFEGUARD AGAINST SUCH DANGER IS AN AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION

Trip Through Province Shows an Attitude of Mind That Demands the Organization Take its Place in Economic and Social Re-adjustment That Must Follow.

TORONTO, Ont., December 9 (C.P.). — A warning that the movement was in danger of losing its efficiency as the medium through which the organized farmer can make his influence felt, was sounded to-day by H. A. Gilroy, in his presidential address at the seventeenth annual meeting of the shareholders of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, Limited. The only safeguard against such danger, he said, is to carry an an aggressive campaign of education and materially increase the educational advantages which have hitherto been the function of the institution.

The morale of the Ontario farmers toward their organization was never better than at present, said Mr. Gilroy, and from an impression gathered during a trip covering the entire farming Province, there is an attitude of mind which demands the United Farmer organization to take its place in the economic and social re-adjustment that must inevitably follow, "or other forms of forces will rise to do so."

After reviewing the work of various departments of the association, Mr. Gilroy said notwithstanding the world-wide shrinkage in commodity prices, he was able to report for the company, in the main, a satisfactory volume of business and a fair margin of profit. The departments which operate on a co-operative basis all show a material gain in volume. The details of financial matters will later be presented in the consolidated balance sheet.

It was needless, said Mr. Gilroy, to discuss the grain situation, though "I would like to impress upon you the fact that the relation between the grain and bread prices is causing some real concern to the consuming public." He could only guess that "the flour situation is under the control of well-organized interests," while the chief difficulty in Ontario grain controlled by the pool is not in sufficient volume to be a dominant factor in controlling the domestic price.

The Ontario Grain Pool, he assured them, requires no Government guarantees or financial assistance. "It stands squarely on its own feet, and will do so as long as the present friendly relations with the company continue."

RUSSIA'S WESTERN NEIGHBORS EXPRESS FEARS TO CONFERENCE

Soviet Delegate Objects to Statements Being Placed in Formal Report.

COMMISSION NEARS FINISH.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 9. — (C.P.). — Fears of Russia's western neighbors because of their proximity to the Soviet frontier gave rise to a lively incident in the Preparatory Disarmament Commission to-day when M. Lunacharsky, the Soviet delegate, protested strongly against recording these expressions of fear in the Commission's formal report.

Poland Protestant.

The conference declined to agree with him entirely, but the text of the report was revised to eliminate direct reference to the Soviet Government. Poland, one of the protestants, indicated that she and her neighbor countries were willing to let the general League conference fight out the political merits of the question.

The Commission completed adoption of its report this morning and was expected to wind up this afternoon or to-night.

RUMOR LAVAL LIKELY TO FAIL

Premier-designate Calls on President But Gives No Information.

RADICALS OPPOSE TARDIEU.

PARIS, Dec. 9.—(AP)—An impression got about today that Pierre Laval, Premier-Designate, had not been able to overcome difficulties in the way of forming a Cabinet to succeed the Tardieu Ministry.

He calle on President Doumergue this morning, and when he left the Elysee Palace said merely that he intended to get in touch with a number of political leaders. One of the first he saw was Francois de Wendel, the deputy from Meaurthe-Eta Moselle. In reply to questions to to whether he was continuing his negotiations, he answered merely, "did you think otherwise?"

But reports circulated that many mmebers of the Radical Socialist party were vehemently opposed so any cabinet which would include Tardieu. The resigned Premier, they contended, had been overthrown by the Radicals in the Senate and therefore he should not seek to enter the new Cabinet

Boy Shot to Death By His Own Mother

ALBANY, N.Y., December 9 (C.P.). — Thomas Donohue, 14, was shot and killed near his home at Medusa, 25 miles south-west of here this morning.

State troopers summoned to Medusa from outposts nearby were told over the telephone by neighbors of the Donohue family that the mother, Mrs. William Donohue, admitted she had killed the boy "because he tantalized her."

According to the report the troopers received by telephone, Thomas was running across the roadway in front of his home when struck by a .38 calibre bullet from a rifle in the hands of his mother, who stood on the porch and fired.

NATIONAL BROADCASTING SYSTEM ONLY SOLUTION SAYS RADIO LEAGUE

Would Have Powers of Private Enterprise and Functions of Public Utility.

ORGANIZATION SHAPED UP.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 3.— (C.P.)— Avowing its purpose to be the promotion of Canada's interests in the radio world and the establishment of an organization which might eventually bcome a medium of expression for those interests, the Canadian Radio League has come into being and assumed definite shape at a meeting here yesterday. Temporary chairman of the Executive Committee is Graham Spry, with Allan Plaunt, secretary.

League Gives Attitude.

In a memorandum announcing the raison d'etre of the League, its attitude towards national broadcasting is set out in the following terms:

"The solution the Radio League sees of the present radio problem, the one means towards making the radio a great instrument of entertainment, education and national unity is the establishment of a National Broadcasting Company with the powers of a private enterprise and the functions of a public utility."

The memorandum declares that radio "is perhaps an instrument for the cultivation of public opinion, of education and entertainment. It should make the home not merely a billboard but a theatre, a concert hall, a club, a public meeting, a school, a university."

Contrasting the situation as between Canada and the United States the memorandum points out that

Trip to Germany Too Much for 'Rats

LINDSAY, Dec. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— A number of muskrats were recently purchased by an Oakville resident from one of the muskrat farms in Victoria County for shipment to Germany. When they reached a German port, however, they were held up because of a recently enacted law which prevented their admission into the country. They were then re-crated and shipped back to this country. When they arrived here it was discovered that all but three of the animals were dead.

LONDON SWATHED IN FOG BLANKET

Two Killed in Highway Smashes—Railroad and Coastal Traffic Halts.

KING CHANGES PLANS.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Another of the thick impenetrable fogs which have visited London so frequently during the past ten days lay over the metropolitan area today, blotting out landmarks and hampering communication.

Railroad, highway, river and coastal traffic was at complete or partial paralysis over a large section of Southern England. One of the worst afflicted regions was that around Southampton where shipping was held up during the night. Four outward bound steamers for channel ports were unable to leave. Two inward bound coastal steamers were forced to anchor all night in Southampton Roads.

The King suffered inconvenience from the fog and had to alter his plans for the day. His Majesty returned to Buckingham Palace from Sandringham yesterday and had planned to drive to Windsor today to shoot on the preserves for the first time since his illness in 1928, and he had invited the Duke of York and several friends to accompany him. Because of the fog he postponed his shoot and probably will go out Thursday instead.

Two persons were killed and several were injured in the London area this forenoon as a consequenceof highway collisions due to fog.

Shipments Of Grain Pass Through Lindsay

LINDSAY, December 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — Activity in grain movements through Lindsay on both the C.N.R. and C.P.R. was in evidence during the past week, but the volume of grain hauled from the elevators was a mere bagatelle compared with last fall's haulage.

It is understood that there are only a few million bushels of wheat in the elevators at Midland, with no wheat-laden vessels wintering in the harbor. France has ordered heavily in Canadian wheat, and this, of course, will be hauled by rail to the seaboard from the head of the lakes.

Movement of the Western grain via Lindsay and Peterborough to the East gave employment to many railroad men in years past, but this year finds hundreds of men in the Belleville Division of the C.N.R. out of regular employment owing to the grain situation.

COBOURG BLAZE RAZES COAL YARD

Flames Causing Several Thousand Dollars Damage Could Be Seen 6 Miles.

STOVE IS BLAMED.

COBOURG, Dec. 9.—Damage estimated at several thousand dollars was caused last night by fire which demolished the office building, warehouse and coalyard of the Robert Hicks Coal Company. Fed by the heavy timbers of the all-wood warehouse containing 350 tons of coal, the flames ate their way through the building rapidly. The blaze could be seen six miles. The fire, it is believed, originated in the office from an overheated stove. The Fire Department worked several hours before the blaze was brought under control.

"Padre of the Rains" Succumbs In San Jose

SAN JOSE, Cal., Dec. 9. (CP)— The Rev. Jerome Sixtus Ricard, "Padre of the Rains" died at the University of Santa Clara infirmary here last night. He had been confined to his bed most of the time since he suffered a heart attack on April, 1929.

The 80-year-old churchman and scientist was nationally known for his development of the sun spot theory of weather prognostication. His monthly weather forecasts, based upon observation of the sun, were issued regularly for a quarter of a century until he was stricken. They brought him the title of "Padre of the Rains."

For more than a half a century he was connected with the University of Santa Clara where he was head of the astronomical observatory from 1917 to 1929.

INDIAN PRINCES FAVOR PROPOSAL

Readiness to Adopt System of Two Chambers Marks Step Ahead.

Hindus, Moslems Negotiate.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent).— Two more forward steps were taken to-day along the road to an All-India Federation, namely:

Indian Native Princes definitely declared their readiness to adopt the system of two chambers in a proposed All-India Federal Parliament;

Hindus and Moslems, who had split on the rock of joint as against separate electorates, resumed their negotiations with the prospect of settlement.

The Princes made their declaration during the meeting of the committee on Federal Structure. They added a rider that their entry in the Federal Parliament should be contingent upon the Federal Parliament being constituted to deal with Federal matters only.

The native Princes further suggested that provision should be made in the constitution for the addition of new subjects of common concern, to those which are regarded as properly coming under Federal jurisdiction.

Subjects Revised

The committee then began a revision of the subjects which are provisionally accepted as federal. Under the head of communications, the following were added as coming within federal authority:

(1) Aircraft and all matters connected therewith.
(2) Inland waterways, affecting more than one unit of the Federation.
(3) Policy and legislation in regard to railways.
(4) Administration of railways to the extent exercised by the Railway Board.

Discussion of Provincial constitutions brought forward a number of new viewpoints. The general trend of discussion was that it seemed inevitable there should be a Chief Provincial Minister—whether called the Prime Minister or not—whose duty would be to form a Provincial Government.

"The responsibility," one speaker urged, "is the foundation on which to build. The scaffolding is of less importance." The general opinion was in favor of widening the field from which Provincial Governors, independent of poltics, will be appointed.

TRIAL LABELLED 'THE OGPU FARCE'

London Press Claims Object Was to Influence Russian Opinions Against Outside World.

PUT UP JOB.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The Daily Express, commenting toda yon the commutation of sentences imposed by Moscow on eight men charged with plotting against the Soviet Government, characterizes the dramatic trial just ended there as a "put up job".

In an editorial headed "the Ogpu Farce," the newspaper said, "Thus ends the biggest burlesque of justice which has been staged in our time. From beginning to end the whole thing, with its fantastic charges, has been incredible. Its confessions and its broadcasting paraphenalia have been what is colloquially known as a "put up job"."

The purpose of the exhibition in Moscow, said the newspaper, was to "inflame Russian opinion against the outside Capitalist world. If there is a single Russian who has been genuinely iposed upon by this monstrous masquerade then humor and realism must have deserted the country."

EXAMINER'S CHRISTMAS FUND TO HELP MANY NEEDY FAMILIES

Fund Will Be Divided Amongst Charitable Organizations Who Do Great Work.

NEED IS GREAT.

Last year, The Examiner had a Christmas Cheer Fund which proved to be of great benefit to many of the needy of the city. There are more people this year who are deprived of many of the comforts of life on account of a long summer when unemployment was rife.

The sum of $2 was handed in today, the opening subscription for this Fund. The Examiner will be glad to receive and acknowledge further amounts. The total at Christmas time will be divided among several charitable organizations who do widespread relief work throughout the entire community.

There are many homes where workless days and illness have left the adults and children alike in want of the real necessities of life. Men and women who can step into a good car at the curb and go wherever they wish, who can come back to warm homes and comfortable surroundings, who can turn on a radio and hear all the good music they wish, and whose clothes are of the best, find it hard to realize the plight of less fortunate women and children.

It is related of a princess who lived in France at the time of the Red Terror, when people were clamoring for food, that she remarked petulantly about the foolishness of men and women always demanding bread when they could get such nice cakes, so cheap. That is just a little of the mental attitude of many who cannot possibly realize just what a bare cupboard means.

A woman pushing a tiny baby in a rough carriage, the other evening, stopped suddenly on the corner. Two small children loitered behind her and a man walked by her side. She said, with the accents of desperation in her words: "What is the use of going home? There is nothing to eat and you know how cold it is." The man said nothing. They went on around the corner.

South Pays Homage To "Uncle Remus"

ATLANTA, December 9 (C.P.).— —The capers of Brer Rabbit were revived in memories of grown-ups to-day as the South paid homage to the genius of Joel Chandler Harris, the "Uncle Remus" who has delighted children of many lands.

The occasion was the 82nd anniversary of his birth. Memorial programs were arranged in the schools and other public places.

Wireless Man on Stricken Salvage Ship Claims Boat Leaped Into the Air.

FELL INTO BOILING SEA.

LA PALAIS BELLE ISLE, France, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Giuseppe Gagli, wireless operator on the Italian salvage ship "Artiglio", which was destroyed by an explosion yesterday, today told his own story of the disaster fro mhis hospital cot.

"The explosion was terrific," he said, "The ship took a great leap into the air and I was thrown into a boiling sea. Pieces of the ship fell upon me out of a great column of water. I lost consciousness and the first thing I knew I was in a boat from the "Bostro" (the "Artiglio's" sister ship).

The captain of the "Rostro" said his own ship was shaken as though it had struck a mine. Then from his bridge he saw the "Artiglio" flung skyward. It seemed to fall back into a great chasm in the sea.

Clergy Also Ask That Quebec Whiskey Advertisements Be Banned.

CHECK-UP MADE.

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 9 (C.P.). — Following up the petition signed by the Roman Catholic parish priests of the city and district which was presented to the Quebec Liquor Commission on Nov. 24, with a request that taverns in Quebec City be obliged to lock up at ten o'clock at night instead of eleven, as at present. Another petition, this time signed by laymen, is to be presented to Premier Taschereau, supporting the demands of the clergy. All church trustees, past and present, and the chief officers of local religious and literary societies have affixed their names to this latter document, which asks also that a ban be placed on all whiskey advertisements.

In their appeal to the Commission the rectors claimed that a check-up had been made on persons emerging from local taverns on Friday and Saturday nights during the period from August 1st to September 6th. Of 5,992 men leaving the taverns they said they counted 289 intoxicated and 730 in a half drunken state.

YOUNG FARMERS BRINGING HOME MARTIN TROPHY

Trio Score 2,191 Points Out of 3,000 at Provincial Winter Fair, Guelph.

COACHED BY A. E. SUMMERS.

Nine Year Old Girl Gives Fine Exhibition of Riding in Jumping Class.

GUELPH, Ont., December 9—Durham County Junior Farmers ranked first and took possession of the John S. Martin Trophy, in the annual inter-county live stock judging competition, at the Ontario Provincial Winter Fair held at Guelph last evening.

The team, coached by E. A. Summers, agricultural representative of Port Hope, composed of George McKnight, Millbrook, George Neals and Bruce Beer of Bethany, had the high score of 2,191 out of a possible 3,000 and in competition with teams representing twenty-five counties in the Province.

Had 30 Point Lead

The Durham County team was some thirty points ahead of Peel County, Ontario was third, Wellington fourth, Wentworth fifth and Oxford sixth. The Glen Ormond trophy for the team making the best showing in the judging of heavy horses went to Peel County.

Capturing high honors in every performance and saddle class during the evening, G. A. P. Brickenden, of London, scored a marked success in the first evening show at the Ontario Provincial Winter Fair last night.

Nine Year Old Girl Rides Well.

Ridden pluckily by his nine-year old daughter, Dinnie Brickenden, the London horses went over the jumps in splendid style to lead in the prize winning for the show.

The feature event of the night, the open performance class, went to O. H. Becker, of New Hamburg, who made a perfect circuit on a "green" horse. W. E. Newman, St. Catharines, G. A. M. Davidson, Unionville, and Strahlyn Farms, Simcoe, shared honors in the harness class, while Miss Kay Christie, Miss Norah Gordon ,and Miss Helen Watson ,of Toronto ,were winners in the ladies' saddle and jumping events.

The fair was formally opened by Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, who officiated in the absence of Col. the Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario.

COURT ACQUITS BUCKHORN MAN

Clarion Windover is Acquitted on Charge Under Excise Act.

PREVIOUSLY SENTENCED.

Clarion Windover, of Buckhorn, was acquitted by Police Magistrate Langley in County Police Court yesterday afternoon on a charge of having liquor in his possession contrary to the Excise Act.

Windover served three months when he pleaded guilty in July to a charge under the Liquor Control Act of having liquor in his possession on the Curve Lake Indian Reserve. Let out of jail on the completion of his sentence he was immediately re-arrested and charged under the Excise Act. He pleaded not guilty and was defended by J. A. O'Brien.

Magistrate Langley held that under Section 15 of the Criminal Code, which provided that unless a contrary intention appears, no one shall be prosecuted twice for the same offence, even though it may be an offence under two different Acts. Windover could not again be prosecuted, and discharged the case.

J. A. O'Brien appeared for the defence and W. F. Huycke conducted the prosecution.

Youths Rushed to Hospital and Citizen Faces Charge of Assault.

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 9.—Three Sudbury High School boys to-day were moralizing on the art of throwing snowballs and in their cots at the local hospital had reached the unanimous verdict that it doesn't pay to bombard a victim who hasn't a sense of humor.

But the boys had this conclusion rather unceremoniously forced upon them.

Taking full advantage of a fall of soft snow—the kind that serves so well for snowballs—the trio, Tony Petryna, 17; Peter Evansham, 13, and James Jawersky, 14, got their ammunition ready and waited for a victim. The target turned out to be Kost Evanshuk, who didn't like the treatment at all. As he turned to admonish the boys, a snowball caught him flush on the mouth. Other shots found their mark with unerring precision and Evanshuk accepted the challenge.

He charged upon the nearest boy and the two rolled into the snow. The other two boys rushed to the rescue and for several minutes there was a desperate melee, punctuated by screams and groans.

When the brawl ended, the three boys remained lying on the ground. Examination showed they had been stabbed about the body. The boys were rushed to hospital where their wounds were dressed, while Kost was arrested and charged with assault.

In court yesterday Evanshuk pleaded "not guilty" and elected summary trial. At the request of the Crown, however, the case was remanded for a week, pending the recovery of the boys.

Major Yates Awarded Long Service Medal

OTTAWA, Ont., December 9.—Major A. V. Yates, M.C., of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has been awarded the Colonial Auxiliary Forces Long Service Medal. Other non-permanent active military men throughout the province received similar awards, but Major Yates was the only one in Peterborough district to be so honored.

Riots in Valencia Claim One Victim

VALENCIA, Spain, Dec. 9.—At least one man was killed and several were seriously injured to-day when rioting broke out here on the heels of a 48-hour general strike, called in protest against failure of arbitration of a dispute between employers and workers in several crafts.

Shipping was crippled, local transportation facilities were tied up, and there were numerous clashes between strikers and police throughout the city.

The principal conflict was between employers and carpenters, but although the strike order exempted electric light and power, water works and public employees, these crafts were believed ready to join the walk-out.

POOL WITHDRAWS SALES AGENCIES REVERSES POLICY

McFarland Believes Move Will Strengthen Overseas Wheat Demand.

REMOVE SUSPICIONS.

Established Trade Channels Be Used in Future For Marketing.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 9 (C.P.).—John I. McFarland, new general manager of the central selling agency of the Canadian Wheat Pool, has announced that the Pool had adopted a new overseas policy. Reversing its policy of direct selling overseas, the Pool will withdraw its representatives and close its agencies at London, Paris, and other European centres.

All the ordinary established facilities for marketing wheat will, in future, be carried out by the pool, a statement issued by Mr. McFarland, said. Overseas agencies will be advised at once to close their offices as rapidly as circumstances will permit. The largest sales office is at London.

Move Creates Little Surprise.

Believed to have taken the sales managership of the pools two weeks ago on the understanding that he would be allowed a free rein as to policy, Mr. McFarland's announcement caused no surprise.

"It is my firm conviction that this change in policy will have immediate and favorable effects in strengthening the demand for Canadian wheat overseas, and that it will create a friendly feeling where there have been doubts and ill-feeling concerning our selling policies of the past," Mr. McFarland's statement declared.

He expressed confidence that a prejudice overseas that the Pool's policy was to "combat the world" would be erased by the move.

SOVIET ENVOY BOWS TO STALIN

Promises Cooperation After Trial For Detaining Three Couriers.

REPRESENTATIVE IN LONDON

LONDON, Dec. 9. (CP)—The Daily Mail to-day related to climax of what it purports to be dramatic events which have occurred during the past fortnight in the Soviet Embassy at London.

It said that G. I. Sokolnikov So-tried by a special commission sent from Moscow on a charge of detaining three couriers who had been sent to return him to the Russian Capital. Sentence has not been promulgated yet, but the Ambassador, often accused of right wing tendencies, is said to have recanted and to have sent Joseph Stalin, Secretary General of the Communist Party, an apology and assurance of future co-operation.

The paper Nov. 26 told of Sokolnikov seizing three agents of the Ogpu or secret police and who had been sent from Moscow for him, but the Embassy later denied that there was any truth in the story. To-day The Mail quotes the Ambassador's explanation that the detention of the envoys was by mistake, there having been discrepancies in their papers. The Ambassador claimed further that he could not obey an Ogpu order unless it came directly from the Commissariat of Foreign Affairs.

The special commission which conducted the trial of Sokolnikov is said to be returning to Moscow immediately accompanied by one of the detained couriers, the other two remaining to watch over things.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Bad Cold On Her Chest Had To Stay In Bed

Mrs. J. C. Winters, Janow, Man., writes:—"I have every reason to praise Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as it has done me a world of good. I had a very bad cold on my chest, and had to stay in bed two weeks, and could hardly speak on account of coughing so much. I tried every medicine and liniment I could think of, but I got no relief. My husband read about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup so I decided to try it. I took only one bottle and I am ready to recommend it to anyone with a cold."

Crash in Shanghai Takes Three Lives

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9 (A.P.)—Paul Baer of Fort Wayne, Ind., pilot, 30, a woman passenger, her name not learned, and a Chinese pilot were killed when their plane crashed near here to-day.

Five Chinese passengers, among them General Hsiung Shih Hui, Commander of the Garrison at Shanghai, were seriously injured in what is said to be the first crack-up of an air mail plane in China.

The plane was carrying mail and passengers from Nanking to Shanghai.

Carcass Found In Ice Suspected As Whale

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—The carcass of an animal found recently in Alaskan ice and hailed by amateur naturalists as a pre-historic creature was reported to the American museum of natural history yesterday to be probably a small whale.

Dr. Charles E. Bunnell, President of Alaskan College, who investigated the creature at the request of the museum, sent this telegram to Bernard Brown, curator:

"Specimen found floating in Columbia Bay. I have forwarded neat pictures and letters. Good photos of portion of skeleton just received go forward next mail. Am endeavoring to procure a vertebrae. There is nothing to indicate pre-historic origin."

RADIO TALK IS ROTARY THEME

Bert Shane of Bowmanville, Addresses Campbellford Club on Broadcasting.

Christmas Cheer Arranged.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 9 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—The weekly meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club, held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday, with the president, H. N. Carr, in the chair, was featured by an address by Bert Shane of Bowmanville, chief engineer of the CKGW broadcasting station, who gave a descriptive address on the principles underlying broadcasting.

Commencing the talk, Mr. Shane drew attention to the fact that it was not until 1919 or after that radio was put on a commercial basis. Since that time, however, rapid strides had been made, with the result that today the system was nearing completion. This had been caused greatly by the vacuum tube, which went through a course of perfection. In 1924 the modulation system was only 25 per cent. but since that time it had gradually increased until to-day it was 100 per cent.

Commencing with the broadcasting of a program, Mr. Shane started with the studio, which he described in detail. In this specially prepared chamber there were two sets of condenser microphones, one for announcing and one for broadcasting. To this room energy was fed by cable to the amplifier, the maximum voltage being 480. The speaker explained that it was all low power, the batteries being only 12 volts.

The difficulty Mr. Shane explained, was the connection of the amplification with the station. This was over a long line, and often caused the high notes of music to be cut off. To offset this there was an equalizer which created an artificial loss and balanced the tone.

All connections leading into the station were encased in lead cables. A crystal control was used, the physical dimensions of which were small. The tube used was a massive affair that took fifty-two amph. meters to light. The feature of this was the fact that it contained a portion where glass and copper was wielded together. The life of an average tube of this kind was one thousand hours, but some tubes can be used as long as three thousand hours. Energy is furnished by direct current to the tube.

Mr. Shane also explained the personnel of the station and the work that is performed, stating that because of the exactness of the work men are relieved frequently.

Many guests were registered at the luncheon. The president brought before the club a request from the Campbellford Boy Scouts for the donation of broken toys that could be fixed up in their toy shop for distribution this Christmas. Arrangements were also made for this year's Rotary Christmas cheer.

GOOD REPORT IS SHOWN FOR YEAR

Prince of Wales Cheese Factory Holds Annual Meeting Shows Slight Balance.

JESSE LOCKE PRESIDENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 9 (Examiner Staff Correspondence) — The annual meeting of the Prince of Wales Cheese Factory was held on Monday afternoon in the factory, with Jesse Lock, president of the factory, presiding. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in a very satisfactory slate, these being: President, Jesse Locke; secretary, W. W. Clark; directors, William Donald, W. C. Wallace, and Tom Hay.

The annual report as read by Mr. Clark proved very interesting. Despite the bad year for the cheese industry, the factory had held its own. One fact that was very pleasing was that the factory had paid 38 cents per pound for butter fat clear of all expenses. The report in full is as follows: Total number of pounds of milk, 1,123,193; number of pounds of cheese, 93,199; amount from whey cream, $594.66; pounds of milk per pounds of cheese was 12.05. The cheese sold at an average price of 15.31 cents, realizing 38 cents per pound butter fat clear of all expenses.

Financial Report.

The directors' financial report was read by the secretary as follows:

Receipts.

Balance in bank, 1929	$ 2.74
For sale of cheese	14,007.56
Cheese to patrons	263.42
Receipts—from whey cream	297.33
Interest	5.85
	$14,575.90

Expenditures.

Paid to patrons	$12,733.45
Manufacturing	1,025.14
Boxes	235.20
Hauling	48.60
Coal	120.46
Wood	36.00
Salt	23.42
Supplies	172.75
A. E. Burgis	3.60
Cheese insurance	10.40
Weight and selling	55.78
Testing fees	9.50
Salaries	95.00
Rent	4.00
Printing	1.00
Balance on hand	2.60
	$14,575.90

J.R. Smith, manager of the Campbellford branch of the Bank of Montreal, addressed the meeting, thanking them for their past patronage and asking that the factory account be continued with the bank. In his few remarks he pointed out that although the cheese outlook was not bright, he felt that several things offset this. Prices were being lowered on living expenses, and he thought that considering this fact and perhaps the increasing of the herd, the coming year would not be so hard as anticipated.

In surveying the cheese situation, he stated that Canadians only ate an average of three and one-half pounds of cheese a year. This figure was very low, and he thought that if the consumption of cheese on the home market could be increased, it would be one way to help the industry.

J. A. Murray, local cheese instructor, also addressed the gathering, urging them to continue the good work that they had been doing. He pointed out that the factory, as compared with others, was in a good condition and could hold its own during the business depression.

As the business session it was agree, on motion, to continue with the Bank of Montreal.

Contract Awarded

The matter of hauling cheese was brought up and after discussion it was decided to give the contract to A. J. Meyers of Campbellford at the rate given by him. Haulage of coal was also talked over and this matter was settled by agreeing to let H. M. Fowlds of Campbellford haul it at the price he had given, which was fifty cents per ton.

The manufacturing of the cheese was left, as last year, in the hands of J. A. Murray and at the same rate.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM THAIN.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 9 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The funeral of the late William Thain was held at the family residence, Campbellford, on Monday, December 8, with interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, the Rev. Donald A. McKenzie, of Burnbrae, officiating. The pall-bearers were: William Miller, Jonathan Thain, John Thain, Wilson Thain, Fred Thain, and Fred Howe.

Mr. Thain, who died on Saturday, December 6, was in his 82nd year. Born in Scotland on February 10, 1850, he came to Canada with his parents seventy years ago. For the past forty years he has been a resident of Campbellford. For many years he followed the trade of teamster, but retired with advancing age.

Surviving are his widow, three sons Joseph of Campbellford, Charles of Toronto, and Perry of Detroit, Mich., two daughters, Mrs. Hammond of Toronto and Miss Daisy Thain, also of Toronto, and two brothers, James and Robert, both of Rawdon Township.

CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 9. (Examiner Correspondence). — Bible Sunday was the theme stressed at Christ Church, Campbellford, on Sunday, when the rector, the Rev. N. Clark Wallace, emphasized fact at both services. The morning service was featured by a celebration of the Holy Communion, when a large number received the sacrament. The service was of a choral nature, the choir being under the direction of the organist and choirmaster, W. Pearson, A.L.C.M.

At the morning service Mr. Wallace took his text from Romans 15:5, "Whatsoever things were written for our aforetime were written for our learning; that we through patience and comfort of the Scripture might hope." During the course of his address he pointed out that so many people stood outside the Christian faith. This he thought was not altogether their fault, stating that they very often misunderstood. Interest in religion, the speaker said, was very wide to-day, but the teachings as sometimes expounded, outrages the intellecual mind that is in doubt.

Mr. Wallace went on to explain that because of these teachings, criticism was hurled, not at the Bible, but at a theory about the Bible. That what things were written were for our learning, that the scripture still stands so that we might have hope.

HUMBUG INCIDENT CROPS UP AGAIN

Thomas Interrupted While Discussing Summary of Parley Proceedings.

SPEAKER INTERVENES.

LONDON, December 8. (C.P.) — The "humbug" incident in the House of Commons a few days ago when Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, secretary for the Dominions, was speaking of the Canadian proposals in the Imperial conference, cropped up again in the House of Commons yesterday.

Right Hon. Mr. Thomas informed a questioner that additions to the summary of conferences proceedings would shortly be laid before the House. The questioner asked if Mr. Thomas's attention had been called to Premier R. B. Bennett's statement that the Canadian preference offer was contemptuously rejected.

The Speaker intervened and called the next question.

A further attempt to draw out Mr. Thomas was made later when a Conservative asked whether he had taken any steps "to wipe out the gross insult which had been perpetrated."

The subject was terminated by the cries of "Order."

THE NEW FARM SCHOOL SCHEME.

No announcement of greater interest or importance to rural Ontario has been made for some time than that of Hon T. L. Kennedy, newly appointed Provincial Minister of Agriculture of the intention of the Ontario Government to establish agricultural schools, modelled on the same plan as urban vocational schools, in every county and district of the Province.

That there is need for better training in agriculture for the boys and girls of the rural portions of Ontario cannot be denied.

It is impossible for every farm boy or girl to attend the Ontario Agricultural College, but a farm school located in their own neighborhood would bring the benefit of modern agricultural training right home to the rural youth of the Province lead to a greater interest in farming, and unquestionably improve agriculture in a number of respects, particularly in regard to farm production costs and more successful marketing.

The plan is, of course, only in its embryo stage, but a start will have to be made somewhere, and why not in Peterborough County?

In other words, it would be good business for this county to investigate the possibilities that are offered by this new policy and lose no time in letting Hon. Mr. Kennedy know that Peterborough approves of his suggested farm school plan, is interested in the benefits it will offer, and hopes that it will be selected as among the first counties in the Province to be given an opportunity to test in actual practice the advantage of this method of improving and popularizing agriculture.

BUYING CANADIAN GOODS.

Rotarian Russell T. Kelley of Hamilton, in a speech here yesterday delivered some straight-from-the-shoulder truisms in regard to the desirability of buying made-in-Canada goods.

Mr. Kelley male it clear that he does not believe in advocating the purchase of Canadian goods except on a basis of quality and fair prices, and that is sound common sense.

The Canadian producer cannot expect to profit by a made-in-Canada campaign or to receive the benefit of a protective tariff unless he is satisfied with a fair price and is scrupulous about the quality of the goods he produces.

When other considerations are equal, there is no doubt of the duty of the Canadian citizen; that duty is to insist upon articles made or produced within the boundaries of their own country, and, as Mr. Kelley pointed out yesterday, there is an individual responsibility in this regard.

Unfortunately, far too few Canadians are willing to accept that responsibility; they follow the line of least resistance, take the goods that are shown them, and fail to remember that by buying Canadian articles they are helping to keep Canadians employed.

With most people it is a matter of habit—and just now the habit is doing Canada a great deal of harm, whereas a realization of the actual situation and a decision to give the preference to Canadian goods would be followed by beneficial results in which the whole country would share.

The only way to buy Canadian goods is to insist upon being supplied with them; merely talking about doing it and then buying blindly with no investigation as to the origin of what you are purchasing is of no help.

A CHEERY MESSAGE.

That was a cheery message Hon. Chas. McCrea, Ontario's Minister of Mines, delivered to the Royal Canadian Institute in Toronto on Saturday night—nothing less than the announcement that within the next year Canada is likely to move up from third to second place among the gold-producing countries of the world.

At present Canada's gold production, which in a period marked by a steady decline over the rest of the world has increased from $8,000,000 to $33,000,000 per year, is surpassed only by that of South Africa and the United States, and 1931, according to the Minister, will see second place captured by Canada.

As Mr. McCrea pointed out, the gold-mining industry is one industry against which there is no cry of over-production, and the development that is taking place in this respect in Canada—and our own Province, it should not be forgotten, is responsible for the greater part of the increase recorded—is a matter in which Canadians as a whole should take pride and which means a great deal to this whole country.

"The Government sees in the mineral possibilities of this Province a wonderful source of wealth for the people of Ontario," declared Mr. McCrea, and certainly the fascinating story of what has taken place in Northern Ontario in our own time leaves every reason for looking forward to even greater development and prosperity as a result of the wonderful heritage that Providence has given the people of this Province.

It is well to remember these things at a time when conditions are for the moment depressing; with wealth untold in the raw materials and cheap power of Ontario, there should be no craven fears as to the future.

A CHANCE TO HELP.

From Oshawa comes the interesting announcement that the superintendent of the Government employment office in that city has been asked by the finance committee of the City Council to submit a list of names of unemployed men who would be qualified to act as deputy returning officers and poll clerks at the coming municipal elections.

The idea, of course, is to give a day's work to married men who are at present out of employment, and there is much in the suggestion to commend it to the consideration of other municipalities where the same plan of helping those who are suffering because of the present economic conditions might be found beneficial.

Usually the municipal authorities rely upon the services of men who have had a long experience in the work of conducting a poll, and under ordinary conditions this selection of trained deputies and poll clerks is a wise one.

At this time, however, when many families are feeling the pressure of insufficient incomes, it might be as well to consider this means of helping the unemployed and to allot the duties to men who are in need of assistance, a condition that does not exist in the case of many of those who have usually officiated at municipal elections.

Citizens whose financial condition is not such as to give them any particular worry would probably be found quite willing to step aside on this occasion in favor of some less fortunate head of a family to whom the official fees might prove a very timely aid.

The work might not be done quite so expeditiously, but among those at present out of work there can surely be found enough qualified men to fill the various posts on election day.

55 OUT OF EVERY 100.

Grim and determined, stirred by scandal and swept by suspicion, bent on an electoral revolution, the citizens of Ottawa the other day flocked to the polls—at least, 55 out of every hundred of them did. The other 45 went about their affairs undisturbed by crises, issues, policies, promises, appeals and explanations. Some of the forty-five were ill, some were out of town, some couldn't leave the baby, but no doubt the great majority simply had no interest in the result.

Out of 57,932 persons qualified to vote 31,885 marked their ballots. The proportion, it is explained, was about five per cent. above the average, so it follows that fewer than 3,000 citizens who commonly do not bother to vote were shaken out of their indifference by the year's extraordinary developments at City Hall. The other 26,000, less such as were unavoidably absent, maintained to the last their lofty disdain for this common form of democratic expression

We merely point to a situation which prevails everywhere people vote: there is no remedy. Compulsory voting is absurd and impracticable. It is unreasonable to expect an intelligent ballot under compulsion from one whose concern with public affairs does not take him to the polls voluntarily. Non-voters pay the voters a subtle compliment in assuming, no doubt with justification, that half the people are perfectly capable of speaking for all the people, but the practical result is that almost never does a successful candidate for an elective post carry the positive and specific endorsation of more than a minority.—Ottawa Journal.

RUSSIAN WHEAT.

We read that the British Co-operative Wholesale Society buys much of its wheat from Russia.

This society is reputed to possess the largest flour mills in Britain.

During the first two weeks in October it purchased from Russia 65,750 tons of wheat, and earlier in the fall took another 45,000 tons from the same country.

That amount represents a tonnage equal to that sold to the British Co-operative Wholesale Society by Canada, and it is five times the amount which Australia wheat producers sold to the society.

* * * *

Plainly, there is something seriously wrong.

Something wrong with our method of negotiating with these firms in Britain; something wrong with the manner in which the Wheat Pool tried to secure a high price last season; something wrong with so great a section of the British market being lost to the Canadian growers of wheat.

Canada can furnish the Co-operative Society with better wheat than it can secure in Russia.

Canadian wheat is grown by men who are interested in building up the British Empire.

Russian wheat is produced under a system which is anxious to do what it can to utterly destroy the British Empire.

The purchasing of 110,750 tons—or 3,691,666 bushels—of Canadian wheat, instead of Russian wheat, would not cure the situation in Canada, but it would help.

More than that, Canadians would like to have the sensation that the British Co-operative Wholesale Society would rather do business with Canada than with the Russian agency.

Instead of talking about Empire trade in a general way, it would be better to tackle individual cases and work them out.

Why is it that this great purchasing society in Britain prefers to take on so much Russian wheat while Canada has so much for sale?

Has our Government secured the answer to that question, or can it?

Has the Wheat Pool itself any information on the subject?

It might be found, by securing a definite reply to queries about this one specific case, that we could find out a good deal about Empire trade which we do not appear to know at present.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it a happy Christmas for Canadians by confining your gift-purchasing to Canadian articles.

Sir Oswald Mosley's manifesto is just another little bit of trouble for the MacDonald Government which would seem to have more than its share.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

The morning was gone. Jean and Lionel sat in a little garden high above the noise and confusion of Seventh Avenue nibbling at salads.

"If you're quite satisfied," Lionel told her, "I'll get in touch with the manufacturer as soon as we return to the office, and arrange for delivery. You mustn't be disappointed if we have to accept a substitute for at least a part of the order. We're asking for a lot of dolls, and it's less than a month until Christmas."

"It's a beautiful doll," Jean agreed. "It really is a miniature baby."

Lionel said softly: "It is beautiful as you are beautiful, Jean. Remember that old song, 'You Great Big Beautiful Doll?'"

"I'm afraid I miss the point," said Jean. And suddenly: "Lionel! You mustn't do that. Look at all the people around you."

Lionel had reached across the table and taken her hand between his own two. "Why do you always draw away and talk about something else when . ." He stared about him with indifferent eyes. "Who are these people to us? I wish . . . you'd take me more seriously'

She saw the hurt in his eyes and quickly pressed her hand against his. "But I do take you seriously, Lionel. Only, you're so, daring.'

He followed up his advantage eagerly. "And do you like me, Jean?"

"Of course I like you. I . . . "

He shook his head slowly. "Not just like, Jean. Don't you care, in a little different way from liking?" And when he stared down at the remains of her salad, he said gently: "Perhaps you won't believe me, but, the moment you walked into the office I fell in love with you. You're marvelous, Jean."

She raised her eyes to his, uneasily. "But you mustn't say you fell in love with me. Why, we've only known each other a few days."

"More than a week," he corrected. 'And what if it had been but a few hours? Love, real love, Jean, begins back before we came in the world. Don't you believe that in the ideal love the particular man and the particular woman are made for each other?"

She said helplessly: "I, I don't bknow. I used to think so, but, no one else seems to think so any more. Do you really believe that, Lionel?"

Lionel said very soberly: "Of course I do. I know it!" And while he did not say it, Jean read in his eyes that he was quite as certain she and he were made for each other.

She was relieved when at last they left the roof and shot down in the elevator to the street level. Lionel's impetuous manner upset her, frightened her a little and left her undecided whether she was really afraid or secretly pleased. One thing she knew: she liked him much. But she would have preferred a more leisurely companionship.

It was after four o'clock that afternoon that Miss Trelling, Sandy's secretary, stopped at Jean's desk and said that Sandy would like to speak with her.

Sandy was busy signing correspondence when she went in. But presently he pushed the pile of letters to one side and looked up at her, smiling.

"Lionel tells me the factory expects to be able to fill your order on time," he observed quietly.

Jean laughed delightedly. "Isn't it wonderful! I was so afraid they'd try to pawn off a substitute on us." Her eyes fell upon a large travelling bag on the opposite side of his desk. He followed her gaze and nodded meaningly.

"I've had a hurry call from the gentleman who is financing the Miniature Baby Plan," he explained.

"Oh! He doesn't live in New York?"

"Boston," said Sandy. "Incidentally, I'll be gone a week or more. Unless something happens to call me back here, of course."

Jean felt as if she had suddenly passed from the sunshine into a damp, chilling fog. Twice before Jean had experienced that sensation: that first night when Sandy left her alone in the restaurant while he went to telephone; and later the same night when he had gone away from Marcia's apartment.

She realized vaguely that inexplicably she was dependent upon him, that it was from him that she drew her strength and her courage to carry on cheerfully despite the depressing atmosphere in which she had moved since Fargeson was murdered.

"Stay out of the office as much as possible," he told her when she was about to leave the office. "I've an idea that Marcia has reasons of her own for not telling the police about you. But," he got up and held out his hand, "if anything happens, get hold of Lionel. He'll know where to find me."

Jean worked feverishly at her desk until after six. When she arrived at the room she had now come to think of as home, Mollie was stirring a delicacy of her own invention over a gas plate by the window.

"You're late, Honey," she called cheerily. "How'd you like to chow inside to-night and save yourself another walk?"

Jean dropped on the edge of the bed wearily. "I'd welcome the opportunity," she replied, "I'm tired."

"Oh, say!" Mollie suddenly left her pot and swept to the table. "Here's a letter with a home-town postmark. Somebody's boy friend is still on the line."

It was a letter from Phillip. Jean tore it open with nervous fingers. The very first sentence cried at her:

"A big surprise, Jean: I'm coming down to the big town to see how the great adventure is going."

CHAPTER ELEVEN

I'm going to see Phil long before Christmas. I'm thrilled, thrilled! A darling letter from him last night and he's really coming to New York! Sandy went to Boston yesterday afternoon, to be gone for a week or more I almost lost my courage when he told me. It's hard enough to be here sometime even when I know he's near enough to see and talk to. Boston is so far away. I don't know why, but I feel absolutely helpless without Sandy. It's going to be a long, long week, I'm afraid . . . Is it possible to be in love with someone, and not realize it? Lionel wanted to bring me home in a taxi last night, but I refused. I wanted to be alone. Sandy's going had upset me a little, I suspect. I keep asking myself if I could be in love with Sandy. But it isn't possible. I think of him more as a brother than a lover. Besides, there's Marcia, Lionel says Marcia has Sandy wrapped around her little finger. There was no evidence of it when he ran her private detective out of the office, however, Sandy was angry. I think he could have thrown the detective out bodily, if he hadn't run out. Lionel grew really serious once yesterday. We were having lunch on some hotel roof. He held my hand right in front of everyone and said he thought the ideal love begins before the man and woman concerned are born. I couldn't follow his reasoning very well, but he was very romantic. If it weren't for Phil, I think I'll get Lionel and Phil together when Phil comes to New York and compare them. But I suppose that would hardly be fair to either of them. Mollies worries me a little. She has never told me why she left her husband, nor where he is, nor what she expects to do about him. I think she would be a lot happier if she would find him and live with him.

Jean was a good deal more worried about Mollie than she liked to admit. She felt very close to Mollie, and she couldn't overcome her suspicion that Mollie had probably been responsible for the melodramatic crisis that had caused her to leave her husband so soon after they were married.

Mollie, always cheerful, seemed a shade less so this morning, Jean thought. She was dressing. Suddenly Jean rolled out on the opposite side of the bed and began to remove her pajamas.

"Well, for the love of Mike!" Mollie exclaimed. "You don't mean to say we're going to have breakfast together? What's wrong, Jean?"

"Not a thing," Jean told her. "I'm just less lazy this morning than usual."

"How's the tailor-made baby contest coming on, Honey?" Mollie laughed quietly. "Converted any prospective mothers yet?"

Jean thought it best to laugh with her and let it go at that.

But Mollie was not so easily discouraged. "The more I think about the fellow that thought that idea up, the more I'm in favor of gassing every man after he passes his fortieth birthday. He wants to encourage motherhood! Of all the idiots! That's the trouble with the world to-day, Jean."

Jean, wiggling into her frock, looked across at her friend, plainly puzzled. "I . . . I don't understand. What is the trouble with the world to-day?"

"There are too many men encouraging motherhood," said Mollie.

Jean said uncertainly: "I'm afraid I still don't understand."

"Never mind, Honey," Mollie grinned. "You'll grow up and be a big girl one of these days, and then you'll know what it's all about. What do you say, ready?"

"As soon as I've washed my face," Jean told her and grabbing a towel ran down the hall to the bathroom.

The knowledge that Sandy was not in and would not be in for days gave the office an echo, imaginary if not real. It seemed strangely empty without him, though Lionel was like a high school freshman and kept up a running conversation, that gave her little opportunity to think about Sandy or anything else.

Once he remarked upon Sandy's absence, and going to her desk, he said in a low voice: "He doesn't want you to be hanging around the office, you know. Not while he's away. He's a little nervous about Marcia, I suppose."

How much he knew about her connection with the Fargeson murder, she could only guess. She thought it best to assume that he knew nothing. "Lionel," she asked quietly, "do you think Sandy is really so much in love with Marcia?"

"Do I think?" Lionel said with noticeable emphasis on the last word. "Listen: Before she left this office on her first visit, I knew Sandy was licked. It was in his face. There she was coming to ask for what amounted to charity, and Sandy, the director of the I.P.P. and, well, about everything desirable in a young man, staring after her like she was a goddess."

Jean said, puzzled, "I'm not sure I follow you. She came to ask for charity?"

"It amounted to the same thing. Didn't he tell you how he met her?"

"No, I suppose I never gave him an opportunity to. Is it a secret?"

He shook his head laughing softly. "Lord, no. Everyone in the office knows the story. Marcia came in one morning wearing what I supposed was intended for one of those crazy costumes the nuts effect in the village. She told Sandy she was the daughter of a Colonel Somebody White of Virginia, deceased, and had run away from home to study art. She said she wanted to arrange a loan to cover her expenses while she was studying. You ought to have seen the pictures she brought in. They are great, though personally I doubt if she painted them. Anyway, she said she had been living in the village for a few months, was out of money, and would the I.P.P. finance her career with the understanding that she would pay it back from her first commissions."

Jean asked: "Does the I.PP.. lend money to people like that?"

"We might, but we never have. But she had Sandy tied in a knot. She's a handsome woman, you know, and the way she uses those eyes . . . So Sandy bit. He took it right out of the hands of the I.P.P. and made it personal. He advanced her Lord knows how much, rented that apartment where Fargeson was killed and made life pretty nice for her. And is she crazy about him? That's the reason Sandy doesn't want you to hang around the office while he's away. She probably has a mean temper and I gathered the other day that she didn't have any great love for you. She thinks you're trying to take Sandy away from her, I suppose."

So, Jean thought, Lionel didn't know the truth. But she decided that she would take her work home that afternoon and be in the office as little as possible until Sandy returned.

The morning mail brought a letter that interested the entire office. One of the several girls working on the mail incident to the Miniature Baby Plan came across a letter instead of the usual card. She carried it to Jean.

Jean read it and called Lionel to her desk. "We're beginning to get down under the surface now, Lionel. This came in with the return cards. Listen: "Dear Santa Claus:

"I have the letter you wrote to Ellen about sending for a miniture baby for Christmas. Ellen is only five and not yet in school, so I must answer for her. She would very much like to have a miniature baby and will be most grateful to you. It seems almost too good to be true, and the reason I am writing this letter instead of filling in the card you sent is to make certain that there is no mistake. Ellen's father is dead. He was a bad man. Her mother is living but she is not a good woman, and has never let Ellen know she is her mother. I have had Ellen since she was two. Until her father was killed I used to get a check every week, but I haven't had any since. I am not a young woman any more and I have a hard time making enough to keep me and Ellen from going hungry.

"I'm telling you all this for just one reason; the doll you are going to send Ellen for Christmas will probably be all she'll get, with maybe a little candy I'll buy if I have the money. If you didn't send it after promising . . . . But I won't question it. You couldn't disappoint her after what I have told you.

"May God bless you for your kindness.

"(Miss) Mildred C. Wood."

Lionel expressed his feelings with a slow shaking of his head. "Gee!" he said after a moment. "That sort of thing makes you feel rotten, doesn't it? Here we are with plenty; and that woman and little girl not knowing whether they'll have enough to eat!" He gazed off toward the window thoughtfully; then shrugged his shoulders: "But there's nothing we can do about it, I suppose. There must be thousands more in the same predicament."

"Perhaps," Jean addmitted quietly. "But there is something we can doabout this case, and I mean to do it. I'm going out and see this Miss Wood and her Ellen, and I'm going now!"

When she had put on her hat and coat, Lionel walked with her to the elevator. 'Can I come over to see you for a little while to-night?" he asked her. "There will be crowds everywhere to-night, and I'd just like to sit down in some quiet corner and talk."

"We haven't any place to entertain," she told him quickly. "Unless you could shut your eyes to a double-bed and a good-looking roommate."

"I could shut my eyes to anything if I knew by opening them I could see you," said Lionel softly. "About eight?"

The door of the elevator suddenly opened and several persons crowded out, among them a thin little man in a black derby who seemed to Jean somehow familiar. But it was not until she was in the car and dropping rapidly that she knew that she had been within arm's reach of Slim Diggers.

She put a hand out to grasp the operator's arm and tell him to take her back, then decided against it.

Those in the elevator with her got out on the ground floor, but she told the operator she was going back up. The car filled slowly. She wondered if it would ever start up again. Then the door closed and they were shooting up.

She left the elevator at the fifth floor and ran to the door of the I.P.P. offices where guests were admitted.

What To-day Means To You

"SAGITTARIUS."

If December 9th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to :930 a.m. and from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 10:30 p.m. to midnight.

Destiny seems to be keeping out of your affairs on this date, as the stars do not give forth any worthwhile indications. It would be well to safeguard your interest, however, by remembering "It is the province of knowledge to speak, and the province of wisdom to listen."

Children born on this December 9th will have very sunny, happy dispositions, and they will extract a great deal of fun out of the world. They will be driven on, by an ambition to make something of themselves, to big achievements.

You do not have an easy or definite nature, and your reactions can never be taken for granted. Your manner is usually gentle, and your most vehement opinions are spoken in a leisured tone, and your humorous comments made without a smile. People have to pick their way through a tangle of implications and reserves, to feel their way in order to find the real you. You are not free from moods, and are often found low in your mind. You are very sensitive, although you try to conceal this weakness, and quickly wilt in an unhealthy, inharmonious atmosphere. You are thought by many, on account of your superior manner, to be a snob. Your actions may so indicate, but your heart is far from that of a snob's, and you are very kindly disposed toward one and all. You are far from an egoist. You would like to more easily make friends, and you dislike being misunderstood.

You are constituted more for intellectual than romantic satisfaction. You do not easily lose your head, and Cupid will have hard work to pierce your heart. You will have many acquaintances, but few intimates. You will live somewhat alone, and aloof from the rest of the world. 'You will come to the front, more or less, in a material way. Your spiritual development will be pronounced.

RE GARBAGE CONTRACT

Dear Mr. Editor,—I was very much pleased to read your article in the paper regarding the above and I have yet to understand the attitude of the Council in not retaining the late garbage contractors.

As one who attended the Council meeting and heard them praise the services that Mr. Whithers had rendered the City and no complaints, one has to wonder why his services were not recognized and to quote the words of Alderman Phelan, when there were no other tenders, Mr. Whithers said name your own price. For two years I understand such was the case. Alderman McIntyre was right when he moved an amendment to the Property Committee's report that as they overlooked the good services of the present contractor (and he spoke well of them) that the lowest tender be accepted, which was carried. The whole trouble seemed to have been over a few hundred dollars which I consider in my estimation the Council should have overlooked and I fail to see by their attitude where the ratepayers will have their garbage taxes reduced.

It was mentioned that Mr. Withhers was a returned man—one who had given his services to his country and I know he received decorations for bravery on the field. I thought it was up to Alderman McNabb to support him. I know Alderman McNabb's intentions were well meant and that the difference in price was the stumbling block and sympathised with Mr. Whithers as he (Alderman McNabb) was a returned man himself. That is all right, but it is not sympathy the returned man wants, it's action.

Alderman Tuggey was right when he moved for a three year contract. It gives all concerned a chance to recover some of the outlay that these contractors have invested. I am sorry, Alderman Tuggey, that the by-law was against you.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space in your valuable paper, I am sir,

For Service.

NORTH MONAGHAN RELIEF

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I was much interested in your report of the special meeting of the Council of North Monaghan and also your editorial criticism of that report.

Are the worthy Reeve and Councillors telling those workers and their families who live in the Township to starve rather than ask for relief or work, because that appears to be the intentions.

There are some people who are in need of relief every winter, not necessarily because they are lazy, but mainly because their particular vocation cannot be carried on in the winter and the wages when they are working are only enough to keep body and soul together. But conditions are, as you say, very different this winter and there are a large number out of work and in need of help, who have never been in such a position before.

They may possibly have been careless when they were working and wasted money by buying a radio or other luxury (and which the council now wants them to give away if they want relief, as is would be almost impossible to sell it) and then again, it is more than likely they have stinted themselves of something else to pay for that radio (almost a necessity now) as the wage of the worker generally does not allow of a very large surplus to be packed away in sugar barrels for a rainy day, after buying the necessities of life for a family. Their regulations in regard to cars and liquor permits are O.K. unless the latter is for medical purposes by doctor's orders, but it is an act of cruelty to suggest that the Relief Officer should be sent to look through the home of any sensitive person. Generally a few inquiries will easily supply the information as to whether help is needed or or not. Under such conditions they would not be seeking relief until starved to it and I don't think that that was the Government's intention when advancing money to help pay for relief work to be started. I believe rather similar conditions were passed in the winter of 1914-15 when the present Reeve was in office and cutting trees into cordwood at $1 or $1.50 a cord was the relief work I think it was the former price and one gang that tried it could not make enough on that occasion to pay for the food they took with them, and one could not expect much else from "green" hands who were more used to working inside.

I hear that one man last week made 75 cents for a day's work by cutting half a cord of wood. Of course, farmers are in rather a different position. In spite of low prices, they are almost certain of food and fuel—they eat at the first table, but the city worker has to buy everything.

It would be a good idea to get a few city workers who live in the Township into the Township Council next year and then perhaps a little more humanity would be shown.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

Yours truly,

Disgusted Resident.

LEAVES FOR SOVIET RUSSIA

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 9. — Charles Trumper, formerly a prominent resident of this city, sails from New York Thursday with twenty mechanics, for the Soviet Republic. He has been appointed to supervise the construction of a large steel rolling plant. He expects the structure will take five years to complete. The Soviet will pay Trumper an annual salary of $18,000.

Thirty kinds of fish valued at more than $150 were displayed in the aisle of St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, the one-thousand-year-old church at Billingsgate, England, at the recent annual fish festival.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE T O THE EXAMINER

The British American Oil Co., Limited, has declared the regular dividend of 20 cents per share for the last quarter of the present year. It will be remembered that the company split its stock for two one and increased the dividend from $1 to $1.60 on the old basis during the presen year. The Oklahoma producing oil properties of British American Oil gave great promise for 1931.

Shareholders of the Canadian Bank of Commerce are notified that the annual general meeting of the institution will be held at 12 noon, Tuesday, January 13, 1931. Of particular interest to the stockholders is the announcement that the meeting this year is to be held in the new banking premises at 25 King Street West. This building has been in the course of construction for almost two years and is one of the most moder and up to date banking premises on the continent. It is fitting that shareholders will be among the first to see the building in operation and this fact alone should result in an unusually large gathering. Other points of interest to develop from this meeting will be the remarks of the executive heads on conditions the world over and particularly in the Dominion. The past year has been one of trying conditions and the impressions of the executives of the Canadian banking institutions are receiving wide publicity, not only in the dominion but abroad as well

Although it has been a rather lean year for brokerage organizations with the volume of trading down substantially from the two preceding years and revenue produced from commissions reduced materially Toronto brokers have under consideration the payment of the usual Christmas bonus to their staffs. In 1928 and 1929 such payments were unusually large, but it is not to be expected they will reach the same proportions this year. In the two years immediately preceding the clerical staffs were called on to spend many nights at the office, in fact it was necessary at times to declare holidays on the exchanges to permit the employees to catch up with their work and in recognition of this Christmas bonuses was on an increasingly large scale. The current year has been one of greatly lessened activity and consequent reduction in the amount of work. However, present indications are that Santa Claus will not fail in his customary visit and most employees in the financial district will not find their stockings empty on Christmas eve.

Early trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day was colorless and featureless. But at that it was no different from preceding days. In spots there was pressure against a few securities and selling was said to have originated in Montreal. Overnight news brought little of a constructive nature to hasten the return of the public. Service Stations declared the regular dividend only as did British American Oil and there was the regular gossip of mergers, deals pending, etc., for which no official confirmation was to be had and officials of most companies concerned were prompt in their denials. With the arrival of the festive season the public has other matters to think of and this is deflecting from the interest in the stock market. Investment demand created by the extraordinary large dividend distributions by Canadian companies over the month end has been satisfied and the market has again fallen back on the ordinary orders for buying and selling placed for execution. Toward the closing days of 1930, Canadian corporations will again make heavy dividend payments, augmented by the addition of bonus and extra disbursements that will find another increased demand for investment securities, but in the meantime the market is moving back and forth with nothing to propel it very far in either direction.

ACME GAS LIQUIDATION HOLDS UP HIGHER TRADE MOVEMENT

Completion of Nordon Well in Button Willow Field is Expected Soon.

COPPER REVIEW.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 9. (Special to Examiner.)—Strength in Nordon and Acme Gas gave the oil section improved appearance to-day but balance of the mining list continued dull and irregular. The Nordon situation in the Button Willow Field, California, has been at an interesting stage for some time and completion of the well is expected in the near future. Liquidation of some large blocks of Acme Gas has had a depressing influence on the price of that stock holding up the movement that would naturally have attended the bringing in of the Oklahoma well.

More complete assays from samples taken from the Beatty property in Duparquest show that instead of the average being around $2, per ton in gold in a deposit 50 feet in width and of important length, indicated values are now between $3.50 and $4 per ton over a width of 60 feet and over a length of several hundred feet. Certain sections carry $6 and $7 per ton across big width Arrangements are being made for diamond drilling.

Commenting on the world copper situation, A. J. Sharp, London authority, says: "Most copper producers enjoy a Sundry revenue from the sale of other metals and products recovered. CCerro De Pasco, for example, derived more than half its revenue last year from silver, lead and zinc and if the profits from these metals were to be credited entirely to copper, this Peruvian company would be the world's cheapest copper producer. Similarly International Nickel to-day is producing copper in a large way from its frood mine, which besides being abnormally high in copper is also rich in nickel and precious metal content When the next trade cycle permits nickel's plant being operated at full capacity it is quite probable this Canadian undertaking may become the world's lowest cost copper producer."

Castle Trethewy is reported to be still meeting with considerable success in the development of capitol ground. Shorts shoots of ore are being opened up which enable the company to continue producing at a small profit. As yet there has been no great length of ore developed, but chances are considered to be good.

Castle is understood to be arranging for exploration of its recently acquired gold properties in Tyrrell and Knight township west of Gowganda. Important results are anticipated and provided preliminary work proves anticipated conditions, the company is amply financed to bring the property into production.

The grade of ore being treated at Howey Gold is said to be improving. This being accomplished through more selective mining as well as through sorting out as much waste as possible from the flow to the mill. The indications are that production for December will reflect this method by a distinct improvement in the amount of gold recovered.

TORONTO CURB LISTS FALL OFF

Although Several of the Leaders Strengthen Toward Midday Trading.

MASSEY-HARRIS DOWN.

TORONTO, Dec. 9. (CP)—Bulk of operations on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning were on the side of the decline and the reaction of yesterday afternoon carried over the first couple of hours. Volume tended to fall off and sales this morning were under those for the similar period yesterday. Towards midday leaders steadied and several improved slightly from their lows of the morning.

Pressure was directed mainly against Massey-Harris and Brazilian, on selling which was said to have originated in Montreal. Massey-Harris dipped under 12 to make A new low and Brazilian sold off practically and below 24.

International Nickel opened slightly lower, eased slowly then recovered to 17½ where it steadied. Noranda was unchanged from last night.

Oils were lightly traded and unchanged to only a small fraction off. C.P.R. sold unchanged at 41.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM JOHN COOPER

The death occurred here this morning of William John Cooper, after an illness of only a few minutes, at his home, 507 Harvey street. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cooper, he was born in Douro Township on March 31, 1865. The late Mr. Cooper lived in Warsaw until three years ago when he came to this city. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, a daughter, Elsie; two brothers, Thomas and Albert, living in Warsaw; four sisters, Mrs. T. Chatten, Mary, Edith and Alice Cooper of this city. One son, Percy Thomas, was killed in action at Vimy Ridge on April 9, 1916.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at 1 p.m. from his late residence, and thence to Warsaw, where interment will be made.

ASSAILANT TAKES POISON

CALCUTTA, Bengal, Dec. 9—Police to-day revealed that only one of the three assassins who yesterday shot and killed Lieutenant Colonel Normal Slimmer Simpson, Director-General of Bengal Prisons, succeeded in taking his life. He, they said, took poison and died soon after arrest.

The other two shot themselves but still are alive although one, named Banoy Rose, and who claims to have killed Police Inspector Lowman last August, is believed dying.

EARLY DECLINES ARE REDUCED ON NEW YORK MART

Several Prominent Issues Sell Up One and Two Points in Later Trading.

ENCOURAGING REPORT.

Industrial Stocks Declining to Follow Rail Lead Receives Strong Support.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(C.P.)—The stock market dropped anchol to-day after drifting quietly lower for five sessions

There was further selling during the morning, depressing some of the rails and specialties to new lows, but the industrial shares, which have resisted selling pressure of late, soon began to work higher. Early declines of 1 to 3 points were reduced, and several prominent issues sold up a point or two.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Consolidated Gas, Atchison, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Woolworth, American Telephone and Goodyear gained about a point and shares advancing 2 points or so included American Can, ears Roebuck and Allied Chemical. During the early selling, Western Union, Lackawanna, Missouri Preferred, Amereican and Foreign Power, International Telephone, and Case all slipped 2 to 3 points to new minimum levels. New York Central, Atchison and Baltimore and Ohio, also recorded new bottom prices before turning upward.

Encouraging Move

The strong support accorded the industrial shares as their general level approached the year's low point recorded on Nov. 10, was regarded as distinctly encouraging.

The rails as measured by the price index of 20 issues, broke through their November bottom yesterday and recorded the lowest level since May, 1926. Had the industrials also been permitted to break into new low territory, it would, according to the Dow theory, have confirmed the decline in the rails, and dicated a further downward movement.

Strength of the steel shares was presumably a reflection of forecasts that United States Steel's unfilled orders, to be announced tomorrow, will show a fair gain.

Credit conditions were virtually unchanged. Call loans held steady at 2 per cent, although early in the day there were limited outside offerings at 1½ per cent.

The weekly condition statement of reporting member banks provided a possible clue to some of the recent heaviness of bonds. There was a slight increase in the holdings of Government securities, but other securities held decreased $55,000,000. All other, or commercial loans, declined $19,000,000, while loans against securities increased $8,000,000.

NO BUTTER SENT PENDING PARLEY

Australian Official Assures Hon. H. H. Stevens of Govt's Attitude.

WAITING ON MOLONEY.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 9. (C.P.)—Assurance has been given Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce that Australia will not authorize any further shipments of butter to Canada pending the conference with Hon. Parker Moloney here next week. The following statement was issued to-day from Mr. Steven's office:—

"The Minister of Trade and Commerce is in receipt of a cablegram from Melbourne from F. M. Forde, acting Minister of Markets for Australia, stating: 'No further shipments of butter will be authorized pending conclusion of conference with Honourable Parker Moloney, Australian Minister of Markets, next week'."

"From this it will be seen that the Australian Government is co-operating with the Canadian Government in this matter, and it is hoped that at the conclusion of the conference with Mr. Maloney, a satisfactory adjustment of the whole question will have been achieved."

OIL ISSUES ONLY ACTIVE MINE STOCKS

Practically All Movements Take Downward Direction on Standard To-day.

ACME GAS IMPROVES.

Gold Section Quiet, Vipond and Kirkland Lake Firm a Point Each.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 9. (CP)—Though the oil section showed a few strong spots the mining list was soft in the forenoon session to-day, practically all movements taking the downward direction.

Acme Gas was in improved demand from the opening and displayed a gain of 4 at 31 at midday. Nordon recovered to sell above 60 for a time but reacted to 58, up 4 from last night, when taken. Ajax Oil regained a couple to $1.45. Home Oil established a new low for the year, selling down 5 at $1.88, and International Pete and Calmont were easier.

Noranda was holding at $14, but Nickel and Hudson Bay dropped 20 each to $17.50 and $4.45, respectively. White Lake was under pressure, price falling 5 to 21.

Golds were quiet, Vipond, Kirkland Lake gold firmed a point each and Hollinger sold up 10 at $6.35. Dome, which has been under accumulation of late, weakened 15 to $8.50, Mining Copr. was off 10 to $1.50 and Nipissing dropped 5 to $1.25.

FIRST (ST. JOHN'S) TROOP

The usual signal to form "horseshoe" given by the A.S.M. and the "flag break" under the Scoutmaster, brought the weekly meeting of the First (St. John's) Peterborough Troop to order last Friday. The inspection which followed showed that nineteen boys were present.

After about a half hour in patrol corners, the boys were called out for an investiture at which Arthur Barnes and Fred Simmons were made members of the world brotherhood of Boy Scouts. At the time of the investiture the Troop Chaplain, Dr. Blagrave, visited the troop and spoke briefly to the boys after the ceremony.

The game of "Poison Well" which followed concluded with P.L. Victor Millard and Scout Reg. Perks as victors.

Camp-fire and the usual closing followed.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The wheat market was rather heavy again yesterday with prices declining about one cent under the close Saturday. The Chicago May price was practically pegged at 81 cents with the Farm Board agency still buying at this price but not higher. On the extreme dip in this market, wWinnipeg May was 18 5-8 cents under Chicago May, a discount that has never been witnessed before. However, there was some good buying against daily bids, while New York interests were buying on the break, and during the latter part of the day. Spreads were unchanged to ¼ off. The only inquiry of any account is mostly from terminals for some tough grades to even up. The export business over the week end was very small. The Canadian Visible wheat supply increased 25,192,000 bushels which was a great surprise, but it was understood that supplies on the Lakes were into the visible for the first time. The U.S. Visible decreased 4,321,000 bushels. A pleasing event took place in the local pit this morning when Herman Trelle, of Alberta who was returning from Chicago where he won the distinguished honor of World's Champion Wheat Grower, was presented with a purse of gold from the Members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in honor of his great achievements.

Coarse Grains—These markets were quiet but after early weakness recovered largely in sympathy with the late advance in wheat. Flax was inclined to be heavy, closing 1¼ to ½ off, there was only a small trade passing.

THIRD SHOOTING NEAR LINDSAY

Henry Cathcart of Dalton Township Dies From Accidental Shot.

SON CARRYING RIFLE.

(Special to The Examiner)

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 9. — Henry Cathcart, well-known farmer of Dalton township aged 58 years was accidentally shot by his son Austin Cathcart, aged 17 years, while out shooting fox this morning, the son was walking six or eight feet ahead of the father, when the trigger is supposed to have been brushed by thick underbrush, as the two men were walking and the explosion followed. Cathcart was struck in the left breast just above the heart and died instantly. This makes the third accidental shooting fatality in four days in the county of Haliburton. Lloyd Smith, aged 10 years was killed at Haliburton by his chum Vernon Parish and Edith Birmingham aged 19 years was killed by younger brother at their home at Miner's Bay. Cathcart who lived on concession 2 in Dalton township, 3 miles northwest of Uphill at what is known as Northstar and three sons were out hunting fox.

Two sons had returned to the house. Austin was tramping through in the lead. He caims that the 303 Savage hammerless rifle which he was carrying had the safety catch on, and that a twig of a tree must have caught the safety catch.

It is believed however that the safety catch was not on the rifle. Provincial Officer Joe Nelson, Dr. F. A. Logan of Lindsay and Reeve Herb. McCaughey of Uphill had a hard tramp into the bush to view the body before it was removed. They had to blaze a trail for 3 miles and carry the body out on a blanket, as the bush was too thick for horses to walk through. An inquest was decided unnecessary.

OAKLAND REMBERS AUSTRALIAN FLIER.

It was at Oakland that the famous aviator began his circum-navigation of the globe and tras-Pacific flights, and ended the flight around the world after crossing the Atlantic.

MINER RETURNS WITH FORTUNE BUT GIRL GONE

Prospector Only Knows Sweetheart's First Name—House Torn Down.

SOLD CLAIM FOR $75,000.

Follows Clue From Montreal to Buffalo to Share His Good Luck.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 9. — Jan Stanishevsky, Polish prospetcor and lumber jack who recently "struck it rich" in the north, nad sold his claim for $75,000, hurried to Montreal to lay his fortune at the feet of Janetska, a young girl of his race, mistress of a local boarding house, who had befriended and aided him ever since he came to Canada ten years ago. But during Jan's last stay in the north woods the demolition work in connection with the Canadian National Railways terminal scheme had transformed the district in which Janetska lived into a vast, yawning excavation. Stanishevsky did not know Janetska's full name, nor the name or number of the street, always finding it on his trips to Montreal by woodsman's instinct of direction and location.

After enlisting the services of a noted detective agency, Jan sadly turned toward Buffalo, N.Y., following up for himself a slender clue he had picked up among acquaintances here.

Janetska, now about 36, had befriended her fellow countryman when he came to Canada ten years ago, penniless and ignorant of the English language. She had been his adviser and banker and he had always sought her boarding house on his occasional visits to the city. When good fortune came his way he immediately thought of Janetska and hurried to her. He will spend it all if necessary to find her.

BAVARIAN POLICE REVEAL ARSENAL

Twenty-four Members of Communist Anti-Fascist League Are Arrested.

CIVIL WAR PLANNED.

PIRMASENS, Bavaria, Dec. 9. — Police announced discovery to-day of an alleged Communist arsenal containing a dozen bombs made from large sized hand grenades, and explosives for the manufacture of more bombs.

Twenty-four members of a Communist anti-Fascist League have been arrested in connection with the discovery, some of those arrested allegedly having confessed that the bombs were to be used in a civil war aimed particularly at suppression of the Fascists.

The discovery was one result of a nation-wide search for anti-government plotters, a number of whom have been arrested in the past several days. In the tunnel uncovered today were rounds of machine gun ammunition, a number of light mortars and a stock of gas and tear bombs.

Several arrests were made, among them Lieut. Manuel Correia, accused as one of the leaders of an elaborate movement to overthrow the Government.

As a result of to-day's raid police have called upon all citizens to disclose hiding places of weapons as a measure of safety.

Oxford and Cambridge Battle To 3-All Tie

TWICKENHAM, Eng., Dec. 9. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—Oxford and Cambridge Universities played a tied game, three points all, in their annual Rugby fixture here to-day. The match was witnessed by 40,000 and was played on ground heavy after a night's rain. The sun broke up a mist which overhung the grounds at the beginning of the game and after that fine weather prevailed. Cambridge scored their three points in the first halp, but Oxford finished strongly to square the match.

The complete standing in the series now is: Oxford, won 241, Cambridge, won 20, drawn, 10.

PUBLIC FAVORS JAIL SENTENCES FOR 8 ENGINEERS

Action Comes After Repentance —Confessions Crushed Organization.

GIVEN 10 YEARS IN PRISON.

Press Comments Claim Poincare and Churchill Lost Wits When Faced With Facts.

MOSCOW, Dec. 9.—The Russian public, which only a few days ago howled for the death of the eight engineers convicted of treason, today apparently approved the action of the Central Executive Committee in commuting sentences of those doomed to die to ten years' imprisonment.

Organization Crushed

Isvestin, organ of the Central Executive Committee, declared: "By confessing and repenting leaders of the Industrial Party disarmed their organization, which is crushed fully and completely. Therefore the Central Executive Committee has found it possible to commute the death sentences to imprisonment.

"Such sentences by the Supreme Workers' and Peasants' Government once more shows the economic and political power of the Soviet Union. Such sentences would not be possible in a capitalistic country."

Pravda, commenting, said that in view of the crimes of the engineers the Supreme Court could not approve any other sentence than that of death. However, "The Central Executive Committee considering their sincere repentance, found it possible to soften their sentence to imprisonment." The paper contended: "The sentence politically shoots the servants and masters—the interventionists who plotted to break the proletarian commune. But proletarian justice does not seek vengeance. The Central Committee has granted their lives, which once more shows how strong and firm is the dictatorship of the proletariat, and how great are the achievements of Socialistic construction."

Press Raps Poincare

Isvestia, commenting upon attempts of foreign "Bourgeois" newspapers to picture the recent trial, as an artful frameup of the Ogpu, secret police, declares that these attempts failed completely and: "The denials of Poincare and Churchill only show that they lost their wits when faced with the crushing facts and proves that they have been caught with the goods."

For some unaccountable reason most of Moscow's newspapers were extremely late in getting on the street to-day, Pravda and Isvestia appearing only after 10 a.m. The speedy action of the Central Executive Committee came somewhat as a surprise to many people since decisions on pleas of clemency usually require several days' deliberation after sentence.

The trial itself, besides being considered as most valuable propaganda to incite the public to renewed enthusiasm for fulfillment of the five year plan, also, Communist circles hope, has dealt a severe blow to the right wing opposition of the Communist party.

Numerous Lessons

Newspapers see numerous "lessons" in the trial, such as the danger of foreign invasion and the necessity for continuance, as Izvestia says, "of battling against political neutrality among the intelligenzia."

Izvestia declares that there can be no middle class in the future for the intelligenzia of Russia. "All the convicted engineers were classed by the Russians as intelligenzia.

ABITIBI INCIDENT NOT CONFIRMED

Reported U. S. Miners Called in When Canadians Refuse to Work.

NO REASONS GIVEN.

TORONTO, Ont., December 9 (C.P.) — No confirmation could be secured here of a report from Cochrane last night that Canadian miners had declined to work in a tunnel at the Abitibi Canyon, near the Northern Ontario town.

Officials of the Ontario Department of Mines, Department of Labor, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, and the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, all declared the report was the first they had heard of the refusal of Canadians to work in the tunnel.

J. H. Black, vice-president of the Abitibi Company, and who has charge of power construction, stated he expected a full report of the affair today. He further declared that the Dominion Construction Company was building the tunnel

The Cochrane despatch, relating the death of John Wesley Scott, Jr., 18, when a rock fell from the roof of the tunnel, stated Scott and his father and uncle, A. Scott, arrived on the scene with a gang of miners from the United States after Canadian workmen from Nova Scotia and Kirkland Lake had refused to work. Why the Canadians had declined to work in the tunnel was not revealed this country's 70 broadcasting stations have only about 33,000 watts in all, while the American stations reaching Canada have 700 000 watts power. There are some sections of Canada which can not hear Canadian programmes, while the largest Canadian station can only afford two hours of national broadcast a week. The League deplores the domination of Canadian stations by American advertising programmes and the lack of attention given by Canadian stations to educational work, a condition created, the memorandum asserts, by "the necessity of radio stations using as much of their time as possible for advertising."

Ensure Canadian Programs

A national broadcasting system would ensure, according to the Canadian Radio League, that every Canadian could hear Canadian programs but not the exclusion of other broadcasts. It would also make possible, the memorandum says, the development of Canadian orchestras, Canadian choirs, radio drama and entertainers. The League endorses the recommendations of the Air report.

The National Council of the League is comprised of a large number of prominent Canadian public men and women, representative of both English and French speaking Canadians.

CAVAN SOCIETIES HOLD JOINT MEET

Mrs. R. Matchett New President of W. M. S.—W. A. Officers Re-elected.

CAVAN, December 9 (Examiner Correspondence) — A joint meeting of Cavan W.M.S. and W.A. was held in the church on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Witham in charge of the devotional period. Mrs. R. S. Staples read the Scriptural lesson, which consisted of a number of verses bearing on several characteristics or marks of a Christian. The officers and convenors of committees gave their annual reports. The treasurer, Mrs. James Douglas, reported $227 in the treasury. Two hundred dollars was voted to the Board of Managers of the church. The roll-call was answered by a Scripture verse beginning with the letter D. The pastor dismissed the meeting with prayer, after which he took charge of the election of officers. Last year's W.A. officers were re-elected, and include: President, Mrs. D. J. Hunter; vice-president, Mrs. Kennedy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. W. Perrin; recording secretary, Mrs. R. Syer; financial secretary, Mrs. Snider; treasurer, Mrs. James Douglas; organist, Miss Tinney; devotional committee, Mrs. Witham, Mrs. Swain, and Mrs. R. S. Staples; parsonage committee, Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. F. M. Staples; visiting committee, Mrs. I. Keegan, Mrs. F. M. Staples, and Mrs. William Tinney.

W.M.S. Elects Officers

After the adjournment of the W. A. Mr. Whitham conducted the W. M. S. election of officers. Motions were sponsored and passed re-electing the officers for another year: Hon. president, Mrs. J. E. Whitham; president, Mrs. R. Matchett; vice-president, Mrs. J. H. Snider; recording secretary, Mrs. F. M. Staples; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. W. Perrin; treasurer Mrs. Whitham; organist Miss Tinney; assistant organist, Mrs. Kennedy; press secretary, Mrs. F. M. Staples; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. W. Perrin; treasurer, Mrs. Whitham; organist, Miss Tinney; assistant, Mrs. Kenndy; press secretary, Mrs. F. M. Staples; strangers' secretary, Mrs. I. Keegan; assistant, Mrs. Ray Syer; superintendent of Christian stewardship, Mrs. J. H. Snider.

Watch Tower Heralds—Mrs. R. S. Staples, peace; Mrs. D. J. Hunter, China; Mrs. M. G. Matchett and Mrs. Ray Syer, India; Mrs. Kennedy, strangers at home; Mrs. Rowen, Japan; Mrs. Perrin, temperance; Miss F. Hunter, Canadian work; Mrs. Swain, Africa.

The president, Mrs. R. Matchett took the chair for the remainder of the meeting. Mrs. Staples and Mrs. Kennedy sang a solo, "Holly Night, Silent Night."

There was discussion concerning the duties of the strangers' secretary. An associate helper secretary was appointed. Mrs. Whitehouse, with Mrs. D. J. Hunter to assist. The roll call topic for the next meeting will be "Happy" and Mrs. Ray Syer was requested to prepare the first two divisions of the study book "Fruits of Christian Missions in Japan" and Mrs. Snider the last two parts of the chapter.

It was decided to drop the usual lunch for the winter months, and each month contribute the amount saved, to a charitable fund, to assist in relief work.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER and POWER COMPANY

Owned, including subsidiaries, by 79,000 shareholders in Canada, Great Britain and the United States. The Company's securities are listed and traded in on the Montreal and New York Stock Exchanges.

More than one-fourth of all hydro-electric horsepower installed in the Dominion of Canada during the past five years has been built by International Paper and Power Company.

International's programme is one of new development—the construction of dams, power houses, storage reservoirs and transmission lines — transforming idle rivers into producers of useful energy.

Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation Limited now comprises eighteen plants with a total designed capacity of 809,319 horsepower. Of this total, 565,459 horsepower has been built in the past five years, and an additional 54,000 horsepower is nearing completion.

Every horsepower now developed under International's construction programme was sold before completion of the projects. Purchasers, all under long-term contracts, include the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, the Ottawa Electric Company and such important industrial consumers as E. B. Eddy Company Limited, Canada Cement Company Limited, Hull Iron & Steel Foundries Limited, Dominion Rubber Company Limited, Fraser Companies Limited, Canadian International Paper Company and New Brunswick International Paper Company.

Canada's wealth has been increased by more than $100,000,000 through International's power development programme, this amount representing the physical value of the construction initiated and completed during the five years. In addition, there have been indirect benefits, amounting to many more millions of dollars, and affecting practically every industry in the Dominion, through purchases of supplies and materials, the employment afforded and buying power created in carrying out this programme.

What International Paper and Power Company is, who owns it, what are its policies and where and of what nature its undertakings, is being told in a series of advertisements, of which this is the sixth.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 9. — Eggs and cheese were lower and butter higher, while potatoes were unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Car-lot prices of fresh British Columbia eggs were 1c to 2c a dozen lower. Extras and firsts declined 2c at 58c and 52c a dozen respectively. Pullets lost 1c at 46c a dozen. To retailers fresh pullet extras were 2c lower, being quoted at 50c to 52c a dozen. Receipts were 814 cases.

Prices on the cheese market were ¼c lower, Ontario being quoted at 11¾c to 12c and Quebec at 11¼c to 11½c a pound. Receipts were 70 boxes.

Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter, regraded, grass make, gained ¼c, selling at 29c to 29¼c a pound. To retailers, solids were 32c and prints 33c a pound, both being unchanged. Receipts totalled 77 boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountains were unchanged at 90c to 95c per 80-lb. bag on the potato market.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 9—The local butter market continued to show signs of dragginess yesterday and if there was any change in trading it was for the worse. Buyers were few and these were after small lots at the lowest possible price. Most traders seemed to be holding off, as usual, and waiting for a turn in events at Ottawa. The asking price for No. 1 was 29½c and for No. 2, 28½c, but some sales were made as low as 29c and 28c for No. 1 and 2, respectively.

Cream

Cream prices were unchanged at 31c for special, 30c for No. 1, and 27c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

Cheese held steady at 13c to 13½c for new large; 13½c to 13¾c for twins, and 13¾ to 14c for triplets, to the shipper, and at 16½c for new large, 16¾c for twins, and 17c for triplets, to the retailer.

Eggs

Egg prices to the country shipper were lower, while quotations to retailers were steady, the reason being that dealers have supplies from British Columbia, purchased at high price, and have needed to continue to buy offerings from the coast to meet the demand.

Prices

For ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, shippers were quoted 50c to 52c for extras, 43c to 45c for firsts, 35c to 37c for pullet extras, and 28c to 29c for seconds. Retailers were offered extras in cartons at 60c to 62c, extras, loose, 58c to 60c, firsts, loose, 53c to 55c, and seconds loose, 33c to 35c.

The eggs market showed an easy tendency and brokers found fresh receipts difficult to move at 53c for extras, 45c to 47c for firsts, 40c for pullet extras, and 30c for seconds, graded and in free cases. British Columbia shipments were lower at 58c for extras, 55c for firsts, and 48c for seconds, and these prices, as stated before, were responsible for the quotations to retailers, being so much higher than those offered to country shippers. When local production picks up, the difference will not be so great.

Turkeys

The demand for turkeys has not struck its stride yet, but in about one week's time there will be more interest on the wholesalers' part. A carload of Western birds made the prices of 29c, 27c, 25c and 23c per pound recently, and many more cars are on their way from the West, and a few are awaiting purchases at Toronto. The demand has not been too keen, but it is a foregone conclusion that Western turkeys will be needed, and lots of them, to meet the requirements when the festive season draws closer. That these turkeys will make 30c per pound, for the best, is no idle thought, as we must have them.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 9. — Advances of ⅝ to ¾ cent over Saturday's figures were registered on the Winnipeg wheat market yesterday. Trading was inactive, and only the sudden demand for wheat near the close prevented the market closing lower.

Export trade overnight was small and interest in cash wheat and coarse grains was scarce. Cash wheat finished the day unchanged to ¼ cent down and coarse grains were fractionally lower.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, December 9.—Receipts at the Union Stock Yards yesterday were: 3,485 cattle, 342 calves, 560 hogs, 1,107 sheep and lambs.

The cattle supply was quite moderate at the opening of the yard yesterday morning but trade opened very slow, with packers showing little interest in the supply. Small butchers paid steady prices for a few lots of good to choice steers and heifers, these going at $7.00 to $7.50 a cwt. Store cattle were steady at $5.00 to $6.00 a cwt., according to quality. Up to eleven o'clock, sales on butcher cattle were too few to establish a definite market trend.

Calves opened steady at last week's decline with choice vealers selling at $11.50 to $12.00 a cwt, and with common grass calves at $4.50 to $5.50 a cwt. Hogs were strong at the opening with packers bidding $9.00 f.o.b. for bacon or $10.00 to $10.25 w.o.c. The differential for truck hogs was reduced to 50 cents a cwt., above the f.o.b. price Lamb trade was very slow up to 11 o'clock, with packers bidding $8.50 for good ewes and wethers. The supply was light, but the general opinion was that lambs would sell at packers' bids.

Sheep sold steady with last week's decline at a range of $1.50 to $4.50 according to quality.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Surprise that the corn visible supply should exhibit but 11,000 bushels increase for the week, led to a brisk late upturn yesterday. The smallness of increase was in sharp contrast with the fact that recent receipts here and at other primary markets had been much enlarged. Aggressive buying also was prompted by knowledge that the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, a Government sponsored agency, had purchased corn future deliveries.

Corn closed firm at nearly the day's top level, ¼c to 1c a bushel higher than Saturday, heat closed irregular, ½c off to ⅝c up, oats at ¼c decline to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise.

Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual sale of work and afternoon tea of the Church Guild of St. John's church was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday afternoon and the results showed a financial success and the social success was obvious to the observer. The guests, who naturally were largely of the fair sex, were received by Mrs. W. J. Creighton, who extended the official welcome.

The fancy work table, which represented the fruits of the past season's work was presided over by Mrs. Langley and Mrs. Todd, the president and treasurer of the guild.

Miss Annie Atwood had a table of dolls, all wearing seasonable knitted suits of various colors and also at the table were some doll's woolies which were the delight of the little girls.

The home cooking and candy were in charge of Mrs. Connell and Mrs. K. A. Mackenzie, who had a fine array of attractive wares.

Mrs. George Hutt sold tickets on a beautiful tray made and donated by Mrs. R. L. Mason, the tray was much admired and was won by Mrs. John Hendren, who held the lucky ticket.

The ladies in charge of the afternoon tea were Mrs. R. L. Mason, convenor, Mrs. Marling, Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. Dench and Mrs. Goldsmith and they spent a very busy time as the demand for tea was unusually large.

DRAGOONS HOLD DINNER MEETING IN ARMOURIES

Many Guests From Other Units Are Present at Banquet.

AMENDMENT TO MESS RULE.

The 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons held their quarterly meeting and dinner mess on Saturday evening. The rooms had been recently renovated and redecorated, and therefore the pleasing seating effect and table arrangement together with the striking dress uniforms of the officers, the red stripes of the infantry and the yellow of the cavalry, and the service khaki, resulted in a fine color combination.

Following the dinner at 7.30 in a toast to the King, Major C. H. Stuart requested that the meeting stand in silence for a moment in tribute to their fallen comrades.

Major M. R. Sloan proposed a toast to the guests which was responded to by Col. R. W. Courtney, Major Woods, Major J. A. Dewart and Captain Scott.

Col. Courtney who had journeyed from Ottawa to attend the dinner stated his pleasure at finding himself in such a happy gathering and spoke briefly of the progress of the three regiments in his command. He hopes to be able to attend future meetings.

Major Woods expressed briefly and humorously his appreciation of the courtesy of the Dragoons in inviting him.

He was immediately followed by Major Dewart who in expressing his personal appreciation made a strong plea for closer co-operation between the different Peterborough garrison units.

Captain Scott then thanked the officers of the unit for their courtesies to him expressed a desire as he was shortly moving to Peterborough, to be a frequent visitor to the mess.

A toast to the regiment was proposed by Lieut. Bruce Dawson of Millbrook and was responded to by Lieut. Col. Powell who had journeyed from Kingston and expressed his appreciation of the support given him by the officers of the unit. He made a plea for progress to be made for the 1931 encampment in Barriefield.

Capt. H. G. Mason read some messages of regret from men unable to attend the meeting. The matter of messing in the 1931 camp was discussed. A proposal had been made that the officers of the three units of the 2nd Brigade should form a Brigade mess. As some were opposed to the suggested arrangements, affairs were left in the hands of the 3rd Dragoons Mess Committee to correspond with other units and to report back.

O.C. Must Approve Commission

Major Sloan proposed an amendment to the mess regulations which was carried unanimously and which requires in future that officers desirous of taking a commission in the regiment must first be approved of by the Commanding Officer who appoints a committee of three officers —one from each headquarters and two from the squadron into which the proposed officer is expecting to go. This commission then investigates the case, reports back to a quarterly or special meeting of the mess, when a vote is taken to admit the officer he must have a clear two-thirds majority of officers present at the meeting.

The gathering adjourned to enable the visiting officers to be conducted through the armouries.

Many notables in the military sphere were present at the function. At the head table were: Lt. Col. H. W. Powell, Commander of the Dragoons; Col. R. W. Courtney, O.C. of 2nd Mounted Brigade, composed of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards of Ottawa, the 4th Hussars of Cornwall and Kingston, and the 3rd Dragoons Prince of Wales, Peterborough; Major J. A. Dewart, M.C., commander No. 3 Company 4th Machine Gun Battalion of Peterborough; Lt. Col. T. J. Johnston, a past Commanding Officer of the Dragoons who also commanded the Peterborough overseas Battalion (the 93rd) and the present of the Mess.

Others present at the banquet were Captain E. G. Johnston O.C.; Major Woods, ex-Imperial officer. Capt. Scott of the Haliburton Regiment, Capt. L. J. S Stewart, of the Durham Regiment. Those of the 3rd Dragoons present were: Lt. Col. T. D. Johnston, a former commander of Major C. H. Stuart, Major M. R. Sloan, Major F. G. Stinson, Capt. E. G. Johnston, Capt. H. G. Mason, Capt. L. CHURCH CHORISTERS PRESENT PROGRAM

Pleasing Concert Given at Warkworth Under Direction of Charles W. Walker.

WARKWORTH, Dec. 9 (Examiner Correspondence)—An excellent concert was given in the town hall here on Friday evening by the choir of the United Church in Norwood. This choir consists of forty voices and is under the direction of Charles H. Walker.

The first part of the program consisted of anthems, 'Hark Hark My Soul," "Fierce was the Wild Billows," "Saviour Thy Children Keep," and "Rejoice My Lord is King," interspersed by a male chorus, "My Anchor Holds," and a solo, "Mary" by Mrs. L. C. Gunstone, and a bass solo by W. J. Stares.

The second part was entitled, "Song of Thanksgiving," and was a delightful sacred cantata. The entire program was greatly appreciated and thoroughly enjoyed.

At the close of the program a dainty lunch was served to the guests.

SHEPARD TRIAL DRAWS BIG COURT

Army Doctor Testifies That Woman May Have Died From Alcoholic Poisoning.

MAJOR DYE TESTIFIES.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 9 (C.P.)—Major J. C. Dye, army medical officer, testified in federal court here yesterday at the murder trial of Major Charles A. Shepard, formerly of Belleville, Ont., that the condition of Mrs. Zenana Shepard's eyes prior to her death might have been caused by a slow-acting poison, or by the use of alcoholic beverages.

Called as a government witness, Major Dye, now stationed at Fort Warren, Wyo., said he had been summoned to attend Mrs. Shepard, May 21, 1929, the day after she was seized with an illness that proved fatal at Fort Riley, Kas. in June 1929.

Major Dye said he did not recall whether Major Shepard or Major Paul R. Hawley, formerly of Fort Riley, called him to Mrs. Shepard's bedside. Major Hawley also attended Mrs. Hawley.

Examination of Mrs. Shepard's eyes showed the retina enlarged, and this condition, Major Dye testified to direct questioning, could have resulted from absorption of the slow-acting poison which the prosecution alleges Shepard, a medical officer, administered to his wife in order that he might be free to wed Miss Grace Brandon, pretty young stenographer of San Antonio, Tex.

On cross-examination, Major Dye stated that the use of alcohol could have affected Mrs. Shepard's eyes. This was brought out to lend support to the defense assertion that Mrs. Shepard drank excessively and was morose.

Defence counsel also elicited from Major Dye's testimony to show that some of the medicine prescribed for Mrs. Shepard contained calome; which is related in chemical composition to the poison from which the government alleges Mrs. Shepard died.

The courtroom was crowded again to-day, with many young girls and women as spectators.

COOK BOOK PLANS ABANDONED BY W.I.

Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Shields Give Fine Reports of Toronto Convention.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Dec. 8. (Examiner Correspondence).—The December meeting of the Mount Pleasant Branch of East Durham Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ira Lowe on Wednesday afternoon, with an attendance of fourteen members and three visitors.

A number of practical Christmas suggestions were voiced and demonstrated in answer to the roll call, "Christmas suggestions".

It was decided to give up the idea of having a Women's Institute cook book, owing to the high cost of printing and difficulty in securing advertisements.

In answer to an appeal from the north country, the members were asked to bring their sewing equipment to the January meeting to sew in preparation for a bale of clothing to be made and packed ready to send to the north'

Mrs. Shield and Mrs. Rutherford were in charge of the program, which included a reading from Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Shield gave a very interesting report of the convention held in Toronto last week.

Mrs. W. H. Lowe and Mrs. Thos. Graham each gave splendid papers after which the hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. H. Lowes and Mrs. T. C. Morden served refreshments, while a social half hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Rutherford extended an invitation for the Institute to meet at her home in January.

W.M.S. SUMS UP ITS YEAR'S WORK

Fenella Ladies Re-elect Mrs. A. Hill President For Year 1931.

LEAFLETS READ.

FENELLA, Dec. 9. — (Examiner Correspondence)—The Fenella group of the Roseneath Circuit, W.M.S., met at the home of Mrs. Howard Macklin on Wednesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. A. Nill presiding. The scriptural lesson from Luke 2: 8-14 was read by Mrs. C. W. Macklin followed by prayer.

The secretary-treasurer reported twelve meetings held during the year with an attendance of two hundred and seventy. ten special musical selections were given, six missionary monthlies and one annual report were subscribed for.

The financial report showed total receipts of $101.50, with expenses of $1.50.

The president spoke briefly on the year's work and thanked the members for their loyal support. The election of officers followed: president, Mrs. A. Nill; vice-president, Mrs. S. Leach, secretary treasurer, Miss Florence Macklin, strangers' secretary, Mrs. John Herrington; mite box superintendent, Mrs. M. Adams; baby fund, Mrs. W. H. Sandercock; organist, Mrs. Frank Down, flower committee, Mrs. W. J. Jibb Mrs. C. W. Macklin, Mrs. John Herrington and Mrs. M. Adams.

The devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. G. Mongomery. "Give us this day our daily bread." One of the beautiful thoughts which this petition leaves of the unity of the race. One is not allowed to ask for oneself alone, we pray for the urgent need of this assistance in China, in India, and in other populous countries that famine may cease."

Leaflets were read with chapter three in the study book, "Fruits of Christian Missions in Japan". The purpose of this chapter is to give a picture of the life of woman in Japan and also to show that a new day had dawned, when women are making a valuable contribution to the development of the Christian life of this island empire. These leaflets were read by Mrs. Clark Jewell, Mrs. A. Nill, Mrs. Frank Down and Miss Florence Macklin.

Collection for the day amounted to $2.43. Afternoon tea was served by Mrs. Macklin and Miss Florence Macklin and a social hour was spent. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Macklin in January.

ROSENEATH SOCIETY ARE GUESTS AT TEA

Mrs. Ednel Blodgett Named President of Mission Band for 1931.

ROSENEATH, Dec. 9 (Examiner Corrrespondence)—Mrs. W. R. Taylor and daughter, Miss Hildred Taylor were hostesses on Tuesday afternoon to the ladies of the United Church Missionary Society.

The ladies decided to put forth an effort to finish the autograph quilt in readiness for sale at the Mission Band bazaar on December 13th.

The election of officers for the Mission Band was necessary owing to the resignation of the present officers, namely Mrs. Delbert Brisbin, Mrs. Reg Crego, and Miss Hildred Taylor. The votes carried for Mrs. Ednel Blodgett as leader with Mrs. Leslie Sherwin assistant.

"Give us this day our daily bread" was the devotional lesson read by Miss Hilda Taylor.

On the lunch committee appointed for January meeting were Mrs. W. R. Taylor, Mrs. Varcoe, Mrs. Fred Sherwin and Mrs. Leslie Sherwin.

Afternoon tea was served which brought to a close a very pleasant afternoon.

COUNCIL PASSES $12,000 BY-LAW

New Debentures Will Pay For Tweed Water Supply Works.

OTHER BUSINESS.

TWEED, Dec. 9 (Examiner Correspondence)—At the regular council meeting of Tweed held on Monday evening a by-law was passed to provide for the borrowing of $12,000 upon debentures to pay for water supply works, including house and equipment, elevated tank and feeding main.

F. Hindle asked for a fixed assessment on the property of the Dominion Foundries for a period of ten years. This was fixed at $4,000. The clerk was instructed to prepare and advertise a by-law to this effect, the vote to be taken on Monday, January 5, 1931 in connection with the municipal elections.

On motion it was decided that the item of M. Lesage's service in connection with the work done on the inside of building be struck out and charged back to Simone Construction Co.

The clerk was instructed to bill all water users for service from October 1 to December 1.

Communications were read from the C.N.R. Co. re damage to pump, declining to pay for same, and from the Compensation Board re rates of assessment.

The following accounts were ordered paid: P. Wheeler, $20; H. McTaggart, $2.40; J. Hawkins, $3; W. moon, $2.80; Dominion Foundries $9.95; J. Wilson, $20; Gordon Steel Works, $32.85; Imperial Oil Co., $7.50; J. Dafoe, $136.30; Bell Telephone $2.50; J. M. Stout, $8.55; W. Roate, $23.75; Dan Lindsay, $32.75; M. Lucas, $17.75; W. Lindsay, $4.50; J. Downey, $106.80; H. Vance, $76; W. H. Richardson, $260.

Britain Is Restricting Lumber From Russia

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 (C.P.).—Shipments of Russian lumber to Great Britain have been restricted to 500,000 Russian standards for the present year and 600,000 standards for 1931, instead of proposed shipments of 750,000 and 850,000 standards respectively, the Department of Trade and Commerce here has been advised. Such restrictions have been agreed to following negotiations between Russian sellers and the central softwood buying corporation comprising about seventy of the principal importing houses of Great Britain.

Grace Church W. L. Holds Successful Sale

MILLBROOK, Dec. 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Women's League of Grace Presbyterian Church held a successful sale of aprons, towels and other fancy articles in the store next the printing office on Saturday, December 6, home baking and candy being also attractively displayed on one counter running almost the length of the building, purchasers apparently being not lacking from the opening hour until practically all wares were disposed of.

The wet afternoon failed to keep away either those donating supplies for the sale, or those intending to buy, and willing workers gave ready service to prospective customers.

At the fancy work counter were Mrs. Wilfrid Fallis, Mrs. Harry Ball, and Miss Mina Gibson; the baking and home-made candy table was capably cared for by Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, and Miss Muriel Ball, and looking after the afternoon tea were Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. J. Armstrong, Mrs. David Armstrong, Miss Mildred Wood, Miss Audry Larmer, and Miss Audrey King. Mrs. R. McMahon and Mrs. E. Weatherup attended to the making of the tea and the supplies for the tables.

Mrs. C. Thorndyke is president of the Women's League, and Mrs. T. C. Ingram secretary. Mrs. J. R. Eakins acted as cashier for the sale on Saturday, returns being most gratifying.

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT WILSON CELEBRATE 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Celebration Takes Form of Reception in Apsley Hall Following Family Re-union.

LIFE-LONG RESIDENTS.

APSLEY, December 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding on Saturday, December 6, the celebration taking the form of a reception and dance in the Parish Hall, following a family re-union and supper at their home which was attended by their immediate relatives and families. A big crowd welcomed them in the evening at the Parish Hall, and their popularity was evidenced by the number of gifts of which they were the recipients. It was a happy occasion and a very enjoyable evening was spent in the participation of old-time country dances.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson both came from good old pioneer stock, Mrs. Wilson being the daughter of George Bullied of Coe Hill, whose parents came from Devonshire, England, while Mr. Wilson's father came from Ireland, and settled in Chandos Township.

There are still many members of both families living in the township. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have a family of nine children. Mr. Wilson has for some years been in the board of the School Trustees for this section.

70,000 Scotch Miners Return To Their Work

LONDON, December 9 (C.P.). — Seventy thousand Scottish coal miners who struck last Monday were back in the mines yesterday under agreement to work on the terms of a temporary truce until February 1.

This was the only strike which grew out of opposition to the owners insistence upon inauguratinz a "spreadover" working schedule at variance with the flat 7½ hour day established by the new Coal Mines Act

Meantime Union delegates and representatives of the owners are conferring on a basis of permanent settlement of difficulties in both the Scottish and the important South Wales mining areas.

AMERICAN SOLVES PARKING PROBLEM

Insists That All Employees and Salesmen Park Away From Store.

An Ardmore, Pennsylvania, man has written a letter to the Chamber of Commerce of that city regarding the solution of the traffic problem there. An extract is being circulated by the American Chamber as follows:

"I do not even drive my car to work. I insist that any of my employees who drive to work park their cars out of the business district. I question them every day or two to make sure they are carrying out my instructions. I won't accept deliveries from trucks that park even temporarily in front of my store; I insist that they drive around to the rear. The first question I ask a salesman representing a house from which I buy merchandise is—"Where is your car parked?" If he says it is out in front of my store or anywhere in the Pike, I decline to talk to him until he moves his car out of the business district. And I tell him where he can park nearby. I honestly believe that if every man in Ardmore would adopt this policy in dealing with the parking question we would at least have 75 per cent more room in our business district for shoppers. That means that very business man, merchant and every employee must co-operate."

Could this be applied to Peterborough?

District Churches

KEENE.

The Rev. Mr. Sutherland, of Toronto, conducted the service in Knox Presbyterian Church, on Sunday morning. Mr. Sutherland was for eight months pastor of Central Presbyterian Church in Vancouver, taking over the charge after the Rev. W. Hardy, who spent a month at the coast a year ago.

The text was from Jeremiah 31, 31-34, dealing with the New Covenant. "All through the ages religion has had a tendency to become a thing of form and ritual of outward observance. Jesus Christ and the great prophets before Him taught that it must come from the heart. We are saved not because we have Abraham as our father, but because we can say, 'I know that my Redeemer liveth.'"

Rev. Mr. Reeves, of Norwood, will have charge of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in Knox Church next Sunday.

The French merchant marine now has 131 ships burning fuel oil for boiler heating.

U.S. NAVAL PLANS READY FOR 1931

Building Program Contains 2 Cruisers, Plane Carrier, 4 Subs and 11 Destroyers.

SPEND $134,635,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The administration's first year program for construction under the London Naval Treaty was laid yesterday before the House Naval Committee by Secretary of the Navy Adams. It was estimated to cost $134,635,000.

It calls for the construction of one 7,500 sid-inch gun cruiser at a cost of $16,605,000; one six-inch gun flying deck cruise of 10,000 tons to cost $20,780,000; four submarines of 1100 tons to cost $4,400,000 each or a total of $17,600,000; one plane carrier of 13,800 tons to cost $27,650,000 ten destroyers of 1500 tons each to cost $4,2000,000 each, and one destroyer leader of 1850 tons to cost $5,000,000

Adams said the program was exclusive of the proposed modernization of the battleships Mississippi, Idaho and New Mexico at a cost of $30,000,000, approved today by the Senate.

Chairman Britten, of the committee, said Secretary Adams declared it essential that the $5,000,000 naval dirigible base be built on the west coast to accommodate one of the two giant airships being constructed for the navy.

OMEMEE W.M.S. ELECTS OFFICERS

Presentation is Made to Mrs. L. A. Mahood and Her Mother, Mrs. Nugent.

JAPANESE PEOPLE STUDIED.

OMEMEE, Dec. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. T. C. Ivory, Sturgeon street, with a large attendance, it being the annual meeting and the election officers.

The president, Mrs. Blanchard, was in the chair. The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. R. Williamson, followed by prayer by Mrs. Vaughan. The election of the following officers was made:

President, Mrs. Vaughan; vice-presidents, Mrs. Blanchard, Mrs. Sandy; recording secretary, Mrs. Bradburn; treasurer, Mrs. J. Shields; systematic giving, treasurer, Mrs. Moncrief; pianist, Mrs. I. Connell; corresponding secretary, Miss L. Race; missionary monthly secretary, Mrs. A. Stinson; treasurer of supply fund, Mrs. Morcombe.

Miss Parsons then favored the ladies with the solo "Silent Night", which was quite in keeping, this being the Christmas meeting. The study book was next taken. The Japanese people, their social life and their social problems, Mrs. Blanchard taking the first part. Short papers were given by Miss Race, Mrs. Moncrief and Mrs. A. Rutherford. Prayer was made by Mrs. Poast.

An address and presentation were made to Mrs. L. A. Mahood and her mother, Mrs. Nugent. To Mrs. Nugent a bed lamp and to Mrs. L. A. Mahood a pyrex well and tree platter set in silver were given. Mrs. Mahood replied on behalf of her mother and herself in a few well chosen words.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. T. C. Ivory, Miss Barrass and Mrs. C. R. Cornell.

Y.P.U. Meets.

The Young People's Union met in the Sunday school rooms of Trinity United church for the regular meetings Monday evening, with Miss Christina Connell in charge. The scriptural lesson was read by Fred. Weir, followed by prayer by the pastor, Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard; a recitation by Mrs. McPhee and the topic, "Life of the new moderato: of the general council", Dr. Oliver, was given in a very able manner by Miss Christina Connell. A social half hour was spent in games.

WORK WITH CHINESE INTERESTING TOPIC

Dr. and Mrs. F. Allan Exhibit Odd Souvenirs at Roseneath Entertainment.

ROSENEATH, Dec. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Following the service on Sunday morning in aid of the United Church Missionary Society, the entertainment on Monday evening was quite successful. Arthur Tucker, acting as chairman, welcomed Dr. and Mrs. Frank Allan and congratulated them upon their success and wide experiences in their mission work out in West China.

Dr. and Mrs. Allan brought with them a number of articles that were made by the Chinese people. In Mrs. Allan's address he said the Chinese people were exquisite carvers especially on silverware. Several articles of bamboo were shown, each piece was carved and made into something useful. The bamboo is the most popular and useful wood in West China. She also showed a miniature god. At one time it was worshipped in the home of Chinese, but now it is set aside these same people have become faithful believers in the true God. Mrs. Allan sang in Chinese "Jesus Loves Me", which evoked much amusement.

"Emphasizing the importance of the W.M.S. activities here means a great help to the missionaries in China," said Dr. Allan in his address.

"Places are being opened up more rapidly than the church can cope with, from the lack of finances. The gospel is being preached in many different languages showing the importance of religion as a factor in making good Christians."

Had Wide Experience

Being a medical man Dr. Allan has had a very wide experience in the past twenty-four years in West China. In some of these institutions as many as 3,000 people are treated each year. Speaking of the hospitals, his work and the habits of the Chinese people Dr. Allan manifested his appreciation of the spirit of co-operation that the W.M.S. is doing which is a token of real love and knowledge, and brings a visible expression of living up to the answer, the great call of the Captain of our salvation.

A hymn was sung by the Mission Band with Mrs. D. Brisbin at the organ. Solos were given by Gwendolyn Varcoe, Lavigne McMillan and Mrs. Fred Talling; reading, "The Modern Church", by Mrs. Alf. Simpson, Alderville.

To complete the evening's program eating of rice and chop suey was attempted with the Chinese chop sticks. This made great fun for everybody and many tried to compete in using the sticks, but found it much easier to watch Dr. and Mrs. Allan, who could eat easily without spilling the food. Proceeds taken in amounted to about $16.

RELIEF WORK HALT ROUSES LABORERS

Old Council Decides to Let 1931 Body Handle Situation.

LINDSAY, December 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — Quite a feeling has been aroused among local laboreds because of the fact that certain relief work for the unemployed, launched by this year's Council, and aided by a Government grant, has ceased until the New Year.

Lindsay had a spirited municipal contest on December 1, resulting in quite a change in the Council. This year's Council is, of course, functioning, but it is understood that that body is not going to take the responsibility of continuing public works, and is deferring action until the new Council takes over the reins of office.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

STUDYING THE MIND OF THE PATIENT.

It has been demonstrated that at least fifty per cent. — one half — of all the patients who consult physicians have really "nothing" wrong with them. At least, when the physician has made a thorough examination, insofar as is humanly possible, he can find no foundation for the trouble or ailment of which they are complaining.

One of the weak points in the education of the physician of the past has been the lack of training in the "mind."

I do not mean the diseases of the mind, such as insanity, but in the working of the mind itself in the average human being.

If half of the patients coming to consult physicians have really no organic trouble, no real ailment, what is it that makes them think they have some real trouble with heart, lungs, stomach, kidneys and so forth?

You might say that it is just their imagination.

Now that is the whole point in the matter. In other words, he is sick "only in his mind"; he only thinks he is sick.

It does seem unfortunate that the educated physician, with the public school, high school, university, medical school, and hospital training does not spend more time in the study of the mind of his patients and why they think the thoughts they do.

Just as a business man or salesman learns to read the mind of his prospects, and how to get them thinking they need his particular goods, so the physician must read the mind of his patients, find out what makes them think they have the ailment of which they complain, and show them by his goods — his knowledge of the working of the human body is sickness or health — that he is right and that the particular ailment cannot possibly exist under the circumstances.

This would cure the mind of these individuals and they would not go around to a number of doctors, or to health cultists.

At a number of large medical colleges, particularly where they are connected with universities, psychology — the working of the mind — is being studied by all the students, so that when a patient consults him "he will be in possession of all his hidden thoughts, emotions and actions, and instead of ignoring them recognizes them as realiy and truly a part of the patient's personality."

By straightening a.. these out in the patient's mind, the patient becomes mentally, morally, and emotionally normal.

Successful Bazaar Held In White Hall, Marmora

MARMORA, December 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — A very successful bazaar and sale of home cooking was held by the Ladies' Aid of the United Church in the White Hall on Saturday afternoon and evening.

A choice assortment of fancy and useful articles was on display at a stall staffed by Mesdames H. P. Haack, F. R. Wells, F. Sweet, N. H. Mitchell and S Sweet.

The cooking stall was in capable hands of Mesdames H. Connor, W. E. Gould, A. Kennedy, O. R. Jones, and Miss M. Brown.

The Cheerful Workers' Class also had a stall laden with candy and fancy work. Those in charge were: Misses Bessie Sweet, Alice Henry, Annie Knox, and Bessie Wilkes.

Afternoon tea was served by Mesdames H. W. Sabine and D. E. Bell. The proceeds were well over one hundred dollars.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

There are certain vegetables which are seasonable in winter, they are cheap to buy and tasty to eat when properly prepared.

• • • • • • •

The Kohl-rabi, of course according to the sections of the country where they are grown, are added appellation of winter to distinguish them from the summer varieties, such as winter beets, winter squash, etc.

• • • • • • •

• • • • • • •

Have you ever tried parsnip croquettes? This is how they are made.

• • • • • • •

Boil parsnips until soft. Mash and to 1½ cups of the mashed parsnips add ½ cup fine bread crumbs, 2 egg yolks, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper a dash of mace, 1½ teaspoons powdered sugar.

• • • • • • •

Form into corquettes by hand or press into a cone shaped mold, and set aside to crust slightly. Beat the egg whites just enough to prevent coagulation, and to each egg white add 2 tablespoons of water.

• • • • • • •

Mix well and dip the coquette one by one into seasoned bread crumbs, chopped very fine, then into the egg whites and again into the bread crumbs.

• • • • • • •

Fill a wire basket with as many croquettes as it will hold without one touching the other. Immerse the filled basket in a kettle of deep fat that is very hot and fry until a delicate brown.

• • • • • • •

These can be served as a vegetable, or alone as an entree with or without one teaspoon of maple syrup over, and with crackers spread with peanut butter.

• • • • • • •

And here is another delightful recipe for winter cabbage:

• • • • • • •

Parboil the separated leaves of winter cabbage, prepare a filling as follows: 1 cup grated cheese, 1 beaten egg, 1 tablespoon flour, ¾ cup finely chopped bread crumbs, season with salt and pepper and moisten with undiluted condensed tomato soup.

• • • • • • •

Form these into roll, and put into each cabbag leaf, roll the leaf around it and skewer securely with wooden toothpicks. Place these in a buttered pudding dish and pour milk around them to the depth of about an inch.

• • • • • • •

Cover and steam in a hot oven until the cabbage leaves are tender when pierced with a fork. Renew the milk if needed, and when nearly done remove cover, dust each roll with very fine breadcrumbs and dot with butter. Brown in the oven or over a flame.

• • • • • • •

Serve in the pudding dish as a luncheon or supper dish. With it may be served dried beef, cold sliced ham or corn beef or any preferred cold sliced meat.

DRESSING FOR FOWL

(Contributed by Quo Vadis)

2 cups bread crumbs
2 shredded wheat biscuits (crumbled)
1 onion
A little mint, a little sage; about 1 teaspoon of each
Pinch of salt
1 tablespoon dripping.

Mix well, pour 1-3 of a cup of hot water over mixture, stirring well and fill chicken. This does for any kind of fowl, and is nice and crumbly.

For hamburg steak add 1 shredded wheat biscuit to each pound. It will taste better and go farther.

CONFIRMATION AT ALL SAINTS'

Right Reverend J. R. Lucas, D.D., Preaches Inspiring Sermon After Ceremony.

STRENGTHENING POWERS.

A very impressive Confirmation service was conducted by the Right Reverend J. R. Lucas, D.D., Warden of the Canadian Church Army, at All Saints' Church last evening. Candidates came from St. George's Church to be confirmed with those of All Saints.

tThe service proceeded according to the liturgy of the Anglican Church. Thirty-four people received the gift of the laying on of hands: 14 girls and young ladies, seven young and middle aged men, three married couples, and seven boys. The lessons were read by Rev. J. L. Hughes, Rector of St. George's, and the candidates presented to the Bishop by Rev. J. D. Paterson, Rector of All Saints. A choir composed of 12 men, 17 ladies and 13 boys aided the organist in providing excellent music for the occasion.

After the close of the Confirmation service, Bishop Lucas gave an address to the newly confirmed, and to all those present. He first expressed his appreciation of his privilege of coming to the church, and complimented the congregation on their singing qualities. The Bishop took his text from Romans 12: "I beseech you therefore, brethrep, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

Grace Through Confirmation.

"In this passage St. Paul was dwelling upon the universality of sin and the Love of God which can save us from it. At this time the newly confirmed were restating the promises made by them for or them at their Baptism, and were receiving a spiritual strengthening."

Bishop Lucas recalled three times in his life—once at London when first attempting to join the Church Army, then at a later date after having interviewed a ministwr, and finally in a church in northern Alberta—when he saw the words: "O God for Christ's sake give me the Holy Spirit." And this was emphasized in the Confirmation service.

"As you go from this service you will be called upon as witnesses to Jesus Christ," continued the preacher. We are to first begin in our home and then it will be easier to be witnesses to the whole world.

An experience of the Bishop's in Calgary, 39 years ago was recalled. A party of young men came from the wilds to get their money and 'have a good time" every three months. They were seated in the dining room of the only hotel, laughing and making rather free remarks. Suddenly the noise abated, and silence reigned. The Bishop looked up and saw a small man with a dark complexion coming in the door, seating himself at a table and saying a grace. This was a witness to Jesus of a man indeed. These boisterous men evidently thought back to their early days when grace before meals was said at home. To be a witness the power and grace of God's Holy Spirit is needed.

Renunciation not Unhappiness.

Some people have an apathy to the word "renunciation" as being an unpleasant one, and suggestive of the withdrawing from happiness. But it really means that we should not be led by "the devil and all his works, the pomps and vanity of this wicked world, and all the sinful lusts of the flesh."

In his younger days in England Bishop Lucas used to look up the evening paper every day to follow the cricket games, especially those played by three brothers. Suddenly no mention was made of their name, and a few days later a headline announced that seven men were going to China as missionaries. The names of the three brothers were mentioned: they were Christians as well as cricketers: theirs was not a complete self sacrifice but a laying aside. However, they took ill and returned. At present one is the spiritual father of thousands of Soudanese, another is doing well in California, and the other is the principal of London Polytechnic.

Putting on Jesus does not therefore come from doing away with what makes life happy.

Bishop Lucas concluded by making reference to the Church Society and their part played in the unemployment relief in Calgary, Moosejaw, Magdalen Islands, with their five workers in Quebec Diocese, three in Ottawa, etc. Finally the Bishop said, "God bless you my friends at this time, and may the grace of our Lord be with you."

A BEDTIME STORY

Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOW MAN.

"Be careful to-day, Uncle Wiggily," called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy as the rabbit gentleman started hopping from his bungalow early in the morning.

"Why should I be careful?" Mr. Longears wanted to know.

"Because," squeaked Nurse Jane, laughing, "I think it's going to snow."

"Oh, I'm not afraid of those jolly, white flakes," answered Uncle Wiggily. "I have on my warm, fur coat and I can hop fast, when I see the snow beginning to flitter down, and get home before it covers me."

"Well, do take care of yourself," begged the muskrat lady housekeeper, and Uncle Wiggily promised that he would. He was going out to look for an adventure and he never knew what would happen at such times.

So Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods, and, all of a sudden, he thought of something nice. It was candy!

"I know what I'll do," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I'll hop to the store and get a box of candy for my wife. She likes something sweet in the winter."

Turning about, Uncle Wiggily hopped toward a candy store kept by a jolly old pussy cat lady. The candy store was on the edge of the woods, not far from a house where some real children lived. By real children I mean a boy and a girl, not Baby Bunty, or Sammie and Susie Littletail or any of the animal children.

"I must not go too near the house where the real children live," thought Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose as he hopped along. "For they might want me to come in and play with them and I can't."

The reason the rabbit uncle couldn't go in and play with the real children was not that he didn't love them, or because they didn't love him. But he knew if he started playing with them it would be hard to stop, and then he never would get that box of candy for his wife.

So, keeping out of sight in the tall, dried weeds that grow on the road that turned and twisted in front of the house, Uncle Wiggily was hopping along quetly when, all of a sudden, it began to snow hard.

"Ha! Here comes the storm Nurse Jane told me about," said Mr. Longears. And he hopped faster to buy the candy before the snow should get too deep. And as he hopped along he heard the boy and girl shouting.

"Dear me! They're coming to catch me to play with them!" whispered Mr. Longears. He looked back and saw through the white flakes the real children running out of the real house. But instead of coming after the rabbit the boy and girl began joyfully to shout:

"Oh, it's snowing and now we can make a snow man!"

"Yes, that will be better than catching me, for I am in a hurry this morning," said Mr. Longears and on he hopped through the storm to get the box of candy for his wife.

"Does she like chocolates or bonbons best?" asked the jolly old pussy cat lady who kept the sweet store.

"Both!" answered Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. So he got a double box of candy and started to hop back to his bungalow, through the snow which was now falling like feathers out of a sofa pillow. "Dear me! I hope I don't get lost!" said Uncle Wiggily. But that's just what happened! The white flakes fell so thickly that Mr. Longears couldn't see which way to go. However, he hopped on, first this way and then that, looking for the bungalow, until, all of a sudden, he saw, looming up in front of him something tall, big and white.

"Oh, it's the snow man the children made!" said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "Now I know where I am—on the edge of the woods—and it will not take me long to find my bungalow."

But just as he said this he saw something coming at him through the cloud of white flakes and, looking, the rabbit saw the Fuzzy Fox.

"Oh, he's after me!" thought the rabbit. "As if being lost in the storm wasn't enough, I'm going to be nibbed by the Fox! Oh, Mr. Snow Man!" cried Uncle Wiggily, "I wish you were alive and would drive the Fox away so he wouldn't bite me!"

And then, as true as I'm telling you, that snow man began to move. He turned around and saw Uncle Wiggily and he saw the Fox, and the snow man cried: "Hi there, Bad Fox! Go back to your den and let this poor rabbit alone!" And then the white man made a hard snowball and threw it at the Fox, banging him on the nose so that the Fox howled and ran away. Uncle Wiggily was as surprised as you are to see a snow man come to life. But in a moment he saw how it was. For out of the house came running the boy and girl crying:

"He, Daddy! Ha, Daddy! Help us make a snow man!" It was the father of the children, coming home, that had driven away the Fox. Daddy was so covered with white flakes that, in the storm, he looked just like a snow man. No wonder Uncle Wiggily was fooled!

Then the rabbit gentleman hopped to his bungalow with the candy for his wife, Daddy helped the boy and girl make a real snow man.

East Peterborough Hockey League Organized

FOUR TEAMS TO COMPOSE NEW LEAGUE

C. G. E. Toolroom and Cognawaga Club From This City.

NORWOOD AND LAKEFIELD.

Newly Formed Loop Assured of Affiliation With Trent Valley League.

Assured of affiliation with the Trent Valley Hockey League, four clubs from the city and district last night organized the East Peterborough Hockey League at a meeting in the J. J. Duffus building.

The constituent clubs are C.G.E. Tool Room, Lakefield, Norwood and Cognawagas. All of them were well represented, and the total attendance was around twenty-five. The officers elected are as follows:

Patrons—T.P. Lancaster, M.P.P.; J. F. Strickland, M.P.P.; E. A. Peck, M.P.; O. A. Langley, J. P. Bondi, Reeve Robt. Tedford, Norwood, W. R. Brevfogle, Mayor Denne and R. M. Glover.

President—Chas. E. Curtis.

1st Vice-Pres.—J. R. Hill, Lakefield.

2nd Vice-Pres.—S. J. Hayes.

Sec.-Treas.—N. H. McFadden.

Other representatives nominated for the executive were: J. R. Hull and W. H. Murduff of Lakefield; Alex Kempt of Norwood and Albert Armstrong of Havelock; Frank Barrie and Harry Coit, C.G.E.; R. Batley and A. Rooke, Cognawagas.

On a motion by Mr. Hull and Mr. Barrie the entry fee was fixed at $10. It was decided to play a double schedule, but the details of completing the organization were left for a subsequent executive meeting.

S. J. Hayes was appointed chairman at the outset of the meeting and N. H. McFadden secretary. Mr. Hayes directed the preliminaries in a most satisfactory manner, and was suggested for the permanent position, but declined because of the pressure of other engagements. Charlie Curtis was the unanimous choice for the presidency. He was not present, being a guest at Mayor Denne's dinner to the city officials. A committee was appointed to interview Mr. Curtis, and the opinion was expressed by delegates from three of the clubs that they believed he would accept.

The East Peterborough Hockey League is looking forward with a lot of confidence to duplicating in the winter game the success of the East Peterborough Baseball League, and the enthusiasm and harmony manifested last night provided a decidedly encouraging ground work for the operation of the new league.

The proposed hook-up with the Trent Valley League is apparently a certainty. Delegates of Norwood and Cognawagas stated that T.V.L. officials told them to go ahead and organize the Peterborough loop, and the winners would play off at the end of the season.

BELLEVILLE SENIORS BEAT QUEEN'S "B"

Mulvihill Stars For Winners, While Lee is Tricolor's Best.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 9.—Belleville Seniors defeated Queen's Senior B. teams here last night in an exhibition hockey game by a score of 4 to 2. Both teams inserted plenty of reserves into the fray as it gave Coaches Stan Burgoyne of the locals and "Wally" Elmer of the visitors the opportunity to look over their material. It was Belleville's second game and Queen's first. The same teams will face each other in the O.H.A. campaign which commences early next month.

The game was ten minutes old when Mulvihill accepted Smith's pass to score the first goal. In the second period, the same player went down alone and got number two. In the third period, Lee picked up Murphy's pass to score, but Ingram came back a minute later and again put Belleville two up with a neat tally. Bob Scott counted the locals' final tally, while Lee crossed the front of the net to score for Queen's. There were no penalties handed out.

Chicago Hawks Lose Two Front Line Men

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—The league leading Chicago Black Hawks will be without two front line stars when they meet the Detroit Falcons in their National hockey league game at Detroit tonight.

Art Somers, star center, suffered a wrenched knee in a collision with Harvey Rockburn, Detroit defenseman, Sunday night in the Chicago stadium, and Johnny Gotselig had his tonsils removed last week. Neither is expected back in uniform for two weeks.

Lakefield Firemen Quell Garage Blaze

LAKEFIELD, December 9 (Examiner Correspondence).—Shortly after twelve o'clock on Saturday night the fire siren summoned the brigade to a fire at Baker's Garage on Bridge Street. A car backfired just over the repair pit, and it is thought that the carbureter was leaking, for flames began to shoot up. The Baker brothers applied extinguishers at once, but it was feared that it would spread so the alarm was sent in, and the brigade responded at once, and with chemicals put the fire out. There was no dambage except that Walter Baker had his hands badly burned.

Canadiens Entertain Toronto Leafs While the Senators Meet Rangers.

MAROONS AT BOSTON.

Smythe's Squad Will Be Shorthanded Through Injuries to Players.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 9 (C.P.)—Montreal Canadiens entertain Toronto Maple Leafs in the headline attraction of to-night's National Hockey League schedule of five games. The teams are deadlocked for the leadership of the Canadian group with 12 points apiece, but as the Leafs are short-handed through injuries to two members of their "Kid" front line, the Stanley Cup holders are expected to forge to the front.

The Leafs will have but nine players in uniform for this important tussle. Besides Conacher, Joe Primeau, youthful centre, is also recovering from a broken bone in his wrist and will be unable to take part. Babe Dye, veteran winger, has been released and, unless Coach Art Duncan dons a uniform and helps out on the defence, to enable Day or Clancy to move up to the forward line, the Torontonians are liable to be skated into the ice long before the game is over through lack of relief.

Ottawa and Maroons are the other two Canadian outfits in action. The Senators play Rangers in New York while the Maroons resume hostilities with Boston Bruins who eliminated them from the championship series last season after one of the most rugged set of games on record.

Senators Stronger

Holders of second place, the Senators, will be strengthened to-night as their latest purchase, Leo Bourgeault, will join them and play against his former mates. The Capital City team will have Dave Gill back at the helm for this game owing to Newsy Lalonde's illness.

If both Canuck teams win on this American invasion the Canadian group race will become closer than ever. Ottawa is now but one point ahead of the Maroons, who have pulled out of last place by four straight victories and both the Maroons and Senators are within striking distance of first place.

However, neither will win without a mighty struggle. The Bruins are hot on the heels of the leaders, Chicago Blackhawks, who are apparently determined to make a runaway of the American group race. Rangers are tied with Detroit for third place just three points behind the Bostonians and after losing their last two games by one goal margins against teams they outplayed, it is likely the Fates will change and give them a break before the Gotham fans.

The two last place teams of the respective groups, New York Americans and Philadelphia Quakers, meet on the latter's ice. The Quakers have won only one game this season nor have the "A's" done any better, though the latter have tied four games.

In the other scheduled fixture the Blackhawks invade the home of the Falcons at Detroit. The teams met in Chicago on Sunday with the group leaders, winning by the odd goal in five and it is more than a possibility that the Detroiters will reverse the decision this time.

LOCAL CLUB DECIDES INADVISABLE TO ASSUME EXPENDITURE THIS YEAR

Decline in the Club Membership Necessitates Such an Action.

EXPECT GOOD SEASON.

Note of Optimism and Good Sportsmanship Prevails at Semi-annual Meeting.

That there be no open bonspiel this season, was the decision reached by members of Peterborough Curling Club, at the Fall meeting held last evening in the club rooms, under the presidency of J. J. Howden.

The decision was reached following a considerable amount of earnest discussion, and was almost entirely unanimous. The general opinion was that with a decided drop in the membership of the club this season, it would be inadvisable to assume the expense of running the bonspiel, which has of late years meant an expenditure of $300 on prizes alone.

Last year the membership of the Curling Club was 155, while so far this year 74 renewals have been received, and 11 applications, making a total membership of 85.

Under the present system, each skip is responsible for the membership of his own rink, and Dr. N. H. Sutton made an urgent appeal to the skips to have their full rinks entered by Friday night of this week, while from James Connal came the suggestion that the club should revert to the old system, which consisted of appointing the skips and then drawing for the members of each rink.

The secretary, J. W. Mayneord, drew to Mr. Connal's attention the fact that such a suggestion could not be put into effect this season, but would have to be dealt with at the next annual meeting of the club. Mr. Connal is therefore making notice of motion to that effect.

Expect Good Season

Despite the decision to dispense with the open bonspiel, indications point to a highly successful curling season. Good sportsmanship was the prevailing note of the meeting, which was fully representative, and it seemed to be the intention of everyone present to confine their activity this season to having some real, roaring sport among their own membership.

The President in his opening address, expressed his thanks to his fellow curlers for again having elected him to that office. He said the good name of Peterborough Curling Club was known far and wide for its keen interest in clean, wholesome sport. "I am very anxious that this high standard should be maintained during the coming season," he stated.

"On behalf of the club, let me welcome all those who have curled in bygone days, and also extend the hand of good fellowship to all new curlers. My wish is that all may have a really enjoyable winter's sport. Let us not be grouchers; let us boost," he said.

"At this moment," proceeded Mr. Howden, "the club membership is low, but now that the skips enjoy the privilege of filling their own ranks, they will have ample opportunity to show the true sportsman's spirit and club loyalty in going out and getting the necessary members."

"Just before I close, I wish to mention the loss which this club has sustained in the passing of its late respected and beloved member, G. W. Ferguson. Mr. Ferguson was at one time an ardent curler and latterly, though he did not take part in the game, followed the successes and losses of the members with keen interest. We shall miss him."

ONTARIO PRO LEAGUE ORGANIZED AT GALT

Guelph, Kitchener, Stratford, Oshawa and Galt Sure Starters.

GALT, Dec. 9.—Following last night's exhibition professional hockey game here, representatives from Guelph, Kitchener, Oshawa, Stratford and Galt met at the Iroquois Hotel to discuss the future of the professional game in Ontario, and as a result the Ontario Professional Hockey League was brought into being in place of the Canadian League. The above five mentioned cities are sure starters, and there is a possibility of Brantford, Hamilton and Niagara Falls rounding into an eight-team circuit.

It is planned to open the league schedule on Friday, Dec. 19. It was reported at the meeting that there is an abundance of players available for the league, with several of the International League teams ready to use teams in the newly formed league as farms. The meeting also decided to discontinue the proposed series of exhibition games.

Tweed Hockey Club Organized For Year

TWEED, Dec. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—At a meeting of the high school hockey club held on Friday, Shannon Lafontain and Leo Meraw were appointed as delegates to attend the annual meeting at Madoc for the drawing up of the schedule.

It was decided that offices of president, secretary and treasurer which were held by these boys of the school executive, would hold the same offices for the hockey club: President, Sid Arber; secretary, Don McCrea, and treasurer, Jack Ryan.

Harry Thompson and Ray Cotton were appointed to attend to the preparing of the rink for practice, and Sid Arber, George McCutcheon and Jack Ryan were appointed to look after the club for the season by securing cars and other matters. The rink committee will consist of Ray Cotton and Harry Thompson and the hockey committee, with Jack Ryan as convenor.

ROBINSON LEADS LEAGUE SCORERS

Official Averages Give Windsor Player Margin of Six Points.

INTERNATIONAL LOOP.

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—The official scoring and penalty records of the International League, released by President Charles King and including games on Wednesday, Dec. 3, show that Earl Robinson of the Windsor Bulldogs, is leading the sharpshooters by a big margin, he having scored nine goals and given three assists for a total of 12 points. Robinson who was released to Windsor by the Montreal Maroons just before the present season commenced, led the Canadia-American League in scoring two years ago, and was with Montreal last season. Roth of Buffalo, Goldsworthy of London and Doraty of Cleveland are tied with four goals and two assists each for second place. Cliff McBride has the doubtful honor of leading the penalised players, he having served 30 minutes, which includes 20 for a match foul, while Berlet of Pittsburg is second with 23 minutes.

Since last Wednesday Robinson has scored two goals, giving him a total of 14 points, while Doraty has added three goals and an assist to take second place, unofficially, and Bogardis of Buffalo, with two goals, has passed Roth and Goldsworthy, having a total of seven points.

LENNOX WILL APPEAL MARCUS SENTENCE

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 9—Col. T. H. Lennox, K.C., announced yesterday that he would appeal the conviction of William Marcus, found guilty by a jury in the criminal assizes of a serious offence against a young girl, and sentenced to 15 years in Portsmouth Penitentiary by Mr. Justice Raney.

Ralph Greenleaf Passes First Round of Match

NEW YORK, December 9 (C.P.).—With Ralph Greenleaf safely passed the first round in the defence of his world's pocket billiard title, six other contestants to-day play their first matches of the tournament.

Playing a brand of billiards that has marked his parade through the pocket billiard world for the past 11 years, Greenleaf defeated Thomas Boalman of Portland, Ore., 125 to 18 last night at Dwyer's Billiard Academy. Greenleaf, who has held the championship nine times since 1919, clicked off 43 points in the fourth inning and then ran out an unfinished run of 85 in the eighth.

Varsity Defeats Mariboros in Hectic Game—Paddlers Defeat Victorias.

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—Toronto Canoe Club and Varsity meet in the finals for the S. P. A. junior trophy on Thursday night, with wins in a hectic round at the Arena Gardens last night, the Red Rangers disposing of Victorias by a 4 to 3 score while University of Toronto toppled Mariboros 3 to 1. While the hockey was not up to the good standard of recent pre-season games there was an added excitement to the play with both games finishing in wild stampedes.

Quakers Trade Darragh For Two Boston Boys

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9.—The Philadelphia Quakers of the National Hockey League have traded Harold Darragh, veteran wing, to the Boston Bruins for George Hutton, a wing, and "Peaches" Lyons, a defens e player. Darragh, who played with Pittsburgh before the franchise was transferred to Philadelphia, is said to have been sought by other teams in the league.

"I'm going to build the Quakers for next season," said Manager Smeaton of the local team, "and I'm going to do it with youngsters."

ROCKNE'S IRISH CHAMPIONS SET OUT FOR HOME

Rissman Trophy Permanent Possession of Notre Dame College.

TROJANS TO FORGET.

Sports Writers Credit Victories to Masterful Work in Every Department.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9 (A.P.) — Football's supreme laurels—permanent possession of a trophy signifying national intercollegiate champions three times in a decade—crowned the Browns of Knute Rockne's Irish warriors as they headed homeward late yesterday.

Ownership of the Rissman trophy, bestowed for winning three national titles under the Dickinson rating system was one of Notre Dame's chief spoils from her 27 to 0 rout of Southern California yesterday.

Late yesterday Rockne herded his Ramblers toward their home fields. The unconquered Notre Dame warriors of 1930 will arrive in Chicago Wednesday en route to South Bend.

The vanquished still wondering at the amazing team which overwhelmed their best but comparatively puny efforts, remained to do naught but cheer their conquerors. The Trojans, subdued by their worst defeat since Coach Howard Jones took them in hand five years ago, heaped honors where honors were due.

For themselves they sought forgetfulness by turning all eyes upon a banquet in their honor next Tuesday night.

Sports writers credited the Irish victory to their masterful and perfectly timed work in every department, offensive or defensive.

On motion of Jack Cairns, seconded by T. Stewart, the auditor was sincerely thanked for the excellent report on the examination of the books for the season and supplying personal copies to the board for verification.

The auditor reported to the executive that there is no book in possession of the secretary for the purpose of recording the property owned by the association and desired that they obtain such to record all trophies, and equipment. Also that all amounts paid the groundsman and the referees be paid by cheque and that they sign for them so as to enable the auditors to find a record of expenditure. A proper book for financial purposes be obtained so as to lighten the work of the secretary who has given an accurate account of all transactions.

A vote of thanks was tendered Stanley Gillespie for his services during the season as secretary-treasurer.

Arrangements Completed

The executive decided on the appointment of members of the board to help the chairman of the entertainment committee with the concert in the Legion Hall, when Jamie Reid and Jean Simpson will be the artists for the evening of Saturday next.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the local association will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, on Monday next, when representatives will be appointed to go to Toronto for the Ontario Football annual meeting. The question of affiliation will be decided and finances forwarded according to the constitution. The executive board will be appointed for the year 1931. Only two members appointed by their club are permitted to vote. All soccer fans are requested to attend.

DRAFT DEBATE FOR WEDNESDAY

Major League Club Owners to Meet Non-draft Committee.

ADOPT SALARY LIMIT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9. (CP)—Major league club owners spent the first day of the annual midwinter meetings in high-powered conversation, there was hope, at least among the 'war correspondents' that they might get down to business to-day.

Baseball men from all over the country gathered in the lobbies of the Commodore and other mid-town hotels in the morning, began talking then and still were at it, full blast, when the weary reporters vanished into the night. The net result, from a news point of view was exactly nothing. Some of the boys contended it was less than that.

Meetings of both the National and American Leagues were on to-day's program and there seemed to be some basis for the expectation that business might pick up.

Draft Question Again

When all was said and done yesterday it took the time-worn draft question to provide the only excitement of the day.

The committee of nine appointed by the three class "A" non-draft leagues—American Association, International and Pacific Coast leagues—announced they had been invited to confer on the draft question with a committee representing the National and American leagues at the Hotel Roosevelt to-morrow morning.

Efforts to hold an informal conference between the opposing groups yesterday failed when the major leagues failed to gather together a quorum. The majors have discontinued all business dealings with the five non-draft leagues, the three class "AA" circuits and the Western and Three Eye leagues until they accept the draft. This the non-draft organizations are prepared to do but the rival groups have been unable to agree on terms. They may do so at to-morrow's confernce or later in the week but baseball men generally were of the opinion that a settlement of the dispute was only a question of time.

Just who the majors will send into the conference probably will be decided at the individual league meetings to-day but it seemed safe to hasard a guess that the representatives would be club owners and that neither President John A. Heydler of the National league nor president Ernest S. Barnard of the American League would join the conferees.

There were indications that the Chicago Cubs soon would dispose of their franchise at Reading, Pa., in the International League. The Cubs announced at Montreal that th Reading franchise was on the market and yesterday, at an International League meeting, it was announced that a "prospective buyer" was under consideration and that the matter probably would be settled definitely tomorrow. There was no intimation as to who the prospective buyer was.

Incidentally it became known that the International League has adopted a salary limit, a new wrinkle in baseball management. Under this regulation clubs are given a definite limit on the amount of money each may spend in salaries. Just what that limit is none was willing to say.

The draft, the lively ball and perhaps chain-store baseball were the principal foods the magnates were to digest to-day.

MORENZ RETAINS LEAD IN SCORING

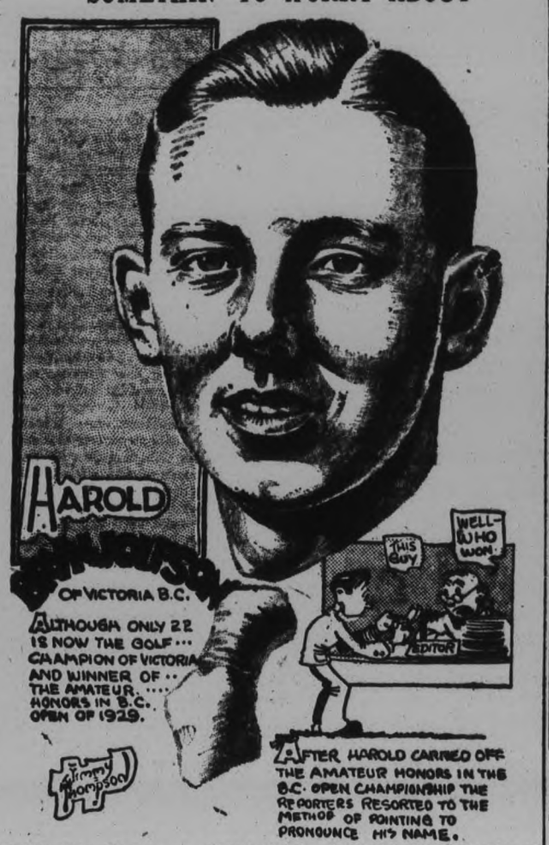
Four Leafs Are Among First Seven in Canadian Group of National League.

BAILEY IS FOURTH.

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—With the Maple Leafs and Canadiens deadlocked at the top of the standing in the Canadian section of the National Hockey League it is only fitting that the contest for the leadership of the scoring in this division should be between players of the two clubs and unofficials records (the official ones have been delayed this week) show that the seven leaders, those with six points or better, are from these two clubs. Howie Morenz, who was in front last week, is still setting the pace with 11, while Aurel Joliat passed the injured Charlie Conacher to take second place, one behind his clubmate. Conacher is third with eight, while Ace Bailey and Joe Primeau are tied for fourth place with seven points each, and Harvey Jackson is on even terms with George Mantha with six. Dit Clapper of the Boston Bruins and Bill Cook of the Rangers share the leadership of the American section with eight points, while Cooney Weiland and Bun Cook are right behind them with seven scoring points. Morenz has scored the most goals, nine, with Conacher and Bill Cook having seven each, while Joliat and Primeau have made the most assists, six. Harry Oliver of Bruins and Bun Cook lead their section in assists with four each.

Joliat is setting the pace in the matter of penalties, having served 30 minutes with the timers but he is closely pressed in the Canadian section by Alex Smith, Ottawa, 27;

SOMETHIN' TO WORRY ABOUT



British Columbia has a climate that makes it possible to swing the ol' golf club almost all the year round, and there are plenty of followers of the game to take advantage of it. With these opportunities there should be many a champion come from this province. Learning the game much in the manner that the world-famous Bobby Jones began, Harold Brynjolfson of Victoria, is rapidly forging to the fore. He began as a caddie and has risen rapidly in the Pacific Northwest golf world. A tall slim youngster, he hits the elusive pill with terrific force while his work around the greens is deadly. To-day he is the holder of the golfing championship of Victoria and has just stepped out of his teens into the bargain. In 1929 he made his first serious leap into the limelight, carrying off the golf honors in the British Columbia open championship. He is without doubt one of the most promising young golfers in the Pacific Northwest. Within a couple of years, the sport scribes of the Pacific coast are confident that he will be more than heard from in the major tournaments of that section of the country. He comes from a family of golfers, and his three older brothers are club swingers of no mean repute.

Athletics' Star First-Sacker Loses Greatest Admirer In Death Of Youth

LAKELAND, N.J., December 9. —They never play anything but good ball where George Callahan went yesterday.

No off-day alibis, no mid-season slumps, nothing but top-form playing for ever and ever.

Georgie was the country's best known fan. Ill with tuberculosis, the 15-year-old lad virtually lived on baseball all summer long, and most of the "big shots" of the game played to him, knowing he was being kept alive by the game.

Georgie departed yesterday from the Lakeland Hospital for a brighter land, where Christy Mathewson, "Iron Man" Joe McGinnity, and George Stallings probably were standing by to shake his hand and adopt him as a mascot.

The Gloucester, N.J., lad died with a picture of his greatest hero, Jimmy Foxx, of the Philadelphia Athletics, clasped in his thin hand. All of the "big shots" of baseball had helped to keep Georgie in this world, but the great first baseman was his particular model and hero.

It was three years ago that young Callahan fell ill. After a travelling showman kicked him when he accidentaly got in the way. That was in the early spring. It's all right to be bedridden when all the teams are down South, but the ball season opened pretty soon, and Georgie's heart all but broke because he could not go to any games.

The radio helped to solve his problem, and last fall, although he was wasting away almost visibly day by day, he followed the Athletics and seemed to take new life. Jimmy Foxx heard about the boy and on October 11 called at the hospital and sat for an hour on the foot of his bed. They talked and laughed, and Georgie gained some strength.

Then the season ended, and Georgie could not fix his mind on football games. He would lie for hours in his cot and gaze at Foxx's picture.

Yesterday he just went to sleep, clutching the photograph, and did not awaken.

George Patterson, Americans, 26, and Billy Burch, also an American, 25. Allan Shields of Philadelphia leads the entire league with 31 minutes, but Lola Couture of the Black Hawks has served 29, while Harvey Rockburn of Detroit and Bun Cook of the Rangers follow with 25 and 24 minutes respectively.

OBS HEXIMER LEADING LIST

Springfield Forward Has 11 Points in Score Column, His Team Unbeaten.

CAN.-AM. LEAGUE.

BOSTON, Dec. 9.—The fast-travelling Springfield Indians wound up another victorious week, and continue at the head of the Canadian-American Hockey League with a perfect score of seven wins for as many gains.

The official league standing, including games of Dec. 6, follow:

	W.	L.	T.	P.	Goals F.	Goals A.
Springfield	7	0	0	14	34	13
Providence	4	2	1	9	24	16
New Haven	3	4	1	7	19	22
Boston	2	5	0	4	21	22
Philadelphia	1	6	0	2	11	26

Games for Coming Week:

Tuesday—New Haven at Springfield.

Thursday—New Haven at Springfield; Providence at Philadelphia.

Saturday—New Haven at Boston.

Sunday—Providence at N. Haven.

"Obs" Heximer, Springfield forward, finished another week leading the league's scorers. He accounted for a goal and an assist in Saturday night's game with the Boston Tigers, and boosted his totals to six goals and five assists for 11 points. Cecil Dillion of the same club registered two assists in that game, and jumped into second place with a total of 9 points. Beattie, Springfield, and Gaudreault, Providence, followed with 8 points each, and three other players have collected 7 points each to date.

Eddie Convey, Springfield, and Scotty Anderson, Philadelphia, continue as the league's "bad men," the former with 13 minors and 2 majors and the latter with 14 minors and a major. "Peaches" Lyons, the Boston Bruins' cub undergoing seasoning with Eddie Powers's Tigers, is third on the penalty list with 12 minors and a major.

JUDGE AWARDS PLAINTIFF CASE

Ernest P. Jackson is Awarded $102.25 in Division Court Action.

DEFENDANT GIVEN RIDER.

An interesting point was raised in a case which was heard before His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, in the County Division Court yesterday afternoon, in which judgement was awarded to plaintiff Ernest P. Jackson, of Jackson Motor Sales, for the sum of $102.25 with costs subject to defendant M. Rishor being allowed one month from the date of judgement in which to renew action for the recovery of $480.00 and costs, for the loss of the use of his motor truck and damage to goods at the time of the accident.

J. Walton Stevenson conducted the case for the plaintiff, while B. E. Park acted in the interests of defendant.

It appeared that defendant Rishor purchased a motor truck from Jackson Motors. After a few weeks running the steering gear went out of commission; the truck ran into a ditch. The truck was taken in for repairs, and shortly afterwards a similar mishap occurred. Plaintiff's action was for the recovery of $102.25 being the charge for repairs, while defendant contended that he was entitled to free replacement of parts under the terms of the warranty, which is understood to go with each new car or truck, Mr. Rishor's counter claim was for $480 and costs, as compensation for the loss of the use of the truck and for damage to the goods which were on the truck at the time of the accidents.

The case hung on a question as to whether a certain nut was on the steering gear, and as to whether it was on before the accident. Mr. Stevenson said that the fact that the nut was not on the steering gear after the accident, did not give sufficient proof that the nut was not there originally.

His Honor, said it was an unfortunate matter throughout. Plaintiff sued for certain repairs, which defendant admits had been carried out. Defendant had naturally put in a counter claim, but His Honor considered it a little unfortunate that application had not been made to the manufacturers. "It looks very suspicious the way the machine was sent out. I cannot think it possible that any respectable firm would sent out a car in such a condition and I do not think they do," he said.

His Honor further stated, the defendants have permission to bring any action not only against Jackson, but against the manufacturers.

Hugenot Retention Let English Enter

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 9 (C.P.)—Canada might be French to-day had not the Catholic church of the 18th Century refused to admit Hugenots and thus kept the population of the country so low it lay open to English invasions, Dr. J. A. Nutter told the Historical Association of Montreal. The subject of his address was Louisburg, the fortified city on Cape Breton Island which was built by the French and once stood as the strongest fortress on the Atlantic Coast. At a time when the English population on this continent was close to a million, the French population of Canada was less than a hundred thousand, the speaker pointed out.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

The feature bowling battle of last week was staged when the Bowlrites hooked up with the Rangers in a regular City League fixture and battled to a 3—1 decision in favor of the Bowrites. The Rangers started a heavy bombardment in the first game, which they won by such a margin that they were only down 61 pins in pinnage, having lost the second and third games. The scores:—

Bowlrites:
Sweetman	246	245	236—	728
F. Wood	278	181	201—	661
S. Johnson	241	267	211—	719
C. Shaughnessy	217	162	191—	570
V. Anthony	206	279	201—	686
	1188	1134	1042—	3364
Rangers:
J. Marsden	309	250	225—	784
B. McGee	236	193	176—	607
H. Ranger	274	304	238—	816
F. Jones	210	136	——	346
J. Playford	219	187	187—	593
W. Crary	——	——	167—	167
	1240	1070	993—	3303

The C.G.E. Drafting Room pin scuttlers are hitting their stride, and last night's league session was a real heavy-hitting affair. Freddy Meagher raised the high single mark considerably when he picked off 324 pins.

Vince O'Connell's three game score of 845, secured last week at the K. of C. Alleys, should stand for some time as a record in the Monday Night League. Bud Weese, with a score of 843, was former record holder.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

Lionel looked surprised. "Oh, Hello," she said smiling. "A friend of yours was just in to see you, Jean, a little man with a black derby and a flashy bow tie. I told him you had gone out for the afternoon."

CHAPTER TWELVE

I was so close to Diggers that night that I could have touched him, and he got away. He left the elevator I got in. By the time I could get back up to the office he had gone. He told Lionel he was tired of waiting, he'd come to see me some other time. Lionel didn't think I'd mind. He knew Diggers was my friend. He told me about his visit in the most matter-of-fact manner. Diggers had left the apartment when we heard the door open and shut that night. He hadn't even had time to hide in one of the bedrooms and slipped out and met Diggers after I had gone. And now, perhaps, he was trying to tell me so I wouldn't be angry about his being there with Diggers a short time before the murder. I wish Sandy would hurry back. I should have told him about Diggers before. I'm getting to be a worse coward every day, but I can't help it. If Marcia and Diggers only knew where I live, I hate to think what may happen. I had started out to see a Miss Wood and a little girl she is caring for when I ran into Diggers. But I was too upset after that experience. I came to the room and stayed here until Mollie came home when we went out to supper. Mollie went to a dance after supper so I didn't have to tell her Lionel was coming to see me at the room. I was afraid three would be a crowd. Lionel . . . But there are some things that must not be put in writing, not even in one's diary.

But long after Jean confided in Sandy what had taken place that night, and there is no reason why it shouldn't be told here.

Lionel came shortly after eight beaming happily.

"Say, but it's good to have you off to myself for a change," he told her, settling in one of the room's two chairs, and the room's only comfortable chair. "Do you realize that I've never even had an opportunity to talk to you without having to lower my voice to prevent someone hearing?"

"Have you had anything to say that you didn't want anyone to hear?" Jean asked him, pretending innocence.

Lionel gazed at her curiously, undecided how to interpret the implication of her question. Then: "Will you persist in behaving as if you didn't know I . . . love you, Jean? Why do you always avoid the subject?"

"Do I avoid it, Lionel? Perhaps it's because I don't think you know what you're saying. Love, Lionel, is a very serious matter."

He suddenly pulled his chair nearer and leaned toward her. "And do you think I don't realize that love is a serious matter? I've been through the mill of love, Jean. I know what it is."

Jean looked into his sober eyes, searchingly. "Then you've been in love before?"

"Of course I have. I won't lie to you. I've always been in love with one girl or another. Why shouldn't I admit that? Isn't it the natural thing to be in love? At least I've always played fairly."

Jean said quickly: "But I'm not criticizing, Lionel. I merely asked. You spoke as if you had suffered through love."

"I have," he declared gravely. "That's what I meant when I said I had been through the mill of love. I was mad over a girl once, Jean. She was wonderful, and I thought I couldn't live without her. But it wasn't any use."

Jean asked quietly: "You lost her?"

Lionel nodded. "Yes. But not until after I'd married her."

He did not see that Jean had started at his quiet statement, that something very like disappointment had filled her eyes.

"Neither of us was to blame, particularly," he went on, with a slight shrug. "Unless I was," he added. "I lied to her about one or two things that didn't matter. Then, just before we were married, I told her the truth."

Jean said, "Isn't that a bit unusual, Lionel? Isn't it the natural thing for a man to tell the woman he is going to marry all about his past?"

"Yes, I know, but there were little incidental affairs. And the strange thing is that she didn't seem to mind them. She laughed and said I was silly not to have told her the truth in the first place. But later I suppose she got to thinking about . . . again. I never knew. I went home from the office one night and she wasn't there. I never saw her again."

Jean reached out and put her hand on his. "I'm sorry, Lionel. You . . . you still love her."

Lionel suddenly sat up in his chair and laughed. "It was as if he had abruptly thrown off an unpleasant past and turned to a bright and promising present.

"Love her?" he repeated, with laughing scorn. "I'd forgotten she ever lived, until tonight. I simply wanted you to know, Jean. I thought you were entitled to know. Because . . ." He took Jean's hand between his own and looked earnestly into the blue of her eyes. "I love you, Jean. I love you more than I ever loved her, or anyone else. I think now I never loved before, that . . ."

"You don't have to say that, Lionel. Just say . . ."

"That I love you? Oh, I do, Jean! I worship you, darling, if you would only let me know that you care, that . . . that you love me."

Jean drew back, imperceptibly. But I . . . I don't know, Lionel. I've only known you for such a little while. You seem to decide things so quickly, to be so certain of yourself. I don't. I can't be sure of anything yet."

And then so suddenly had it happened that she could only push against him gently and stare into his eager eyes, wondering. For with no warning at all Lionel had abruptly pulled her to him and put his lips to hers.

For a long moment she lay in his arms, too startled and confused to think, feeling the warmth of his breath on her face, seeing the yearning in his eyes. But presently she pushed him firmly away, and would not let him touch her again.

Long after he had gone she lay on her bed in the darkness wondering what his kiss had done to her, wondering if the spark of emotion he had blown into flame in her heart were love.

But when, a few minutes after 12 o'clock, Mollie came in, she found Jean sleeping soundly.

Miss Mildred C. Wood was a thin, fragile little woman with whom life had dealt none too gently. Her hair was almost wholly white and her kindly hazel eyes looked out from a face wrinkled by time and void of all evidence of those devices to which women of our time are addicted in their eagerness to belie their years.

She lived in one of those depressing little compartments on East 34th Street, which are called apartments but are in reality but narrow partitioned spaces conceived by grasping landlords to squeeze every possible revenue from their premises. Two deplorably small rooms, one a kitchnette in which but one person could stand at one time, constituted her home.

She took Jean into what she called her living room, but which was her bed room and dining room as well, and listened attentively while Jean explained why she had come.

"I simply wanted to assure you," Jean concluded, "that the miniature baby will positively be delivered to you by or before Christmas eve. Most of them are going out by mail, but this one I shall bring myself. Is the little girl here?" she asked abruptly.

"Would you like to see her?" Miss Wood asked quickly. She jumped up, found a coat behind a screen, and pinned a black, stiff-brimmed velvet hat to her white hair. "She's just down at the playground at the corner," she explained, smiling. "The poor thing hasn't any other place to play. It's only a short walk."

The playground was filled with younger children, those too young to be in school. Every piece of equipment was in use and every child was in a fever of activity.

Suddenly, out of a group running in a circle near the entrance, there came a little girl with big blue eyes, and yellow hair, and a smile that brought Jean to her knees with outstretched arms.

"This is Miss Melba, Ellen," the little old lady said to the joyous child. "She wanted to speak to you."

Jean said quietly, "I was wondering Ellen, if you've written Santa Claus, what you want for Christmas?"

The child's smile grew. "I didn't have to write Santa Clause," she said proudly. "Santa Claus wrote to me and said he'd bring me a doll. I hope it's a great big doll that talks and cries and walks and . . . Do you think Santa Claus has a doll like that? Do you think he might bring it to me, if he has. Do you?"

Miss Wood put a gentle hand on Ellen's shoulder. "You mustn't ask so many questions, dear. And you mustn't expect too much of Santa Claus. Think of all the other little girls he has to look after."

Ellen grew thoughtful. "Yes, of course. I'll be glad of any kind of doll, but . . ."

Jean threw her arms about the child and kissed her on her dimpled cheek. "Never mind," she said, trying to blink the tears from her eyes. "If Santa Claus has that kind of doll, he'll bring it to you, I know. And . . ." whispering, "I think he has, Ellen."

A little boy ran up, touched Ellen on the back and cried, "You're it!" Ellen fairly flew after him.

"She's beautiful!" Jean exclaimed when the child had gone. "How can a mother neglect a child like that?"

Miss Wood said with sudden fire: "I wish she didn't have a mother. The poor little thing is too young to understand if she knew, but, someday she'll want to know about her parents."

Jean said, "I believe you wrote that her father was dead."

Miss Wood nodded gravely. "Killed, my dear. He was a bad man. I don't know who did it, but I'm afraid it was no more than he deserved."

Oh . . ." said Jean, "you mean he was murdered?"

"Yes. Shot down in cold blood, in some woman's apartment. You must have seen it in the papers just a week or two ago. His name was Sampson. They called him Big Bill Sampson, the bootleg king, I believe."

CHAPTER THIRTEEN.

Mollie and I spent a quiet Sunday. Talked our heads off. In the afternoon we climbed to the top of a bus and rode on by Riverside Drive. I could almost see the window of Marcia's apartment. I'm afraid I'm not very brave. I keep thinking about Marcia's detective and Slim Diggers and wondering if anything is going to happen to me. I could get out of New York, of course, but the longer I stay the more reasons there are for not leaving. I couldn't let Sandy down on the Miniature Baby Plan for one thing. And then, there's Lionel. He really seems to be so hopelessly in love with me. If I could only be sure of myself. I like him ever so much. But liking isn't love as Phil would tell me, and I can't be sure. All day yesterday I was thinking of Lionel. He might at least have run by to say hello. Poor little Ellen. She's such a sweet child, and pretty as a picture. I can hardly believe Fargeson was her father, but Miss Wood is sure of it. She said Fargeson, or Sampson as she knew him, had been very wealthy, but the claims against his estate would amount to twice as much. Ellen won't get a penny. I suppose it's just as well considering how Fargeson got his money. But the child has to live, and poor Miss Wood is barely making enough to pay their rent. What kind of woman is Ellen's mother that she can abandon her child that way? Miss Wood says she comes once in a few months to see Ellen, but is always in a hurry and never gives her anything. Miss Wood thinks it would be better if she didn't come at all. She must be a demon.

Jean had dressed and was making coffee over the gas plate Sunday morning when Mollie groaned lazily, indulged in a series of strenuous yawns, and finally sat up, pulling a pillow behind her back.

"Drop another teaspoonful of coffee in that pot, honey," she told Jean sleepily. "There's a fresh loaf of bread and a little butter in that package under the table. We might have a little toast."

Jean smiled acknowledgment of this suggestion and bent over the table. "There's coffee enough. Is this the package?"

"Yes." Mollie took a cigaret from the tray by her bed and poked about for a match. "Will you let me have a match, darling? The maid service around this place is just too bad."

Jean held a match to her cigaret, and went back to attend to her simple breakfast.

What a day!" said Mollie, gazing longingly out the sunlit window. "Before the crash, I used to be out on the broad highways this time Sunday morning, making sixty miles or better. The boy had a nice bus if he didn't have good sense."

Jean was slicing bread for toast. But now she put the knife down and sat on the bed, facing Mollie. "Why do you talk about him like that, Mollie? He must have had good sense or you would never have married him."

"He didn't have any more sense than I did. It was just one of those crazy three week flirtations. We both realized we were in love and we figured the best thing to do would be to get married. I called up several of the girls at the store and at three o'clock in the morning we were on our way out of the state. A eight we were back in New York and telling the girls we were headed for his home in Missouri."

"Falsely, as I happen to know," Jean smiled, passing Mollie a cup of black coffee. "One of your friends at the store said you had married a wealthy young man and that you were going to his home in Missouri for your honeymoon."

"We thought it would be fun to pretend to go away and not," said Mollie. "His parents really do live in Moberly, Missouri, so that's where we said we were going. Instead, we went to a hotel and laid out a program of shows and little trips. But . . . by four o'clock it was all over."

"Why, what happened?"

Mollie set her empty cup on the smoking stand, and slid down under the covers once more, her hands folded under her head. "I don't know, honey. I told you I was half mad. It just came over me in a moment that I shouldn't have gotten married, and I blamed him for it. I left him flat!"

Suddenly Mollie rolled over and buried her face in the pillow. "I . . . I'm sleepy," she said in a muffled voice. "Call me in time for work to-morrow."

Jean did not reply, and what she knew to be a little sob, she told herself was Mollie's peculiar laugh.

Monday morning Jean arranged a temporary desk with the little table that had held their glass plate and labored over the work she had brough home from the office.

Lionel ran by shortly after twelve, ostensibly to give her a report of work on the Miniature Baby Plan, though Jean knew very little could have happened since Saturday.

He came into the room, smiling boyishly, and stood with his back to the door. Jean watched him curiously.

"Is this the sort of reception I get?" he demanded, trying to scowl. He reached out for her hand and pulled her to him slowly. "Can't you say you're glad to see me, and kiss me?"

Jean held back, uncertainly. The smile went from his lips, and a strange, hurt look came into his eyes. Jean saw it and like a little girl kissing an adult, she reached up and pecked him on the cheek.

He pulled her to him roughly, and put a firm hand under her chin. "That was better than nothing," he conceded, "but . . ." She closed her eyes and held her breath. His lips were pressed to hers until they hurt. She tried hto push him away, but the strength seemed to have gone out of her. She could hear the pounding of her own heart.

"That," he said, releasing her at last, "is the way it ought to be done."

She stepped back from him, slowly, a little frightened; and yet knowing in her heart that she did not resent what he had done.

The few minutes that he was there, she tried to appear at ease, but the turmoil he had stirred up within her continued, and when he had gone she threw herself on the bed and cried. Not because she wanted to cry, but because she had not given into him. Surely, she told herself with a little groan, surely, this IS love.

SO CRIPPLED BY RHEUMATISM HE HAD TO GO UPSTAIRS ON HIS KNEES

T-R-C's got him out of bed and back to work

Here is a most interesting letter from Mr. John McGhee, Toronto, Ont. He says: "About 12 years or so ago I had a bad attack of Rheumatism and Sciatica. My feet and legs were so sore and stiff I had to go upstairs on my knees at times.

"Fortunately I heard about T-R-C's and decided to try them. They got rid of the pain for me and got me out of bed and back at work. Not long before Christmas, 1929, the rheumatics settled in the small of my back and were very painful indeed. This time a $1 box of T-R-C's was sufficient to make me entirely better. A friend of mine in Scotland has been using T-R-C's with wonderful results."

Deep-rooted, stubborn cases of Rheumatism require patient and correct use of T-R-C's for a reasonable length of time; but you are sure of relief if you persist with T-R-C's. Repeatedly they have given safe, speedy relief from Acute Rheumatic suffering; also from Sciatica, (stabbing pain in hip and thigh), Neuritis, Neuralgia and Lumbago (Lame Back). No harmful or habit-forming drugs.

T-R-C's do this—enter the blood stream and help your body throw off the misery-causing poisons which have accumulated in your blood. When these go, health and happiness return. T-R-C's are 50c and $1 per box at your dealer's. 181

SOVIET GOV'T IS LAYING PLANS TO TRY "FIVE-YEAR PLAN" AGAIN

Propaganda Informs Masses Present Scheme to be Finished in Four Years.

GREAT LABOR SHORTAGE.

(By Victor Eubank, Associated Press Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW, U.S.S.R. Dec. 9. — Whether or not the Soviet Government actually believes it can accomplish the tremendous tasks it has outlined in the famous "five-year plan" of "industrialization" the masses of Russians are being flooded with propaganda to convince them that not only will the great Communist building plan be carried out on time but that probably the work will really be completed in four years.

As a convincing argument that the first newspapers recently announced that the planning section of the Supreme Economic Council, together with the Industrial Economic Institute, have already taken steps to map out a second five-year schedule.

Plan Ahead of Schedule

Figures of the State Planning Commission purport to show that the present plan is far ahead of its schedule in practically every one of the major industries of Soviet Russia. Nevertheless the plan has had its difficulties and there are indications that further difficulties will present themselves during the pending third year.

The obvious handicaps are the shortage of labor and foreign credits. The Soviet scheme calls for 1,500,000 additional laborers in 1931. The seriousness of this problem is shown by the fact that, at the conclusion of the second year of the plan, there was a labor shortage of some 500,000 in the Union.

The Government accounted in large part for this shortage by pointing out that thousands of workers would not stick to their jobs, but would quit to seek better and more remunerative employment. The obviating of this itinerant labor question is now believed to have been solved by the various unions, which, upon instructions from the "higher-ups," have warned workers that they will not be permitted to quit their jobs except for the best of reasons such as ill health, etc

Penalty is Expulsion.

The penalty is expulsion from the Union and the withdrawal of bread cards and food privileges, also blacklisting in other plants and factories. In other words, all workers, both men and women, must agree to remain "for the duration."

This "agreement" plan is being put in force all over Russia and it is expected that more stringent regulations to "keep labor in line" will be adopted during the coming year. The present system is apparently noncompulsory with the employes themselves naming their own rules. The custom is for all the employes of a factory to hold a meeting weekly or monthly whereat a resolution to "remain at work" is either carried unanimously or by a large majority. The resolution prescribes the penalties and it is agreed to abide by them "for the sake of the five-year-plan."

The Government some time ago called for subscriptions to a "five year plan in four years' loan" and, up to recently, the results have somewhat disappointed the State Banking authorities. The total subscribed thus far is around 560,000,000 roubles (approximately $280,000,000) with the workers and employees taking up for the greater per cent., and the peasants exhibiting their usual pessimism by absorbing only a small part of the issue. The ultimate size of this loan has not been set by the authorities, but it is believed that a billion was the sum hoped for.

Special Schools Opened

In the meantime the Government is working desperately to fill the huge labor demands which must be met next year. Schools for the training of special workers are being opened rapidly. Soldiers of the Red army who are finishing their terms of conscription are being sent to work on the big projects throughout the Union and a large portion of the gap is expected to be filled by young men and women who complete their school years.

Just how additional foreign credit is to be obtained the Government Finance Commissariat has not yet revealed, but this matter apparently does not seem to be worrying the authorities at the present moment.

Chinese Buccaneers Lose Fight To Police

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9.— Vernacular newspapers to-day described an engagement between native water police and a band of pirates near the mouth of the Yangtse river Saturday in which at least thirty buccaneers and an undetermined number of policemen were killed.

As a result, authorities declared a blockade of the river mouth, undertaking to examine all craft entering and leaving the Yangtse whose identity is not clearly established.

The vernacular press said a virtual stoppage of small boat coastwise trade has resulted from the operations of a band of more than 1,000 brigands near the river mouth. In addition, the newspapers said, the Pirates have ravaged small islands in that area.

C. S. CUMMER IS GUEST SPEAKER

Address "Hi-Y" Club in Fourth of Series of Vocational Talks.

WEEKLY MEETING.

"In establishing a bank it is absolutely necessary to have the confidence of the community," pointed out C. S. Cummer, manager of the George Street branch of the Bank of Montreal, in speaking to the Hi-Y Club of the Y.M.C.A. at their regular weekly supper meeting. This talk was the fourth in a series of Vocational Guidance talks which is being given the club.

Mr. Cummer outlined in a very illuminating way the regular routine work of the bank. He gave an explanation how the banks made loans to advantage. The officials were guided principally by the applicant's honesty and past record in the community. He showed how it was necessary to put the deposits "to work" in order to take care of relative costs in operation and the payments dividends.

The speaker dealt at length with the matter of entrance and promotion and gave several instances where juniors who thought they were the hardest worked and poorest paid people in the business world, worked their way to the top through study and serious application to their respective tasks.

In view of the oncoming examinations at the Collegiate, the club will not meet until December 22, when they will conduct a Christmas party at the Y, and bring Christmas cheer to the needy.

NEW SYSTEM DEMONSTRATED TO AUDIENCE

Miss Kathleen Snider Instructress to Pupils of City's Public Schools.

PLEASING PROGRAM.

Central Home and School Association Holds Regular Monthly Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of Central Home and School Association was held last evening in the Kindergarten room of the school. The room was filled to capacity with an interested audience of parents and friends. K. S. Wightman, principal, presided, and the meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada" in unison.

The main item of a splendid program was the demonstrations by pupils of musical knowledge as taught by Miss Kathleen Snider in our various schools in the city. Pupils of Miss Doughty's room and Mr. Frost's room also assisted in the program, which received rapt attention by the large audience.

Mr. Wightman introduced Miss Snider, who spoke briefly in a pleasing and clear manner about what she termed new development of music work in our city schools. This work of teaching in groups, she explained, had only been going on for one year in Peterborough, but it is ten years since it started in Canada, fifteen years in the U.S.A., and in the Old Country for a much longer period. Great success and rapid progress is achieved in most cases. Instead of first learning the notes as in the old method, the pupils are taught intervals first, and a demonstration of this was given. The rapidity with which these small pupils, aged six and seven, named the intervals was amazing, and the same thing happened in demonstrating rythm.

Some of the pupils in Central School who have only been taking lessons since September gave splendid renditions on the piano.

They were: "On the Bridge," Bernice Newman; "Now the day is over," Raymond Routley; "In the moonlight," Joan Eldred; "Good King Wenceslaus," Sylvia Boorman; "Teeter Totter," Bobby Dyer.

Pupils from other schools who are a stage further on also played well and reflected great credit on their teacher.

These included: "Summer Days," Phyllis Simpson; duet, Donald and Fred Helson; "Daisy Chain," Ruth Telford; "Long, long ago," Effie Saunders; duet, Ruth Telford and Davis Graham; "Hungarian Dance," Davis Graham.

An improvisation of "Silent Night" was cleverly played by Billy Shoesenberg.

A rhythm orchestra with Miss Snider at the piano concluded this part of the very interesting program, which highly delighted the parents, who heartily applauded each number.

Other numbers on the program were:

A vocal solo by Betty Puffer, accompanied by Donald Helson, and a vocal duet by Lenore Lewis and Isabel Skitch, accompanied by Miss Olive Rowe. This latter number received a well-earned encore.

Pupils of Mr. Frost's room gave a delightful Christmas motion song, which was sung in splendid unison and received great applause. Phyllis Pink played the accompaniment on the piano.

Dickens' Christmas Carol, always a favorite, was given as a dialogue by some of the pupils of Miss Doughty's room, and the different characters were amazingly well-acted, and reflected great credit on the teacher.

Those taking part were: Norman Green as Scrooge; Rhoderick McGinnis, Bob Cratchit; Elgin White and Fred Gunn, two business men; Ted Edwards, nephew; Lloyd Louden, messenger; Bill Ferguson, announcer.

Mr. Frost's room won the banner for having the largest representation of parents present.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Miss Olive Rowe made a splendid accompanist on the piano for the opening and closing exercises.

The members met for a short business session at the conclusion of the musical program. Mrs. D. G. Eldred presided. The minutes of last business meeting were read by Mrs. S. Gibbs and adopted. Mrs. P. Gray, treasurer, gave a financial statement, which was highly satisfactory. Mrs. Buller gave a report from the Flower Committee. It was announced that much relief work has been done by the association recently.

A communication from Mrs. Edwards, president of the Home and School Council, was read, inviting the members to attend a lecture by Dr. Conboy, dental surgeon, of Toronto, to be given on Thursday of this week.

TELEPHONE CASE HEARD BY BOARD

Judgment is Reserved in South Monaghan Telephone Case.

375 SUBSCRIBERS CHANGED.

"We want to help the municipal telephone systems as much as possible and will give them every protection. We do not wish to do anything that will interfere with that system," stated Commissioner McKeown, of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board during the hearing of an application under Section 95 of "The Telephone Act" at the Court-House here yesterday afternoon.

John Douglas, wholesale grain merchant, with his office and warehouse at Fraserville, was the applicant for an order prescribing the terms and conditions upon which the respondents, the Millbrook Rural Telephone Company, Limited, shall furnish the applicant with service. The decision of the Board was reserved.

Three months ago Mr. Douglas was cut off from the Millbrook Rural Telephone Company, from which system he had enjoyed telephone service to about 375 subscribers, the most of whom were farmers with whom he was doing business.

For such service Mr. Douglas paid $15.00. In being disconnected from the Millbrook system he was forcibly connected with South Monaghan Municipal System with 75 subscribers, with no railway station except at a charge.

Applicant will thus be obliged to pay ten cents for each call into Millbrook, while his customers who wish to get into communication with him will be likewise affected.

J. W. Pickup of Toronto represented the township of South Monaghan.

PLANES TRANSPORT FISH.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Dec. 9. — Airplane transportation as a means of bringing out the Northland's fish catch will commence this week when Capt. W. Broatch, pilot for the Brooks Transportation Company, will arrive here from Lac La Ronge with a cargo of whitefish. His plane is equipped to carry 1,200 pounds of fish and will make three trips weekly.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 14 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

For a week Tarzan roamed the jungle with his new friends. When he was convinced he had succeeded in fixing his identity upon them, he decided to go on with some well-laid plans. He believed that Rokoff had sailed directly to the mainland. There it would be easy for him to deliver the son of Tarzan into the hands of cannibal foster-parents, as his note had threatened.

A cannibal! His little boy a savage man-eater! It was too horrible to contemplate. The filed teeth, the slit nose, the little face painted hideously. Tarzan groaned. As he moved slowly through the jungle, his mind absorbed by his gloomy thoughts, there presently came to his ears a strange scratching sound which he could not translate. Cautiously he moved toward it.

He came upon a huge panther pinned beneath a fallen tree. As Tarzan approached, the snarling beast struggled anew to free himself. The ape-man stood before the helpless creature and fitted an arrow to his bow. A sudden whim stayed his hand. Why rob the creature of life when it would be so easy to restore its liberty? He stepped closer to the pinioned animal. It seemed uninjured.

On his lips was the soothing, purring sound that the great cats themselves make when they are contented and happy. The panther ceased his snarling and eyed the ape-man closely, questioningly. Tarzan put a broad shoulder beneath the tree trunk, and as he did so, his bare leg pressed against the panther's silken side. The great tree rose gradually under Tarzan's giant muscles.

NOW IT'S YOUR TURN

Conditions around Bobcaygeon are surely serious! A farmer who visited the city last week spoke of the great lack of water for stock that one farm owner built a raft, loaded his cows on this contrivance, and floated them five miles down the river to drink! The teller of this story kept a serious demeanor while relating the experience.

PANSIES IN VOGUE

Not to be outdone by the caller at this office yesterday, who left a buttonhole of pansies, Fred Smith of 54½ James street, called here this morning with an equally large number, and dropped them on the desk with the exclamation, "He is not the only one who can grow pansies in December."

CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND

The Examiner wishes to acknowledge with thanks the sum of $2 as a contribution from Charles Duggan, Stewart street, for its Christmas Cheer Fund.

FIRE ON MARK STREET

The Fire Department was called out to a fire at 435 Mark street at 9.25 this morning for a fire caused by overheated pipes. The damage was evidently not considerable as nothing has been reported of losses.

ERECTING STREET LIGHTS

For many days past now the local stores have been displaying all kinds of attractive merchandise in anticipation of the Christmas shopping period, which always gets more intensive as the great annual event draws ever near and nearer.

To-day, employees of the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission commenced the task of stringing the city's main thoroughfare with vari-colored eelctric lights; meanwhile the temperature has taken a marked upward rise, bringing with it weather more in accord with the spring of the year, instead of winter.

The Chief of the Peterborough Fire Department wishes to draw the attention of shoppers to the danger incurred by leaving baby carriages in the lobby way of a store during the rush season. There is a by-law against this practice, and its legitimacy may readily be seen when one considers what would happen if every parent were to deposit their young charge in places where people were rushing frantically to and fro. Murder, suffocation, strangulation, fire and concussion would result. Therefore the chief makes the plea for the co-operation of the mothers in this matter.

OLIVER BELL WINS BROWN STORE LAMP

Sixty-one Competed in the Aladdin Lamp Contest.

Oliver C. Bell of R.R. No. 4 Peterborough, won the Aladdin lamp presented by the Brown Hardware Company, Simcoe street, to the writer of the most original fifty-word paragraph regarding the Aladdin lamp and its good qualities.

In a contest in which sixty-one people competed, Mr. Bell's effort was judged the best, and one of these handsome Aladdin table lamps will be awarded to him.

The contest was interesting, and many of the paragraphs showed decided originality. Honorable mention was made of the efforts of Mrs. W. Parrington, R.R. No. 3, Peterborough; T. H. Blanchard of 529 Homewood avenue; I. Boddison of 576 Wolfe street, and ten-year-old Verda Northey of R.R. No. 3, Peterborough.

Miss Cathleen McCarthy of The Examiner staff judged the essays.

The Brown Hardware Company will award the lamp to the winner. They are agents in the city for this lamp, which is evidently regarded by the people of this district as being a very fine adjunct to their farm home furnishings.

MISSION BAND GIVES CONCERT

Splendid Children's Program Given in St. James' Church S. S. Hall.

PLEASING NUMBERS.

A splendid children's concert was staged last night by the St. James' Mission Band in the Sunday School Hall, before a large and appreciative audience.

Rev. A. E. Moorhouse acted as chairman, introducing a varied and entertaining program, which was preceded by a number of Christmas hymns played by Miss Hazel Reesor, president of the Band.

The initial number was a piano solo by Isabel Middleton, followed by several readings, interspersed with vocal selections. The recitations on Christmas and missionary themes were pleasingly given by Band members, as follows: "A Christmas wish," Beth Melrose; "He loves them all," Marilyn Plunkett; "Christmas," Eileen Doig; "Christmas Bells," Jean Whitney; "Little Children of Japan," Alma Carter; "Santa Claus' Supper," Lavina Lowes. Fine vocal work was also done by the members in solo and duet; "A Christmas Song," Alvin Lowes; duet, Marion and Irene McAdams; duet, "Silent Night," Hazel and Bessie Reesor; duet, "While Shepherds Watched," Irene McAdams and Bessie Reesor.

A pageant, "Three Kings of the Orient," was beautifully portrayed by Hazel and Bessie Reesor, Dora and Lavine Lowes and Irene McAdams.

These same five girls gave a seasonable little sketch entitled "The Christmas Prayer."

"Christmas" was a little exercise well given by nine juniors, including Alma and Walter Baldry, Reta Hess, Alvin Lowes, Walter Douglass, Laura Lee, Lorraine Fowler, Lorne and Earl Bullock.

A piano solo by Norma May was also excellently rendered.

"A Christmas Eve Dream," a playlet, was presented by a group impersonating "Mother Goose" characters, who proved to be real missionaries as well. The cast was as follows: Kenneth and Chalmers Gillespie, Marion McAdams, Vera Dunk, Jimmy Nicholson, Lorne Casey, Jean Whitney, Hazel Palmer, Frances McMahon, Alma Carter, Norma May, Billy Rudd and Elmer Douglass.

Assisting the Band were the following visiting performers:

The popular little Betty Irwine, as usual, delighted her audience with her vocal solos, "Silent Night" and "If I had a talking picture of you," both calling for encores.

Fine humorous readings, including "Vespers," and "Baby's Teeth," with encores, were contributed by little Barbara Miller.

Barrie Jack, in his usual good form, gave several readings and recalls, among which were "The Girl Next Door" and "Calling Willie."

In a short address Rev. Mr. Moorhouse spoke of the work of the Mission Band, congratulating them upon their high standing in the Presbyterial, saying that in a financial way only two other Bands exceeded St. James'. He commended the spiritual and missionary side of the work to the parents, urging their continued co-operation.

Congratulations were also offered to the leader, Miss Connie Wagar, and her efficient assistants for the excellence of their first concert.

Miss Muriel Moorhouse was accompanist for the Band selections, while Isabel Middleton and Hazel Reesor also accompanied other singers.

The concluding number was a mass chorus by the Band, "We are a Missionary Band," followed by God Save the King.

OBITUARY

MRS. VICTOR LANG

The funeral of the late Mrs. Victor Lang was held yesterday afternoon with a short service conducted by Adjutant Jones at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Hedge 693 Water street thence to Salvation Army Temple, where a large number of friends of the deceased gathered to pay their last respects to one who will be sadly missed by all who knew her. Adjutant Jones in a few words spoke of Mrs. Lang's faithful service to her Master and church, her cheerful disposition and readiness at all times to help others to follow Christ and also to lend a helping hand when and where needed. "Our deepest sympathy" said Adjutant Jones, "goes out at this time, to her sorrowing husband and bereaved parents."

Prayers were offered by Sergt. Major Scott and Mrs (Commandant) White of Orillia, where Mrs. Lang had resided last winter. Brigadier Greene of Toronto also spoke of Mrs. Lang's faithful service. "Norah, as she was known to all of us, had lived a good Christian life and has now gone on to her reward, where pain, sorrow and weary feelings are not even known, and to be with the Redeemer."

Mrs. Ensign Clark of Smith's Falls also spoke of the deceased having been a very dear friend of Mrs. Lang for a number of years. Sergt. Major Braund and Bandmaster F. Robinson also led in prayer.

The pall bearers were H. Young, B. Young, H. Parnell, H. Payton, W. Butcher, J. Custance. Interment took place in the Little Lake Cemetry.

FOURTEEN GIRLS JOIN SODALITY

Bishop O'Connor Addresses the Candidates at Impressive Ceremony.

BADGES ARE PRESENTED.

The reception of a number of candidates into the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin, of St. Peter's Cathedral, was a very impressive ceremony of last night. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor addressed the Sodalists and they were presented with the ribbon and badge of the order, by the rector, the Rev. P. Costello.

Nineteen girls were received into the Sodality, as new members. In company with about eighty of the members of the society, they marched in procession from St. Mary's Convent to the Cathedral, wearing white veils and singing the hymn to the Blessed Virgin, entitled "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother." The banner was carried by the president, Miss Geraldine Collins, and the streamers were borne by the Misses Kay Doyle, Margaret Conners, Helen Carson, and Norah Killen.

After being interrogated by the president as to their wishes, the candidates were presented with their ribbons and badges by Father Costello.

The Bishop then addressed them, giving them a beautifully-worded eloquent discourse on the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception. The promulgation of this doctrine was observed by the Catholic Church yesterday, throughout Christendom. Then His Lordship spoke to them on the virtues of the Mother of God, exhorting them to take the Blessed Lady as their model and to strive to imitate her in every way throuzhout life.

With Miss Hurley presiding at the organ, the Sodalists then sang the hymn to the Sacred Heart, "I Need Thee Every Hour."

Other priests in the sanctuary were the Rev. K. Corkery, the Rev. J. Finn, and the Rev. Dr. Masterson.

WOODMEN OF WORLD SELECTS OFFICERS

Banner Year is Being Looked For in 1931 By the Lodge.

The annual meeting of the Woodmen of the World was held last evening, at which the officers who are to assume the duty of conducting the affairs of the organization during the ensuing twelve months were selected as follows:

C.C., Sov. Wm. Dummitt; Adv. Lt., Sov. C. Crouter; Banker, Sov. J. L. Bath (accl.); Clerk, Sov. C. W. Wiggins (accl.); Escort, Sov. H. J. Dummitt; Watchman, Sov. T. R. Howard; Sentry, Sov. H. J. Killingbeck; Managers: Sovs. E. J. Waterman, C. Tucker, D. Andrews; P.C.C., Sov. A. Murray; Physicians, Dr. J. A. Morgan and Dr. T. G. Louden.

These officers, along with District Deputy Fred Sutcliffe, are looking ahead to a banner year in 1931.

During the business session, the Yuletide season and its needs for assistance to make it brighter for several less fortunate people, was discussed, and decisive action was taken on the matter.

Following the business, the members sat down to supper and finished up the proceedings with a real old time dance.

WEDDINGS

IRWINE—FULLBROOKE

The marriage took place at the parsonage of St. Paul's Church on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 6 of Mrs. Nellie Fullbrooke, of Peterborough, to Mr. Alexander Irwine, also of this city, Rev. Wm. Allen officiated. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers, of 145 Rubidge St. The bride was charming in a gown of brown georgette, with chiffon velvet trimming, and shoes, hose and hat to match. The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely Italian silk bedspread, and that of the bride to the groom a gold watch and chain. The groom's gift to the best man was a pair of gold cuff links and to the bridesmaid a gold locket and chain. Many beautiful gifts from friends of the happy couple showed the esteem in which they are held. The reception room at the bride's home was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and roses.

Supper was served by Mrs. McCarthy, daughter of the bride, assisted by Mrs. Bert Gash, the table being decorated with the colors of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwine will reside at 301 King Street.

Plaintiff Awarded Claim For Damages

Arising out of an accident near McCracken's Landing last August, in which a taxi owned by Joseph Stewart of this city, ran into and injured a horse belonging to Frank Harding, farmer of Dummer. His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, K.C., awarded plaintiff Harding damages amounting to $63.33.

Plaintiff's claim was for $120.00 and costs.

His Honor is giving judgment said that there was evidence of negligence on both sides.

The horse had broken loose from a field and had run across the roadway in the direct pathway of defendant's automobile. As a result of it's injuries the animal was shot.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for plaintiff, while J. F. Strickland, M.L.A., acted in the interests of the defendant.

MAYOR IS HOST

that painted by some of the depressionists.

"Peterborough is indeed a fortunate city because of the diversity of its industries", and to illustrate his point the Mayor compared unemployment conditions here to those that exist in other cities in Canada and the United States. "I believe that we can win our way back to the prosperity of 1929. To do that will require the co-operation of every citizen. It will require hardwork and courage. Too, we must all buy Made-in-Peterborough goods and from our own merchants. We must not raise up our arms and shout blue ruin.

"I have been requested by citizens of all classes to again allow my name to go before the electors for the mayoralty. I have decided to do so. Having gone through three years when things have been generally good, I consider it my duty to at least offer my services to the city when the going promises to be rough.

Support the Winner

"Any alderman who wishes to run has every right to do so," stated Mayor Denne. "If he wins the election I can assure him my every support. To me it is Peterborough, and I am bound to help to make the city what our fatners said it might become."

Amid rounds of applause Mayor Denne concluded his brief address. Hardly had he sat down when Alderman George A. Macdonald rose to his feet to express the apparent feeling of the gathering. He stated his pleasure at the Mayor's announcement. "I consider him an ideal mayor," Alderman Macdonald stated of Mayor Denne. "He has never been afraid of work, and has labored at all hours for the city's welfare. He has made the men with him in the Council work also.

"I believe that all citizens will appreciate the stand the Mayor has taken, when they know the motives that have actuated his decision," concluded Alderman Macdonald, moving a vote of thanks to His Worship for the dinner.

City Needs a Leader

Rising to second the motion, Alderman J. D. Fitzpatrick expressed the same strong appreciation of Mayor Denne's work and worth to the city. "Peterborough needs a leader, and I consider him a real leader," Alderman Fitzpatrick declared. "It is men like him that we need. Someone who has the courage to act fearlessly in facing the big problems that are looming for next year's City Council, and Mayor Denne is that man."

The Mayor's dinner itself was a quiet informal affair, marked by genial goodfellowship and free of all speeches. Mrs. G. D. McClelland enlivened the entertainment with several readings given in her own inimitable style. With several reels of moving pictures, Fred L. Roy carried the audience to the Children's Fresh Air Camp at Jackson's Park, to the wilds of Northern Ontario on a hunting party in November with Dr. F. C. Neal, J. K. Hughes and himself and to the Rotary Boys' Camp on Clear Lake. Also Mr. Roy's reels of film showed the local water being restocked with game fish as a result of the Game and Fisheries Department carrying out the earnest wishes of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association.

CHRISTMAS FUND WILL HELP MANY

go out and buy something a little tastier. Those who have little food or no food and nothing with which to buy it, are glad to see a peck of potatoes or a bag of rolled oats or a little bacon. They want milk for the crying children and it is noticeable that these poverty-stricken homes are often the ones where the family is the largest.

And what about illness? There are the many disabilities that follow war service, the congested lungs filled with poison gas that eats away the strength, the dread clutch of diabetes, the flutter of a lagging and stricken heart. There are many women who go out daily to work and then come home to look after a sick man and two or three or more children. Those who turn up their noses at dirty, poor homes, should remember that it takes fuel to make fires with which to heat water, and it takes money to buy soap. Often there is only one decent set of cloth for each member. How can they wash them often and still keep covered?

So it goes, in these homes where the wolf and the stork seem to work in turn; where there are bare cupboards and crying children with white, pinched faces; where there is no work for the man who, often enough, can do nothing but the roughest sort of manual labor, and can't get that to do; where there is illness and no money to buy medicine; where there are crippled limbs and twisted bodies. The civic authorities, the many relief organizations and kind-hearted private individuals do much, but there is plenty left to do.

If every able-bodied man and woman in the city would contribute even a quarter of a dollar to the Christmas Cheer Fund, it would mean a very large amount for distribution on the great festival.

The Examiner is asking its kind-hearted readers to donate to its Christmasc Fund, in any way, with money or food, fuel or toys or clothing.

The Examiner Social Club is organizing a dance for next Tuesday night, December 16th, in the Canadian Legion Hall, and the funds from this will be used for the same Fund, to buy Christmas dinners for the needy of the city.

Great Fire Hazard At Christmas Time

The local Fire Department has drawn attention to a letter just received from the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association concerning the Christmas decorations.

Decorations, such as draperies, scenery, cotton to represent snow, etc. in proximity to lighting arrangements add greatly to the ordinary risks of fire. Should a fire result, the flames would spread very rapidly to the adjacent inflammable materials and cause a panic and mob stampede, thus endangering life and limb.

Precautions must therefore be taken where large numbers of people and particularly of children congregate. The flimsy decorations should not be hung near or over heating and lighting devices, steampipes, stovepipes, electric light bulbs, etc. The electric circuits should be properly fused and not overloaded by the additional voltage from extra lights. The fire extinguisher appliances should be examined, sufficient in number, in good order, and readily accessible. All exists should be plainly marked and not made inaccessible. All temporary decorations should be removed and safely disposed of when they have served their purpose. Constant care and viligance must be exercised in order not to mar the festive season.

Two Noted Speakers Are Coming To City

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce will have the privilege of hearing two noted speakers early next near, to which lectures the public will be cordially invited.

One of the speakers is T. B. Loblaw, president of the famous chain of grocery stores. Mr. Loblaw is an outstanding Canadian who has just completed a tour of the continent, and who gave encouraging reports to the press, in which he gave his opinions of the present industrial depression and contends that prosperity is not far away.

In February Elmer Davis, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, will honor the Chamber with a visit and address. Mr Davis comes from Kingston, and is a widely known manufacturing and business man. In speaking on the general subject of trade protection some time ago, he said that protection is on trial in Canada now and the benefit certain to accrue to the country as a whole from its proper application must not be impaired in any way by the improper use of the people for a system of national welfare. Mr. Davis will mostly likely have more to say concerning the matter, and the citizens of this city will accord him and Mr Loblaw a hearty welcome.

Australia-Canada Pact to Aid Trade

IMPERIAL PARLEY TOTAL FAILURE SAYS GEN. SMUTS

Claims Conference Disappointment to Every Member of Commonwealth.

BRITAIN BEST MARKET.

Warns Gov't Not to Tamper Again With British Preferences.

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa, Dec. 10 (C.P. Cable via Reuters).—"The Imperial Conference was a complete failure from the economic point of view," declared General Jan Christian Smuts, leader of the Opposiotn in the South African Parliament, and former Prime Minister, to-day.

"What might have been the most brilliant and successful of all Imperial Conferences ended in disillusionment and disappointment for every part of our Commonwealth of Nations," he told the Annual Congress of the South African Party, of which he is the head.

Wonderful Chance Passed

"If the final settlement of Dominion status had gone hand in hand with a great gesture of friendship and comradeship, and with the holding out and grasping of helpful hands all around in this common hour of trial, what a landmark this conference would have been in the history of the Empire."

Premier Hertzog spoke in this city a few days ago and said that if South Africa failed to gain a wider market for her products within the Empire, in reasonable time, she would have to revise her economic structure.

General Smuts to-day said he did not believe commercial motives were a safe link between the members of the Commonwealth, but he did believe in a co-operative Commonwealth. "In severing the old bonds we should not leave a dangerous void," he declared. "The old bonds should be replaced by a new spirit of co-operation and helpfulness in our mutual relations.

"I am sure the spirit is there, but it is a thousand pities it found no expression at the Imperial Conference, and that a sense of soreness was left instead."

Britain Best Market

General Smuts emphasized that Great Britain was South Africa's best market, and that no substitute would be found for many years to come. He denounced the trade treaty between the Union and Germany as an abject failure. He warned the Government, which he understood was preparing a number of similar treaties with other countries, not to tamper again with the British preferences, which would be the Government's most powerful weapon for extending South Africa's market in Great Britain.

The German-South African trade treaty is on a "most-favored nation" basis, and similar treaties with Holland and France have been mooted. It is understood various difficulties are holding up the ratification of the latter treaties.

TWO THUGS GET $50

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 10. — Fleeing from a fusillade of revolver shots fired by their victim, two youthful bandits made their escape with $50 in cash after holding up a candy store last night and exchanging shots with the proprietor, R. A. Heather. A bullett from the bandit's gun passed through Heather's top coat and grazed his leg.

Plan Midnight Show For Examiner Fund

J. A. Stewart, manager of the Capitol Theatre, has very generously offered to present a Midnight Show next week, on Thursday, December 18, in co-operation with The Examiner, for the benefit of the unemployed of the city and The Examiner's Christmas Cheer Fund. One of the energetic relief organizations of the city will also co-operate in selling the tickets and will share in the proceeds.

The theatre promises a high-class program, to commence at half-past eleven o'clock on Thursday night. Tickets will be 50 cents each. These midnight performances are very popular and provide a splendid entertainment for the patrons. This particular one will have the added zest of contributing pleasure and the satisfaction of helping along a very worthy cause.

BART KENNEDY DIES IN LONDON

Author Brought Up in Manchester Slum Known Both Sides of Atlantic.

CURIOSLY MIXED CAREER.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—Bart Kennedy, author and lecturer, who was brought up in a Manchester slum and picked up his education knocking around the world, died yesterday in a mental home. He will be well remembered on both sides of the Atlantic by those who remember when Alfred Harmsworth, afterwards Lord Northcliffe, first vigorously stirred Fleet Street.

Bart, after 20 years in the factories of Manchester, where he was working half-time at the age of six years, went to sea. He lived for a time in the north of Vancouver Island "with all the salmon and deer we could eat and one day's work a week as a collier, to get tobacco and whiskey." He tried the stage, with no success, in America.

Wrote Many Books

Returning to London, Bart was enthusiastically taken up by Harmsworth. His staccato style of writing had an attractiveness, and he was author of many books. Eventually Kennedy and Harmsworth had a disagreement; Kennedy, apparently with the futile idea of harassing his former patron, started his own weekly paper.

Bart Kennedy had a curiously mixed career. Probably it would best be described as being built upon sand. But in any event Kennedy obviously enjoyed every minute of it until two years ago, when his wife died and he became a mental wreck.

He was 69 years of age.

Destitute Settlers Worrying Australia

LONDON, Dec. 10 (C. P. Cable).—The plight of more than 200 settlers in the State of Victoria, who went out under an Australian-English land scheme seven years ago, and are now asserted to be in a state of destitution, was brought up in the House of Commons last night. Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions, said the British Government could not be held responsible. "We certainly approved the scheme," he said, "but we made our contribution and there should be equal responsibility on the part of the Dominions."

The Minister explained that Prime Minister J. H. Scullin of Australia had stated during the Imperial Conference that an inquiry would be instituted by the Australian Government, which would do whatever was possible in the matter.

MOLONEY HOPES TO SEE TREATY SOON CONCLUDED

Delegate to London Conference Expected in Ottawa on Saturday.

WILL MEET GOV'T HEADS.

Favors 100 Per Cent. Compulsory Pool With Gov't Backing Minimum Price Guarantee.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10. — Trade between Canada and Australia will be very materially increased if present plans for a revision of the trade agreement between the two countries are carried out, Hon. Parker J. Moloney, Minister of Markets for Australia, today told the Canadian Press.

Mr. Moloney, who was one of the Australian delegates to the recent Imperial Conference, will arrive in Ottawa on Saturday and will remain there three days in conference with heads of the Dominion Government.

Hopeful Of Agreement

Mr. Moloney was hopeful that a mutually satisfactory trade agreement between Canada and Australia would be concluded and put into operation soon. At the conclusion of the Ottawa Conference he will report to his Government, and he anticipates that steps to put the new agreement into almost immediate operation will then be taken. Mr. Moloney declined to say in advance of the conference just what items are likely to be most affected by the new treaty.

No revision of existing preferential tariff rates which would in any way adversely affect Great Britain would be made in the agreement, Mr. Moloney said. As a result of the Imperial Conference all preferential rates between Great Britain and the Dominions were left as before, he explained, and, though there was nothing in writing to prohibit it, he felt that inter-Dominion preferences would be left as before at least until after the Economic Conference in Ottawa next summer.

Parley a Success.

Regarding the Imperial Conference, Mr. Moloney declared he refused to share the pessimistic views which had been expressed lby some other delegates. He felt, he said, that the Conference had been successful. His own country had retained its tariff preferences along with the others. Further, he added, the fact that the economic side of the conference had been adjourned to Ottawa next summer indicated a growing interest and a growing feeling for intra-Empire trade.

"I think the time has arrived when the Dominions should come to closer grips," Mr. Moloney said, "and I think I am expressing the feeling of my Government when I say its feeling is that trade should be kept as far as possible within the family group."

Mr. Maloney will go to Washington to-morrow, where he will confer with heads of the Federal Farm Board, with especial reference to the wheat

OFFICERS FOIL DYNAMITE PLOT

Anarchists Caught Placing Bomb Under Bridge to Wreck President's Train.

FOUR ARRESTED.

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, December 10 (C.P.). — An attempt against the lives of President Colonel Carlos Ibanez and members of his party was thwarted last night by Government agents who discovered and removed a bomb set to blow up the Presidential train as it neared the capital from the south.

Police and Government detectives, who had been watching the development of an "anarchist" plot against the President and his Government for days, watched while the conspirators placed ten kilos of dynamite under the railroad bridge across the Rio Maipo, 30 kilometers southwest of Santiago, and then dismantled the charge before the President's train passed over it.

At least four persons have been arrested. Their names were not learned.

New Directors for Canadian National Probably Named Within Next Two Weeks

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 10.—(CP)—Appointment of the personnel of the new directorate of the Canadian National Railways will probably be made within the next two weeks. For some time, this matter has been engaging official consideration.

Sir Henry Thornton, president of the system, will undoubtedly be on the new board. Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, V. I. Smart, will probably be one the directorate, while Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress, is likely to be reappointed as representative of Labor. From New Brunswick, J. D. Palmer, Fredericton may be selected, with James Cumming of the Cumming Manufacturing Company as representative from Nova Scotia. Fyfe Smith and Thomas Kirk, M.L.A. both of Vancouver are mentioned among the possible selections to give British Columbia a representative.

REV CANON ALLEN IS LAID TO REST IN IDA CEMETERY

Hundreds Pay Last Respect to Veteran Anglican Clergyman.

RURAL DEAN IN CHARGE.

Body Rested in Chancel of St. Thomas Church, Millbrook, For Two Hours.

MILLBROOK, December 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — A simple dignity, in keeping with the character of a clergyman widely loved and mourned, marked the funeral service of the Rev. William Cartwright Allen, Canon of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, and former rector of the parish of Millbrook and Cavan, which took place at St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook, on Tuesday, the body resting in the chancel from twelve o'clock noon until two p.m., in order that the large number of parishioners and other friends who desired to look upon the face of a beloved minister for the last time, might have the privilege of doing so.

As Rural Dean, Rev. A. T. Weir, of Omemee, had charge of the service, the Venerable Archdeacon J. C. Davidson being present as the representative of His Lordship Right Rev. J. F. Sweeny, Bishop of Toronto, who keenly regretted his inability to to be present. Other clergymen representative of the Diocese of Toronto, including Archdeacon Warren, and also representative of the entire Deanery, church wardens of the four congregations of the parish, representatives of the Synod, including R. W. Allen, secretary-treasurer, and members of the executive were present, to do honor to one who had given his life with solicitude and devotion to the work of his beloved parish, as well as to the wider interests of the Kingdom.

William Cartwright Allen was the second of the eight sons of the late Venerable Archdeacon Thomas W. Allen, M.A., D.C.L., who celebrated his diamond jubilee during fifty-two years of service as rector of the parish of Millbrook and Cavan. Born at Millbrook seventy-eight years ago, Mr. Allen received his early Public and High School education at his home town, Lindsay, and Omemee, and afterward attended Trinity College School, Port Hope, winning the First Scholarship of his year, 1869. Later, as an undergraduate of Trinity College, Toronto, he won both classical and divinity prizes, taking his B.A. degree in 1874, and his M.A. in 1877; his ordination to the Diaconate took place in the follow-

Three Applications For Naturalization

Three applications for naturalization were entered before His Honor Judge Huycke yesterday afternoon. One was made by Daniel George A. Sloane, native of Alsace-Lorraine, and a teacher of modern languages and the other two came from two Italians, Francisco Di Lauro Vito and Alfred Peppe.

Judge Huycke intimated that there was no apparent reason why naturalization should not be granted Sloane and Peppe, but the fact that Vito's wife was still in Italy and that he was not very well educated in English might prevent him from becoming a Canadian citizen. His Honor emphasized the great work of conferring British citizenship and stated that the applicants must realize that they were asking a great gift.

POULTRY SHOW IS CALLED OFF

First Time in 23 Years Winter Exhibit Will Not Be Held.

ECONOMIC REASONS.

For the first time in twenty-three years, Peterborough will not have a poultry show this winter.

Such was the decision reluctantly arrived at by members of the Peterborough Poultry Association at last night's regular meeting after the situation had been discussed from every angle and the prospects carefully reviewed. It was the opinion of those present that having regard to the economic conditions at present it would be inadvisable to attempt to hold a show this winter. Some hope was entertained that later on in 1931, say next December, it might be found possible to have a show in order that the yearly record might not be broken but even that is by no means certain at present.

The Peterborough Poultry Association has held a poultry show here every winter for twenty-two years in succession, and the event has gained a most enviable reputation among poultry men throughout the country. The annual show, while not receiving the support from the general public that its excellence merited, has nevertheless attracted a very large number of fine birds, and it is a matter of regret that financial conditions at this time have made it necessary to abandon the event for the present.

Outside of the show itself, the Association will carry on its usual activities during the winter. Regular meetings will be held, lectures arranged, and the customary program aimed at improving the quality of the poultry produced in this section of Ontario will be completed. The Association regrets most sincerely that circumstances have rendered the cancellation of this winter's show necessary and still hopes that before next year has passed that a show can be arranged.

$60,000 BOATHOUSE FIRE

PORT CARLING, Ont., Dec. 10.—(CP)—Damage of approximately $60,000 was caused by a spectacular fire which broke out in a large storage boathouse here, owned by the Duke Motor Boat service. Splendid work of a bucket brigade formed by nearby residents saved surrounding buildings. Only $3,000 insurance was carried on the building and contents.

COBOURG RAISES BUILDING RENTAL, PORT HOPE BIDS

Rental For Buildings Occupied By County Increased to $5,937.

WELCOME IN PORT HOPE.

December Session of United Counties' Council Opens in Cobourg.

(By Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Dec. 10.—"If Cobourg is not satisfied with what these United Counties are paying for the use of this building, Port Hope will be delighted to accommodate the Council for the same money we are paying now," said Deputy-Reeve Sinnott of Port Hope, at the opening session of the Council of United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

The Counties' lease of the sections of the municipal building which they use, expires at the end of this year. For ten years the annual rental has been $2,000, and as renewal of the tenancy becomes necessary, Cobourg has simply raised the rent to $5,937, or roughly $6,000.

Deputy-Reeve J. N. Stone of Campbellford broke the news of the impending chiselling, and the Port Hope representative countered with a bid to transfer the Counties' headquarters to their town.

Mr. Stone related the details of a conference between representatives of the Counties' Council and Cobourg. The town occupies 14,911 square feet of the town hall and the Counties 12,696 square feet. Their percentages are respectively 54 and 46.

Charged to the Counties are the council chamber and committee rooms, offices of the clerk and treasurer; court room, judges offices, barristers' room, sheriff's offices, jurors rooms, offices occupied by George Greer, county road superintendent, and several other rooms.

Valued at $225,000

The town placed a value of $225,000 on the building, and estimated that it should receive 6 per cent on this investment. The counties pay half the heat and light bills in addition to their $2,000 a year rent.

Mr. Stone informed the council that the representatives at the conference had proposed without prejudice an

McNevin Suggests Ways of Improving Farm Conditions

Bruce McNevin, of Omemee, and President of the U.F.O., Delivers His Annual Address as Annual Convention Opens in Toronto.

CHEAPER INTEREST RATES FOR AGRICULTURE REDUCTIONS IN TRANSPORTATION RATES NEEDED

Process of Exchange and Distribution Controlled By Man is Vastly Out of Balance As Far As Agriculture is Concerned President States.

TORONTO, Ont., December 10 (C.P.). — "We must demand a halt to increased-production campaigns," declared Bruce McNevin, of Omemee, Ontario, in his presidential address to the United Farmers of Ontario, opening their annual convention here to-day.

"Expenditures formerly made on production campaigns should be utilized in finding wider markets and giving assistance to the development of farmer-owned and controlled marketing agencies that will provide returns to the primary producer in direct proportion to the quality of his product," Mr. McNevin said.

"Let us unite in the following demands with a view to stabilizing conditions in the country: First, cheaper interest rates for agriculture; second, immediate and substantial reductions in transportation rates; and thirdly, an equalization of values between what the farmer has to buy and what he has to sell."

Bountiful Crops

"Nature was good to the Ontario farmer in the past year and there was a bountiful crop of excellent quality," Mr. McNevin said. But, despite this, there were more complaints of small returns, losses, hard times, and unpaid taxes, than ever before. Then are we not justified in saying that the process of exchange and distribution controlled by man is vastly out of balance so far as agriculture is concerned?" he asked. "The comparison between cereals, livestock and livestock products prices, and the present price of agricultural machinery, look unreasonable to the citizen who has the interest of the community as a whole at heart."

Mr. McNevin declared the United Farmers of Ontario had generally centered their time, energy and finances on the idea of co-operative selling agencies. "While we do not wish to minimise the importance of this, I believe we have three distinct lines that might be followed, each at least equally important, as follows: First, the study of economics as they affect agriculture; second, development dr co-operative selling agencies, and third, the collective purchasing of farm supplies and bulk commodities."

Urges Branded Products

Mr. McNevin stressed the need for branded products and for guaranteeing the quality behind the brand. Quality, a distinguishing brand name, and continuous supply were all necessary, he said.

"The fight for cheaper hydro on the farm must be continued," President McNevin said. "The recent supposed reduction, frequently referred to, as cheaper power for rural Ontario, proves after careful analysis to be a readjustment, not a reduction of rates, based on the principles that you pay less at the beginning of your contract and more in later years, or the same over the full period as you paid over under the old rates."

Adapt New Procedure.

"Adaptation by the farmers of similar procedure that has been so successful in placing organized industry and commerce and organized labor, in the commanding positions they now occupy in the social structure" was urged to-day by J. J. Morrison, in his secretarial report to the United Farmers of Ontario.

Farmers, he said, must realize if they produce they must sell. The folly of dumping their products on the market always recoils upon the producer in a manner detrimental to his

HELD IN HIGH ESTEEM.

His Honor Judge Huycke was the recipient this morning at the opening of the General Sessions of the Peace, of congratulations of esteem from members of the Peterborough Bar Association on this, the twenty-first anniversary, of his elevation to the bench.

R. R. Hall, K.C., G. N. Gordon, K.C., and J. A. O'Brien all joined in expressing their sincere appreciation of the manner in which His Honor had been dispensing justice in Peterborough County during the past twenty-one years. Mr. Hall pointed out the difficulties experienced in the impartial administration of justice and he stated that Judge Huycke enjoyed a distinction for justice and integrity which had always marked his administration. In Judge Huycke's administration of criminal justice, Mr. Hall stated, a deep appreciation of the weaknesses and failings of human nature had always been shown. Four Bank Bandits Get $50,000 Haul

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 10.—Four robbers held up the Interstate National Bank in the Livestock Exchange Building here to-day, and made off with currency estimated between $50,000 and $55,000.

The quartet, unmasked, took charge of the bank when the porter arrived to open the place. Officers and employees arriving for work were greeted with drawn pistols and held in a group until the time lock on the vault permitted its opening.

Before the vault could be opened there were 25 or 30 persons in the group covered by the robbers' guns.

The four men escaped in a motor car.

Policy Failure Seen In Grain Pool Action

LONDON, Dec. 10 (C.P. Cable).—Commenting on the decision of the selling agency for the Canadian Wheat Pools, to close its agencies in London and on the European Continent, the Conservative Morning Post to-day asserted "The new development is considered in London grain circles as a final confession of the failure of the Pool's policy of the last three years." The Post warns the British Government against introducing import boards, which, it says, "would, as purchasers, labor under disadvantages similar to those the Pool has experienced as sellers, and which have ended in disaster."

SHAREHOLDERS CRITICIZE U.F.C. GRAIN TRADING

$32,000 Loss in Grain Options Brings Attack on Directors.

SURPLUS IS $13,011.68.

Miss MacPhail Raps Conservative Stand on New Zealand Butter Question.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 10 (CP)—A resolution condemning grain trading by company officials on the company's behalf was passed by shareholders in the United Farmers' Co-operative Ltd., at their annual meeting here. Much criticism of the directors was voiced after a $32,000 loss in grain options before the resolution was passed.

Officials of the company were restrained from expressing political principles at variance with those of the United Farmers of Ontario by a motion put by Miss Agnes McPhail, M.P. for South East Grey, which was carried. Miss McPhail asserted that letters dealing with New Zealand butter written by V. A. Hooper, the company's creamery manager, had seriously menaced her election in the last common campaign.

Responsibility Denied

The financial report of Mr. Clemes was the start of a long discussion with shareholders criticizing the company's venture into the grain exchanges and demanding to know who was responsible. Director after director and also Mr. Clemes disclaimed responsibility. The nearest approach to placing the blame was the statement of H. A. Gilroy, of Alvinston, the President of the company, who said a manager of the grain department, since dismissed, "might have been to blame."

H. B. Clemes announced that a resolution would be put to the meeting later advocating a ten per cent. reduction in the wages of the staff and directors of the company. The announcement was received favorably by the shareholders.

President Gilroy strongly urged that some means be found to put the company on a strictly co-operative basis. The question was put over and the new Board of Directors instructed to examine the project further.

Membership Dwindled

Membership in the U.F.C. had dwindled from 55,000 to 14,000 in ten years, said President Gilroy. In the meantime hundreds of independent neighborhood co-operatives had sprung up with the result one of the objections of the original organization, mass purchasing and mass marketing of farm products, was being defeated by the co-operative movement itself.

The financial statement showed a new surplus of $13,011.68 for the year ending Sept. 30 last. Every department except the grain department showed a profit, it was stated resulting in a net trading profit of $49,514.85. From this sum the loss on grain options, $32,903.17 and provision for federal income taxes had to be deducted, leaving the net surplus.

Assets totalled $1,289,316, of which $786,865 were current or liquid. Current liabilities totalled $728,926 and the total surplus, including that for the year was $40,464.

Speaking of her motion to restrain officials of United Farmers' Co-operative, Ltd., from expressing political opinions at variance with those of the United Farmers of Ontario, Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., Southeast Grey, attacked the Conservative stand on the New Zealand butter question at the annual meeting of the company.

'As long as a ring of four or five big creameries were doing all the butter importing, it was all right," she said, "but as soon as butter began coming into the country on consignment to other dealers who resold it at lower prices than the ring, then the country had heard a coast-to-coast howl against New Zealand imports," said Miss MacPhail.

Miss MacPhail stated letters written by V. A. Hooper, creamery manager for the co-operatives, had seriously menaced her last election campaign. "One of the letters written by Mr. Hooper was vicious," Miss MacPhail declared. "The shareholders should stop him ever using such language again. It is language no official of the Cooperative Company should use."

Five Are Indicted For First Degree Murder Following 18-Year Girl's Death.

ATHLETES IMPLICATED.

GARY, Ind., Dec. 10—Five Gary youths yesterday were indicted for first degree murder by a grand jury that investigated the death on November 30 of 18 year old Arlene Draves.

Miss Draves was alleged to have been criminally attacked prior to her death. The Indiana law provides the death penalty for a person convicted of petpetrating a criminal attack that results in death.

Those indicted were Virgil Kirkland, 20, former high school football star; David Thompson, 22, in whose home a liquor party is alleged to have been held prior to the girl's death; Leon Stanford, 21, former high school basketball and football star; Henry Shirk, 21, another former high school athlete, and Paul Barton, 21.

REEVE VAN VOLKENBURG SUGGESTS HOLIDAY IN COUNTY ROAD PAVING

"ROADS IN GOOD SHAPE."

Merely Maintain County Roads For the Same Time.

(By Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, December 10. — If George Van Volkenburg, Reeve of Seymour Township, could write the county ticket for 1931 it would be almost a blank.

First, there would be no paving like the Millbrook, Hastings, Wooler, Warkworth, and other jobs that have given the counties enviable stretches of permanent roads. And there wouldn't be much of anything else. The ordinary county road operations would be reduced to the inexpensive activity of merely marking time, just maintaining them in the satisfactory condition which George Greer, the county road superintendent, has accomplished.

That would be for 1931, and then ditto for 1932 if by that time prosperity is not again piping its lyric tunes which the nation, the counties and the farmers have learned and liked during the last fifteen years.

Retrench Road Costs.

What Mr. Van Volkenburg, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Counties Council, suggested was a policy of retrenchment in road costs.

"If I could make a recommendation to next year's Council," he said, "it would be that we cut out paving expenditure for the year, and if necessary for two years until times get better. I feel also that the county road system is in good shape, and the program could be cut down to necessary work only. I think we could save a mill in that way, and make it that much easier for the ratepayers to pay their taxes. Mr. Greer may not pat me on the back for suggesting this, but I think our county roads are in such good condition that we could reduce the expenditure for a year or two."

Reeve George Hancock asked whether a motion embodying this recommendation to the 1931 Council would be in order, but as many of the members will likely be re-elected this formal advice was not considered necessary. Besides, it is not ordinarily done. Succeeding Councils are left free to exercise their "own best judgment."

Provincial Highway Debt.

A statement from the Ontario Department of Highways informed the Council that the counties' indebtedness to the Government for the construction and maintenance of provincial highways amounts to $132,876.70 as shown for December 31 of this year. Counties are required to pay twenty per cent. of the cost of construction and maintenance of provincial highways within their borders.

Several years ago the united counties of Northumberland and Durham discovered that their funding of this increasing debt to the Province was being outrun by the steadily mounting levy for new work. They then agreed to pay the Department $60,000 a year for five years, but even this plan was inadequate, and as a heroic method of bringing the total within comfortable figures, the Council this year issued ten-year debentures for $100,000, which yielded $103,000.

The Department has credited the Counties with this $100,000 but there still remains $132,876.70 and this will be further reduced by the 1930 instalment of $60,000 to $72,876.

Reeve Frank Rickard of Newcastle remarked that the County's debt to the Department was around $157,998 last July. He said that apparently $77,000 for construction and maintenance had been added since then.

Another Road Assumed

The Brighton-Campbellford road has been assumed as a provincial highway this year, and the United Counties will have to pay 20 per cent. of its construction and maintenance costs.

"The only solution of this problem," said Mr. Rickard, "is for the Department to assume the entire cost of provincial highways, as most of the counties have already petitioned."

GRAND JURIES ARE NECESSITY SAYS JUDGE HUYCKE

Grand Jury is Addressed By Judge Huycke at Opening of Court.

CRIME NOT SERIOUS.

At Present There Are Twenty-four Lodged in County Gaol.

Although there is only one semi-criminal case on the docket for the County Court and General Sessions of the Peace, which opened before His Honor Judge Huycke yesterday afternoon, the Judge in his address to the Grand Jury pointed out that the conclusion is not to be drawn that crime does not prevail in the county.

He explained that most of the criminal cases are now tried by the Magistrate and by special sittings of the County Judges' Criminal Court, which leaves little to come before the General Sessions. His Honor stated that it was evident that there was little really serious crime here.

There are twenty-four persons in the county gaol at the present time, he said all for comparatively minor offence. "One poor fellow, it is reported, is insane. I hope you investigate his case," Judge Huycke charged the jurors. "The jail is no place for him."

He said that in his opinion Grand Juries were a necessary part of the British Courts and their history went back into the dim pages of the forgotten past.

The grand jury consisted of: Edward Allin, Galway; L. P. Campbell, 75 Ware street; Sidney Crow, 227 Prince; Albert Cheyne, Monaghan; Joseph Christie, Asphodel; James I. Drummond, Otonabee; Alex Darling, 564 Homewood; Wm. Francis, Otonabee; John P. Flood, foreman, Enniamore; Edwin Fife, Otonabee; Charles Hawkes, Chandos; Wm. Hall, 532 Weller; Charles Hunt, Otonabee.

COBOURG RAISES

increase to $2,500. Cobourg rejected that sum and also $3,000, but in turn suggested that the counties pay $5,000 plus a fifty-fifty split of the heat and light expenses. And so the conference failed to effect an agreement, and the committee through Mr. Stone turned the dispute over to the counties council.

A clause in the existing agreement provides for the appointment of arbitrators to deal with just such an impasse. The town may appoint one arbitrator and the counties one, and if these two deputies fail in a settlement a third arbitrator shall be appointed by the counties judge.

"Just Get Together"

Referring to Port Hope's offer of adequate accommodation for the counties council, Reeve Pratt of Cobourg remarked that the town simply wished "to get together with the counties and figure out a new lease on a fair and square basis."

"Port Hope will take you in to-morrow if you wish and not charge you one cent more than the counties council is paying now," said Mr. Sinnott.

Mr. Stone's report was referred to the Property Committee.

Warren Nelson reminded the Council that Deputy-Reeve Stone had only recently recovered from a serious illness. The Warden expressed the council's sympathy to Mr. Stone and its condolence to Deputy-Reeve Curtis of Percy township in the recent death of his mother.

BRUENING BACKS JULIUS CURTIUS

Warns Reichstag if Assault Made on Foreign Minister He Will Assume Post.

WARNING SUFFICIENT.

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (A.P.)—Chancellor Bruening, who is anxious to send the Reichstag home so he can go to work on his financial reforms, took the initiative into his own hands as the Parliament resumed yesterday and announced that should the Reichstag begin an assault on his Foreign Minister, he would take over that portfolio himself.

This was his own way, it was believed, of spiking whatever intention the Opposition may have had to begin an attack on the Cabinet with Julius Curtius. The Foreign Minister, continuing with Joseph Wirth, Minister of the Interior, and eventually forcing cabinet changes to serve their own political ends.

Bruening's flat warning, however, was expected to disturb these plans, since none of the opposition wants the Chancellor to assume either of these posts in what would be tantamount to a one man Government. There is at present no formal Minister of Economics or of Justice, both these departments being headed by under-secretaries. Bruening, therefore, is already virtually Minister of Economics and of Justice, as well as Chancellor. Should he feel himself obliged to take over the Foreign Office under opposition pressure, he would himself be a working majority in his own cabinet.

As a result of his threat it was expected that the Parliament would not launch its anticipated attack on Curtius although it was not likely that a vote on foreign policy debate could be taken before late this evening.

BICKELL SEEKS $300 DAMAGES IN COURT ACTION

County Court Opens With Bickell Vs. Blewett as First Case Heard.

If a boy takes out his father's car without his permission and an accident results in which the son is to blame, can the father be held liable for damages? That appears to be the text of a case for $300 damages which opened yesterday afternoon before His Honor Judge Huycke at the sittings of the General Sessions of the Peace.

The case is being heard by a jury and R. R. Hall, K.C., is acting for the plaintiff, J. Bruce Bickell, and G. N. Gordon, K.C., for the defendant, Evans Blewett, the father.

An accident occurred on the Lakefield road six miles from the city on September 19 in which a motor car driven by Floyd Blewett, 19-year-old son of Evans Blewett, struck a horse-drawn grader. Bickell, a farmer in Smith, owns the horses and claims that one, a valuable mare, was rendered a total loss by injuries in the accident. The other horse's value was also reduced by injuries.

While not admitting that Floyd Blewett was responsible for the accident and the resulting damage, the defence is endeavoring to show that the youth did not have his father's permission when he drove the car that day, and therefore the father is not liable.

R. R. Hall is striving to show that, although the boy perhaps did not have the father's consent that day, if was because the father was away from home. That the boy was left as the father's agent in charge of the farm and therefore in charge of the car. That the mother had full permission to use the car at all times and that she had allowed the boy to drive it that day.

Power Grader in Front.

Norman Bickell, cousin of the plaintiff and first witness in his case, said that he was driving the team of horses on the grader at the time of the accident. He was riding on the grader down a sloping grade and he was about three-quarters of the way down. A few yards in front of his was a power grader operated by Stanley Wood.

Describing the accident, he declared that he had no warning of the car approaching from the rear. It struck the grader and he was tossed onto the road on his head. The horses were knocked down and injured. The grader was broken. The car, which had caused the damage was driven by Floyd Blewett, son of the defendant, and in the crash it lost one wheel and was completely turned around.

RYLSTONE SHOWS SPLENDID REPORT

Cheese and Butter Company Hold Annual Meeting—Milk Production Increase.

THOMAS FRY PRESIDENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec 10. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent) — Considering the present conditions of the market, a good report was shown by the Rylstone Cheese and Butter Company at their annual meeting, when officers for the coming year were elected and business transacted.

The officers chosen for 1931 are as follows: President, Thomas Fry; Secretary, A. C. Connor; directors, T. Fry (salesman), Alfred Barnum, W. Irwin, Mark Shortte and Murray Mucklejohn.

One of the features of the annual report as given by the secretary was the fact that a good increase in the total pounds of milk was shown this year. Figures for 1930 were: 1,945,102 as compared with last year which totaled 1,860,940 pounds of milk.

The monthly reports are as follows:

Month	Lbs. Milk	Lbs. Cheese
April	16,484	.....
May	234,732	22,508
June	372,826	29,158
July	380,871	31,165
August	336,430	27,985
September	292,640	24,446
Oct. and Nov.	320,119	29,537

The report for the year is listed below:

Total lbs. of milk	1,954,102
Total lbs. cheese	167,311
Average lbs. milk per lb. cheese	11.67
Average price per lb. cheese	14.78
Average price per lb. butter fat	32.98
Paid for whey cream per standard	$1.05
Lbs. butter fat (whey)	4,147.9
Price received	$1,014.63

The financial report as rendered by the secretary shows a balance on hand of $6.95. This is a good statement considering the condition of the market this year, and compared with some factories is very encouraging. The report is as follows:

Manufacturing at 7¾ mills	$1296.56
Supplies	1018.77
Repairs to building and plant	173.91
President's salary	100.00
Secretary's salary	120.00
Insurance	37.50
Taxes	24 40
Printing and advertising	8.50
Cost of skimming cream	114.72
Cost of trucking cheese	133.84
Cost of manufacturing cheese per lb	24 mills

S. H. Neale, manager of the Campbellford branch of the Royal Bank, who was present, addressed the gathering. He outlined to them the conditions that exist in England today, specially in regard to the cheese market. He also gave some interesting impressions of the Old Land as gained by him during a trip taken this summer.

Orrie Barton was again elected by the patrons to be the cheese maker for the Rylstone factory for 1931.

BICKELL SEEKS

Stanley Wood, 33 Stewart street, said that he was operating the power grader and was about 35 yards in front of Norman Bickell. He said he saw a car coming from the north at about 20 miles an hour. At the same moment he noticed a car come speeding over the hill behind Bickell. Immediately he reached around and stopped his machine. He saw the north bound car hit the grader and the south bound car pass the grader at the same time.

Cross-examined, he said there was not room for both cars to pass the grader on the left side at the same time.

John P. Bickell described the injuries to the mare, which was hurt in the accident. He made two attempts a month later to get the mare to draw stones, but the animal could not do so. "Any horse would have run off with those few stones," he said.

Bruce Bickell, plaintiff and owner of the injured horses, said he was a farmer and worked for the county, grading. He had purchased the injured mare from Ed. Hamlin last spring for $200. He had paid $140 for the horse teamed with the mare on the grader four years and it was now 15 years old. He received $6 a day for the team and the man on the grader. He paid the man $3 a day and it cost him a dollar a day to feed the horse, leaving him a profit of $2.

Mare Now Valueless.

The injured mare, he said, was now of no value to him because of her injuries resulting from the accident. The horse, too, he considered had depreciated in value to $35. He placed his total loss due to the horses' injuries at $300, which included doctors' bills and loss of earning power.

Under cross-examination he said he paid the man on the grader $35 a month and his board, which he claimed would amount to $3 per day.

Arthur Johnston, veterinary surgeon, stated that the mare in his opinion at the present time was worthless and would never recover. Also the horse had lost fifty-percent of its value due to the injuries of the accident. In his opinion the mare's back was injured causing partial paralysis.

Louis Ferguson, an experienced horse dealer, said that after examining the mare it was his opinion that she was valueless. Thomas Cruikshank, director of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, was of the same opinion.

Wm. T. Rogers, veterinary surgeon, was the first witness for the defence. On a visit to the Bickell farm in company with Arthur Johnston he had noticed nothing in the mare's condition that would indicate at that time that she was permanently injured. The horse's value was reduced $10 through injuries, he estimated.

Evans Blewett, the defendant, said at no time was his son, Floyd, permitted to drive the car without his permission. The boy had driven it perhaps once a week, but only when the witness said he could. The boy did most of the farm work during the father's absence due to his threshing work.

Cross-examined, witness said that his wife could drive the car at all times, but that she could not give permission to the son to drive without the witness' authority. "He used the car sometimes to go and see his girl," witness admitted.

The case will continue today.

REV CANON ALLEN

ing year, and to the priesthood in 1879.

Mr. Allen's first curacy was at Saint John's Church, Peterborough, where he remained for two years, going then to Port Hope as Assistant Master of Trinity College School, a position he filled with honor until 1881, when he went to England, engaging in missionary work in which considerable travelling was involved. Later he toured Europe and Palestine, and upon his return to England was appointed to a curacy at Shenley, Hertfordshire, where he met the lady who afterward became his wife, Mary Linnecar, daughter of the prominent physician, Dr. Linnecar, Mrs. Allen proving herself an exceptoinal helpmeet, and devoting herself, with her husband, to the work of the Church.

Assistant to Father.

Rev. Mr. Allen returned to Ontario in 1884, when, at the express desire of the parishioners of Cavan, he became assistant to his father, Archdeacon Allen, and upon the latter's death in 1905 he succeeded him as rector, filling this position for twenty-three years, and being but the third incumbent in over one hundred years of Church history. It is a fact practically unique in the history of the Church of England in Canada that father and son, for a period of seventy-five years, served in the one parish continuously, accomplishing a work worthy of special mention as they built, improved, and enriched the four churches under their pastoral care, won the love, prayers and sympathy of the parishioners, and at the same time neglected in no way at all the great missionary and other beneficiary enterprises of the Church at large.

The deceased clergyman had many opportunities for serving in other, and perhaps larger, parishes, but so dearly did he love his home town, and township, he never seriously considered breaking the bonds that held him here. For three years he had the honor of being Rural Dean of the Deanery of Durham and Victoria, and in 1909 his Bishop, in recognition of his long and devoted parochial work, made him a Canon of Saint Alban's Cathedral, Toronto.

Failing health compelled Canon Allen's relinquishing of active service in the parish, Bishop Sweeny accepting his resignation at the close of 1928. In recent weeks the illness from which he suffered became more acute, and in spite of everything that loving care and expert medical attention could do, his death occurred on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Surviving are his wife; his only daughter, Mrs. L. H. Winslow of Ida; six brothers: George of Emmerson, Manitoba, Dr. Thomas of New York, Walter of Springfield, Ill., Rev. Dr. Alexander Allen of Oaklands, Cal., and John and Henry of Millbrook. His only son, Thomas W., enlisted with the Princess Pat Regiment, and was killed in France during the World War. There are three grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Saint Thomas' Church was filled to capacity for the funeral service on Tuesday, many former parishioners coming from outside points, and people of all denominations being represented in the gathering. A private service in the home, conducted by Rev. J. D. Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, and Venerable Archdeacon Davidson at the home, preceded the removal of the body to the church, the organist, Miss M. L. Collins, playing softly, at Mrs. Allen's request, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" (Handel), while the casket was brought to its resting-place in the chancel. W. T. Wood and E. H. Barnes were the ushers.

Four Choirs United

The combined choirs of the four churches of the parish led in the singing of the two hymns chosen, "For All the Saints who from their Labors Rest", and "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er", Miss Collins playing Beethoven's "Largo" as the processional of choir and clergy came up the aisle and took their places in the chancel. Rev. Walter Creighton, of Lakefield, read the lesson, Rev. Canon Marsh, of Lindsay, the concluding prayers, and Archdeacon Warren pronounced the benediction. the cause of the rural clergy and of dress, and after extending the Bishop's regrets at not being present in person, mentioned appreciatively "the long life of usefulness and service of him who has been the rector of many of you. I am sure his family feel cheered in their great sorrow by this large assembly of the parish and of the township."

Particular reference was made to the wholesome, Christian character of Canon Allen, and the fact that his distinctive personality would be easily recalled. "He seemed to breathe out the spirit and atmosphere of the country, and in the Synod of the Diocese, where he was a well-known figure, he dared strongly to champion Saviour and His Saviour, the radiant the rural people. He loved this township; he was a son of Cavan, and a son of Canada."

Extending sympathy to the bereaved the Archdeacon continued: "So we lay him at rest. Their sorrow is our sorrow, and together we will rise to the atmosphere of faith, and hope, and praise. We will rise from our weakness to Him Who is above all, our Saviour and His Saviour, the radiant God-Man, Jesus Christ, who has opened the door of death, and prepared beyond a peaceful abode in Paradise, and in His own good time He will bring us all to this blessed place of hope and love.

The pall-bearers were six brother clergymen: Rev. Dr. Blagrave, of Saint John's church, Peterborough; Rev. C. R. Spencer, of Bowmanville; Rev. Mr. Fierheller, of Bethany; Rev. Maurice Kingsford, of Perrytown; Rev. J. Bousefield, of Saint Luke's Church, Peterborough; and Rev. Mr. Boulden, of Port Hope.

Besides the clergymen already mentioned others present were Rev. Dr. Rigby, of Port Hope; Rev. J. L. Hughes, of Peterborough; Rev. Mr. De Lom, of Cobourg; Rev. P. W. A. Roberts, rector in charge of the parish of Millbrook and Cavan; and Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., of Millbrook, who was the official representative of the Ministerial Association of South Durham and West Northumberland, appointed at the meeting of this body the previous day at Cobourg to express, in this manner, their sincere sympathy.

Beautiful Floral Tributes

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, covering the casket and taking up a considerable part of the chancel, among these being crosses from the Great Chapter of Saint Alban's Cathedral, Toronto; from Saint Thomas' Church, Millbrook, and Saint John's Church, Ida; pillows were from Christ Church, Ballieboro, and from Trinity Church (The Marsh); the W. A. of both Saint Thomas' and Saint John's Churches also sent flowers; as well as the Sunday School, the A.Y.P.A., and the Junior W.A. of Saint Thomas' Church. The Public Library Board, of which Rev. Canon Allen was president from its organization, sent a wreath, and relatives and friends showed their love and sympathy in this way. Interment was in the family burial plot at Saint John's cemetery, Ida. Rev. J. D. Paterson and Archdeacon Davidson taking the service at the graveside.

Among former parishioners and relatives from a distance who were present from the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allen, of Springfield, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward and Mr Donald Baldwin, of Toronto; Mr. Burke and Miss Synthia Allen, Toronto; Henry Martin, Toronto; Mr. C. Sootheran, and Mrs. B. Falconer Peterborough; Colonel J. W. Ode, Cobourg; F. W. Bowen, M.P., Orono; Mrs. and Miss Currie, Omemee; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cummings, Mrs. (Dr.) Brand, Miss Mary Thompson, Miss Alice and Miss Lottie Vance, Toronto; Rev. C. R. and Mrs. Spencer Miss Margaret, Thomas and George Spencer, Bowmanville; Misses Jane and Mary Cathcart, Peterborough; Dr. G. H. Needler, Toronto, and many others.

The visiting clergymen, and others coming from a distance, were entertained for lunch at the home of Mrs. J. C. Kells, Miss Anna Kells, assisted by Mrs. (Rev.) P. W. A. Roberts and Miss Margaret Wood, receiving the guests, and serving them during the meal hour previous to their gathering at the church for the public funeral service.

LEGION CONCERT WELL RECEIVED

Arranged Under Auspices of Sunshine Knitting Club of Campbellford.

FOR CHRISTMAS FUND.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10.— (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.) — With a good and appreciative audience in attendance the community concert arranged under the auspices of the Sunshine Knitting Club by Mrs. R. T. Cowell for the benefit of the Campbellford Branch, No. 103, Canadian Legion, went over big last evening when it was staged in the auditorium of the Campbellford High school.

The program was or a very high order, all the talent being local and of the best. Dr. O. C. Watson acted as chairman, introducing the numbers in order. Two numbers, "The Maple Leaf" and "O Canada," were sung by the audience.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of a knitted quilt from the Sunshine Club to the Legion. This was made by Mary Coxwell.

Dr. Watson made the draw for the quilt, which was won by Miss Helen McDonald. Twelve dolls, dressed by the Sunshine girls, and twelve boys' presents, were also presented to the Legion to help with their Christmas cheer. The whole of the proceeds of this function go toward the Legion relief work.

The program was a varied one, including vocal and instrumental numbers and readings. Mrs. James Black met with a splendid response when she recited tow numbers, 'When Madam Albana Sang," and "The Painter of Seville." Fluent and graceful, she proved herself an artist, holding her audience tense throughout both numbers.

The Ionic Quartette appeared twice on the program. This singing company is comprised of Major J. M. Bygott, Dr. H. O. Richardson, A. Hazell and Walter Henson. As ever, they were met with great applause, putting over their two numbers, one a variation and "Loves Old Sweet Song," with ease and ability. Mrs. C. J. Windrim sang two numbers, "Snow Flakes" by Cowan, and "Mighty Lak' a Rose," by Nevin.

Miss Helen McDonald's contribution to the entertainment was a vocal solo, "Out of the Dusk", which she rendered in sweet voice and for which she received due praise. George Lucy in his splendid baritone, rendered two numbers, "Queen of the Earth" and "It's a Mighty Good World After All" and was also well received by his listeners.

An old favorite of the town and one that was heartily encored was Herb Leonard, who pleased the audience with the old time favorite, "Marguerite", for which he was brought back a second time. A guitar and banjo duet by the Messrs Morrison and Jordan, also proved a popular number, these two artists singing to their music.

E. H. Lewis sang "A Paradise for Two" from "Maid of the Mountain", and was well received, and a very pleasing duet was rendered by the Mesdames Jones and Melcolm. A very amusing reading was given by Raymond Wragg in which he averred that it was better to give than receive, demonstrating the fact by explaining his choice of Christmas gifts to the family.

In the instrumental class, Mrs. E. H. Lewis presented a piano solo, "Roman", La Forge which showed her power of interpretation and expression combine dwith delicacy of touch.

A very pleasing and well delivered violin duet was given by the Messrs R. and H. Richardson which proved them to be very able performers on their instruments. Arnold Bates performed brilliantly on the piano, playing a solo that was very well received.

Substituting for Mrs. F. DeCaroll, Mrs. C. Milne delivered a vocal solo, which was well rendered.

The accompanists for the evening were Mrs. E. H. Lewis, E. C. Dolman, W. A. Newcourt and A. Haxell.

Call Is Extended To Rev. J. C. Robison

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — At a meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, held Monday evening it was decided to extend a call to the Rev. J. C. Robison of Uxbridge, Ontario, to fill the vacancy of the pastorate of the church occasioned by the resignation of the Rev. Dr. W. J. Mark.

Palpitation Of The Heart Nerves Were All Gone

Miss Rose Griffin, Ashern, Man., writes:—"About five years ago I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, caused by a shock, and my nerves were all gone, and I could not sleep. I read about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and decided to try them. After I had taken three boxes I was feeling fine again. I think they are a wonderful remedy, and wish all others who suffered as I did would give them a trial."

CANADIAN RAILWAYS LEADING THE WORLD

Significant Facts About C.N.R. to Support Statement.

Every railway has its own features and its "the first to—"but one can safely say that the Canadian railways, having the largest per capita mileage in the world, have some of the greatest. Though instituted later than railways in other countries, and serving a smaller population, they have received more impetus from Canada than from any other country on the globe. For example, here are a few significant facts concerning the Canadian National Railways:

It was the first railway in the World to place radio on its trains, to establish its own broadcasting stations, and to provide two-way long distance telephone service to and from moving trains.

It was the first railway in America to use Diesel oil-electric engines in long distance service, and to operate oil-electric motor cars in regular service.

It was the first railway in Canada to adopt solarium cars with vita glass to adopt sigle room (chambrette) cars, and to operate cars devoted entirely to lounge purposes, including a barber shop, bath and gymnasium.

We are certain, too, that the great sister railway, the C.P.R., has a similar story; in fact all of the other Canadian lines have some significant facts, thus making it very safe to say that Canada is setting the pace in the world for railway transportation.

DESERVES YOUR PATRONAGE.

The Examiner Social Club, an organization of The Examiner employees that is never found holding back when good works are to the fore, is making its contribution toward the success of The Examiner Christmas Relief Fund by arranging a dance to be held in the Canadian Legion Hall on Tuesday night of next week, the proceeds to be entirely devoted to the splendid work of caring for needy families throughout the Christmas season.

The success of the event from the viewpoint of enjoyment is assured by its sponsorship, for the Social Club as many citizens know from their own experience, has an enviable record in the matter of successful social occasions of this nature, and the arrangements that are being made for next Tuesday's function leave nothing to be desired.

It is not, however, the dance itself, but the object for which it is to be held, that The Examiner wishes to commend to its readers in appealing for hearty support from the public.

The need of a much more ample Christmas fund than usual must be apparent to everybody; the list of families requiring assistance at this time includes names that are recorded for the first time, and it is the hope of The Examiner that its funds will be able to play a corresponding larger part in mitigating the suffering occasioned by unusual conditions.

The Examiner's Social Club dance affords an opportunity, therefore, for an enjoyable evening, made the more enjoyable by the knowledge that the proceeds will go toward making Christmas what it should be in many homes that otherwise would be drab and cheerless.

MAYOR DENNE'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

The majority of Peterborough's citizens, The Examiner is confident, have been glad to learn that the services of Mayor Denne are again to be available as chief magistrate for next year.

There was a fear in many circles that Mayor Denne might allow consideration for old-time ideas about the length of time a mayor should serve to persuade him to retire just when this community stands most in need of the energy, vision, enthusiasm and business ability that he has displayed in his three-year tenure of office.

Fortunately, however, there has been such an insistent appeal from citizens of all ranks of life in Peterborough that the mayor should again give the city the benefit of his experience and his recognized driving power that he has decided to again offer his services to the community he has served so well.

The announcement will be popularly received, for citizens generally agree with Ald. Macdonald and Ald. Fitzpatrick that Mayor Denne has labored at all times for the city's welfare and is the type of leader needed to guide Peterborough's affairs through the present unusual conditions.

Whether or not there will be any opposition to the re-election of Mayor Denne is for the present uncertain.

It is the privilege of any other member of the Council, or any other qualified citizen for that matter, to seek the support of the electors for the chief magistrate's position.

The Examiner, however, is of the opinion that there is a very strong current of public sentiment behind the idea that the man who has directed the city's business so successfully for the last three years should be paid the tribute of an election by acclamation—in other words, that the methods of business should be followed and the services of an executive who has given ample proof of his ability should be retained.

A LATER HUNTING SEASON.

Peterborough hunters have doubtless read with interest the resolution passed by the Hastings County Council calling upon the Ontario Department of Fish and Game to change the open season for deer so that conditions more favorable to hunting may be made possible.

Here is the Hastings resolution:

"That whereas the present open season for deer is not satisfactory, due to change of seasons, the open season be changed to read from November 15th to November 30th, both days inclusive, changes to be made for the following reasons:

"1. Still hunters cannot track wounded deer without snow.

"2. Impossibility of keeping venison in warm weather, such as our late seasons have been.

"3. That thousands of dollars are lost annually to Hastings County as farmers and farmers' sons are hunting when they should be on the land."

The suggestion, more than one local hunter declares, is well worth the attention of the authorities.

In recent deer-hunting seasons hunting parties have been handicapped by unseasonably mild weather conditions, with the result that deer were harder to get and the venison harder to keep.

A ten-day change may not do a great deal to correct these conditions, for speculating upon the weather at any particular period is a gamble at best, but certainly the proposed Nov. 15-30 season would offer a better chance for colder weather than the period now set aside, and for that reason the Hastings proposal merits the consideration of the department.

A DANGEROUS REEF.

If Hon. George S. Henry, who will shortly become Premier of Ontario, is the careful and cautious mariner his admirers say he is, he should at this time be busy in plotting out his course, studying the hazards that lie ahead, and preparing for a successful voyage that will see the Government craft safely into port.

He should have no difficulty in realizing that there is one especially dangerous reef in his path, a reef that threatens to totally wreck his Government unless wise seamanship dictates a safer course than has been followed for some time.

Mr. Henry will take over his new duties with an abnormally large majority in the House and with the record of the administration as a whole satisfactory to most people in this Province.

The outstanding criticism that is being made—and it is increasing in volume steadily—is based on the resentment of the municipalities at the ever-growing burden of taxation that is being laid upon municipal shoulders by the Provincial Government.

That is the reef on which the Conservative administration will sooner or later smash to pieces unless the new Premier visualizes the danger and calls a halt before his Government is wrecked.

The time has come for some relief in this respect.

Old age pensions, mothers' allowances, suburban roads, provincial highways, the expense of preparing voters' lists for provincial elections—these are the things that have been loaded upon the municipalities until they are almost in a state of revolt.

Municipalities called upon to pay a substantial share of the expense of building and maintaining roads outside their boundaries, while they have to carry the whole load in making and maintaining urban streets that have to sustain the wear and tear of provincial traffic, are becoming alive to the injustice of such a policy.

The rising discontentment over this and other instances of provincial unfairness will eventually sweep Mr. Henry and his Government out of power unless the new Premier is shrewd enough to realize that the resentment of the municipalities is widespread and sincere, and that it must be allayed by the adoption of a more equitable policy.

CENTRAL CHARITIES—A GOOD IDEA.

to the proposal that a soup kitchen should be established in Brockville for the benefit of those transients passing through the community from one centre of population to another, there can be no questioning of the alternative project looking to the organization of centralized charities, one which has been already discussed by representatives of different church and fraternal bodies and service clubs.

If the need of such an organization has been felt during other winter seasons, when a great deal of duplication has existed in the distribution of relief, the abnormal demands of the present season make it extremely desirable that early steps be taken to bring it into efficient and permanent existence.

Any person who has engaged in charitable work in this community knows that, in spite of the best efforts, certain individuals receive assistance from a variety of sources. Everybody is familiar with the people who, when winter approaches, claim to belong to several churches and appeal to each for aid. Equally familiar is the story of the undeserving applicant for relief who is well able to purchase such luxuries as a radio set, an automobile or a player piano, but who, nevertheless, forwards his application for relief. And those who annually conduct the distribution of Christmas baskets are always able to point to instances of the same names finding their way to different lists.

As a matter of fact, the method that has been adopted in the preparation of the final list for the receipt of these Christmas hampers is exactly that which should be adopted in relation to relief work generally. When this undertaking was launched, it was discovered that certain families were receiving two or more baskets from different sources, while other and possibly more deserving families remained unnoticed. The different service clubs and other organizations participating in this work thereupon decided, in order that duplication might be prevented, to pool their efforts and to bring the preparation of the lists and the distribution of the Christmas provender upon a systematic basis. They obtained lists of presumably needy individuals from the different churches and other organizations in touch with those requiring relief, checked these lists with the further list of those receiving assistance through Government and municipal channels and finally compiled a statement of those families actually in need of aid. Then each of the organizations agreed upon the families that it would look after. This method did away with duplication, it did away with aid being given where it was not actually required, and it brought system into the whole distribution of these baskets.

Some such system, advocated in these columns in other years, is sadly needed for the direction of relief work in general. Other communities have already adopted it and find that, in the hands of a competent officer or committee, it works to perfection. Contributions are made to a general fund for the relief of distress rather than to several funds of the same type, two or three of which may be looking after the same cases, and as a result the money contributed is made to perform greater service and to cover a wider and more deserving field.

The thanks of the community are due to the group of individuals who have brought this subject to public notice. If their suggestion is acted upon, much will have been accomplished towards the placing of charitable and relief work in Brockville upon a suitable basis. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

He did not stay long. He had to hurry back to the office, he told her, to meet a client.

"Aren't you lonely, living here alone?" he asked her presently.

"But I don't live alone," she assured him. "Mollie Wilder and I live here together. At least she used to be Mollie Wilder. She's married, but she's not living with her husband. I want you to meet her some time."

The fact that she had a roommate was obviously a surprise to him. But after a moment he said, "Mollie Wilder? It's a pretty name, isn't it. You both occupy this one room?"

Jean grinned. Did he think they had a suite of rooms? She told him, laughing: "Of course not. The very idea! This is Mollie's room. I work in it because it's big and airy. My bedroom is in back."

He took her so seriously, that she didn't have the courage to explain, but when he had gone, she wondered what would happen if he ever went to the next room down the rail and asked for her.

Mollie came in at six-thirty greatly excited. "I'm going to the Crescent," she announced gayly. "And with a big handsome boy from the wide open spaces."

Jean had been busy at her improvised desk, but now she sat on the bed and watched casually while the feverish business of dressing went on.

Mollie's voice flowed, musically, happily. "Name's Waterman. Swell looker, honey. Met him in the store. Fast worker, too. Had me dated up in no time. Seemed to take it for granted he could make me, the conceited thing, wanted to come for me, too. Imagine coming for me here. Wish you were going, darling. You're working too hard. What you need . . ."

And on, and on, and on. When at last she had gone, Jean though she could still hear her voice in the room.

Jean had supper where she had taken lunch, at a little restaurant around the corner. Back in the room she returned to her desk and worked feverishly. Hours later she got up and washed her face to revive her energy and hold off the weariness that had come over her.

But it was no use. Her eyelids sagged. There was no choice but to go to bed.

Whether it was the darkness or the loneliness, she did not know, but when she had turned the light out and crawled under the covers, her mind promptly filled up with disagreeable thoughts.

Marcia, Slim Diggers, Fargeson. Perhaps Marcia was even now trying to find her, to ferret her out of her hiding place and . . .

The memory of the detective at the office sent a cold chill through her. And Diggers had had the audacity to go to the office and ask for her. What would he have done had she been in? What would he do now if . . .

The thin, unwholesome face of Slim Diggers grew to gigantic proportions, glared at her and faded into nothingness as her brain sank into a deep slumber.

Jean awoke with a start. It was still night. The room was dark. She threw a hand out quickly; but Mollie was not by her. And yet she could have taken an oath that she had heard someone in the room.

She waited, hardly daring to breathe. The room was as still as death.

She told herself that she had been mistaken, chided herself for a coward and a bundle of nerves. Slowly she sank back until her head was on the pillow once more.

Instantly every nerve in her body was taut. Something warm and soft had brushed against her cheek.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

Jean tried to scream, but something filled her throat and all but choked her. She wanted to leap out of bed and run to the door, but the shock had left her hopelessly weak and shaking. She could do nothing but lie there and stare wide-eyed into the darkness.

Someone was standing by the bed. She knew it now as certainly as though she had seen with her own eyes. And presently she was able to distinguish between her own breathing and that of the unkonwn waiting there in the blackness, waiting, waiting, for what?"

And then, when she felt that she would die of sheer fright, she heard a soft whisper close to her ear, soft and eager:

"Mollie . . . ."

The familiar name, inexplicable in itself, was to Jean like a breath of fresh air to one suffocating. Whatever else it might mean under the circumstances, it told her that whoever stood invisible beside her had not expected to find her there. It was not Diggers, nor Marcia's detective, nor Marcia herself, but someone looking for Mollie.

Slowly her strength returned, and when the voice whispered again: "Mollie, Mollie, dear," she suddenly rolled to the opposite side of the bed, got to her feet and demanded nervously: "Who are you?"

There was a sharp, "Oh!" Not a whisper this time, but a man's voice, abrupt and startled. "I . . . I'm sorry."

Still badly frightened, Jean sank to the floor, and rested her head against the bed.

She heard the door open, then close quietly. That was all. It was enough.

The truth had come to Jean in a rush. Mollie's husband! Obviously he had learned where she lived, and had come to her.

Weakly, Jean got back into bed conscious only of a deep sense of gratitude. If it had been Diggers.

Had a terrible fright last night. Can't put it in writing, but in five minutes I must have lost ten pounds. I can't stand much more of this suspense. It is driving me crazy. Why didn't I marry Phil? And yet I shouldn't have married him if I didn't love him, I thought I did. I don't know even now that I didn't But what about Lionel? Phil's kisses were not like Lionel's. Lionel doesn't ask. He takes, and I can't stop him. Worse, I wouldn't if I could. I was awake when Mollie came home last night, but I pretended I was asleep. I didn't know whether to tell her about what had happened to me or not. I started to tell her this morning, but didn't have the courage. What would she have done had she been here? I'm going to the office to-day, Marcia or no Marcia. I can't work here, and besides, it isn't good for me to stay in all day. I grow morbid, and afraid. Why doesn't Sandy hurry back? It doesn't seem fair to get me into all this mess, and then go off and leave me alone.

Lionel was plainly surprised when Jean walked into the office at nine o'clock and announced that she would be there all day.

"But Sandy thought you shouldn't," he protested.

"I know," Jean agreed. "But if I'm to see this thing through, I can't sit in a dingy room miles away and know what's going on. Let Marcia come and make all the fuss she wants. I'm here and I mean to stay here during working hours until the job's done."

Lionel shrugged helplessly, and helped her off with her coat. "There's a letter marked personal on your desk," he told her. Handwriting's familiar."

She saw the Boston postmark and knew at once that it was from Sandy. Eagerly she opened it and read:

"My Dearest Jean:

"I am sure that by this time you have the Miniature Baby Plan well in hand and that before I return the babies will be going out to their little prospective mothers. What a splendid thing you are doing, and how well you are doing it! Getting out of New York for a few days gives me a new perspective of many things. It seems nothing less than a miracle that I found you that night on Broadway. We had combed our organization for someone not alone competent to plan and direct the work but who could grasp the spirit of the idea. And then, as if guided by some unseen intelligence, you came. I shall never cease to be grateful to you for what you are doing, and I suspect that the culmination of your efforts will be your own greatest reward.

"For having involved you in the distressing affair at Marcia's I can never forgive myself. And you have been so magnificently sporting about it. I notice that the papers are giving less prominence to the investigation daily. Even the Courier, so intent upon forcing the hand of the district attorney and the police commissioner for political reasons a few days ago, seems to be losing hope. Very soon it will pass from their columns altogether, I hope, and we shall have peace.

"One thing I must tell you, Jean, even at the risk of having this letter fall into the wrong hands. Do you remember when you told me that you had seen me go back to the apartment the night F—— was murdered? I told you that I did not go back to the apartment. But that was evasion and unfair to you. You did see me, Jean. I passed through the lobby, as you told me, and went up the stairs. But I did not go back to the apartment. The day will come when I can explain all this to you. For the present you must have faith in me, and know that only reasons of the greatest importance force me to this secrecy. You saw me and you knew that you saw me; I could not let you go on any longer knowing that I had lied to you and thinking heaven knows what about me in consequence.

"The daddy of the Miniature Baby Plan, whom I am visiting, is highly elated with my report of your work and promises to come to New York to express his gratitude to you in person very soon, perhaps the first of next week. I have told him a great deal about you and he is anxious to see for himself.

"You may not understand this, Jean, but I have missed you more than I can tell you. The peculiar circumstances of our meeting and the further amazing circumstances that have held us together in our conspiracy of silence in the one direction, and of service in the other make me feel that I have known you always, that I have always relied upon you, and turned to you in difficulty, and . . . But I'm getting in rather deep.

"It will be almost impossible for me to leave here for another few days, but the moment I feel free to leave I expect to return to New York by air and not stop until I've found you and talked with you.

"Good-bye and good luck until . . .

Affectionately, your
Sandy Clause.'

The last two parargaphs Jean re-read once, twice, three times; and then with meticulous care she tore the letter into minute pieces and proceeded to distribute the remains in several waste baskets of the office.

So she had seen Sandy go back that night, and yet, admitting what he had previously denied, he still insisted that he did not return to the apartment. Then where did he go?

Despite its element of mystery, Jean had finished the letter in a glow of happiness. It gave her new courage, new strength, a greater sense of security. She was more eager than ever now to see the Miniature Baby Plan through to a successful end. Let the unknown philanthropist who had conceived and financed the plan come, if he chose. Sandy was pleased with what she had done, so why shouldn't he be as well?

But through she kept repeating to herself the more impersonal portions of he letter, it was not because of them that her heart sang so joyously. "I have missed you more than I could tell you, make me feel that I have known you always . . . not stopped until I have found you and talked with you." These were the excerpts that would not be put from her mind.

"He's like a brother," she thought, contentedly; "and it's perfectly clear in his letter that he looks upon me as a sister. If he would only hurry back."

The hall door opened and a middle-aged man, immaculately attired, entered. Jean glanced up, saw that Lionel was not at his desk, and offered her services to the visitor. She took it for granted that he wanted Sandy.

But he asked familiarly: "Is Lionel in?"

"He was here at his desk a moment ago," Jean told him. "He must have gone into one of the back offices. If you'll have a seat, I'll go call him."

"Thank you." He gave her a grateful smile and settled herself in a chair. Then, as she was walking away: "Pardon me, but, are you Lionel's wife?"

Jean's color rose noticeably. "Why, no," she stammed, embarrassed by his question. "I'm sorry. No, no, I mean I'm not." Abruptly she turned and walked out of the room, burning under the soft chuckle from behind her. Who was her? Why had he asked such an outrageous question?

She had come to the little hallway that separated the general office from the stock room when through the half-open door she saw Lionel standing in the shadow of a large cabinet, and, in his arms, Miss Telling, Sandy's secretary.

With a stifled gasp, she stepped back quickly until they were no longer visible. Then, after a moment, she coughed, kicked her foot against the electric cooler, and proceeded toward the stock room once more.

Miss Trelling, her face crimson, was pretending to arrange a pile of forms on a table by the cabinet, and Lionel was saying cooly: "And after that, Miss Trelling, will you take a look at the duplicating machine? The girls say it isn't feeding properly."

He turned to Jean in surprise. "Oh, hello. Were you looking for me, Jean?"

Jean smiled sweetly. "A gentleman to see you," she announced formally. "I told him you would be out immediately; but he might wait if you're busy."

Still smiling, she turned and went back to her desk.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Life grows more complicated every day. I caught Lionel kissing Miss Trelling in the stock room yesterday. It would have been amusing if he hadn't been so sneaky about it. But he tried to make me think they were doing some work in the stock room. She isn't particularly attrative, so I haven't any idea it is anything more than a kiddish flirtation. But the deceitful part of it I don't like. He wanted to walk home with me when I left the office, but I told him I had some shopping to do. He said he had something important to ask me. I don't like the sound of that, and after what I saw him doing, too, though he doesn't know I saw him with Miss Trelling in his arms. A letter from Sandy yesterday. The first word I've had from him since he went to Boston. I had to tear it up at once because of something he wrote, but I can almost quote it from beginning to end. What a darling he is! He said he has missed me. If he could only know how I've longed for him these last few days. I searched the paper through last night and failed to find a single line about the Fargeson murder. Wonder if they've dropped it at last? But I daresay the police haven't dropped it. No doubt they're lying low waiting for someone to make a misstep. Unless something prevents, I'm going out to see little Ellen again this afternoon. I don't know that Miss Wood will let me, but I'd like so much to bring Ellen in to see the Christmas displays. They're gorgeous.

Jean's mind was quite made up never to let Lionel know that she had seen him kissing Miss Trelling. But however hard she tried to see the ridiculous side of the incident, she knew in her heart that his attempt to deceive her had left a wound that would not be easily healed.

Lionel's remark that he had something important to ask her as she was leaving the office created a sore conflict within her. Instinctively she thought she knew what it was that he would ask, and she was almost afraid to face him again. If he had asked her two days before, she might. But then he hadn't. Why should she worry her head over what might have been? To-day, if she gave him an opportunity, he would ask her, and then what?

Ask her he did, and Jean was so amazed that of her mixed emotions she could not be sure whether it was the unexpectedness of what he told her or disappointment that rendered her momentarily speechless.

The task of getting off the original list of Miniature Baby letters had been completed and the augmented clerical force had been set at the work of providing a complete list of those from whom no
